WINCHESTER BOY PASSED MASSACHUSETTS BAR

Dana J. Kelley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Kelley of Mystic avenue, was notified on Monday of his admission to the Massachusetts Bar, he having been one of 200 successful candidates selected from the 1000 who took the examinations in June.

Mr. Kelley's success with his bar examinations is a real achievement in view of the fact that he was obliged to cut short his senior year in the Harvard Law School to undergo a serious operation which made it impossible to finish his academic work and take his final examinations. He returned to law school Monday morning to finish the work necessary to receive his degree and also take several additional courses.

Mr. Kelley is a graduate of Harvard and made his varsity "H" as a member of the football team. He prepared at Winchester High and Exeter, and during his high school days was captain and quarterback of Winchester's great eleven that won the Mystic Valley football championship in 1922.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE NOTES

Meeting of Board of Directors

The meeting was called to order by President Lochman at 8:15 p. m. Sept. 24. Present were Messrs. Lochman, Arnold, Kendall, Hamilton, Davidson, Quigley, Seller, Knight and Butterworth.

A motion made and seconded to send a letter of thanks to the Board of Selectmen for the placing of street signs along Washington street and Highland avenue, and the suggestion was made and approved that cards be printed of a size suitable for window display bearing the words "Member of Winchester Chamber of Commerce" and distributed to member merchants and business men.

It was moved that the Chamber go on record as being opposed to the development, as proposed, on the Purrington property on Cambridge, Wildwood and Salisbury streets and to write the Board of Selectmen asking for information as to the progress being made in the matter of parking. It was also voted to write the Water and Sewer Board that it has come to our attention that nothing has yet been done about cleaning out the shores of the North Reservoir, and ask for information about the matter, as this project would help to relieve the unemployment situation.

A vote was passed to write the Winchester Rock & Brick Co., in relation to filling the holes made by excavation at East street.

LIONS' CLUB

The regular meeting of the Lions' was held this week as usual. The attendance was gratifying, but not as large as last week. Some one pulled Box 21 just as the club was about to eat and so "Dave" had to leave and after putting out the fire he came back and had to eat alone. But "Fred" took care of him all right as usual.

Good progress was made on the constitution and by-laws and the entertainment committee were told to get busy.

The membership committee reported progress on their activities.

As a new club is to be instituted at Watertown, Oct. 27, it was voted to attend in a body. Ladies are invited to this institution.

WASHINGTON-HIGHLAND CHAPTER

The first meeting of the Washington-Highland Mothers' Association was held on the attractively decorated lawn of Mrs. Lucius Smith, 38 Park avenue, on Wednesday, in the form of a garden party for the teachers and new members, with the officers of the association of which Mrs. Earl E. Andrews is president acting as hostesses.

There were 68 present, a record attendance. Refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. Pilkington, Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Greiner.

DANIELS—SIMONDS

Announcements are out of the marriage of Miss Estelle Simonds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Simonds of Orient street, to Roland Francis Daniels at Kingston, N. B. on Friday, Sept. 18.

Mrs. Thomas I. Freeburn is spending this week in New York City.

BRESNAHAN—MacKENZIE

Both Stoneham and Winchester interest centers in the marriage solemnized in St. Mary's Church Monday morning when Miss Hazel Lauretta MacKenzie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander W. MacKenzie of Washington street, became the bride of Dr. Raymond Francis Bresnahan of Wright street, Stoneham. Rev. Fr. Clarence A. Macksey of the Church of the Little Flower in Everett, a cousin of the bride, performed the marriage ceremony in a setting of white gladioli, palms and evergreen. White carnations and satin streamers were used to decorate the pews.

At the nuptial mass which followed the ceremony Michael Ahern of Wollaston, baritone, sang Salva Regina and O Lord, I Am not Worthy.

Miss MacKenzie was given in marriage by her father and was attended by her sister, Miss Isabel L. MacKenzie, as maid of honor. Another sister, Miss Dorothea MacKenzie was bridesmaid with Miss Mary Bresnahan of Stoneham, sister of the bridegroom.

Mr. Bresnahan had for his best man, his cousin, Albert Casey of Stoneham, and the corps of ushers included John Measures of Reading, John Flaherty of Winchester, Carl E. Burton of Everett and Frank Wood of Stoneham.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents which was decorated with chrysanthemums, asters and gladioli. The parents of the bride and bridegroom assisted in receiving, Mrs. MacKenzie wearing Copenhagen blue transparent velvet with matching hat and plume. Mrs. Bresnahan wore brown transparent velvet with matching velvet hat. A catered wedding breakfast was served and music furnished by an orchestra under the direction of Thomas Gigliotti.

Upon their return from a wedding journey Dr. Bresnahan and his bride are to occupy their newly built home at 27 West street in Stoneham where the bridegroom has a dental practice.

The bride is widely known among Winchester's younger set, was graduated from the Winchester High School and from Bryant & Stratton Secretarial School. Dr. Bresnahan, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bresnahan of Stoneham, was graduated from Stoneham High School and from Harvard in the class of 1922. He is a member of Kiwanis and of Wakefield Lodge, B. P. O. E.

CHORAL SOCIETY IN FIRST REHEARSAL TUESDAY EVENING

The Winchester Choral Society, which has won the esteem of lovers of vocal music throughout the Mystic Valley, opens its third season under the direction of J. Albert Wilson, Tuesday evening, when members and prospective members meet for their first rehearsal at the Calumet Club hall at 8 o'clock.

The directors of the Calumet Club have kindly offered the Society the use of the club hall for its weekly rehearsals and the officers of the Society deeply appreciate this courtesy. The chorus in the two short years of its existence has won a place in the forefront of choral groups in New England and with the improvement expected this year should be second to none.

The Society is largely dependent upon its associate members for funds to make its existence possible and a campaign to enroll even a greater number than last year will be undertaken in the near future. George W. Stidstone of Lawson road is the Society's new president, succeeding Carolyn E. Gilpatric.

ANNUAL 4-H EXHIBIT

The annual 4-H Garden Club exhibit was held at Duncan's Hardware store, flowers and pumpkins making a fine background for the plate exhibits of locally grown products. Blue, red and white cards were awarded on each exhibit, and ribbons to the club members scoring the largest number of points.

Ribbons were awarded as follows: Jennie Luongo, first; Richard Glendon, second; Iver Olson, third. A special first prize ribbon was awarded to Charles Eshback who has been the leader, and who had a quality collection of vegetables on display.

MEETING OF DISABLED VETERANS' WELFARE GROUP

The first meeting of the Disabled Veterans' Welfare Group was held at the home of Mrs. R. K. Miller, 28 Crescent road, Wednesday, Sept. 23.

Tentative plans were made for the winters' activities, by which we believe will enable us to carry on this splendid work. After the business meeting, the remainder of the afternoon was spent at bridge, followed by refreshments served by the hostess.

Miss Ruth Johnston announces the opening of her School of the Dance Oct. 17, classes opening Oct. 24 at the Calumet Club. Parents and friends are cordially invited to attend the first class. Denishawn and ballet work is to be taught. Tel. Win. 1162-R.

MRS. MARY F. CUMMINGS

Mrs. Mary F. Cummings, for many years a resident of Winchester, died Sunday night, Sept. 27, after a long illness.

Mrs. Cummings was born Aug. 17, 1862, in Gloucester, the daughter of Timothy and Mary (Coffin) Davis. She was educated by tutors in Boston where her father was a practising attorney and later when he was elected to Congress divided her time between that city and the Nation's capitol. On Oct. 22, 1890, she married Walter Cummings who died in 1917.

During the 30 years of her life in Winchester she made her home first on Cabot street and after the death of her husband on Lewis road. Mrs. Cummings was actively identified with the Parish of the Epiphany, serving for 16 years in the important post of choir mother and holding membership in the various women's organiations of the church.

She is survived by a daughter, Miss Margaret S. Cummings of Elizabeth, N. J., and a son, H. Milton Cummings of Winchester. A grand-daughter, Phyllis, and a sister, Miss Eliza C. Davis of Winchester, also survive.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Church of the Epiphany with Rev. John W. Suter, rector honorarius, officiating, assisted by the rector, Rev. Dwight W. Hadley. J. Albert Wilson, former organist at the Church of the Epiphany, and six former choirboys, Frank E. Rowe, Jr., Robert W. and Parker C. Hart, Kenneth F. McLeod, all of Winchester; Stephen Matherson of Medford and Arthur E. Clare of Arlington, were bearers. Organ music was played by the church organist, Enos Held. The remains were cremated Wednesday morning at the chapel in Mt. Auburn where prayers were read by Rev. Mr. Hadley. Burial was in the family lot in the cemetery at Gloucester.

STEPHEN C. CLARK

Was Native of Winchester

Word has been received from Pasadena, Calif., that Stephen Cutter Clark died during the night of Sept. 27. A son of Oliver Richardson and Julia Ann (Cutter) Clark, he was born at Winchester in 1859, his father having been a prominent resident of the community, a Selectman and one of the owners of the old mahogany mill which was situated on upper Main street near Lake street. The Clark homestead still stands on Main street and is occupied by Mr. Frank Welsh.

The deceased was graduated from Phillips Academy, Andover, in 1877, and entered Harvard the same year. His college course was interrupted by a serious illness and by a year of study and travel in Europe, where he attended courses in German literature, mediaeval and modern, at the University of Leipzig. After his graduation from Harvard in 1883, he was for five years principal of a school at West Boxford. In 1888 he moved to Pasadena, and with his wife, a graduate of Smith College, established a classical school for boys.

He married in 1885 Grace Miller Greene of Malden. With his wife he leaves three children, Mrs. Fitch Haskell, wife of a prominent architect in Pasadena; Miss Julia A. Clark, a missionary and a deaconess of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and principal of St. Hilda's School at Wuchang, China; and Rev. Stephen Cutter Clark, rector of a church in Pasadena. There also are six grandchildren.

"WHAT I SAW IN CHINA"

First Congregational Church, Sunday Morning at 10:30

At the morning service next Sunday morning at the First Congregational Church, Rev. Stanley Ross Fisher, formerly pastor of the Wellesley Congregational Church, will be the speaker. Mr. Fisher was chosen by the Rockefeller Foundation as one of a fact-finding committee to spend a year in China covering the mission fields of all denominations.

This committee visited every important mission field in China and held conferences with both missionaries and Chinese officials themselves, in an attempt to ascertain the value of missions in China.

Mr. Fisher has recently returned to the United States with a wealth of material on the Chinese situation. The unsettled state of China today ought to make this address of supreme interest to everyone, regardless of denominational affiliations, and it is expected that the church will be full to hear Mr. Fisher. The public is invited.

MARCHESI—GIRONDA

Announcement is made of the marriage on Saturday morning, Sept. 26, of Miss Gladys Angelina Gironda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Gironda of Florence street, and Anthony Marchesi, son of Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Marchesi of Holland street. The ceremony was performed in St. Mary's Church by Rev. Fr. William J. Clarke and was followed by a largely attended reception at the home of the bride's parents.

ELKS TO HOLD LADIES' PARTY

Winchester Lodge of Elks announces a ladies party for the evening of Tuesday, Oct. 6, following the regular session. Dancing and refreshments will be the program, with the music by Fred Strahans orchestra. The party starts at 9:15 oclock.

Coach "Archa" Amico expects to have both "Arbie" Taylor and "Livin" McNeil in the Town Team's lineup on Sunday afternoon when the "Townies" journey to Concord for a game with the Concord Yankees on the Emerson playground.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Mr. and Mrs. Ashley K. Hayden of Glengarry have returned to Winchester from Jackson, N. H., where they have been registered at the Eagle Mountain House for the past three weeks.

Mrs. Chester A. Porter (Ruth Carpenter) was taken to the Trumbull Hospital at Brookline this week. She has been afflicted with a dislocated bone in her back, and will remain at the hospital under observation and may possibly have to be placed in a plaster cast. It is anticipated that she will be there for two weeks. Mrs. Porter is well known as an associate of Mrs. A. M. Edlefson in her real estate office.

Mr. Frank Black of Rangeley, widely known advertising man, is one of the judges to decide the winner of the contest now being sponsored by the New England Coke Company in which $5000 in prizes will be distributed to writers of the best essays telling of the additional guarantee of protection just given to New England Coke consumers. First prize is $1000 and there are 600 other cash prizes to be won.

Mrs. George B. Smith of Cambridge street returned yesterday from the recently concluded Culbertson convention in New York City. Mrs. Smith was invited by Mr. Culbertson to address the 400 teachers at the convention and to demonstrate her method of teaching contract with a series of charts. The teachers were much interested and impressed with the charts which may be rolled up for convenience like a music roll. Mrs. Smith reported a most successful and enthusiastic convention and found none of the Culbertson devotees worried over the new teaching method.

The Fire Department was called at 8:26 Wednesday morning by a round from Box 37 to the house on Irving street occupied by Mr. Frank Ferraina. A smoky chimney was the cause of the trouble. At 4:30 Wednesday afternoon there was a fire in the bullrushes at the rear of Clark street. Thursday morning at 8:30 the department was called to put out a fire in a LaSalle sedan at the home of Mr. J. J. Costello on Mason street.

Saturday afternoon Special Officer Robert Eason notified Headquarters that a boy had been struck by an automobile on Highland avenue near Webster street. Shortly afterward George Creamer reported at the station that while he was driving a Ford roadster north on Highland avenue, David Harris, 12-year old son of William T. Harris of 209 Highland avenue, ran from behind a parked ice truck into the path of his machine. The boy was taken to the office of Dr. R. L. Emery where he was treated for slight injuries.

Patrolman Daniel Kelley arrested Samuel A. Biswanger of 366 Salem street, Medford, at 12:18 Wednesday morning in the center on charges of drunkenness and driving under the influence of liquor. Patrolman Kelley's attention was attracted to Biswanger when he stopped his car to wait for the blinker to show green. In Court Wednesday morning the case was continued until Oct. 7.

Mrs. James Sidney Allen and Miss Helen Hall of this town are attending the Massachusetts World Christianity Leadership Training Institute being held at the Chateau of the Northfield Hotel today.

Edward S. Winn of the Winchester Postoffice, prominent through Middlesex County as an expert rifle and pistol shooter, added another trophy to his already long list last Sunday at Lowell. Shooting in the 25 yard slow fire pistol competition at the Dracut Gun Club tourney against nearly 50 competitors he scored 95 out of 100 and 97 out of 100, easily winning the cup.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. E. Hopper have returned to their home at 3 Wildwood street after spending September at the Bethel Inn, Bethel, Me.

Mrs. Ralph U. Sawyer has become associated with the A. M. Edlefson real estate office.

Winchester friends of Miss Mary A. Fitch of Sheffield west will be interested to learn that a portrait of Miss Fitch is now on exhibition in the gallery of the Boston Art Club. The portrait was painted during the summer by Earl Edward Sanborn, a distinguished artist and particularly noted for his work on glass.

Dr. J. Churchill Hindes, president of the Rotary Club of Winchester, left yesterday for Poland Springs, Me., where he will attend the conclave of Rotary Clubs. He will return on Monday.

Work was actually begun upon the erection of the new school buildings this week, but for about two weeks all the work will be done by a steam shovel so that it will be unnecessary to employ any unskilled labor for a time.

Police Chief William H. Rogers has recommended that the Selectmen make Hemingway street a one-way street and that parking be restricted to a single side of the roadway. Chief Rogers feels that the curve of the street creates an especially dangerous situation with the large number of people now attending masses in the Noonan School.

A Dodge sedan, driven by Katherine F. Goggin of 22 Highland avenue and a Maxwell touring car, operated by Thomas C. Sawyer of 44 Franklin street, Medford, were in collision last Sunday forenoon near the corner of Washington street and Governors avenue.

Winchester admirers of Rufus H. Bond, former coach of Winchester High School's football team, were pleased to learn that in addition to his duties as coach of freshman football at Harvard he has been named mentor of the yearling basketball and baseball teams.

Mrs. Mary Kelley of Hill street underwent a serious operation at the Massachusetts General Hospital on Wednesday.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Leaders Club to Meet

The first meeting of the Scout Leaders Club will be held at 6:30 p. m. on Wednesday, Oct. 7 at the West Medford Congregational Church. Supper will be served, after which there will be an investiture ceremony by members of Troop 5, Medford, and the award of Eagle badges to six Scouts who have recently qualified.

The fall and winter program of leader training courses will be announced at this meeting.

Burlington-Woburn Court of Honor

With the assistance of the Troop committee in these communities the Council is organizing a Court of Honor to serve the Scouts of Burlington and Woburn. Thus far the following men have been selected by Troop committees to serve on the Court of Honor: Mr. Arthur R. Nelson, Woburn; Mr. Willis Hunt, Burlington; Mr. Forest G. Fogg, Woburn.

The first meeting of the Court will be held early in October.

Troop Meetings Well Attended

Reports from Scoutmasters all over the Council indicate that Scouts are returning to Troop meetings in large numbers and with greater enthusiasm than ever before. The keynote of the fall and winter work of the Troops as they develop their programs seems to be Scout advancement and outdoor scouting. It is expected that this season will see more Troops on hikes and more boys reporting to Court of Honor for advancement in rank than was the case last year.

Kenoza Short Term Camp

Scouts and Scouters throughout the Council will be happy to know that the camp committee has fixed up the leaders' cottage at the waterfront for short term camps. Applications for the use of the camp by Troops have been mailed to Scoutmasters. The cottage has been equiped with double deck bunks, stoves, dishes and all the necessary camping gear to take care of 16 boys. With the two stoves the cottage, which is shingled outside, can be kept very comfortable even in the coldest weather. It is expected that many of the Troops will avail themselves of these facilities for camping during the fall and winter months.

Columbus Day

A parade in celebration of Columbus Day is to be held in Medford at 10 a. m. Monday, Oct. 12. The Scouts of the Medford District are to report at Governors avenue at 9:45 a. m. on that day. Scouts from other communities in the Council are also invited to attend if such attendance does not interfere with local celebration.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

Tonight, Oct. 2, we have one of the club dances, run for members and all friends of the club interested in dancing and good music! Frankie Flynn is still favoring us with his orchestra music, and nothing but praise is heard concerning its performance. We wish more of the townspeople would drop in and enjoy these parties with us. The charge is quite reasonable.

Time is drawing near now for that illuminated canoe parade at Medford on the evening of Columbus Day. Just about 10 days remain to get things rolling for this affair. After what the Medford boys did to help liven up our parade last year it is no more than fair for us to encourage them all we can by decorating and putting canoes into the parade. Motor boats will be at Medford on Monday evening, Oct. 12, to tow any boats that so wish to the parade route. So let's get organized.

HIGH SCHOOL IN FIRST HOME FOOTBALL GAME

Winchester High School plays the first home football game of its current football season tomorrow afternoon at 2:30, meeting the Concord High eleven in a Middlesex League game on Manchester Field.

Coach Ronald Linderman and his assistant "Jake" Turner, have been busy this week ironing out the mistakes of the Stoneham game and expect their charges to make a better showing against Concord. "Indian" DiApella will be back at his end position and it is hoped that "Hal" Knowlton, flashy halfback, will be able to get into the game for a time.

Lentini, scrappy center, is out with a bad shoulder and Gaffney has water on the knee. "Dick" Barksdale, who was out of the Stoneham game with "charlie-horse" is expected to see service tomorrow.

Coach Linderman expects to start McKee at center, Captain Flaherty and Daley, guards; Tranfaglia and Randlett, tackles; DiApella and Dolan, ends; Tofuri, quarterback; Hannon and Mills, halfbacks; and Lynch, fullback.

WINCHESTER HARRIERS AT ARLINGTON

Winchester High School Cross Country team opens its season this afternoon, taking on "Doc" McCarthy's Arlington High team over the Arlington course. The locals won the Harvard Class B championship a year ago and apparently have the makings of another strong club this season. In starting with Arlington, the locals are showing themselves to be ambitious for the Spy Ponders are veterans at the cross country game and were the only team to take Winchester's measure last season.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

The trustees of the library are to meet tonight for the purpose of interviewing applicants for the position of caretaker at the new library building.

Mr. Raymond S. Wilkins of this town is a member of the law firm of Palmer, Dodge, Barstow and Wilkins which is continuing the business formerly conducted under the firm name of Storey, Thorndike, Palmer and Dodge. Mr. Wilkins was graduated from Harvard Law School in the class of 1915 and served during the World War as a captain in the 301st Field Artillery. He served on the commission appointed by the legislature to investigate boxing in Massachusetts and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and of the Massachusetts Bar Association.

Mr. J. L. S. Barton of the Winchester Country Club is included among those nominated for office in the Massachusetts Golf Association.

The Fire Department was called at 1:40 yesterday afternoon to put out rubbish fires in the cellars of the houses torn down to make room for the new junior high school on Main street. The men were called again at 7:40 this morning for smouldering rubbish in the same place.

Robert T. Maitland, 16, of Medford and Anthony Colannino, 17, of Cambridge, the youths who during the summer were responsible for a series of holdups involving Winchester motorists on Grove street were sentenced yesterday to 10 and 5 years respectively at the Concord reformatory.

Manager "Jim" Chisholm of the local Duncan store was the victim of a worthless check passer Wednesday afternoon when a young man gave him a check for $25 in payment for a lawn mower selling for $7.25. Telling a plausible story, the man ordered the mower delivered at a fictitious address in Woburn. Mr. Chisholm reported the matter to the police who learned that the same man attempted the same trick at the Hersey Hardware Co. but without success. A man answering to the description of the crook was picked up by the police of station 16 in Boston Wednesday evening, but Manager Chisholm failed to identify him yesterday morning.

Patrolman James E. Farrell of the Police Department who has been on the watch for hen thieves in the Highlands district of the town was informed Tuesday night that two shabbily dressed men had been hanging about the Rock and Brick plant for several days and were living in a vacant house on Holton street in Woburn. As he set out to investigate and approached the neighborhood mentioned he heard hens crackling and an automobile motor start. The machine drove off toward East Woburn before Officer Farrell could get near enough to stop it. He notified the Woburn Police and with Patrolmen Folan and Daver combed the district for clues of the men without success.

IN HONOR OF A LADY

Alfred R. Somerby of Winchester gave a dinner party at Sunset Hill House, Sugar Hill, N. H., on Friday evening, Sept. 18, in honor of Mrs. Somerby's birthday anniversary. The table, with seats for 20, was decorated with flowers, having a huge center piece of roses and sweet peas, while the table cloth was strewn with carnations. Each lady was the recipient of a beautiful corsage bouquet. A special menu printed for the occasion gave the names of Mr. Somerby's guests with humorous references to their various occupations. Telegrams of congratulations were read from those unable to be present. Dancing was enjoyed in the hotel ballroom, after which the party visited the attractive summer home of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Summers on Sugar Hill. Mr. Somerby, who is president of Lothrop Theatres Inc., operating the Bowdoin Square and Howard Theatres in Boston, is spending a part of his vacation at Sunset Hill House.

The invited guests to this delightful affair were Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Summers, Mr. and Mrs. L. Z. Pazolt, Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Breed of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Smith of Sugar Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stanley of Lincoln and Mr. and Mrs. G. Conrad Brummer of Lisbon.

WINCHESTER WOMENS' REPUBLICAN CLUB

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Republican Club will be held Wednesday, Oct. 7 at 2:30 p. m. at Association Hall. The speaker of the afternoon will be Hon. Edith Nourse Rogers, Congresswoman, who will talk to us about political affairs of the time. This should prove both interesting and instructive to everyone. All Republican women of this town are invited to become members of this club. Mr. Arthur Jones, from the U. S. Veterans' Hospital will be the soloist of the afternoon. There will be tea served by the members of the social committee following the meeting.

New floors laid, old floors made new. Estimates given. Tel. Win. 1088. s25-tf

MISS SHERMAN TO WED IN CALIFORNIA OCT. 8

Mrs. Roland Henry Sherman of Winchester and her daughter, Miss Nancy Sherman, left this week for Alameda, Calif., where Miss Sherman's marriage to Mr. Homer Theodore Craig, Jr., will take place, on Thursday, Oct. 8.

Only the immediate families will be present at the ceremony, which will be followed by a family dinner at the Craig home in Alameda.

Miss Sherman, a graduate of the May and Garland Schools, was active in athletics, especially tennis, at both Abbot Academy and the May School. Since graduating from the Garland School, she has done sports' writing on the Boston Globe, covering tennis and hockey for the past year. Her father, Roland H. Sherman, died about two years ago.

Miss Sherman and her mother are expected to arrive in California on Saturday, and they will be guests of Mr. Craig's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer T. Craig.

WINCHESTER PAIR IN INTER-URBAN FINAL

Harry J. Donovan of Lincoln street and Cecil F. McGoldrick of Symmes corner are to compete with Robert P. Keady of Brookline and George E. Savage of Roxbury in the final foursome of the Inter-Urban Golf Club season at the Scituate Country Club today.

Although handicapped by lack of practice for previous matches the Winchester contenders made a very favorable showing during the summer. During the past two weeks they have been training intensively and it is expected that the present title honors Messrs. Keady and Savage will have keen competition in the coming match.

The entire membership of the club has been invited to a dinner and dance at the Cleveland House, Nantasket, to be given by the losers immediately following the contest.

Mary V. Keady of Brookline is in charge of transportation and refreshments.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL

The Training School of the Winchester Hospital welcomed the entering class of probationers on Sept. 13. Eleven students are enrolled in this fall's class. They have all met the 1932 requirements of the New York State Board of Registration for Nurses and have completed the full high school course of four years. Several have taken additional courses in college and other fields of education.

The new students were welcomed by the Training School committee of the Winhcester Hospital and their older fellow students at a delightful meeting on the afternoon of Sept. 17.

The committee, formed of Mrs. Stillman P. Williams, Mrs. Herbert W. Kelley, Mrs. Harold S. Tuller, Mrs. J. Edward Downes and Mrs. Vincent Farnsworth, Jr., greeted the girls who were introduced by Miss Hilda M. Torrop, Superintendent of the hospital and Miss Alice Moberg, the practical instructor.

Rev. Dwight W. Hadley was the speaker of the afternoon and spoke to the students from the fullness of his experience on the qualities needed in the field of nursing, dependability, getting along with people, willingness to take discipline and become a true deciple in their chosen field of endeavor where the work done for the patient counted side by side with that of the doctor.

Mrs. Benjamin P. Browne, wife of the pastor of the Baptist Church, delighted those assembled with her happy songs so sympathetically rendered. She was accompanied by Miss Dorothy Eaton, who in her turn contributed toward the pleasure of the afternoon by her piano selections.

Mothers and guardians of the new students had been invited. Several were able to attend and meet the committee during the social hour that followed.

The members of the probationary class are as follows:

Miss Alice Barr, Chestnut Hills.
Miss Concetta Costa, Wakefield.
Miss Arlene Coffan, Wakefield.
Miss Ruth Craig, Bangor, Me.
Miss Pauline Erickson, Wakefield.
Miss Marjorie Greer, Wakefield.
Miss Helen Madden, Ashmont.
Miss Margaret Matthews, Somerville.
Miss Anna Perkins, Melrose.
Miss Adelaide Trice, Stoneham.
Miss Margaret Webber, Fort Fairfield, Me.

TOWN TEAM IN SCORELESS TIE AT LOWELL

Winchester Town Team played the second game of its 1931 campaign last Sunday afternoon, figuring in a scoreless tie with the Lowell Rovers at First Oval in Lowell.

Once again a big crowd of local rooters followed the "Townies" to Lowell and saw "Archa" Amico's boys completely outplay their considerably heavier opponents. Lack of a backfield punch at the goal line prevented Winchester from scoring in the opening quarter when the locals had the ball on Lowell's 8-yard line, and several times later in the game Winchester was in position to tally only to see its attack stall.

On behalf of Manager Amico's charges it may be truthfully said they got none the better of some particularly poor officiating. The officials were especially zealous once the locals got within striking distance of the Lowell goal line, and the never-failing penalties hurt Winchester's chances badly. Four times the "Townies" were within the Lowell 10-yard line yet each time failed to score. Lowell was unable to work the ball inside the Winchester 40-yard stripe and seldom got past middle field. Failure of the local ends to cover forward passes prevented possible scores in several instances.

The Town Team lined up with Amico and Del Grasso, centers; Kerrigan, Tofuri, Elliott and Capone, guards; Doherty, Quigley, Frongillo and Feraina, tackles; Cummings, O'Melia and R. Horn, ends; Fleming and Boyle, quarterback; Carroll, Chefalo and Flaherty, halfbacks; and Prue and Roy Horn, fullbacks. Four 10-minute quarters were played.

WINCHESTER GIRL IN TWO FINAL MATCHES

Sylvia Hatch Shows Strongly in Annual Fall Tourney at Longwood

Sylvia Hatch, high school sophomore, made a fine showing in the annual fall boys and girls' tennis tournament at the Longwood Cricket Club last Saturday. More than 100 players participated in the event.

Sylvia played consistantly good tennis to advance through the early rounds of play in girls' singles to the semi-final round where she defeated Elena Ciccone of Newton Centre, 6—5. Tomorrow she will meet Florence Bowditch of Concord in the final round for the singles' championship. Miss Bowditch having won her semi-final match from Gertrude Backes, another Winchester girl.

It is of interest to note in passing that Mary Boyden, Gertrude Backes, Betty Gilbert, Sylvia Hatch and Louise Williams advanced to the quarter-finals giving Winchester five of the eight players participating in this important round.

Besides her success in the singles play Sylvia paired with John Palfrey of Chestnut Hill to advance through the semi-final round of mixed doubles, defeating Betty Gilbert of Winchester and Wilbur Marcus of Brookline, 6—4. On Saturday the Hatch-Pafrey team meets the winner of the semi-final match bringing together Elena and Nick Ciccone of Newton and Gertrude Backes of Winchester and Willard Babcock of Brookline.

The boys' championship was won by Seymour Stearns of Malden who defeated Nick Ciccone of Newton in the final round, 6—2.

WINCHESTER LOST OPENER

Sloppy Tackling Helped Stoneham to 12—0 Win

Winchester High opened its 1931 football season at Stoneham last Saturday afternoon, losing its first game in the newly formed Middlesex League to Stoneham High, 12—0. A crowd estimated as about 2500 saw the battle.

Those who went over to Stoneham expecting to see Winchester's inexperienced eleven routed by the Pomworth streeters, who have dropped but two games in three years, were pleasantly surprised. The locals were defeated but by no means disgraced, and for a time previous to losing Tofuri more than held their own with the Stoneham boys.

The injury to Tofuri removed from the game Winchester's only experienced back and one of the two letter men in the Red and Black lineup. While he was in there "Patsy" was the local's sparkplug and his injury deprived Winchester of its only experienced field general.

Two of Winchester's four letter men were unable to play against Stoneham, a bad knee keeping Knowlton on the sidelines while DiAppela was prevented from playing because of a wedding in his family. These two boys would have helped the local cause no end and might have made it possible for Winchester to have pulled out on top. An experienced back like Knowlton would have meant much to the locals' offense while the rugged DiAppela at his end post would have bolstered up another weak spot, especially on defense.

Chase, a big rangy back; Connor, hard running quarterback; Avery, veteran end; and Captain Clark at center, gave Stoneham its edge and the first named was the outstanding player on the field, running well off the tackles and doing the kicking and passing for the Blue and White.

Sloppy tackling made it possible for Stoneham to score both its touchdowns. Without detracting a bit from the splendid running of Connor and Avery, neither should have been permitted to get by the local secondaries as they did. The Winchester boys just wouldn't leave their feet and both Connor and Avery were able to shake loose from the local boys' attempts to get them around the shoulders.

Over anxiety cost Winchester one chance to score and inexperience another, but all in all Coach Linderman and followers of the local eleven were pleased with their team's showing. The locals were in there fighting all the time and during the first half were able to rush for more first downs than the heavier Stoneham team.

Young Hannon, sophomore halfback, showed up splendidly in his first varsity game, running well with the ball and doing some pretty kicking, placing his kicks well and getting them off nicely under pressure. Lynch, too, ran well in streaks and Lentine at center was a veritable fighting fool, passing well enough on the whole and taking plenty while coming back for more.

Capt. "Joe" Flaherty played one of the best games we have seen him show on the Red and Black rushline, breaking through several times to make tackles behind the line, and once blocking a Chase punt. He was constantly pepping up his players and kept in the game every minute. "Buck" Daley and Tanfaglia also took a lot and liked it.

Stoneham kicked to Winchester to start the game, the ball being returned to Winchester's 40-yard line. The local attack stalled and Hannon dropped back to get off a pretty kick which Connor caught deep in his own territory. The Stoneham quarterback reversed his field and cutting out to the right ran past three Winchester tacklers, any one of whom should have cut him down, to within the locals' ten yard line. Two thrusts at the line were piled up, and on third down Connor fumbled a none-too-good pass from center. Two Winchester men were through fast, but failed to blot out the Stoneham speedboy, who quickly scooped up the pigskin and skirted his own left end for a touchdown. The try at goal failed.

In the second quarter, which began soon after, Winchester commenced to click and finding the right side of the Stoneham line yielding to pressure worked the ball from midfield to the Stoneham three-yard marker, Hannon and Tofuri doing some pretty ball carrying.

With a touchdown in sight the local backfield men became over anxious and a sharp pass from center wasn't covered, the ball sailing out into open territory where it was recovered by Avery of Stoneham. From then until the half, Winchester kept the ball in Stoneham's territory, but was unable to seriously threaten the goal line.

Finding that they could gain at will through the right side of the Stoneham frontier the locals quickly changed their offensive tactics and tried to penetrate the strong side of the Blue and White line, a resumption of the 1930 strategy we had hoped to see discarded this year.

During the second quarter Tofuri got a kick in the head which slowed him up badly and shortly following the resumption of play after the half he sustained a back injury which forced his removal from the game. "Patsy" fought to remain on the field and had to be literally carried to the sidelines by Captain Flaherty and three team mates. The little quarterback was completely out and had to be taken home by his brother, "Musky" and "Bill" O'Connell, a couple of sweet guards in their high school days.

The loss of Tofuri pricked Winchester's offensive bubble and from then until the end of the game the locals never could get going. Little McGaragle, who relieved the injured "Patsy" was uncertain of his plays and got so much assistance from his mates that Winchester was several times penalized for stalling.

The locals lost a corking chance to score midway through the third quarter when a Winchester secondary knocked down a Stoneham pass which he had only to catch with a clear path to the home team's goal line.

As the game were into the final quarter, Stoneham commenced to open up, and a pretty pass from Chase was grabbed by Avery at the Winchester 25-yard line. Cutting directly in front of two Winchester secondaries the Stoneham end ran along the sidelines for a touchdown. Stoneham's attempt to pass the extra point failed.

The locals kept trying and took to the air in a desperate attempt to advance the ball. The aerial attempt amounted to a little less than nothing and the game ended with the ball in Winchester territory, but out of danger thanks to Hannon's effective punting.

Stoneham lost a fine chance to score in the opening quarter when Avery muffed a perfect pass from Chase while out in the open with no one between him and the locals' goal line. The victors had a criss-cross developing into a forward which was deceptive and when better executed should prove an effective offensive weapon.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

The screen's most unique stellar personality, loved the world over for himself, his songs, his vivacity comes to the University Theatre next Sunday for four days, in his new starring picture, "The Smiling Lieutenant." He is Maurice Chevalier, the smiling French entertainer whose love-making and love-singing have made him the idol of two continents. "The Smiling Lieutenant" is a rollicking romance, with all the love and song appeal of his first moving picture, "Innocents of Paris;" with Claudette Colbert, Marion Hopkins and Charlie Ruggles in importing roles. The story deals with the delicious romance of a young lieutenant of the guards, whose smile gets him involved with two women.

"Transatlantic," featuring Edmund Lowe and Lois Moran, coming Thursday for the last three days of the week, offers the public a chance to travel the ocean in deluxe style, as a passenger aboard a luxurious liner, and at the same time enjoy a romantic comedy drama, replete with thrills and laughs.

"Huckleberry Finn" the companion feature, was made directly from the book by Mark Twain, one of the classics of American literature. Like "Tom Sawyer" it is known to tens of millions. The cast includes "Jackie" Coogan, Junior Durkin, Mitzi Green, "Jackie" Searl and Eugene Pallette.

VISITING PAIR WON MIXED FOURSOME PLAY AT WINCHESTER

Last Friday proved not so good for low scores at the Winchester Country Club, the 88 turned in by Mrs. H. R. Watson of Hoosic Whisick and Raynor Gardiner of Weston being the only card under 90 and good enough to win the annual mixed foursome event at the local links.

Mrs. E. C. Stone and W. P. Arnold, last year's winners, were in this year's field but after showing strongly to the turn where they had a 43 they flivvered on the 10th and 13th, totaling 51 for the last nine holes.

Mrs. F. F. Sullivan of Winchester paired with R. R. Gorton of Brae Burn to get a 90 for second place, and Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Brown had a 93 to lead the all-Winchester teams.

Mrs. Sullivan and Gorton won the low net competition with a 76, Mr. and Mrs. Brown's 78 giving them second place.

Mrs. D. M. Belcher and L. D. Wood of Winchester, 1930 State mixed foursome champions were unable to get better than a 96 which figures were also turned in by several other admitted strong teams.

The card of the winners and the scores of the Winchester teams in the tourney follow:

Next week is Fire Prevention Week and everyone is urged to combat in every way possible this great menace which last year in Massachusetts did property damage estimated at $18,000,000 to say nothing of injury and loss of life. Common sense in the matter of rubbish disposal and a strict observance of the local fire laws are two of the best ways we know of to assist the Winchester authorities in this campaign.

wish to speak to you:

. . to tell you of one of the safest and best places in the world for you to put your money in small or large amounts

(Two million people are doing this now, at the rate of many millions of dollars a month)

. . to guarantee to you both principal and interest so that you can compute what the returns will be throughout the years you wish an income

. . to show you how you can have a guaranteed income which you cannot outlive—continued and administered for others

. . to tell you that its $1,300,000,000 are so scientifically invested in assets of such virtue, that in this time of depressed valuations, their market value exceeds their book value

. . to tell you that in its 30 years, this company—which is under most rigid control—has paid every cent of its obligations, and is earning and paying excess dividends above its guarantees

. . to quote to you that the last 7 Presidents of the United States have recommended this investment program to the people of this country

. . to show you that it is so safe and sure that widows by the thousands use its services without a worry as to its certainty.

Winter Plumbing Conveniences

THE social season—the season of entertaining—is on us again. Are you efficiently prepared to meet its demands on you as hostess? Here are some of the things we recommend to make the task of entertaining guests easier:

Double Drain Board Sink with strainer—doing away with the need for the dishpan. More sanitary.

Extra Bathroom for your convenience, and for the comfort of the overnight guest.

Automatic Water Heater all the hot water you need, instantly, for every household purpose.

Lavatory or Toilet conveniently placed in basement for use of children during play hours.

All these will add to the comfort, convenience, and value of your home. Telephone us, and we'll plan for your needs.

Remember the Banana

A humorist, Oliver Nold, has voiced it this way: "Co-operate: remember the banana—every time it leaves the bunch it gets skinned."

It is undoubtedly true that co-operation is a great factor in all worth while business successes.

Co-operative Banks have abundantly demon-trated this. We have produced bigger returns for the saver and we have given people the world's best plan for home ownership. These things have come through co-operation.

We are not a private profit-making institution. We belong to the holders of our Co-operative Bank Shares. To them go all the profits and benefits.

New Christian Science Publishing House

Continued growth of the activities of The Christian Science Publishing Society has necessitated expanded facilities. To meet this condition The Christian Science Board of Directors of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, will erect, as soon as plans and arrangements are completed, a new publishing house.

Here provision will be made for the needs of The Christian Science Monitor, The Christian Science Journal, the Christian Science Sentinel and all other literature published by the Society.

The new building, which will cost in the neighborhood of $3,000,000, will occupy approximately 58,000 square feet of ground bounded by Massachusetts avenue, Norway, Falmouth and Clearway streets, Back Bay. Operations are to be hastened in accord with the public and private building program which Mayor James M. Curley of Boston has been urging in conjunction with President Hoover's recommendation for relief of unemployment.

The structure will have a varying height. The Massachusetts avenue end of the building, which will be used for offices, will be nine stories in height, while that part which is opposite The Mother Church edifice will be three and four stories in height and in scale with this edifice.

The publishing building will be related in architectural style to The Mother Church, and its design has been influenced by the fact that in the future it probably will become one of a group of buildings which will surround and form a fitting architectural setting for the Church. It will be an all-stone building of the Italian Renaissance type, the lower story to be of granite and the upper stories of limestone.

Special attention will be given to the installation of modern heating and ventilating devices. The central plant will be housed in a building adapted to it, with an ornamental tower inclosing the stack, the tower to be of brick and stone conforming with the beauty and symmetry of the main building.

The building now occupied by The Christian Science Publishing Society, completed in 1908, will be used for the administration offices of The Mother Church.

The architect is Chester Lindsay Churchill, and with him is associated Lockwood-Greene Engineers, Inc., of Boston, which will have charge of the plant layout.

POLICE HAD TIPSY DRIVERS IN COURT

Patrolman John Boyle was the complainant against Charles V. Larson of Terrace Hall avenue, Billerica, he having arrested the latter after a chase on Cambridge street during the night of Saturday, Sept. 19. The following Monday his case was continued one week and on Monday a second continuance was ordered until Oct. 4.

Charles J. McCarthy of 17 Crowley street, Lowell, was found guilty of driving while under the influence of liquor and fined $50. He was arrested by Patrolman John Regan on Cambridge street during the night of Monday, Sept. 21.

Harold Green of 120 Prospect street, Somerville, was fined $30, he having been arrested by Patrolman Daniel P. Kelley on the charge of drunken driving early Monday morning. Green attracted the attention of Patrolman Kelley when he drove his automobile through the Square minus one tire and with another tire flat. Additional charges of driving without a license and registration were preferred by the police.

Fred Chefalo of 19 Ramsey street, Dorchester, had his case continued until Oct. 5. He was arrested by Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy on Bacon street at 1:30 last Sunday morning, charged with drunkenness, operating while under the influence of liquor and driving an unregistered and uninsured car. The plates on the Essex he was driving belonged to a Maxwell sedan, registered to John J. Cheffalo.

FIRST MASSES IN NEW PARISH LAST SUNDAY

The first masses in the newly formed Immaculate Conception Parish, including a part of the North End of Winchester and the South End of Woburn, were celebrated last Sunday morning in the Noonan School Hall by the pastor, Rev. Fr. James Fitzsimons. At both the 9 and the 11 o'clock masses the hall was filled and late comers were forced to stand.

Last Sunday evening the new parishioners were given an opportunity to get acquainted at a mass meeting held in Catholic Center Hall, Woburn. Joseph A. Scott presided at the organization meeting at which the speakers were Rev. Fr. Patrick Heaney, newly appointed pastor of St. Charles Church, Woburn, Rev. Fr. Michael Doherty of Wollaston and James D. Haggerty, editor of the Woburn Daily Times. All the speakers spoke in happy vein and the meeting was one of good fellowship.

A committee of 40 members was named, 20 from Winchester and an equal number from Woburn, to take a census of the new parish for the purpose of better organization.

BLANCHARD HOUSE MOVED TO CORSE LOT

Building movers concludeh on Wednesday the work of moving the former Blanchard house from its old resting place adjacent to the high school to the old Corse lot opposite the new library building.

When the movers got the building out onto Washington street last Saturday they found that they were unable to move straight ahead because of the branches of a large tree at the corner of the high school lot. Saturday afternoon, feeling between the movers and property owners became strained and Tree Warden Samuel Symmes telephoned Police Headquarters requesting Chief Rogers to go to the scene of the moving and straighten things out.

There was little the police could do in the matter, and the movers were able to get by the tree without too much cutting. It was however, necessary to leave the dwelling blocking Washington street over the week-end and until Wednesday, detour signs being posted to route traffic around the obstruction.

The Star learns that the Selectmen have decided to deny the petition for a permit to erect a gasoline filling station at the corner of Forest and Washington streets. There was much objection to the proposed gas station voiced by residents of the district.

At 3:55 Monday afternoon Patrolman John Dolan rounded up two West Side boys who were stealing apples from the yard of a Cambridge street home. The boys were warned to keep off the premises.

Donald T. West, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. West of Mason street, is attending Pomfret School in Connecticut.

Wednesday morning at 12:55 the Fire Department was called to put out a fire in a LaSalle sedan on Wedgemere avenue extension. The machine was the property of Mrs. Florence C. Wiswell of Fletcher street.

Thomas Quigley, local contractor, has completed the grading around the new library building, much favorable comment having been aroused by the manner in which the job has been done.

WAS FATHER OF CHAUNCEY G. SHAW

Chauncey G. Shaw, who died Monday afternoon at his home in West Roxbury, was the father of Chauncey Germond Shaw of Yale street. The deceased was long identified with the retail jewelry business in Boston, conducting three stores on Temple place, Winter street and Tremont street in that city.

Mr. Shaw was born 65 years ago in Woodstock, Vt., the son of Benoni E. and Maria (Cutting) Shaw. Coming to Boston when 18 years of age, Mr. Shaw attended Chauncey Hall School before entering the jewelry business established by his father in Roxbury.

Subsequently Mr. Shaw went into the jewelry business for himself, extending his interest to include the three stores mentioned above which will be continued by his son.

Mr. Shaw, a man of wide philanthropy, was constantly in close touch with public as well as private charities, and was especially interested in the well being of his employees. He was a member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and the Boston City Club. Besides his son, he leaves his wife, who was Annie Clarke of New York.

WONDERFUL BARGAINS

HEART BROKEN AND DISGUSTED

Several years ago I bought Middlesex Alley, which looked good to me. I spent quite a lot of money on the houses. Later, I obligated myself to a roast of about $4000, besides giving all the land for a wide street.

I was satisfied with my investment and, I know of no one but who would admit I have improved this street wonderfully. After what has happened the last year, through neglect or inefficiency of our property protectors, I am ready to sell at a sacrifice.

I will sell the whole or any part very reasonable, small payment down and will put houses in good condition providing the new owner will move in before such repairs are made. I am 'regusted."

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

Winchester Girl Scout activities began Sept. 23 with the leaders meeting at the Cabin to discuss the winter's program. A luncheon was served by the commissioners.

On Oct. 1 all troops met at the Cabin for their opening meeting. The enthusiasm among the girls to start activities immediately, and their appreciation of the Scout House, made the leaders feel a renewed inspiration. The announcement of a shower for the Cabin in the form of a party, brought broad grins to the faces of all, and immediately great plans were under discussion as to what their special troops should give. Sixty girls expressed themselves as wishing to join the Drum and Bugle Corps. Looks as though Girl Scouts would make themselves heard in Winchester this winter.

On Oct. 6, an informal supper party was served at the Cabin for the freshmen high school Scouts by the Commissioners, and their new Captain, Miss Margaret Newman, a former Girl Scout. Twenty-four Scouts conducted a business meeting worthy of the most efficient leaders, and settled plans for their winter activities in a very decisive manner. Flash lights through the woodsy paths at 8 o'clock lighted the Scouts homeward bound. All expressed their loyalty to Girl Scouting and their leaders with cheers.

The Council meeting was held at the Cabin Oct. 7. Council plans were discussed, and if all goes well Council members will be as busy as the Scouts.

Troop 4 has planned a food sale to be conducted at Piccolo Brothers' fruit store Oct. 17, at 9 a. m. Captain Hughes' troop.

Girl Scout Week will be observed from Oct. 25 to 31, the anniversary of Juliett Low's birthday coming that week. A "Scout's Own" will be conducted Sunday, Oct. 25. All friends will be invited to attend. Throughout the week Scouts may be called upon for any community service.

Our friends who so kindly donated at the time of our drive will derive a great deal of satisfaction when they notice how often we have used our new Scout house for which their funds were used. A winter carnival is already included in plans, and archery has been voted on as a foremost sport in our program at the Cabin.

We publicly thank all who have given so generously, and are planning to give, to our budget.

Scouts will meet out doors as long as weather permits.

TOWN TEAM TO PLAY ARLINGTON ELEVEN ON COLUMBUS DAY

Winchester football fans will have their first opportunity to see "Archa" Amico's Town Team in a home game on Columbus Day when the local's engage the strong Arlington Pals eleven on Manchester Field at 2:30.

The "Townies" have played three games, winning two and figuring in one scoreless tie. Their goal line is yet to be crossed.

The local eleven boasts a fighting ball club with a strong line and a fighting backfield. It will be handicapped in its game against the Pals by the loss of "Nutsy" Amico, who is nursing a badly cut hand which necessitated several stitches.

Most of the Town Team players are former high school performers and the club has a great following because of its hard, aggressive football. A big crowd is expected on the holiday and every one is urged to buy a ticket and help the local management to meet the expenses incurred in keeping its eleven in the field.

DAVID REAGAN

David Reagan, for many years a resident of Winchester, died Sunday morning, Oct. 4 at his home, 934 Main street, after several months of failing health. He had been seriously ill for about two weeks previous to his death.

Mr. Reagan was born Dec. 16, 1860 in Ireland, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Reagan. As a young man he came to this country and soon after settled in Winchester, having been in the town's employ for the past 15 years.

He is survived by his wife, who was Bridget B. Barry, and by three daughters, Mrs. Mary Perry of Hudson, N. H. and Mrs. Catherine Welch and Miss Helen Reagan, both of this town.

The funeral was held Wednesday morning from the late residence with a solemn requiem high mass in St. Mary's Church. Rev. Fr. James F. Fitzsimons, pastor of the newly formed Immaculate Conception Parish, was celebrant with Rev. Fr. William J. Clarke, deacon; and Rev. Fr. Conrad J. Quirbach, sub-deacon. Bearers were Thomas McPartlin, Jeremiah Breen, William Thompson, Peter McNulty, John Barry, all of Winchester; and Thomas Coughlin of Brighton.

Interment was in Calvary Cemetery where the committal prayers were read by Father Fitzsimons.

Miss Johnston, formerly of the Braggiotti-Denishawn School, announces the opening of her School of the Dance Oct. 24, at the Calumet Club. Parents and friends are cordially invited to attend. Classes will be held Saturday mornings from 10 to 12 and Tuesday afternoons from 2:30 to 4:45. Phone Win. 1162-R. *

DISABLED VETERANS' WELFARE GROUP TO SPONSOR FOOTBALL GAME

The Winchester Disabled Veterans' Welfare Group, of which Mrs. R. K. Miller is chairman, is to stage a football game on Manchester Field, Friday, Oct. 30, for the benefit of the work which the group is doing for disabled veterans at the Bedford Hospital and in this town.

Through the efforts of Mr. Wendell Pray of Lawrence street and Mr. George E. Kimball of Glengarry the group has been able to secure the services of the Kents Hill eleven and as opponents for the Maine schoolboys the Tufts' junior varsity have been lined up. The Medford collegians were secured through the efforts of James J. "Jim" Fitzgerald, former Tufts All Eastern tackle, and with the co-operation of Prof. Robinson Abbott of the Tufts faculty, a resident of Everell road and coach of the Jay-Vees, Prof. Clarence P. Houston, faculty manager of athletics at Tufts, gladly consented to have the college boys play in Winchester.

The game has much local interest in that two of Winchester's outstanding players of a year ago, "Bob" Lee and "Dan" Smith are regulars on the Kents Hill team while it is expected that another Winchester boy, "Herb" Nelson, may be able to play for Tufts. Final arrangements for the game have not as yet been completed but tentative plans call for the presence at the game of a big group of disabled veterans from the Bedford Hospital with their drum and bugle corps. Save the date, Friday, Oct. 30 and watch the Star for subsequent announcements.

WINCHESTER HIGH HARRIERS TRIPPED ARLINGTON

For the first time since Winchester and Arlington have been competing in cross country (and their rivalry goes back to the fall of 1912) the Red and Black defeated the Red and Gray last Friday afternoon over the Spy Pond course in Arlington, 15—54.

Not for years has an Arlington cross country team got such a trimming. The Spy Ponders are New England Interscholastic champions and "Doc" McCarthy has built such a winning tradition during his long years as coach that throughout the Mystic Valley, Arlington teams have come to be considered all but unbeatable at the Hill and Dale game. On more than one occasion Arlington has won titles in Interscholastic meets at Cornell.

In view of these facts Winchester's win last Friday is doubly sweet and what a win it was. The first five to cross the finish line were Winchester men and eight of the first ten wore the Red and Black. Coach Muerling has accomplished in his first year what others have been trying to do since 1912 and seems set for a great season.

Winchester's "Allie" Lynch, a modest youngster, was first home in 15 minutes 29 3-4 seconds with "Tommy" McPartlin winning second when an Arlington runner was disqualified for failing to cover the entire course.

McPartlin was bothered with stomache trouble during the race and was a sick boy at the finsh, having to be helped from the field after crossing the finish line. Little "Dick" Pettingell pulled up in third place with Cress and Captain Corby following ahead of McDonald, Arlington's first runner.

WATCH THIS SPACE NEXT WEEK

It has come to me through the most efficient town official in Winchester, that every one in town is against the amendment to the by-laws. Only one person refused to sign the petition, his head was "square" and "sore" because he tried to do the same thing as this amendment would permit an unfortunate owner of property to do, that an unjust by-law committee dominated by the Fire Insurance Interests handed us.

Next week I will explan further and pay the freight.

OPPOSITION TO MAKING HEMINGWAY STREET ONE WAY

Opposition has developed to the proposal of Chief William H. Rogers of the Police Department to make Hemingway street a one way thoroughfare. At Monday evening's hearing on the matter, held before the Board of Selectmen, William J. Stevenson, Dana Pickering and Walter J. Gurney spoke in opposition to the project. Edward P. McKenzie felt that the matter was one for the Board to decide and expressed no preference, but believed that the inconvenience to residents of the street should not be considered in making the decision which should be based upon the hazard involved. The Board took the matter under advisement.

CALUMET DINNER SATURDAY, OCT. 17

The opening dinner of the Calumet Club's fall and winter season will be held on next Saturday evening, Oct. 17 in the Clubhouse at 6:30 p. m. and a large attendance is looked for. Manager "Art" Ross of the Boston Bruins is to be the club's guest and after the dinner there will be an exhibiton of bowling by Paul Poehler's "All Stars." Further particulars will appear in next week's Star, and President Harris Richardson urges all Calumeters to plan now to be present.

The entire membership of the Winchester Water & Sewer Board, Messrs. E. C. Sanderson, Charles E. Kendall and Clarence A. Whorf, with Supt. Harry W. Dotten, attended the New England Waterworks Convention last week.

WINCHESTER WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Republican Club was held at Association Hall, Wednesday, Oct. 7 at 2:30 p. m. After the salute to the flag, greetings were given us by our president, Mrs. Louis K. Snyder. Minutes of the preceding meeting were read after which our membership chairman, Mrs. Fred Scales reported 12 new members. Mrs. Dabney, our education chairman spoke to us on the Tariff question, telling about new bills passed to help the farmers. She said that business run by the government had not proved very successful, citing Australia as a typical case. The soloist of the afternoon, Mr. Arthur Jones from the U. S. Veterans' Hospital rendered some very lovely selections on the violin.

The speaker of the afternoon was the Honorable Edith Nourse Rogers. She is the new Congresswoman from our district, as the districts have recently been changed. We are in the fifth district. Mrs. Rogers told how she had been traveling through the Southern States, visiting the veterans' hospitals, to see and report on conditions there. She told how greatly President Hoover had helped in passing important hospital bills and that the hospitals were being improved in every way. She spoke of meeting prominent men in the South who assured her of President Hoover's popularity in the South, saying that they wanted his re-election. Mrs. Rogers spoke to President Hoover of several of the problems of our district and asked for appropriations to help Massachusetts industries. President Hoover is always trying to help the people into better conditions of health and happiness.

Against a hostile Senate he has been able to get some very important bills passed. It is seasy to exaggerate the depression in the United States and the stock market losses are mostly among speculators. The unemployment situation has been helped by bills passed to build new destroyers, new merchant marine boats, more buildings, a great many to be built of Massachusetts granite. The year ahead in Congress will be difficult because neither party has a majority and undesirable bills are liable to be rushed through. Mrs. Rogers is trying to get representation from Massachusetts on the Farm Board and is glad to receive suggestions from Massachusetts people as to their needs.

Mr. Jones then closed with another group of delightful numbers. Tea and a social hour was enjoyed after the meeting.

SERMONS OF CONQUEST

First Congregational Church Sunday Mornings

Next Sunday morning, Dr. Chidley will begin a series of sermons at the First Congregational Church, the subjects and dates of which are as follows:

October
11 "The Conquest of Fear."
18 "The Conquest of Indifference."
25 "The Conquest of Discontent."
November
1 "The Conquest of Doubt."
8 "The Conquest of Adversity."
15 "Missionary Horizons." Dr. Fred F. Goodsell.
22 "The Conquest of Self."
29 "The Conquest of Misunderstanding."

The public is invited.

WINCHESTER COURT, M. C. O. F. INSTALLED

Lyceum Hall was well filled Wednesday evening for the annual installation of officers of Winchester Court, M. C. O. F.

Warm colored autumn foliage made an attractive setting for the impressive installation ceremonial which was performed by Deputy Edward Dunlea of Quley Court, Woburn, assisted by the Wakefield Degree staff.

Mrs. Isabelle MacKenzie was installed for her sixth term as Chief Ranger, and the other officers installed were:

Vice Chief Ranger—Albert Horn.
Treasurer—P. J. McGurn.
Financial Secretary—James J. Callahan.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. Mary Hannon.
Senior Conductor—Mrs. Mary Mawn.
Junior Conductor—Mrs. Anna Noltmeyer.
Inside Sentinel—Mrs. Mary Callahan.
Outside Sentinel—Mrs. Mary McCormack.

Following the installation a social hour was enjoyed with dancing to music furnished by Wilson's Orchestra. Dainty refreshments were served.

SPECIAL SUNDAY NIGHT SERVICES

Dr. S. M. Lindsay of Brookline will open the fall series of Sunday night services when leading preachers of Greater Boston will be heard at the First Baptist Church. "My Favorite Sermon" will be the topic of Dr. Lindsay on this Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

This series received much favorable comment last year for its broad, undenominational outlook and has created a demand for a similar opportunity to hear outstanding preachers. Other preachers who will be heard it is expected include Dr. R. H. Stafford of the New Old South, Dr. Ashley Day Leavitt, of the Harvard Congregational Church, Dr. Edward T. Sullivan of Newton Centre, Dr. Graham Brown of China, and Dr. Howard Chidley of this town.

The general public is cordially invited to enjoy these services. The service on Oct. 18 will be omitted in order that all may unite with the Crawford Methodist Church to hear Dr. Raymond Calkins.

TAX BILLS OUT TOMORROW

All the town tax bills will be out tomorrow, Saturday.

A MATTER OF IMPORTANCE

Mr. Parsons Explains Proposed Zoning By-Law Changes

Winchester, Mass.
Oct. 8, 1931

To the Editor of the Star:

In this issue of the Star you are publishing a notice of an important hearing on proposed changes in the Zoning By-Law to be given by the Planning Board on Oct. 15, at 7:45 o'clock p. m., in the Town Hall. At this hearing there will be given to all interested parties an opportunity to be heard on the question of changing to general residence districts several parcels of land along Washington street northerly of Swanton street, which are now for the most part in the business or industrial districts.

The land in question is described in Article 6 of the warrant for the special town meeting and in the notice of the hearing. It is located as follows:

1. A parcel of land at the southwesterly corner of Washington street and Harvard street.
2. A parcel of land on the westerly side of Washington street between Harvard street and Irving street.
3. A parcel of land on the northwesterly corner of Washington street and Irving street.
4. A parcel of land on the southwesterly corner of Washington street and Forest street.
5. A parcel of land on the northwesterly corner of Washington street and orest street.
6. A strip of land on the easterly side of Washington street extending from the Aberjona river to the Woburn line.
7. A strip of land on the westerly side of Washington street extending from the Aberjona river to the Woburn line.

At the present time this land along Washington street in the business zone might be used for business purposes, such as stores, public garages or filling stations. If the proposed changes in zoning are made, hereafter practically nothing except residences can be built on the land. However, the changes would not prevent the continuance of the stores and other business places now established there.

The questions involved are important to the town generally and to the residents of Principal 1 especially. It is desirable that they be thoroughly discussed and carefully considered in advance of the special October town meeting, when final action will be taken. All persons interested are urged to be present at the hearing.

Yours truly,
W. L. Parsons,
Chairman, Planning Board

LEO REISMAN'S ORCHESTRA TO PLAY FOR DANCE

Leo Reisman's Dance Orchestra of the Hotel Brunswick, Boston, internationally known, has been booked for the Town Hall on Armistice night, Nov. 11 for the benefit of the Welfare fund of Winchester Post, 97, American Legion. The Post Executive Committee feels that no more worthy purpose could be served by the annual Armistice dance than to devote the entire proceeds to its Welfare fund which will be severely taxed this winter in assisting needy families in Winchester.

From 9 to 1, Winchester will be treated to as fine dance music as has been heard in town. During intermission, guests will be entertained by Earl Weidner and his famous Varsity Club Quartette of Boston, members of which are widely known for their radio broadcasts over Stations WBZ and WEEI as the New England Coke Trio. Every Sunday night they broadcast over WNAC as "The Fluffarettes," and are also heard on the "Rocket Hour." Other surprise entertainment features are expected to be announced later.

Suffice it to say that the committee in charge are making every effort to supply a high order of musical entertainment. The admission price of $1 per couple will be within the reach of everyone and tickets are now available at various local stores and from the following committee: George L. Barton, chairman; Wade L. Grindle, Kingman P. Cass, Lucius Smith, Kenneth S. Hall, Stephen B. Neilly, G. Warren Johnston and Harry Goodwin.

It is hoped that a cordial support by the townspeople will enable the Legion's Welfare fund to reach many needy cases.

MEDFORD BRIDE-TO-BE SHOWERED HERE

A color scheme of old blue and silver with vases of autumn flowers made a charming background for the miscellaneous shower, tendered Miss Louise C. Smith of Manning street, Medford, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Scholl on Vine street Tuesday evening. Miss Smith, who is the daughter of Mrs. Emma F. Smith, is to become the bride on Sunday, Oct. 18, of Emil A. Beauchamp, nephew of Mrs. Scholl and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil G. Beauchamp of Warren avenue, Woburn, and last evening's party was in honor of the approaching marriage.

Miss Smith was the recipient of many beautiful gifts and after the opening of the parcels an entertainment program was enjoyed. Featuring the entertainment was a most ludicrous mock wedding, in which Miss Doris Sorensen as bride and Miss Agnes Fallon as the groom were married by Mrs. Marie D. Coakley as clergyman. Miss Catherine Queenin was bridesmaid and Miss Delphine Patenaude, best man. Miss Isabel Beauchamp was flower girl and Miss Anna McKittrick, ring bearer. Refreshments followed the ceremony.

LEGIONNAIRES HELD INSTALLATION LAST EVENING

Wade L. Grindle, principal of the high school, was installed for his second term as Commander of Winchester Post, 97, American Legion, at the annual meeting and installation of officers at Legion Headquarters last evening.

The installation was conducted by County Commander Daniel Doherty of Woburn who was assisted by the County Sergeant-at-Arms, Ernest Mann of Stoneham. In addition to Commander Grindle the officers installed were:

Vice Commander—Patrick T. Foley.
Adjutant—Harry C. Goodwin.
Finance Officer—Gerald Y. Hills.
Historian—Arthur S. Harris.
Chaplain—Vincent P. Clarke.
Executive Board—Edward Boyle, Fred Cameron, Salvatore DeTeso, John Converse, Theodore Godwin, Bart Gurley, Warren Johnston, Conrad Larson, Richard Parkhurst, Cecil Young.

Reports of the retiring officers were read and accepted. Commander Grindle announcing during his remarks that the sum of $900 had been added in the past year to the Post's reserve fund.

Chairman George Barton of the Armistice Ball committee announced plans for a party which promises to eclipse anything which the Post has yet undertaken and offers to the town as a whole an evening of rare enjoyment. The meeting was brought to a most acceptable conclusion with the serving of one of "Monk" Carroll's justly famous clam chowders.

WINCHESTER TO DEDICATE NEW ATHLETIC FIELD AT ARLINGTON

The annual Columbus Day football game between Arlington and Winchester High Schools becomes doubly important this year in view of the fact that the occasion will mark the dedication of Arlington's new athletic field in the rear of the high school building.

The game will be played on Monday morning commencing at 10 o'clock, the dedication being set for 9:30.

Arlington is being favored by the wise ones to win this year's game between these two rivals of long standing and rightly so. Winchester is very green this fall, not too big and woefully shy of replacements. Arlington's win over Cambridge Latin indicates that it has an offensive strength which Winchester has not shown in its games with Stoneham and Concord.

The locals' chief chance with the Spy Ponders seems to lay in the fact that Arlington has always found even very inferior Winchester teams tough. The Spy Pond boys will meet a fighting Winchester team on the holiday, but on paper they should win.

Coach Linderman expects to start Lentini at center with Captain Flaherty and Daley, guards; Tranfaglia and Bottger, tackles; DiApella and either Mobbs or Dolan, ends; Tofuri, quarterback; Knowlton and Hannon, halfbacks; and Lynch, fullback.

WINCHESTER GIRLS PLAY WINTHOP TODAY

Winchester High School girls' field hockey team plays its first league game of the season this afternoon on Manchester Field with Winthrop High.

Coach Centervall found her inexperienced eleven woefully weak on offense in its practice game with Arlington last week and has been working hard to develop a scoring punch.

Her tentative starting lineup for this afternoon includes Lucy Fowle, goaler; Capt. Barbara Shaw and Grace Cutter, fullbacks; Mildred Johnson, Katherine Boutwell, Isabel Healey and Bertha Ross, halfbacks; and Priscilla Chamberlin, Roberta Healey, Barbara Small, Virginia Besse, Elizabeth Sharon and Jeannette Colucci, forwards.

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT NOTES

The school membership for September shows the largest membership for any month in the town's history. It is quite likely that the October membership will show an even greater number. The membership by buildings compared with that of last year is shown in the table below:

| | Sept. 1930 | Sept. 1931 |
|---|---|---|
| High | 573 | 598 |
| Highland | 45 | 38 |
| Lincoln | 332 | 309 |
| Mystic | 235 | 233 |
| Noonan | 267 | 279 |
| Wadleigh | 230 | 255 |
| George Washington | 207 | 220 |
| Wyman | 368 | 373 |
| | 2366 | 2405 |

NOONAN SCHOOL MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

The first meeting of the season of the Noonan School Mothers' Association was held Wednesday evening in the school hall. A large number of mothers attended. Mrs. Valerie O'Connor, president, presided.

A very interesting talk was given on "Child Development and Parent Education" by Mrs. Frances Conlon, one of our members. There will be five more of these talks during the season. All mothers should try to be present as these talks are both helpful and instructive.

Tea was served by members of the social committee following the meeting.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES

List of Contagious Diseases reported to the Board of Health for week ending Thursday, Oct. 8:

| | Cases |

GEDDIS—MOBBS

In the Crawford Memorial M. E. Church last evening, on the golden wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James G. Mobbs of Main street, Miss Imelda Emily Mobbs, became the bride of Andrew Geddis of Putnam road, Somerville, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Geddis. Rev. J. West Thompson, pastor of the church, performed the marriage ceremony at 8 o'clock in a setting of palms and was assisted by a former pastor, Rev. Alliston B. Gifford of Saugus.

Miss Mobbs was attended by her cousin, Miss Marjorie Mobbs of Winchester, as maid of honor, Miss Arline V. Grady of West Lynn, niece of the bride, was bridesmaid and another niece, Miss Alice Mobbs of Woburn, was flower girl. James Geddis of Somerville was his brother's best man and the ushers were J. Charles Abernathy of Brookline, W. Wentworth Nealley of West Medford, Clifford Mobbs of Winchester and Clinton Dondale of Somerville.

The bride wore a wedding gown of eggshell satin and departed from the conventional orange blossoms, arranging her veil of tulle with a simple cap of lace. Her flowers were white roses and valley lilies. The maid of honor wore a gown of pink satin and carried a bouquet of deep pink roses. The bridesmaid and flower girl wore frocks of yellow crepe de chine and carried old fashioned flowers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents who had been receiving callers and congratulations upon their wedding anniversary since late afternoon. Ferns, cut flowers and carnations made attractive house decorations and Mr. and Mrs. Mobbs assisted the bride and bridegroom in receiving with Mrs. Andrew Parks, sister of the bridegroom, and Daniel Geddis, the groom's brother.

During the reception Mrs. Mobbs cut her anniversary cake while her daughter was cutting the wedding cake, the double ceremony being most impressive. After the reception Mr. Geddis and his bride left on a wedding journey which is to take them to Havana, Cuba. Upon their return they will make their home in Winchester.

The bride was graduated from Winchester High School and from Burdette's Business College. She is Past Worthy Advisor of West Medford Assembly of Rainbow for Girls. Mr. Geddis is a graduate of Brookline High School, of the Bentley School of Accounting and Finance and of Wentworth Architectural Institute. He is associated with the Second National Bank in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. James G. Mobbs, who enjoyed the unusual distinction of celebrating their golden wedding anniversary upon the occasion of their daughter's marriage, were married Oct. 8, 1881, in Woburn by Rev. V. M. Simons. They are the parents of two sons and two daughters, Clarence Mobbs of Woburn and Springfield, William H. M. Mobbs of Wilmington, Mrs. Thomas F. Grady of West Lynn and Mrs. Andrew Geddis (Imelda Emily Mobbs).

Mr. and Mrs. Mobbs have made their home for many years in Winchester and enjoy a wide circle of friends. The Star joins the latter in offering congratulations and best wishes.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Courts of Honor and Examination Classes

The weekly examination classes for Winchester Scouts are held at the Winchester District Headquarters on South Border road, on Tuesdays from 4 to 5, and on Thursdays from 7 to 8:30 p. m.

The Medford Board of Review for Second Class and First Class Scouts will be held at the Scout office at 7:30 p. m. on Wednesday, Oct. 14.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Reenstierna were in Winchester this week calling on old friends. They made their home here for a number of years, residing in the house they built on the old Wyman development on what is now Fells road. Twenty five years ago they left for South America, where they have made their home up to the present time. Mr. Reenstierna formerly owned the old Maxwell tannery on Cross street, the building now occupied by the gelatine works. He invented a tag machine, which made and printed shipping tags in one operation.

LADIES' FRIENDLY SOCIETY

The Ladies' Friendly Society will hold its first meeting of the year 1931-1932 on Tuesday, Oct. 13, in the Unitarian Parish House. There will be an executive board meeting at 11:30 a. m. and afterwards the first of the four regular luncheons of the Alliance will be served. Mrs. Arthur G. Robbins, Mrs. L. H. Kenerson and Mrs. H. Russell Davis are the three chairmen in charge of the luncheon.

Mrs. Harold F. Meyer, president of the Ladies' Friendly Society, will preside at the business meeting beginning at 2 p. m. The speakers for the afternoon will be Miss Bertha Langmaid, secretary of the General Alliance, whose subject is "Unitarian Growth," and Mrs. Harry A. Stevens, chairman of the Cheerful Letter Exchange. The soloist for the day is Mrs. Jane Hill, contralto.

The annual rummage sale for the benefit of the parish house fund comes Wednesday, Oct. 21. Mrs. Daniel Kelley, chairman, is anxious that friends and members of the Ladies' Friendly Society who have rummage to contribute may leave it at the church by Tuesday, Oct. 20. In case this is not possible, Mrs. Kelley or her assistants, Mrs. C. F. Newell and Mrs. Wallace Cooper, will arrange to have the rummage collected, if they are notified in advance.

WINCHESTER CIRCLE OF THE FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE

The opening meeting of the Winchester Circle of the Florence Crittenton League will be held Oct. 15 at 2:30 p. m. at the residence of Mrs. Clarence A. Warren, 48 Everett avenue.

Mr. Howard Gill will have some interesting things to tell in relation to his work. Mr. Gill is the head of the Norfolk Prison Colony at Norfolk, this is run as an experiment in connection with the State Penal system.

Ruth Spencer who is becoming one of Boston's foremost musicians will entertain with harp and piano selections. Tea will be served.

Mrs. T. Grafton Abbott of Rangeley, who is widely known through her lectures on child welfare, spoke Monday morning on "Stories from Real Life" over Station WNAC.

CALLAHAN—FRANCIS

The chancel of St. Thomas Church in Jamaica Plain was attractively decorated with early fall flowers last Saturday morning for the wedding of Miss Catherine Elizabeth Francis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Francis of Center street, Jamaica Plain and James Edward Callahan, son of Timothy Callahan of Oak street. The ceremony took place at 9 o'clock and was performed by the pastor of the church, Rev. Fr. John A. Ryan, who also celebrated the nuptial mass which followed.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with a veil of tulle and carried calla lilies. Her attendant wore pink panne velvet with matching hat and slippers and carried talisman roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held and a wedding breakfast served at the home of the bride's parents. Upon their return from a wedding journey Mr. Callahan and his bride will make their home in Winchester.

The bride is widely known in the younger set of Jamaica Plain and before her marriage was employed in the office of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles. Mr. Callahan is a member of the Winchester Fire Department and of Winchester Lodge, B. P. O. E.

WILLIAM PARKMAN TO INSTAL ON TUESDAY

A large attendance is anticipated at next Tuesday evening's meeting of William Parkman Lodge of Masons in Masonic Apartments. The occasion is the installation of officers and the installing officer is to be Most Worshipful Frank Leslie Simpson, Past Grand Master of Masons in Massachusetts, who is to be assisted by Worshipful Paul Nye Shiverick, Master of Mystic Valley Lodge.

Dinner will be served at 6:30 and there will be vocal music by the Pilgrim Quartette.

Work was begun this week on the alteration of Russell Brook, and Chairman Edmund C. Sanderson of the Water & Sewer Board expects the job to be completed in about two weeks.

INJURED IN CRASH ON ARLINGTON STREET

Police Headquarters was notified at 4:30 last Friday afternoon of an automobile accident which had occurred on Arlington street near the residence of Mr. John Abbott.

Sergt. John H. Noonan was sent to investigate and upon arrival found that a Ford sedan had left the road about 200 feet east of Abbott's driveway and had smashed against a tree. The occupants of the car were nowhere to be found, and a checkup disclosed the fact that no one had sought treatment at either the Winchester Hospital or the Symmes Arlington Hospital.

The car was registered to Edward W. Lyons of Cambridge, and he was ordered by the police to report to Headquarters. On Saturday afternoon Lyons reported at the Station House and told the police that his machine had been driven from the road by another car and had been wrecked against the tree. He and a young lady companion, Miss Blanche Williams of 174 Hamshire street, Cambridge, had been injured in the crash. Miss Williams having sustained a broken leg. They were picked up by a passing motorist and taken to the Middlesex Hospital in Cambridge where they were treated by Dr. J. Newton Newman. The car was towed to a Cambridge garage.

ABANDONED BY HUSBAND

We've heard of children being abandoned by their parents, and also of husbands for one reason or another leaving their wives, but we've never heard of the latter being done in quite the manner in which it was reported to the police last Saturday night.

Headquarters was notified at 11:27 p. m. by a resident of Oneida circle that a woman had been abandoned by her husband there. Sergeant O'Connel went to investigate and found a woman who told him that her husband had abandoned her in the woods and that she had made her way to Oneida circle where she sought assistance.

The woman, who gave her name as Mrs. Mary McNeil of 16 Gray street, Boston told Sergt. O'Connell that she was riding with her husband and when they entered a wooded tract of land he had stopped the machine and requested her to alight. When she did so he started the car and left her.

Mrs. McNeill was unable to state accurately where she had been left. She was taken to Headquarters and later to her home.

Sylvia Parker will resume classes and private lessons in Expression the week of Oct. 12 at 180 Parkway, Winchester. Tel. Win. 0573-M. o2-2t

CLIFFORD—KIMBALL

The marriage of Miss Margery Pepperell Kimball, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Gove Carleton Kimball of Glen Farm, Woburn, and Clark McAdams Clifford of St. Louis, Mo., took place last Saturday afternoon in the Church of the Epiphany with the rector, Rev. Dwight W. Hadley, officiating, assisted by Rev. D. K. Montgomery of Lowell. The ceremony was performed in an attractive setting of cut flowers and green foliage.

Miss Kimball's honor attendant was Mrs. Addison Walker Closson of Brookline and the group of bridesmaids included Mrs. Albert O. Kiarus of St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. Ernest Stratford of Halifax, N. S.; Mrs. Edwin L. Beckwith of Brookline, Mrs. William E. Clark of Winchester, Mrs. Welles E. Holmes of Waban, Miss Elizabeth Kimball of West Newton, Miss Ann Whitney Kipp of Bronxville, N. Y.; Mrs. Charles C. Pyne of Providence, R. I.; and Mrs. Frances Fiske Adams of Utica, N. Y.

Mr. Clifford had for his best man Carleton Sturtevant Hadley of St. Louis, Mo., and the ushers were Welles E. Holmes of Waban, Edwin L. Beckwith and Addison W. Closson, both of Brookline; Charles C. Pyne of Providence, R. I.; Richard Kimball Baker of Boston and George Roudebush, Arthur Kehl, Louis A. McKeown and Albert O. Kiarus, all of St. Louis, Mo.

The bride wore a chanel model gown of ivory satin with rose point yoke and sleeves matching the lace cap with which her long tulle veil was arranged. The matron of honor wore coral velvet with matching hat and carried butterfly roses with larkspur. The bridesmaids wore frocks of blush pink velvet with coral velvet hats and carried larkspur and talisman roses.

A reception was held following the ceremony at the Winchester Country Club where the decorations were similar to those at the church. Upon their return from a motor trip to Canada Mr. Clifford and his bride will make their home in St. Louis.

The bride was graduated from Harcum School and from Bryn Mawr in the class of 1926. Mr. Clifford, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Andrew Clifford of Kingsbury Boulevarde in St. Louis, was graduated from Washington University and Washington University Law School in 1928, and is a member of the Kappa Alpha Fraternity.

SYLVIA HATCH AND JOHN PALFREY WON AT LONGWOOD

Sylvia Hatch of Winchester and John Palfrey of Brookline won the final match in the open fall tournament for boys and girls at the Longwood Cricket Club last Saturday morning, defeating Nick and Elena Ciccone of Newton, 6—2. The Newton team won its way into the final round by defeating William Babcock of Brookline and Gertrude Backes of Winchester in the semi-finals, after a hard fight, 6—5.

Fred Chefalo of 19 Ramsey street, Dorchester, who was arrested on Bacon street during the early morning of Sunday, Sept. 27, by Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy of the Police Department on the charges of drunkenness, operating while under the influence of liquor and with driving an unregistered and uninsured car, was fined $50 Tuesday morning in the District Court at Woburn.

WINCHESTER WON FROM CONCORD

First Period Touchdown Enough to Win

Winchester's fighting football team won its Middlesex League game with Concord High School on Manchester Field last Saturday afternoon, 7 to 0. The score does not indicate the locals' superiority, play being in Concord's territory during most of the afternoon. Faulty generalship prevented Winchester from rolling up a bigger score.

Coach Linderman was not entirely pleased with his charges' showing, and at times the tackling was very sloppy, but on the whole the locals were a whole lot better than they were against Stoneham, the addition of Knowlton and DiApella bracing both the line and backfield a lot.

"Johnnie" Lynch, husky fullback, was Winchester's offensive star, running hard off the tackles and seldom failing to gain appreciably through the line. Hannon continued his fine kicking of the Stoneham game and Knowlton contributed several bruising open field tackles which brought a grin to Coach Linderman's face. Tofuri showed some pretty running at times and on the rushline Captain Flaherty, Lentini and DiApella were towers of strength.

Concord had a big team, but the visitors were short of condition and took a lot of time out during the game. Fish, a big broth of a boy, was the outstanding lineman of the game and Megin, visiting quarterback, was a good all around performer.

Winchester outrushed the visitors 9 first downs to three, and only one of the locals' downs came as the result of a successful forward pass. Concord's aerial game was very weak and amounted to nothing at all.

Concord kicked off to start the game and Lynch returned the ball to the 35 yard line. Hannon and Lynch crashed to a first down through the line and on three successive plunges Lynch added a second, placing the ball on the Concord 40 yard marker. Here a Winchester fumble was recovered by Concord but on the first play a Concord fumble was recovered by DiAppela and Winchester was off again.

Hannon and Lynch and Lynch again made it first down at the 18-yard line. Lynch got two yards at center and Tofuri squirmed and twisted 7 yards through the Concord line. Lynch crashed through to a first down on the four yard line and Mills added a yard at center. On the next play Lynch hit off his own right tackle for the score and a moment later plunged through behind Lentini and Flaherty for the extra point.

Winchester kicked and just before the quarter Megin got away to a first down on Winchester's 48 yard line. McGrath crashed Tranfaglia's tackle but the latter held fast. He was hurt on the play and was relieved by "Hoss" Symmes, who reported for practice only a few days previous to the battle. Winchester held and Concord kicked to Winchester's five yard line.

Mills got 9 yards outside guard but Hannon was held at the line and kicked to Megin who was downed by DiApella at the Concord 49 yard line. On the next play Mills recovered a fumble on Winchester's 41 yard line but Winchester was stopped short and Hannon kicked to Megin at the Concord 20 yard line.

Dee got a yard and Cunningham, 4 yards, before Megin kicked to Winchester's 45 yard marker. On the first play thereafter Lynch was injured and was replaced by Knowlton who immediately ran for a first down on the Concord 42 yard line. A penalty for offside and a spinner play that failed to click forced Hannon to kick, the ball going outside at Concord's 20 yard line. A visiting pass was grounded and Megin kicked to Winchester's 48 yard line. Knowlton and Tofuri rushed to a first down as the half ended.

Mobbs went in for Dolan to start the new quarter and Daly kicked to Fish at the Concord 20 yard line. Megin on a clever cutback made it first down, but two subsequent plays were piled up and Megin kicked to Patsy who ran the ball back 25 yards to the Concord 35 yard line. After a couple of ineffective thrusts at the line Megin intercepted a Winchester pass and was tackled by Lentini at the Concord 25 yard line. Cunningham ran around end for a first down at the 35 yard line and Randlett went in for Symmes at tackle. A pass, Megin to Diskin, got 5 yards, but Megin was forced to kick and the ball went over the goal line, being put in play at the 20 yard stripe.

Fish of Concord was doing a great job on the Concord rushline and Winchester was forced to kick. Megin returned the punt and Hannon in turn kicked, Megin fumbling and Flaherty recovering for Winchester at the Concord 28 yard line. Lynch ripped off a first down on the 18 yard line as the quarter ended.

Here the Winchester attack stalled and Concord took the ball on downs, Megin kicking to Tofuri at the Concord 42 yard line. Knowlton made two yards in two rushes and Hannon faded back and out to the right, shooting off a pretty pass to Tofuri who was downed inside the 20 yard line. One rush went outside and on the next play Tofuri shot off a pass over center which just missed DiAppela across the goal line.

Concord smeared a fake placement and took the ball on downs and for the final few minutes of play succeeded in stalling off the Winchester attack. McKee replaced Lentini and Barksdale went in for Lynch as the quarter ended.

ALBERT JAMES YOUNG

Word was received in Winchester this week of the death Sunday night, Oct. 4, at Three Brooks, Pictou, N. S. of Albert James Young, a widely known resident and contractor of Winchester for many years.

Mr. Young was stricken with a shock Sept. 24, 1930, and had been in poor health since that time. He left town during the latter part of July to visit his brother at Three Brooks in Pictou and a month later experienced a second shock from which he failed to rally.

The deceased was born [illegible], Oct. 3, 1867 and came to [illegible] from Providence 35 years ago. He was one of those [illegible] one of the [illegible] in Winchester when [illegible] taken over by Arthur [illegible] and is now the Winchester Division of the N. [illegible]

For [illegible] in the employ of [illegible] man, local building [illegible] for the past 10 years [illegible] in business for himself. [illegible] hail England and Edward [illegible] horses on Longwood road, [illegible] Nathan Thumim house on Oxford street and the Dr. Milton J. Quinn house on Church street are among the fine homes in Winchester which he built. He was a member of William Parkman Lodge of Masons and of the First Congregational Church.

He leaves a brother, Scott Young of Three Brooks, Pictou, N. S. and a sister, Mrs. William Fraser of Caribou County, Pictu, N. S.

The funeral services were held during this week at Three Brooks and the burial was at this place.

TO DEDICATE MANCHESTER MEMORIAL OCT. 18

Sunday afternoon, Oct. 18 has been chosen by the committee in charge of arrangements as the date for the dedication of the memorial to Forest C. Manchester installed during the past summer on Manchester Field.

Details are not as yet entirely complete but the exercises will open at 3 o'clock and the principal speaker will be Mr. Charles F. Dutch, former town counsel. The memorial will be unveiled by Mr. Manchester's daughter, Mrs. Gerald Haddock of Hackensack, N. J., who is coming on to Winchester especially for the ceremony. Mr. Charles A. Lane of the Memorial Committee is to present the memorial to the town and the acceptance is to be made by Chairman George T. Davidson of the Park Board.

An Essex coach owned and driven by Daniel McGonagle of 3 Abbott place, Woburn, and a Chevrolet coach, owned and driven by Albert E. Farrey of 9 Newbury street, Woburn, were in collision at 10:15 Tuesday night at the railroad crossing in the square. The Chevrolet was damaged but no one was injured.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Supt. "Bill" Nicholson claims the Tree Department is supreme in the matter of active warfare against skunks and wasps. St. Mary's Parochial School has been chosen as a habitat by a large and active family of skunks, and last Sunday afternoon two members of the Fire Department spent considerable time in an unavailing effort to run the animals to earth. The Tree Department was appealed to and the Gerry gazottes, father and son, with "Tom" Gainey set several traps for the unwelcome visitors. Last night a [illegible] skunk was taken under the [illegible] and the trappers claim it will only be a question of time before the [illegible] family is disposed of.

C. D. OF A. NOTES

D. D. Helen Doherty of Court Stoneham was the guest at the meeting on Thursday evening of last week when the officers were elected for the coming year.

Mrs. Jane King was elected Monitor. With this exception the officers who served last year were all re-elected and will help G. R. Frances T. Conlon to conduct another successful year in court affairs. The newly elected officers will be installed on Thursday evening, Nov. 19, by D. D. Helen Doherty of Stoneham.

The meeting next Thursday evening will be a social one with P. G. R. Elizabeth C. McDonald and a competent committee in charge.

The first November meeting on the 5th will be the Court's annual Hallowe'en Party.

The members have been keenly interested in the Gold Medal broadcasts on Monday evenings at 10 o'clock over WBZ as the tenor soloist is "Billy" Coty, a former local boy, and a brother of our Court organist, Miss Mabel M. Coty.

Hallowe'en novelties, pumpkins, bean blowers and masks at the Star office.

Invest in Co-operative Bank Shares because the earnings are particularly favorable—

—because there is no safer investment—

—because a share account is convenient whether your monthly savings be large or small——and because the investment is readily convertible into cash if and when needed.

WERE DRIVING STOLEN CAR

Two Cambridge boys were arrested by Patrolman James E. Farrell of the Police Department at 7:45 Tuesday evening after the latter found that they had no registration for the Essex coach they were driving on Washington street.

Officer Farrell was standing at the corner of Washington and Cross streets when the Essex approached him, going at a high rate of speed. He signalled the car to stop, but it was not until the occupants saw Officer Farrell reach for his gun that they slowed down and obeyed his order.

When questioned, the youths who were in the machine could show no registration for the car, though one of them said that the Essex belonged first to himself and then to his father.

Patrolman Farrell took both youths to the station where they gave their names as George D. Waynaught, 18, of 41 Rossland street, Cambridge and James W. Gillespie, 15, of 741 Somerville avenue, Cambridge. Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy investigated and found the machine in which the boys were riding to be registered to Mary E. Sheehan of 28 Hurlburt street, Cambridge. In response to a telephone call, Miss Sheehan stated that she had left her car in a yard on Rossland street in Cambridge and had given no one permission to use it. Sergeant Cassidy then notified the police of Station 4 in Cambridge and the authorities there requested the Winchester Police to hold the youths until they could arrive to take them into custody.

WINCHESTER WORKMAN HAD NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH

Michael Flaherty, a laborer living at 5 Elmwood avenue, had a narrow escape from death Tuesday afternoon when he was buried by a heavy stone wall which slid upon him as he worked in a trench at the rear of the Zieman Block on Main street in Central Square, Woburn.

Flaherty was at work on a trench which was being dug close to the wall for a pipe line. As the earth was removed at the base of the wall its weight caused it to slide into the trench, burying Flaherty to his shoulders. The man was in a most dangerous position since any further movement of the heavy wall meant his death.

His cries attracted the attention of Alderman William P. Daley and the latter immediately summoned the Woburn Fire Department. Members of the Woburn Highway and Park Departments also assisted in the rescue.

Flaherty made no outcry nor did he attempt to free himself as the men worked desperately but carefully round him. He was finally removed from his precarious position and taken to the Choate Hospital where it was found that he had sustained a crushed foot but what other injuries could no be determined.

The injured man was treated by Dr. Francis J. Logue and was reported yesterday as resting comfortably at the hospital. At the time of the accident he was working with Fred L. Olmstead of Woburn who also narrowly escaped serious injury by throwing himself flat on the ground as the wall collapsed. Flaherty has been in this country only nine months and is in the employ of a Lexington plumber.

Lake at Glacier Foot

In the Swiss canton of Valais, at the foot of the great Aletsch glacier, will be found the beautiful little Lake Marlen, a dark green expanse of water on which floating ice may be often seen. This little lake is nearly 8,000 feet above sea level and is formed by the glacier, which is 550 yards in length and 100 feet in depth.

Body of Tall Men

The association which is composed of tall men is called the National Society of Long Fellows. It was organized in the spring of 1927, for the purpose of giving publicity to the needs of exceptionally tall people in the way of special accommodation.

CONSTANCE BERRY PAGE

WILL CONDUCT DANCING CLASSES

Constance Berry Page will conduct classes in ballet, tap, stage and ballroom dancing at the Calumet Club this season. This will be Mrs. Page's third successful year as a teacher of dancing in Winchester. She is particularly well known for her splendid results with the childrens' ballet classes. Her recent study has been with the foremost teachers in New York and she has had a wide experience in professional work.

The adult classes in ballroom dancing promises to be an added feature in the club activities.

WINCHESTER INTEREST IN BOSTON RECEPTION

One of the outstanding events of the season both musically and socially is the reception to be given by the directors and faculty of the National Associated Studios of Music to Professor Ottakar Sevcik, who has accepted an invitation to become guest teacher of the studios in Boston and New York.

The reception will be held at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Oct. 11 in the Sheraton room of the Copley Plaza Hotel at which an ensemble of members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will play Mozarts' Quintet in A Major. From 3:30 to 4 o'clock the program will be heard over WBZ.

The reception committee headed by Mrs. M. H. Gulisian, is comprised of some of Boston's most prominent men and women among whom are his Honor Mayor James M. Curley, Mr. Gaston Eleus, Mrs. Larz Anderson, Dr. Arthur L. Brown, Mr. Joe Mitchell Chapple, Mrs. Frances J. Flagg, Dr. Samuel McCaulley Lindsay, Mrs. Pearl B. Morton, Mr. Nixon Waterman, Mrs. Joseph A. Mahoney and Mrs. Gertrude Kay.

Without a doubt, Ottakar Sevcik is the most celebrated of all contemporary violin pedagogues. His many pupils who have won international recognition, as well as musicians in all branches of the profession bear testimony of his greatness.

It is expected that the music loving public of not only Boston, but other cities will be present to pay homage to Professor Sevcik.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

Wall Street has been presented in almost every one of its phases on the screen before, but in "Mother's Millions," which opens Sunday for four days at the University Theatre, movie fans are brought behind the scenes and shown an entirely new angle—the influence on the lives of a group of young folks of a magnificently wealthy woman who pulled the strings of the stock market and made them work to her liking. The picture presents for the first time on the screen one of America's most beloved stage actresses, May Robson, supported by a cast of stellar players such as James Hall, Frances Dade, Lawrence Gray, Edmund Bresse, Elinor Flynn and Lillian Harmer.

In "The Girl Habit," the companion feature, Charles Ruggles is presented as the wealthy young bachelor who is engaged to a pretty society girl. The hilarity of the show lies in the number of excruciatingly funny situations which come about when "Charlie" is caught in many escapades with other women—women who do not seem to be able to let him alone.

In "Young As You Feel" which starts Thursday, Will Rogers discards the personal habits of a lifetime and appears for the first time on stage or screen as a well groomed, Bond street tailored gentleman. His striking wardrobe is a definite part of the very human characterization Rogers portrays as "Lemuel Morehouse," dyspeptic, grouchy old fogey who is compelled to turn ultra modern as an example for his two sons. "Young As You Feel," which is the screen version of George Ade's hilarious play, "Father and the Boys," deals with the widowed father of two modern sons, a man who has devoted his life to their interest and who wishes them to settle down to business and become happy, contented husbands. The boys, however, have other ideas. One goes in heavily for society, while the other makes of sport a mania. Then Rogers resorts to desperate measures. A revolution takes place in his character, brought about by a chance meeting with a professional entertainer, portrayed by Fifi Dorsay, with whom Rogers made so much hilarity in "They Had to See Paris."

Origin of Strange Oath

It is supposed that "by the great horn spoon" originally referred to the large horn spoons common a couple of centuries ago, says Pathfinder Magazine. Spoons made of the horns of cattle and sheep were common in Scotland until late in the Nineteenth century and such utensils were common in colonial America. The Scotch of a former generation ate their porridge with horn spoons while the colonists in the New world used similar spoons with which to ladle soft soap and apple butter. Even the American Indians made spoons from the horns of buffalo. "By the great horn spoon" seems to be of American origin and there is something about it which suggests that it may have originated among seafaring people.

FLOOD LIGHTS WORKING NICELY AT MANCHESTER FIELD

At the request of the Winchester Town Team, Chairman George T. Davidson of the Park Board authorized Edmund C. Sanderson, local contractor, to install an electric flood light on Manchester Field and the big lamp was tried out for the first time last Friday evening.

The light proved very efficient and since that time has been used nightly by the town team for practice. Two lights are being tried out to determine the best type for local use. The cost of lighting the entire gridiron and hockey rink so that night games can be played is not excessive and Chairman Davidson is much interested in such a proposition, believing the town would consider the money well spent.

There is to be one light at the field at least throughout the fall, but whether more are installed depends to a great extent upon public interest. It is estimated that approximately $300 would be needed to light the field properly.

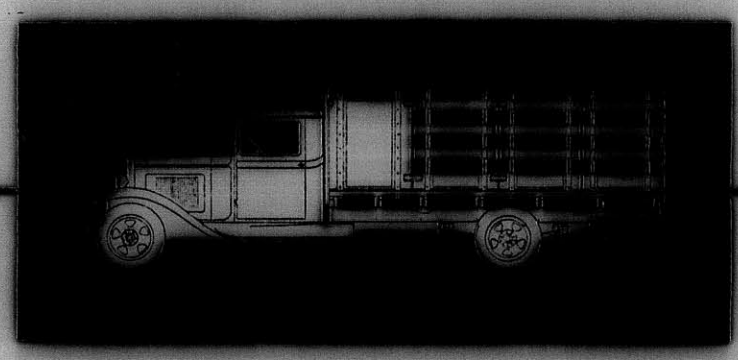
America's most economical truck is now available in 25 different models priced as low as $440—complete with body



NOTE: The model priced at $440 is the open cab pick-up.

By actual road performance, week after week, month after month—the six-cylinder Chevrolet has proved its right to be called America's most economical truck. Owners have found that on a ton-mile basis Chevrolet costs less for gas and oil, less for upkeep and less for service than any other truck—regardless of the number of cylinders. And price-comparison will show that this big, sturdy Chevrolet Six is one of the lowest-priced trucks you can buy.

Today, any truck user can apply this economy to his own particular work. The current Chevrolet commercial car line covers practically every delivery and hauling need. Twenty-five different models. Half-ton and 1½-ton pay-load capacities. Three wheelbase lengths. A wide variety of Chevrolet-designed and Chevrolet-built bodies. Just name the type of truck you need—and you will very likely find it in Chevrolet's all-inclusive line.

Each Chevrolet truck has a 50-h.p. six-cylinder engine—25% more powerful than any other engine in a truck priced so low. Maximum load-capacity is assured by unusually large bodies, supported by long rigid frames and long parallel-mounted springs. And Chevrolet truck prices are among the lowest in the commercial car market.

*All truck chassis prices f. o. b. Flint, Michigan. All truck body prices f. o. b. Indianapolis, Indiana. Special equipment extra. Low delivered prices and easy G. M. A. C. terms.

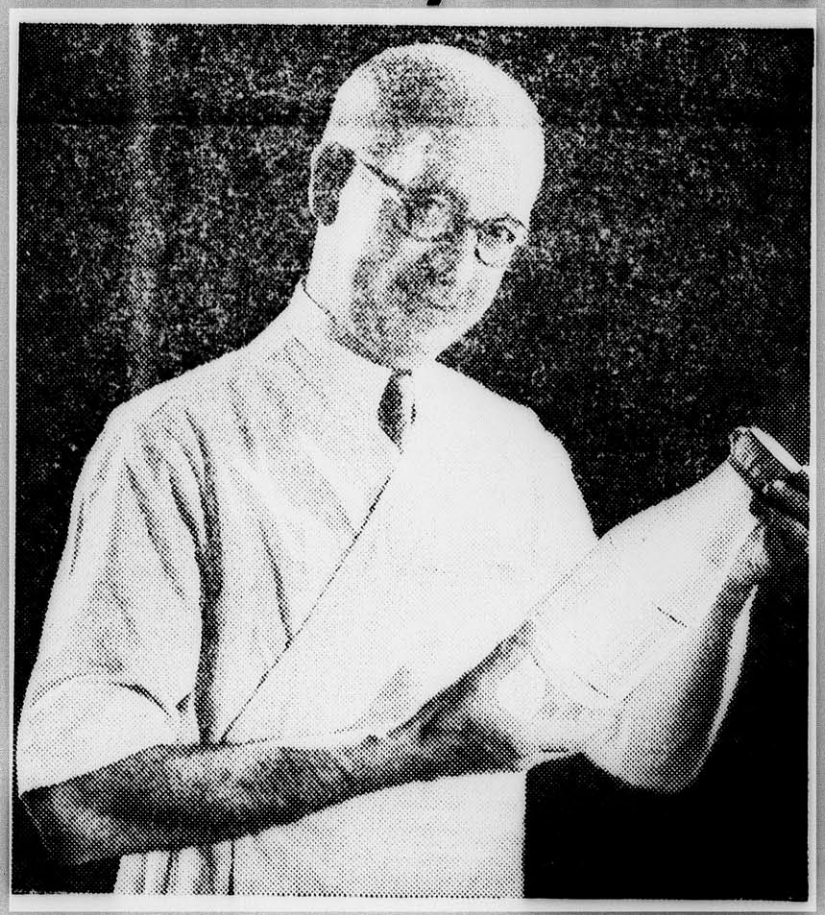
THERE MUST BE A REASON why more doctors use and recommend HOOD'S Grade A milk than any other kind



Of course there's a reason. The doctor knows fine milk and the care and scientific supervision required to produce it. He knows that Hood's Grade A Milk is uniformly pure, rich and fresh. He knows that the cows are tuberculin tested and that it is pasteurized in a way that keeps its marvelous flavor, makes it absolutely safe, and does this without affecting the vital vitamin content.

You take your doctor's advice about matters of health and diet. Follow his example in selecting your milk. More and more doctors every day are using and recommending

TOWN TEAM WON AT CONCORD

Before a good sized crowd, including a big delegation from Winchester, "Arena" Amico's Town Team defeated the Concord Yankees, 12—0, last Sunday afternoon at Emerson Playground, Concord.

The day was far and away too hot for football, but the game was nevertheless a good one, hard but cleanly played by two good teams.

Winchester scored soon after the opening kick-off when the locals stopped the Yankees running attack at the Concord 15-yard line. Concord tried to kick, but "Nutsy" Amico, Winchester's great center, was in fast to block the ball which bounded from his outstretched hands across the Concord goal line where it was fallen upon by Capone for a touchdown. Doherty's attempt to add the extra point by a dropkick was blocked.

Winchester kicked again and this time Concord took the air in an attempt to advance the ball. The aerial game turned out badly for Winchester's "Goose" Fleming intercepted a Yankee pass and aided by very effective interference ran 45 yards for a touchdown. Doherty's attempted field goal went under the cross bar.

The Town Team's interference on Fleming's run was noteworthy. Four or five local players formed a shield for the runner and the only Concord man in a position to stop the "Goose" was cut down from the side by "Tony" Chefalo.

In the second period Concord came its nearest to scoring when Prue's attempt to kick was blocked on his own 15-yard line. Concord recovered and on two sweeping off-tackle plays advanced the ball to Winchester's 3-yard line. It looked like a Concord score, but Capone broke through to recover a Concord fumble and Prue kicked out of danger.

Following the half Winchester was in the driver's seat much of the time though Concord prevented the locals from seriously threatening its goal line until shortly before the final whistle when Winchester worked the ball to the Concord 4-yard marker.

Here Fleming attempted an end run which might have resulted in a score had "Goose" speeded straight for the corner of the field. Fleming, however, was carting a wounded knee and lacked the necessary speed. He attempted to weave his way through, cutting ow the end and was stopped. The game ended soon after without further scoring.

DeMOLAY INSTALLATION AT READING

A public installation of officers of Middlesex Chapter, Order of DeMolay, was held in the Masonic Apartments, Reading, last Friday evening before a gathering of more than 250 parents, Rainbow girls and guests. The lodge room was given over to the DeMolay installation through the courtesy of Good Samaritan Lodge, A. F. & A. M.

Following the entrance of the installing Marshal, who announced the presence of an installing suite of past Master Councilors awaiting to install Middlesex Chapter, which consists of boys between 16 and 21 from the towns of Reading, Stoneham, Wakefield, Winchester and Woburn. The entire suite was ushered into the hall with an appropriate escort of Chapter officers. The suite consisted of Clifton H. Turner of Middlesex Chapter; Ormand L. Cutler, Beverly; Richard Lefavour, Fidelity Chapter; Willard C. Decker, Middlesex Chapter; and John A. Hammond, Jr., Medford Chapter.

The ceremony of installation was colorfully and impressively carried out and the work of the installing officer was rendered in a proficient manner. Preceding the installation services, a group of more than 40 Rainbow girls, Reading Assembly No. 29, were ushered into the hall and given honor seats near the East.

James R. Mercer, the newly inducted Master Councilor of Middlesex Chapter, presided over the meeting at the close of the ceremonies and remarked briefly on the purpose of DeMolay, its aims and ideals. He urged for greater support of the body and pleaded with parents to give their sons' membership in the DeMolay order, which today is the outstanding organization working for youth in the world. Every country in the world has representative chapters.

Several Advisors and DeMolays from surrounding Chapters spoke in behalf of the organization and congratulated the incoming Master Councilor.

Other officers installed were:

Senior Councilor—Harold Wheaton, Woburn
Junior Councilor—Carl E. Hibbard, Stoneham
Senior Deacon—Palmer Meikle, Reading
Junior Deacon—Craig M. White, Somerville

WINCHESTER BOYS ON TECH SCHOLASTIC LIST

The names of three Winchester boys appear upon the list just made public by Massachusetts Institute of Technology of those students, who during the second term of the school year, 1930-31, maintained a high scholastic standing.

Gordon Glover is listed among the students of second rank in the class of 1934, and both Charles McCormack and Henry Mitchell are among the students of third rank in the class of 1932.

A FINE FURNITURE STORE

A representative of this paper had the pleasure of visiting the Hill and Welch Furniture Store of Lynn recently and was pleased to find there one of the finest furniture stores it has ever been his pleasure to visit.

A new, modern bedding department and Colonial room with reproductions of true Colonial furniture and bedroom suites comprise the showings on the fifth floor.

An extensive showing of living room suites occupies the fourth floor. Here you will find beautiful living room suites from the inexpensive to the luxuriously upholstered down and hair filled ensembles.

On the third floor is one of the finest rug departments in New England. There is also an extensive showing of the Magic Chef gas ranges, Crawford ranges and everything for the modern kitchen.

On the second or mezzanine floor, one section is used for the interior decorating department, where you may see draperies, hand made by expert workers, also on this floor is a completely furnished bungalow, where you may gather ideas for furnishing a home.

Large window displays the full length of the Willow street side, furnish many suggestions for making your home more beautiful, comfortable and livable.

As members of the Century Group of 44 large furniture stores that buy as one, the lowest possible prices are maintained on high quality furniture at the Hill and Welch Store. Mr. Frederick W. Asseltine of 9 Cabot street is president.

It will pay you to visit the Hill and Welch Store, where courteous treatment and service is always in effect.

DEPALMA TO FACE FAST FIELD AT ROCKINGHAM

Ralph DePalma, outstanding auto racing pilot of the entire country, whose winning streak began more than 20 years, will face one of the stiffest tests of his career on Columbus Day at the Rockingham Speedway where he will line up such super stars as Louis Schneider, winner of the current Indianapolis 500 mile race; Lou Moore, winner at Altoona July 4 and Syracuse Sept. 12; "Shorty" Cantlon, Altoona winner on Labor Day; Arch Powell, Rockingham Labor Day winner; Fred Frame, Leon Duray, "Billy" Winn, Russell Snowberger and 25 other dirt track stars.

No professional athlete has ever dominated his sport so consistently over such a period as has DePalma. Although grey-haired and admitting 49 years of age the great Italian sportsman continues to drive with the same recklessness which characterized his earlier day achievements.

DePalma was the winner of the big event at Rockingham when that speed plant was first opened as a speedway for racing cars. He has participated in more than 3000 automobile contests and has won 2000 first prizes in such contests.

Manager "Dick" Dunn of the Boston Garden who is promoting the Columbus Day races can recommend that 75,000 spectators see that none who make the trip to the New Hampshire track need be disappointed.

Carelessness Is Costly

The common English blackberry, carelessly imported into New Zealand, spread so fast there, covering thousands of acres of fine dairy land, that thousands of dollars had to be spent in an attempt to destroy it.

GRACE AND CHARM
—by—

THE USE OF ASTRINGENTS OR SKIN TONICS

"What is an astringent, and what does it do for my skin?" This is a question so many women ask. An astringent is used to contract the tissues. Alum, alcohol, camphor, lemon juice are astringent. In fact cold water or ice water are astringent. The standard ingredients which are incorporated in any good astringent or skin tonic are perfectly harmless on the average skin, and to one whose skin is oily or flabby, it will be of special benefit. If your skin is in this condition, then you need a tightener, and a good astringent or skin tonic will help to dissolve the surplus oil and tighten it up. Use one which is mild and fragrant,—preferably one which is clear or faintly-tinted. To apply;—use small pads of cotton; pour on astringent. Then pat it over the skin in an upward outward movement, starting from the chin and working upwards to the ears;—from the lips upwards to the temples;—and from the center of the forehead outward to the temples.

The use of a good astringent or skin tonic will leave your skin refreshed, firm and toned-up,—ready for your make-up which should include a powder-base lotion or a good vanishing cream. Then your powder, rouge and powder,—eye shadow, lip rouge and a little touch of perfume behind the ears. Don't put on much perfume,—just a drop. Rather put it on more often.

Frances Mandel will answer questions on Grace and Charm if you will enclose stamped self-addressed envelope to Frances Mandel, Winchester Star, Winchester, Mass.

HARVEST HOME AND OLD FASHIONED PARTY IN FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

On Friday evening Oct. 16, all the good people of Winchester and their friends are invited to come to the parlors of the First Congregational Church for a good time. The country store will open at 4:30. Mail will be distributed from the postoffice as fast as the postmaster can manage to read the postal cards. There will be a cider barrel and apples and doughnuts, candy and ice cream. Plan to meet your friends at the old town pump, and to have your silhouette drawn by the local artist. Supper will be served at small tables from 6 to 7:30, while an old fashioned concert is being given on the stage. Then the floor will be cleared for square dances, Virginia reel, and some "round dances," too. Watch next week's Star for further particulars.

BARTON WINNER OF MEDAL PLAY

G. L. Barton and J. P. Bushell had 74s to tie for best net in the Class A division of the handicap medal play golf tournament at the Winchester Country Club last Saturday afternoon. Barton's 81 gross was eight strokes better than that of Bushell.

R. A. Metler had a 91—69 to win the Class B play.

The summary:

Class A

WINCHESTER MAN INTERESTED IN RECREATION ASSOCIATION

"Many of the boys and girls killed on the streets by automobiles are daring, adventurous, ready to take chances, heedless of danger, fun loving, bubbling over with high spirits," says a letter sent yesterday to Winchester citizens by Mr. Merton E. Grush, in the interest of the National Recreation Association of which he is a sponsor in this town.

Unprovided with public playgrounds these children play in the streets where most accidents happen, according to Mr. Grush. Twenty thousand children under 15 were killed last year in accidents, 30 per cent of them struck by automobiles, it was declared by one of the largest insurance companies, his letter points out.

"As surely as the life guard on the beach, though less dramatically, the Association's work saves lives," says Mr. Grush. "Through the recreation movement in America about 893 new play areas are being opened up each year. The National Recreation Association is the mainspring of this movement. By helping the Association you help to safeguard the active, healthy child."

ARLINGTON HIGH GIRLS WON PRACTICE GAME FROM WINCHESTER

Winchester High School field hockey team opened its 1931 campaign last Friday afternoon, dropping a practice game to the Arlington High girls at Arlington, 2—0.

Arlington apparently has another good team this year with a capable forward line and was able to keep the ball in Winchester's territory during the entire first half of play. Parks, Arlington right wing, scored the first goal from a scrimmage in front of the Winchester sticks and later just before the whistle at the half, Cartullo, right inner, slipped the ball past "Jo" Fowle for the second Spy Pond tally.

After intermission the Winchester girls braced and play was on the Arlington side of middle field during the remaining 15 minutes of play. The locals, however, were unable to break through, though they threatened on several occasions.

| ARLINGTON | | WINCHESTER |
|---|---|---|
| Parks, rw | rw, | Chamberlain |
| Boyle, rw | ri, | Small |
| Cartullo, ri | cf, | Besse |
| O'Sullivan, cf | | |
| Scanlon, cf | li, | Sharon |
| Scannell, li | lw, | Hanlon |
| Ford, lw | rhb, | Dolben |
| Keane, rhb | chb, | Bentwell |
| Davis, chb | chb, | L. Healey |

TOWN HOCKEY GETS UNDER WAY

The Winchester Girls' Hockey Association held its first meeting of the season last week at the home of Miss Margaret Newman. On Saturday, practice was held on Manchester Field, 14 girls reporting. More are expected to report tomorrow when the team has a game with Melrose.

On Sunday, Sept. 20 and every Sunday thereafter at 2:30 sharp, practice is to be held at Brimmer School Field, off Memorial Drive in Cambridge under the direction of Miss Joyce Cran Barry. All members of the Association are urged to attend practice as players are to be divided into groups according to their ability. Examinations for ratings will be held during the month of October.

The Winchester team is in need of hockey sticks and would greatly appreciate the gift or loan of any sticks which are not being used by their owners this fall. Call Manager Nichols if you have a stick the team can use.

Carolyn Mercer has been elected captain of this years' team with Carolyn Nichols, manager. Others who reported last Saturday were Loretta Carleton, Katherine Carlisle, Virginia Wadsworth, Marie Merrill, Janet Nichols, Mary Cutter, Anna Dolan, Frances Pettingell, Margaret Newman, Madeline Little, "Midge" Lockhart, and Vivian Smith.

October
10 Melrose
17 Lexington
31 Motley Club
November
14 Melrose

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held in the parlor of the Baptist Church on Friday, Oct. 16 at 2:30 p. m. The children will hold a patriotic meeting at the same place at 3:30. Mothers and children between the ages of 7 and 14 are earnestly requested to be present. Mrs. M. Ella Ricker, State director of children's work will speak at both meetings.

Real Dollar Bird

While the term "dollar bird" may be used as a slang name for the American eagle, the real dollar bird is an Australian roller, prevailing blue and black in plumage. It is so called from the large roundish spot of white on its wings, shown in flight.

Winter Plumbing Conveniences

THE social season—the season of entertaining—is on us again. Are you efficiently prepared to meet its demands on you as hostess? Here are some of the things we recommend to make the task of entertaining guests easier:

Double Drain Board Sink with strainer—doing away with the need for the dishpan. More sanitary.

Extra Bathroom for your convenience, and for the comfort of the overnight guest.

Automatic Water Heater all the hot water you need, instantly, for every household purpose.

Lavatory or Toilet conveniently placed in basement for use of children during play hours.

All these will add to the comfort, convenience, and value of your home. Telephone us, and we'll plan for your needs.

SUNRISE AT EIGHTY THREE

As peeps the sun o'er the edge of the world
Its daily course to run,
So I awake at eighty three
Another year begun.

I pause before thee, eye of God,
My soul doth humbly bow,
And now before the coming year
I make my morning vow.

As light flows from thy glowing heart
On this another day,
So memories dear glow in my soul
As I pursue my way.

As rays of glory paint the sky
With wondrous morning hue,
So would I give to brother man
A little radiance too.

As thou dost ever send out heat
While onward thou dost go,
So may there from my daily life
A blessing warmly flow.

As thou pourest life on sleeping earth
The slumbering seed to wake,
So may it be my great delight
To give as well as take.

When thou dost end thy daily round,
Thou leav'st an after glow,
May future years, because I lived,
A beauty also show.

As thou hast shone thru endless days
And never asked the way,
So I would live till God shall call
To be with Him on high.

Mr. Kneeland, a former well known resident of Winchester, is the father of Mr. William Aiken Kneeland, president of the Winchester National Bank. He is in the best of health and after spending the summer in Alaska, is now making his home in Claremont, Calif., with his daughter, Mrs. Philip Ordway.

DEATH . . . entered the room with her

"SHOULD a woman accept the moral code of the man she marries," this confessing woman writes, "even though it drags her through the suffering silence of hell?

"I loved my husband, Paul-Louis—loved him with all the yielding devotion of a country girl from Illinois. But he was French, a foreign gentleman with a foreign code of morals. He fouled my lips with faithless kisses—and threatened to rear my baby boy to worship his wayward attitude toward young womanhood.

"How could I—how could any woman endure such torture and still go on? I was frantic—at any cost I'd save my precious child. And so, on that fatal afternoon, I went to Paul-Louis' apartment to beg—to plead—even to kill—when—"

• • •

Here, into this thundering climax, Fate hurled a bolt that shook the very depths of this suffering woman's soul. If you love all that is clean and fine in life—if ever you have been tortured with the helpless thought of a loved one's unfaithfulness, here is a tremendous true-life story that will grip you though every starkly-told detail. The story is called HER LORD AND MASTER. You will find it complete in November TRUE STORY MAGAZINE—just as it flowed from the pulsing pen of this brave woman who fought for the Right. ## DEERFOOT FARMS

for 75 years have supplied the finest milk

THREE generations of Boston families have enjoyed the Aristocrat of Milk, from Deerfoot Farms. You find it in homes where they've always known that it's fresher, richer, finer. . . . It's a symbol of good living. And of course this better milk is sent to you in a safer way. In fact, it's the only milk in this region pasteurized right in the bottle. That means . . . sealed in glass, capped with clean metal, then pasteurized-pure right in the bottle.

Try this finer milk today. You can taste its freshness! Call Highlands 1857.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of the Power of sale contained in a certain mortgage given by Ersilia N. Sylvester to William W. Oakes and Edward C. Clark, Trustees under the will of George H. Oakes dated July 30, 1928 and recorded with Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds Book 5266, Page 145, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage, and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at public auction on the premises hereinafter described on Thursday, the twenty-second day of October 1931, at 11:30 o'clock in the forenoon, all and singular the premises described in said mortgage, to wit:

The land with the buildings thereon being Lot Two (2) as shown on a "Plan of Land on Church Street in Winchester, Mass., dated July 20, 1928, Parker Holbrook, Engineer" to be recorded herewith, and situated on the Easterly side of a passageway running Northerly from said Church Street as shown on said plan, and bounded and described as follows, viz:

SOUTHERLY by Lot One (1), eighty (80) feet;
WESTERLY by said passageway, ninety-four (94) feet;
NORTHERLY by land of Hilton, eighty (80) feet;
EASTERLY by land of McMillan, Helrich and Sharp, ninety-four (94) feet.

Containing seven thousand five hundred and twenty (7520) square feet.

Together with and subject to the use of said passageway with others for all purposes for which public ways may be used in the Town of Winchester.

Being a portion of the premises conveyed to the grantor by the New England Bond & Mortgage Company by deed dated June 30, 1927 and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds Book 5116 Page 363.

It is agreed that all furnaces, heaters, ranges, screens, gas and electric light fixtures, screen doors, awnings and all other fixtures of whatever kind and nature at present contained, or hereafter installed in said building are to be considered as annexed to and forming part of the freehold.

Said premises will be sold subject to unpaid taxes, tax titles and municipal liens, if any.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of the Power of Sale contained in a certain mortgage given by Ralph A. Crosby, Trustee of the Ralph A. Crosby Company, under Declaration of Trust recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 5191, Page 81, to Lawyers Title Insurance Company, dated September 7, 1928, recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 5273, Page 570, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same will be sold at Public Auction at 11:00 A. M., Tuesday, November 3, 1931, on the premises hereinafter described, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage and therein described as follows, to wit: "The land with the buildings thereon situate in Winchester, Middlesex County, Massachusetts, being shown as Lot 4 on a "Plan of House Lots, Winchester, Mass." dated August 15, 1924, made by C. H. Gannett, Civil Engineer, and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Plan Book 389, Plan 18, bounded as follows: Northeasterly by Lot numbered 3 on said plan one hundred forty-four and 76/100 (144.76) feet; Southeasterly by land now or formerly of G. Edward Smith sixty (60) feet; Southwesterly by Lot numbered 5 on said plan one hundred forty-five and 62/100 (145.62) feet; and Northwesterly by Washington Street sixty (60) feet. Containing 8711 square feet of land according to said plan. Being a portion of the premises conveyed to me by deed of Lillian E. Williams, dated April 10, 1928, and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 5216, Page 418. Said premises are subject to a building line established by the Town of Winchester (see Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 4716, Page 432) and to restrictions of record so far as they may be in force and applicable." Sale will be made subject to all unpaid taxes, assessments, tax sales, tax titles, water liens and charges, if any there are. Terms of Sale: $300.00 will be required to be paid in cash by the purchaser at the time and place of sale, balance within ten days thereafter; other terms to be announced at the sale. WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

Now for the illuminated canoe parade on the evening of Oct. 12 (Columbus Day). Several of the Medford Boat Club boys have started work on their canoes and motor boats. With a continuation of the balmy weather of last week-end a good incentive for canoe decoration should be provided. Even though the scene of the parade is a considerable distance from W. R. C., that will tend to insure all the more fun in making the trip down stream. A fair amount of decorations, lanterns, etc., left over from last year are available for anyone wishing to do a little illuminating. Often times a simple, clever piece of decoration will win a prize over a canoe which has been worked over for hours.

In order to just give it style, plan to support this affair and return Medford the courtesy they favored Winchester with last Columbus Day.

Capt. Alan Hovey, Winchester's one outsmart is going to race on the Charles River Basin on the morning Oct. 12. Since there is no novice race on that date, he will go into the junior single sculls, one-half mile race.

The last regatta of the season will be held on Friday, Oct. 16. There is no doubt, this will be well attended and probably the best dance of the year. The last two parties have been particularly good and we wish more outsiders would enjoy them.

Fact About Cremation

The public health service says that it is not true that in cremation the heart remains unburned. The heart usually burns last, due to the fact that it is the best protected organ in the body. This, of course, depends upon how the heat is applied.

East Indian Languages

The term "Prakrit languages" is applied to the vernacular languages of India as opposed to the literary Sanskrit.

Notice of Proposed Amendments to the Winchester Zoning By-Law and Notice of Public Hearing Thereon

Notice is hereby given of proposals to amend the Zoning By-Law under Article 6 of the warrant for the special town meeting to be held October 22, 1931, as follows:—

ARTICLE 6. To see if the Town will amend the Zoning By-Law by changing or altering the map incorporated in and made a part of said By-Law and the districts indicated and identified thereon, in any or all of the following respects:

a. By changing from a business district to a general residence district the parcel of land bounded northerly by Harvard Street and easterly by Washington Street, as shown on said map in black shading.

b. By changing from a business district to a general residence district, the parcel of land bounded southerly by Harvard Street, easterly by Washington Street and northerly by Irving Street, as shown on said map in black shading.

c. By changing from a business district to a general residence district the parcel of land bounded southerly by Irving Street and easterly by Washington Street, as shown on said map in black shading.

d. By changing from a business district to a general residence district the parcel of land bounded northerly by Forest Street and easterly by Washington Street, as shown on said map in black shading.

e. By changing from a business district to a general residence district the parcel of land bounded southerly by Forest Street and easterly by Washington Street, as shown on said map in black shading.

f. By changing from a business district to a general residence district the strip of land 150 feet wide, bounded westerly by Washington Street and extending from a point at or near the bridge over the Aberjona River northerly to the Woburn Line, as shown on said map in black shading.

g By changing from industrial, single residence and business districts, respectively, to a general residence district the parcel of land bounded easterly by Washington Street, southerly by the Aberjona River, westerly by a line drawn parallel with and distant 150 feet westerly from the westerly line of said Washington Street, and northerly by the Woburn Line; or take any other action respecting the zoning of or the application of the Zoning By-Law to the aforesaid premises or parcels of land or any of them.

And notice is hereby given that the Planning Board will hold a public hearing in the Town Hall, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1931, at 7:45 P. M., on the aforesaid proposals to amend the said By-Law.

WONDERFUL BARGAINS

HEART BROKEN AND DISGUSTED

Several years ago I bought Middlesex Alley, which looked good to me. I spent quite a lot of money on the houses. Later, I obligated myself to a roast of about $4000, besides giving all the land for a wide street.

I was satisfied with my investment and, I know of no one but who would admit I have improved this street wonderfully. After what has happened the last year, through neglect or inefficiency of our property protectors, I am ready to sell at a sacrifice.

I will sell the whole or any part very reasonable, small payment down and will put houses in good condition providing the new owner will move in before such repairs are made. I am 'regusted."

MEN'S DINNER AT FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Thursday Evening, Oct. 29

Four hundred and fifty men from the Congregational Churches of the Woburn Association will be at the men's dinner at the First Congregational Church to hear Fred B. Smith of New York speak on "The World Situation."

Some one has said of Fred B. Smith that he is a broadsword, made from New England metal, hammered into shape in the Mississippi Valley, tempered in the Spanish-American War, and burnished in the men and religion campaign. He is known on both sides of the sea as the great Evangelistic leader of men. His splendid physique, his tireless energy, his dominant evangelistic zeal, his knowledge of the great social problems, his power to grip an audience—these have made him a world power.

In January of 1926 Mr. Smith became the chairman of the executive committee of the the World Alliance, and under his leadership this movement is exercising a far reaching effect in the life of America. Early in 1927 he went to London especially to preach for three Sundays in the historic City Temple while Dr. Fred B. Norwood was engaged in his six months' crusade for peace in the British Isles. He has just returned from Europe, where he has been studying business conditions.

Mr. Smith is the author of "Men Wanted," "A Man's Religion," "Observances in France," and "On the Trail of the Peacemakers," published in 1922 by the Macmillan Company, and "Must We Have War?" published in 1929 by Harper & Brothers.

At the 23rd meeting of the National Council of Congregational Churches of the United States, which was held in Detroit, Mich., in May, 1929, Mr. Smith was elected moderator.

Mr. William Lewis Parsons will preside at the banquet and Doctor Hindes will lead the singing.

WINCHESTER INTER-CHURCH COUNCIL

Oct. 15, 1931

Dear Friend:

In continuance of a happy custom our Winchester churches are unitedly observing Sunday morning, Oct. 18 as Family Day. Never more than today do we need to emphasize the beauty and sanctity of the family ideal. The church and the family in these times of turmoil are the buttresses of society. Winchester in particular is a place of happy homes and beautiful churches. We invite every member of your family to be present in church next Sunday morning.

Another interest which the churches of Winchester have in common this fall is the united preaching mission under the leadership of Rev. Raymond Calkins, D.D. minister of the First Congregational Church in Cambridge. These services will be held in the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church beginning Sunday, Oct. 18 at 7 p. m. and continuing each evening until the following Friday at 7:45 p. m. Dr. Calkins is regarded as one of the strongest preachers in America today, being in constant demand at colleges as a preacher to youth.

"Men need faith in times like these." The one purpose of these services is to stimulate the faith and intensify the religious life of the people of Winchester.

This message from the ministers of the churches, conveys our earnest suggestion that all our people set aside these evenings of the union services for the church, making of them a period wherein, by our Christian fellowship and the worship of our common Lord, we re-gird ourselves in that faith which makes for strength of character and greater love for our fellowman.

Again asking our people to reserve these evenings and to attend as many of the services as possible, and then to carry on by attending the services in their own church throughout the year we are,

Faithfully yours,
Benjamin P. Browne
Howard J. Chidley
Dwight W. Hadley
George Hale Reed
J. West Thompson
John E. Whitley

ASKS SUPPORT OF COMMUNITY SERVICE COMMITTEE

Winchester, because of the depression, has a great need, at this time, of concerted action by its citizens to assist the unemployed and provide the necessities of life to those who are in want. We believe this is a matter which concerns no one race or creed and effects no one society alone, and that relief can be better supplied by a general Town Committee consisting of representatives from every church and society in the community. We are therefore calling a meeting of such representatives, to be held in the small Town Hall on Tuesday evening, Oct. 27 at 8 o'clock, at which the entire subject will be discussed and plans made to properly supply needed relief. We ask the co-operation of the entire township in this relief undertaking.

Sincerely,
Community Service Committee
Winchester Rotary Club
George T. Davidson, Chairman

BIANCHI—DENISON

The marriage of Miss Edith Katherine Denison, daughter of Mr. William B. Denison of Brooks street, and Eric A. Bianchi, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anselmo Bianchi of Wellesley Hills took place at four o'clock on Saturday, Oct. 10, in the home of the bride's father. Only members of the immediate families were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Bianchi are to live in Winchester at 16 Brooks street and will be at home after Nov. 1.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Leader Training Course for Scoutmasters

The Medford Council, Boy Scouts of America comprising Burlington, Medford, Stoneham, Winchester and Woburn has set as one of its goals for the fall and winter work, training courses to fit the needs of every leader engaged in Scouting.

The first course to be offered is "Principles of Scoutmastership." This course is one of the required courses in the National Five Year Program of Training and will begin on Oct. 21. Meetings of this course will be held weekly on Wednesday evenings at the headquarters of the Winchester District of the Council on South Border road.

At the first session on Wednesday, Oct. 21, Professor Alfred C. Lane of Tufts College will talk on the subject of "The Nature of the Boy." Following Professor Lane's talk on this subject there will be an opportunity for the leaders present to ask questions and for a general discussion of the topic. The second talk and discussion of the evening will be on the subject of "A Scout Program That Meets the Boys' Needs," under the leadership of H. T. French, Scout Executive.

For the second session of the course on Wednesday, Oct. 28, the Scouters will hear James Quinn, Superintendent of Winchester Schools, on the subject of "Educational Objects" followed by the Scout Executive on "Scouting Objectives." Successive sessions of the course will offer many interesting subjects for discussion as may be seen from the following outline of the course.

Nov. 4, "Methods of Education," "Scouting Methods of Education"; Nov. 11, "The Project Method," "Troop Program Building"; Nov. 18, "Adequate Outdoor Program," "Troop Administration"; Nov. 25, "Ceremonies in the Troop Program," "The Boys Reading Program"; Dec. 2, "Education for Character," "Character Values of Scouting and How Obtained"; Dec. 9 "Relation of the Troop to the Parent Institution," "Working Relation Between the Troop Committee and the Troop"; Dec. 16, "The Measure of a Good Troop," "The Warmth of a Good Campfire"; Dec. 23, "Scout Advancement and Specialization," "Scouting Applied to Life."

Troop 4 of Medford Wins Again

In the Columbus Day Parade held in Medford last Monday Troop 4 again won the right to carry the Council colors by having the largest per cent of its members present. This is the third parade in which Troop 4 has had this honor. W. O. Spofford, Scoutmaster, was in charge while Robert Whittemore served as leader of the troops drum and bugle corps.

Burlington-Woburn Court of Honor to Meet

The first meeting of the newly organized Court of Honor for Burlington and Woburn will be held on Thursday, Oct. 22. The Court is composed of Messrs. Forest G. Fogg, Willis Hunt, Arthur R. Nelson and Earl Sevrens.

At the first meeting of this Court a list of Merit Badge Counsellors will be prepared which later will be announced to all Scoutmasters in the district. Scouts in Burlington and Woburn have been looking forward for a long time to the day when they might have the opportunity for Scout advancement which this new Court will offer to them.

Executive Board Meeting

The regular October meeting of the Executive Board of the Council will be held at 8 p. m. on Friday, Oct. 16, at the Winchester District headquarters.

Medford Board of Review

The Medford Board of Review will meet at the Scout office on Wednesday, Oct. 14 at 7:15 p. m. The next meeting of the Medford Court of Honor will be held on Thursday, Oct. 22.

The Stoneham Court of Honor meets the last Wednesday of the month.

Troop 3 of Woburn Reports

Troop 3 of Woburn which meets at the Montvale Congregational Church reports that at their last meeting the following officers were elected: Junior Assistant Scoutmaster, Gordon MacPherson; Senior Patrol Leader, Emile Marquis; Patrol Leader, Dudley McElhiney; Assistant Patrol Leader, Glenn Fogg; Bugler, Wilbur Otis.

The color guard is composed of William Vallence and Everett Leland. Scoutmaster John Dietel and Assistant Scoutmaster Charles Thorne have planned an interesting program for the fall and winter work of the troop, including many hikes. Meetings of the troop are held on Friday evenings. Boys of the neighbodhood who are interested in becoming Scouts are urged to attend the next meeting of the troop. This troop is represented on the Court of Honor by Mr. F. G. Fogg.

WYMAN SCHOOL MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

The first fall meeting of the year of the Wyman School Mothers' Association will be held in the Wyman School Hall on Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 21 at 3:15.

Mrs. Miriam Hendrick Cahalin of Arlington will present a group of interesting readings, mostly of a humorous nature. A social hour will follow, affording opportunity for the members of the association to meet the teachers of the school and to greet new members.

INTER-CHURCH MISSION

The Protestant ministers of Winchester, acting through the Inter-Church Council, announce a series of mission services beginning next Sunday, Oct. 18 at 7 p. m. and continuing each evening through the following Friday. All of the week-day services will be at 7:45 and all the services will be held in the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church. The ministers will all take part in these services, but the preacher through the week will be Dr. Raymond Calkins, minister of the First Congregational Church of Cambridge. Doctor Calkins is looked upon by all denominations as one of the strongest preachers in America today, with an influence on students who gather near Cambridge and Boston, and indeed on the youth all over the land, which is unique. He serves entirely without financial incentive, eager only to come over into Winchester and help us. The music will be the familiar and beloved hymns, sung by the congregation and led by a union choir from all of our churches.

At this time when we are talking so much of failures, let us lay hold together upon the things that cannot fail. At this time when we are so often thinking of the outlook as depressing, let us try the uplook and try it together.

THREE PLAYS TO BE PRESENTED AT FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The Dramatic Society of the First Congregational Church is producing a series of three plays in "The Little Theatre Beneath a Spire." The proceeds will be used for unemployment relief in the church.

Nov. 6 "Tons of Money." A farce in three acts by Evans and Valentine. Ran two years in London.

April 8 "Enchanted April." A romantic comedy, by Kane Campbell. Dramatized from the book of the same name, by "Elizabeth."

A small group of experienced players, in and out of the church, two of whom have played professionally, will present three plays under the direction of Mr. Mervin E. Stevens of Andover.

Included in the cast for the first play are Mrs. A. Kirby Snell, Miss Norma Skene, Miss Margaret Randall, Miss Bertha Kelley, Mr. Hubert Bernard, Mr. Thomas Butler, Mr. Oscar Crowers, Dr. F. Milne Blanchard, Mr. Harry Bigelow, Mr. Donald Waugh.

RELIGIOUS CENSUS OF WINCHESTER TO BE TAKEN NEXT WEEK

Under the auspices of the Inter Church Council, a Religious Census of Winchester is to be taken next week by women of the various Protestant Churches of the town.

The last census was made eight years ago in 1923. The town has grown greatly since then, and a great many new families have moved in. The census is merely for the purpose of getting data as to the religious preference of people in the town, and not for the purpose of proselyting. People who are already members of the various Protestant Churches will not be called upon, excepting by mistake, as this would mean a duplication of work.

The ministers hope that the canvassers will meet with the co-operation of new people so that a complete survey of the town will be possible. The canvassers and ministers will meet in Ripley Chapel, First Congregational Church, Sunday afternoon, at 4 o'clock to receive instructions from Dr. George H. Spencer of Boston, and Mrs. Ware of Lexington, experienced people in this work.

ENTERTAINED AFTER HOLY CROSS-DARTMOUT GAME

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Tansey had as week-end house guests at their home, 14 Occom Ridge, Hanover, N. H. for the Holy Cross-Dartmouth game Miss Molly Poland and Miss Mary McCarron of Winchester, Miss Dorothy Davidson of Cambridge, Edward and Charles Clark of Brighton and John Sullivan of this town.

After the game a buffet supper was served at the Tansey home in honor of their guests and at which there were present among others Dr. and Mrs. Bastain of Leominster, Coach Thomas Whelan of Lynn Eastern High School, Miss Thelma Ward and Joseph Brine of Peabody and Jeremiah McCarron of Winchester.

Mr. Tansey is entering his second year as teacher-coach at Clark School in Hanover, N. H. and Mrs. Tansey is the former Ruth Poland of this town.

LEXINGTON HERE TOMORROW

Winchester High School's fighting football team will go after its second win in the Middlesex League standing tomorrow afternoon when the Red and Black will entertain Lexington High on Manchester Field.

On comparative scores the locals are favorites since Arlington was able to defeat Lexington by two touchdowns and came no where near scoring on Winchester, Columbus Day.

Coach Linderman expects a hard game and will start the same lineup that took the field against Arlington. Lentini will play center; Captain Flaherty and Daley, guards; Tranfaglia and Bottger, tackles; DiAppela and Mobbs, ends; Tofuri, quarterback; Knowlton and Hannon, halfbacks and Lynch, fullback. Kickoff at 2:30.

Plan to attend the Old Fashioned Party and Harvest Home Supper this evening at the First Congregational Church. The Country Store opens at 4:30 this afternoon and supper is at 6:30. Dress in old fashioned costume if possible, but come any way.

CRAIG—SHERMAN

The marriage of Miss Nancy Sherman, daughter of Mrs. Roland Henry Sherman and the late Mr. Sherman of Everett avenue, and Homer Theodore Craig, Jr. son of Dr. and Mrs. Homer Theodore Craig of Alameda, Cal., took place in Alameda Thursday evening, Oct. 8, in Christ Church. Miss Sherman was given in marriage by her mother and wore a gown of pale pink velvet with a matching tulle veil and a cap of lace from her mother's wedding gown. The ceremony was performed at 7 o'clock by Rev. Henry Shires and was followed by a family dinner at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

Mrs. Sherman and her daughter arrived in California for the wedding on the Saturday preceding the ceremony and were guests of Dr. and Mrs. Craig.

The bride, who is the granddaughter of the late Judge Edgar J. Sherman of Boston, attended Abbot Academy in Andover, and was graduated from the May and Garland Schools. At school she was prominent in athletics, especially in tennis, and for the past year she has been on the staff of the Boston Globe, doing women's sports, specializing in tennis and hockey.

Mr. Craig was graduated in 1929 from Leland Stanford University, where he was a member of Chi Psi, and he was a member of the Staples Club, while at the Harvard Business School, from which he was graduated this year. He is connected with the Hawaiian Pineapple Company of San Francisco and will make his home with his bride in Alameda.

WINCHESTER HARRIERS TOPPED WOBURN

Coach Muerling's fast stepping Winchester High School cross country team added Woburn to its growing list of victims and continued in the unbeaten class, winning its meet with the tanners on Wednesday afternoon over the local Fells course, 17 to 50. Seven of the first 10 runners across the line wore the Red and Black.

For a green team Woburn's showing was creditable but the visitors were not in Winchester's class. Captain Corby led home the pack in 17 min. 50 sec. with "Al" Lynch in second place. Cross and McPartlin followed in order before the Daveron boys of Woburn who placed 5th and 6th and knocked the locals out of a perfect score.

The summary of the first 10 runners follows: 1st, Corby (W); 2nd, "Al" Lynch (W); 3rd, Cross (W); 4th, McPartlin (W); 5th, P. Daveron (Wob.); 6th, J. Daveron (Wob); 7th, Caffeo (W); 8th, "Andy" Lynch (W); 9th, Gray (Wob); 10th, Roger Pettingell (W).

The Winchester High School cross country team, still in the undefeated class, will run Concord High over the local Fells course at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon.

WINCHESTER CHORAL SOCIETY HARD AT WORK

New Singers Invited to Try Out

Already the Winchester Choral Society, which has enjoyed two uniformly successful seasons, is hard at work under the direction of J. Albert Wilson preparing for the first concert of its current season, to be given early in the winter.

Weekly rehearsals are being held at the Calumet Club and any who would care to become members are urged to report to Mr. Wilson or Mr. George W. Stidstone, the society's president, at 7:45 any Tuesday evening. There are a few vacancies in the chorus and the directors are eager to bring the society to its full strength as soon as possible.

Candidates are required to pass a voice test for quality and the ability to read and carry a part. The society does only music of the better grade and is rapidly winning a wide reputation for the excellence of its performance. Those who enjoy singing and who would like to become identified with one of the best choral groups in New England are cordially invited to come down to the Calumet Club and try out for membership.

MRS. AVIS S. LEACH

Mrs. Avis Standing Leach, wife of Mr. Ralph W. E. Leach of 32 Fletcher street, died last night after an illness of ofur months, of heart trouble. She was a native of Lawrence, and was the daughter of Richard and Ann (Spur) Standing who were both natives of England. For the past 12 years she had made her home with her husband in this town. Besides her husband she leaves one daughter, Mrs. Richard A. Martin of Bangor, Me., and three grandsons. She was a member of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, and of The Fortnightly. The funeral services are to be held on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 at the residence, and the interment will be in Wildwood Cemetery.

Mrs. H. S. Royal (formerly Ethel Kean) of Philadelphia is spending a few weeks at the home of her father, Mr. Thomas Kean of Linden street.

Miss Elizabeth Naven, a teacher in the Noonan School, was painfully but not seriously injured Tuesday morning when she was struck by an automobile at the Pleasant street crossing in Woburn while she was on her way to school from her home in that city. The operator of the machine, Warren F. Lewis of 12 Albany street, Woburn, took Miss Naven to the office of Dr. Thomas E. Caulfield where she was treated for injuries to her right ankle and bruises and abrasions. She was able to leave the doctor's office after treatment but was suffering from shock and a general shaking up.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS IN MYSTIC VALLEY LODGE, A. F. & A. M.

A large company gathered at the Masonic Apartments on Thursday evening, Oct. 8, to attend the annual installation of officers of Mystic Valley Lodge, A. F. & A. M., which, on this occasion, was opened to the public and many ladies were in attendance at the supper as well as at the formal exercises which followed. The work of installation was handled in his usual able and pleasing manner by Most Wor. Arthur D. Prince of Lowell, Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Masons of Massachusetts, who was also a sponsor of Mystic Valley Lodge which was instituted during his term of office as Grand Master. Most Wor. Bro. Prince was assisted by Wor. Paul L. Perkins of William North Lodge of Lowell.

Following the supper there was after-dinner speaking and the company was also entertained with a group of violin solos by Mrs. J. West Thompson, wife of the chaplain of the lodge, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. William A. Lefavour, wife of the lodge secretary.

An especially noteworthy feature was the presentation to Wor. Amasa Harrington, Past Master of Mystic Valley Lodge, of the Joseph Warren Medal, which is awarded by the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge, on rare occasions, to a member of the fraternity for outstanding service to the Craft.

Incidental music during the supper was furnished by a group of boys from Stoneham Chapter of the Order of DeMolay. The evening proved to be of much interest and enjoyment to all who were present.

Wor. Master Paul N. Shiverick
Sen. Warden Colver P. Dorr
Jun. Warden Charles P. Downer
Treasurer John Carruthers
Secretary William A. Lefavour
Chaplain Rev. J. West Thompson
Marshal J. Bernard Hawkins
Sen. Deacon John W. Bodman
Jun. Deacon Francis Tremberth
Sen. Steward Arthur V. Getchell
Jun. Steward Truman M. Godfrey
Inside Sentinel Harold A. Smith
Organist F. Percival Lewis
Tyler Dana C. Pickering

ANNUAL FALL VISITATION OF RESERVOIRS

The Winchester Water & Sewer Board extend a most cordial invitation to the people of Winchester to visit by automobile or otherwise the domestic water supply system of our town, Oct. 24 at 1 p. m.

The natural scenery at this time of the year is of a most attractive nature and we hope many will avail themselves of this opportunity to see nature. Please note the remarkable clearness of the water and the charming color of same.

It has been stated by people living outside of Winchester that our reservoirs and the evergreen trees of which 40,000 have been set out by the Water & Sewer Board and of which there are 11 different varieties, furnish one of the most attractive natural sceneries anywhere.

Let us remember also that the Water Department is the only department producing a financial revenue.

Please remember the date Oct. 24, Saturday p. m. at 1 o'clock, entrance by the way of Mt. Vernon street. If it should be very wet the invitation is good for the following Saturday p. m.

WINCHESTER REPRESENTED AT NORTH ADAMS CONFERENCE

Chairman Edmund C. Sanderson of the Water & Sewer Board represented Winchester at the conference of town forest committees, held at North Adams on last Friday and Saturday under the direction of the Massachusetts Forestry Association.

The conference took up the treatment of town forests and visited those of Greenfield, North Adams and Williamstown as well as motoring to the top of Mt. Gralock to see the new memrial to the soldiers and sailors of the World War which the State is erecting there at a cost of $200,000.

Mr. Sanderson reported that the town forest conference was particularly interesting because of the fact that a large percentage of town forests throughout the State are now tied up with water supply systems.

MRS. MAE D. LITTLE

Funeral services for Mrs. Mae Davis Little, wife of Albert M. Little and a native of Winchester, were held Monday morning at her home on Main street in Tewksbury. Requiem high mass was celebrated in the Oblate Novitiate at Tewksbury, in which town the interment was made.

Mrs. Little was the daughter of James T. and Ellen T. Davis and was born in Winchester in 1886. Twenty years ago she married Albert M. Little, a local market gardener, and since that time had made her home until lately in Woburn with brief residences in Florida and Wisconsin. She died Friday morning, Oct. 9 after a brief illness.

MR. EASON APPOINTED

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Winchester Public Library, held Thursday evening, Oct. 8, Robert H. Eason of 5 Middlesex street was appointed custodian of the new library building.

Mr. Eason has been a special police officer for several years and has been recently assigned to duty in the Fells. He was formerly for many years a chauffeur in the employ of the late William Martin, is 45 years of age and married. He assumes his new duties Nov. 1.

DONATION DAY—WINCHESTER HOME FOR AGED PEOPLE

The annual Donation Day of the Home for Aged People in Winchester will be held on Thursday, Nov. 12, 1931.

As in past years members of the Home will offer for sale articles that they have made, and friends of the Home are cordially invited to call that day, not only to attend the sale but to become better acquainted with the Home, its facilities, and operation.

In previous years the people of Winchester have chosen Donation Day to make generous gifts of supplies to the Home, and the directors hope for a continuance of their interest and good wishes.

MISS RUTH SPENCER

WINCHESTER CIRCLE OF THE FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE

The Winchester Circle of the Florence Crittenton League held an enthusiastic meeting Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Clarence A. Warren, 18 Everett avenue. Mrs. Vincent P. Clarke, president of the Circle was in the chair. Rev. J. West Thompson of the Methodist Church was inspiring in prayer.

Miss Ruth Spencer of Waltham gave an unusual program of harp selections followed by selections on the piano, which proved very pleasing to her Winchester admirers.

Harp selections were:

Chanson ..... Dubez
The Spinning Wheel ..... Renie
The Campfire ..... Margaret Hoberg

The piano selections were:

Minstrels ..... Debussy
Prelude in G Sharp ..... Rachmaninoff
The Music Box ..... Godard

Mr. Shelander, the head of the community service department of the Norfolk Penal Colony was the speaker of the afternoon, in the absence of Mr. Gill. Mr. Shelander explained that this colony is the only one of its kind in the country. Here the prisoners receive individual attention to try and fit them to return to society as co-ordinating members. He explained the housing system and governing system. The colony is made-up from inmates of the Charlestown Prison.

A delightful tea was served with Mrs. Herbert Stone and Mrs. Harold Meyer presiding in the dining room.

BISHOP SHERRILL TO VISIT WINCHESTER

WINCHESTER TOURISTS AT ST. PETERSBURG

By John Lodwick

With the passing of Labor Day, the last of the big summer holidays, thoughts of Winchester tourists and vacationists will again turn to Florida, its balmy and invigorating climate, its outdoor educational and recreational facilities, its long calendar of smart social activities, and its annual introduction of fashionable styles to be worn in the ensuing spring months.

Right now, Florida is preparing for its biggest list of guests who will soon start the Southland trek by automobile over highways paved every mile of the way, by boat, airplane and by rail.

Winchester was exceptionally well represented last winter, and most of the residents have already made arrangements to return here for a gay, healthful and happy sojourn in the sub-tropics. At the city information bureau, new illustrated booklets containing recently taken views of St. Petersburg are being mailed to those writing in for them.

Among last winter's residents were Mrs. S. B. Angevine, Fletcher street; Miss Louise E. Babin, Central street; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph T. Damon, Everett avenue; Mrs. Franklin P. Douglass, Mt. Vernon street; F. H. Elliott, Herrick street; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. England, Miss Myrtle Fleming, Glen road; Mr. and Mrs. Claud G. Fleming, Glen road; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Fleming, Glen road; H. L. Pilkington, Wilson street; Mrs. George Edward Snelling, Lakeview road; Mrs. G. A. Spaulding, Parkway; Mr. and Mrs. Osmon C. Webster, Central street; Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Whitten, Woodside road, and Mrs. Grace Woods, Glengarry road.

Mrs. T. Grafton Abbott, Mrs. John L. Lobinger, Miss Elizabeth Downs and Mrs. Louis K. Snyder are Winchester residents serving on committees of the Boston Y. W. C. A., which is sponsoring "Know Your YWCA Week" from Oct. 18-25. The "week" starts off with a musicale Sunday afternoon to which all Winchester members and friends of the Y. W. C. A. are cordially invited at 4 o'clock at the activities building, corner of Stuart and Clarendon streets.

A TRIBUTE

Oct. 8, 1931

I thought last night as I sat at the graduating exercises of the Winchester Hospital School of Nursing that I would like to rise up in meeting and pay the girls the tribute I so sincerely felt of a grateful patient. I was proud to know them and am sure the hospital will never graduate finer women.

Our small son is in a way the class baby as many of them had a hand in his bringing up during the many weeks he was in the hospital. He was such an atom, weighing less than half the usual weight for little boys. Their patience, skill and kindliness brought him to normal vigor. Now at 18 months he weighs 26 pounds and is the picture of baby sweetness and health.

Today these fine nurses go to new lines. I wish them many years of usefulness in their profession and then a rich and handsome husband for each one.

Very sincerely,
Ruth Bingham

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL IN APPROVED LIST OF A. C. S.

In the new list of Massachusetts hospitals which investigators of the American College of Surgeons this year have found to be meeting the requirements that insure safe and efficient service to the patient appears the name of the Winchester Hospital. It appeared on the "Approved List" issued Monday morning at the opening of the 14th Annual Hospital Standardization Conference of the American College of Surgeons, in New York.

This annual list of approved hospitals has proven of great value to the patient when choosing a hospital, to the prospective student of nursing and to the recently graduated physician. As an organization representing 10,000 leading surgeons of the United States, Canada and other countries, such a rating is thoroughly indicative of the high grade reliability enjoyed by our local institution.

Francis Felt returned to Brown on Monday after a week at his home in Winchester, nursing a leg injury sustained in football practice at the University.

LADIES' FRIENDLY SOCIETY

The first luncheon and meeting of the Ladies' Friendly Society on Tuesday, Oct. 13, was attended by a large and enthusiastic group of members. After the executive board meeting in the morning, a delicious 1 o'clock luncheon was served with Mrs. H. Russell Davis, Mrs. E. H. Kenerson, and Mrs. Arthur G. Robbins as chairmen. At the business meeting the new president, Mrs. Harold F. Meyer, introduced as the soloist of the afternoon, Mrs. Jane Hill, contralto, whose four songs and their artistic presentation thoroughly delighted her audience.

Mrs. Herbert L. Norris of Lexington, director in this Alliance district, brought greetings and expressed a hope that the Ladies' Friendly and its director might work together to solve their problems.

The chairman of the Cheerful Letter Exchange, Mrs. Harry A. Stevens, talked entertainingly of the work of that Alliance Branch. She said it was the second oldest committee of the organization and at present had between two and three thousand correspondents eager to receive pictures, books, magazines and other educational material. Constant interest and support of Alliance members have made this work possible and of great value.

The last speaker, Miss Bertha Langmaid, secretary of the General Alliance, spoke of its co-operation with other Unitarian organizations, its need of more members, especially young people, and of its growth throughout the last 50 years.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOR

The first meeting of the Winchester Chapter of the Guild of the Infant Savior will be held Tuesday, Oct. 26 at 2 p. m. at Fortnightly Hall.

The executive board of the Boston Guild will be the guests of the afternoon.

A delightful program has been arranged:

|---|---|
| Pianist | Mrs. Gertrude Dennis |
| Soprano | Mrs. G. Frank McDonald |
| Reader | Miss Marjorie Doyle |
| Reader | Miss Mary Doyle |

Tea will be served.

TO THE CITIZENS OF WINCHESTER

We make an urgent appeal to you as a citizen, who is interested in the welfare of his home town, to help us make our distribution of Thanksgiving baskets a success this year.

For several years, the Winchester Lodge of B. P. O. Elks have distributed baskets of food to those in our town who were less fortunate, deserving a little cheer in their distress especially at Thanksgiving. Our work this year will be greatly increased, due, as you know to the depression and scarcity of money. Wouldn't you be happier to know that you have helped to lighten the burden of some needy family?

Our greatest revenue to carry on this work is obtained from the proceeds of our annual charity ball to be held in the Town Hall, Thursday evening, Nov. 19. Tickets purchased by you will assist us in this good work. Incidentally, $1 per ticket admits a gentleman and lady to one of the best social events of the season. A concert, five high class acts of vaudeville and dancing until 1 o'clock to a fine orchestra will more than repay you for your effort to attend. The net proceeds go directly to our charity fund.

Visualize a great American order of 850,000 men in all walks of life devoted to the principles of charity. Such is the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, all American citizens regardless of race or creed. Now right in this town is a Lodge of 300 members who have spent about $8000 for charitable purposes in their few short years of existence. They have worked in conjunction with the Welfare Board of the town, churches and other organizations to properly and systematically attend to our needy ones at all times during the year. Won't you help Winchester? Please consider this when one of our committee approaches you to buy tickets.

If you can send a donation or request tickets for the ball, kindly communicate with George H. Lochman, treasurer of the charity ball committee.

Many thanks and
Yours respectfully,
Charity Ball Committee,
Winchester Lodge of Elks

WINCHESTER WON CROSS COUNTRY RACE FROM BEVERLY

Winchester High School's fast stepping country team won its second meet of the season last Friday afternoon, defeating Beverly High over the local Middlesex Fells course, 22 to 36.

Lunn of Beverly and Captain Corby of Winchester staged a spectacular duel over the entire course, first one and then the other being in the lead. The Beverly youngster had just enough to win by feet from Corby at the finish, in 13 min. 26 sec.

The runners were closely bunched as the race drew along to the final quarter mile and Lynch and Cross were right behind Captain Corby in the rush across the finish line. Captain Graffam of Beverly was in 5th place and was followed by McPartlin, Maffeo and Roger Pettingell of Winchester.

The first 10 runners finished in this order: 1st, Lunn (B); 2nd, Corby (W); 3rd, Lunch (W); 4th, Cross (W); 5th, Graffam (B); 6th, McPartlin (W); 8th, Roger Pettingell (W); 9th, Raymond (B); 10th, Mullof (B).

Miss Mary McAuley and Miss Louise Hockaday spent the holiday week-end at the Hockaday's Camp in New London, N. H.

The Misses MacKinnon, formerly of Winchester spent the week-end holiday at their camp on Ragged Mountain at Potter Place, N. H.

There is, too, an added something about it that brings enthusiastic comments from every one who has ever driven a Ford . . . the joy it puts in motoring.

"I have been a car owner continuously for nearly 20 years," writes a motorist connected with a leading university. "During this period I have bought eleven new automobiles. Eight of the eleven were in the middle-price field, one cost three thousand dollars, and the last is a Ford I purchased thirteen months ago.

"In the light of this experience I can say in all sincerity that I have derived more genuine satisfaction from the Ford than any car I ever owned. In saying this, I am thinking in terms of comfort, safety, driving pleasure, ease of control and economy. My next car will also be a Ford because it will give me what I want at a price I can afford to pay."

When you get behind the wheel of the Ford and drive it yourself you will know it is a truly remarkable car at a low price. You will like it when you first buy it. You will become more and more enthusiastic the longer you drive it.

After thousands of miles of driving you will say "it's a great car." Its economy will save you many dollars.

MISS AVERY STARTS HER ELEVENTH SEASON

Miss Avery's eleventh travel trip started with Spain. From Barcelona to Alcegiras, Spain was a dream of gardens. From there came a 2000 mile motor journey from Casablanca to Maceakesh and back by Rabat, Meknes and Fez to Alger. Then by train to Tunis and boat to Tripoli, a cross section of French Colonial North Africa full of color, history and potential wealth.

Then a visit to Tripolitania with its desert, fighting tribes and Roman ruins golden in the sun, and after that Italy from the new excavations at Herculanemm to Florence with its tiny lamps lit for the festival of Peter and Paul. And best of all a quarter hour with Mussolini at the end of a hectic day.

After that came Geneva buried in conferences and committees; then Paris tense over the German crisis and the Colonial Exposition with its natives and exotic architecture of Asia and Africa.

Miss Avery's route lay from the Pyrenees to the home of the Barbary pirates, from the Grand Atlas mountains to the Silyan desert, from Palermo to the shoulder of Mt. Blanc, from Rome to Paris. And this eleventh trip proved, Miss Avery says, to be the most fascinating of all, and in her lectures starting Oct. 28 at Wyman School hall she plans to tell us all about it.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Thompson of Clark street announce the engagement of their daughter, Georgina Wilhelmina, to Mr. Oswald T. Walker of New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Fleming of Pond street spent the week-end holidays visiting Mrs. Fleming's sisters at Bayonne, N. J. and relatives of Mr. Fleming in the Bronx. They had as their guests, Mrs. Annie Murphy of Lake street and Mr. Frank DeLaurier of Washington street, making the trip by motor and returning home by way of Niagara Falls.

MISS HERSILIA WARREN ENGAGED

An engagement of interest, that of Miss Hersilia Warren, daughter, of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Warren of Everett avenue, to William Bull Elmer of White Plains, N. Y. was announced this afternoon, Friday, Oct. 16, at a tea given at her home by her mother.

Miss Warren was graduated in 1929 from the Kendall Hall School at Pride's Crossing and the following year she attended National Park Seminary in Washington, D. C., where her achievements in dramatic art led to further interest and development. She is at present studying at the American Academy of Dramatic Art in New York City.

Mr. Elmer is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bliss Elmer of White Plains, N. Y. He was graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1922 with the degree of B. S. and is a member of the Woopgaroo Society. Following his graduation, he entered the Technical Department of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston in which he holds a responsible position.

The young couple plan to be married in the early spring.

UNIVERSITY THEATER

Walter Huston, remembered in many great characterizations, especially that of Abraham Lincoln, in the picture by that name, is featured as the district attorney in "The Star Witness," which also features Charles (Chic) Sale, coming to the University Theater on Sunday next for four days. "The Star Witness" depicts the ways by which the leader of a group of thieves silenced those who might have appeared against him at he trial.

"Honeymoon Lane" the companion feature, is the filmization of the show by the same name which Eddie Dowling wrote and starred in on Broadway at the Knickerbocker Theater in 1926 and subsequently on tour in a number of cities.

A highly sophisticated and smart story of Paris is told in "This Modern Age" starring Joan Crawford which starts Thursday for the last three days of the week. Miss Crawford's supporting cast includes Pauline Frederick, Monroe Owsley, Hobart Bosworth, Emma Dunn, Albert Conti and Marcelle Corday.

It is news worth heeding that Winnie Lightner, tomboy of the talkies and Charles Butterworth, meekest and most solemn funnyman living, are cofeatured in "Side Show" the companion feature.

Selectman Irving L. Symmes, former chief of the Winchester Fire Department was one of the party sailing last week-end on the S.S. Scythia for Havana to attend the National Fire Chiefs' Convention.

Mr. H. H. Dover, manager of the gasoline station at Forest and Washington streets, phoned Headquarters Tuesday afternoon that a boy who was apparently lost had wandered into the station. Officer John Hogan went to the station and learned that the youngster was Robert Chapman, four and one-half years, of Salisbury, N. B. He was returned by the police to the home on Washington street at which he was visiting.

The police succeeded in recovering a bicycle which was reported stolen from the garage of Mr. Roger D. Mackey at 4 Wyman court last Sunday.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

Tonight, Friday, Oct. 16 at 8:30 p. m., is the final dance of the 1931 season. The dances this year have been very well attended and this evening's affair should be a large gathering too. All friends of the club are cordially invited to attend these parties and a good time is assured.

Alan Hovey braved the frigid air and water on Columbus Day to take part in the N. E. Amateur Rowing Association's regatta on the Charles River. The Northwest gale which started in to blow late Sunday evening had by the next morning, kicked up such a mad rush of waves on the Charles River Basin that rowing there, was an utter impossibility. At about 10 o'clock in the morning the first race was called but on account of the changing of courses, making the start at the Weeks' Memorial bridge it was about 12:30 p. m. before the races were underway. (The finish was at Magazine Beach.) There was every incentive for the oarsmen to pull hard if for no other reason than to keep warm. Just practice standing around very long in "shorts" on a day like the 12th. Why they were having snow squals in the mountains.

With six to eight entries in several of the races the narrow part of the River was not so good for the oarsmen. "Al" Hovey found himself with five others in the one mile and one half singles. At the start Winchester's entry was forced out of his lane and crowded into the bank thus allowing all the other skulls to get a good lead but this was but a part of the "fortunes of war." Nevertheless "Al" dug in after dodging through the arches of a couple of the bridges which tend to act as obstacles along the course. Spurred on from a desire not to be "last" Hovey pulled by a couple of the now tiring oarsmen and gradually crept up on the field. Pulling stronger and stronger all the time, he made a stirring finish. Had the unfortunate crowding at the start not tied him up "Al" would have been righ up front, but a mighty good showing for the first year at skulling.

WINCHESTER HOME ENTERED

Clothing Stolen From Mystic Avenue Residence

The residence of Mr. Henry P. Connell at 15 Mystic avenue was burglarized some time during Tuesday evening, Police Headquarters being notified of the break shortly after 11 o'clock.

Patrolman Henry P. Dempsey was sent to investigate and upon arriving at the Connell home found Mr. and Mrs. Connell on the sidewalk in front of the house.

Mr. Connell told Patrolman Dempsey that he and his wife had been away for the evening and upon their return found that a screen had been pulled from a window on the east side of the house and the window jimmied.

Patrolman Dempsey and Mr. Connell entered the house, unlocking the front door. They found matches on the floor and all the doors ajar. Upstairs they found a cedar chest broken open and the contents rifled. Everywhere it was apparent that the rooms had been ransacked.

A further investigation, disclosed the fact that the thieves had visited the cellar and had left by way of the bulkhead, breaking a lock on the cellar door. Several suits of clothes and two fur coats were taken together with valuable articles of jewelry.

In checking up on the break the police learned that an automobile had been parked in front of an adjacent residence during the evening, and it is thought that the car may have belonged to the party or parties responsible for the break at the Connell home.

CHILD HURT IN ACCIDENT ON WASHINGTON STREET

Police Headquarters was notified last Sunday that a child had been injured by an automobile and had been taken to the Winchester Hospital for treatment.

Sergt. John H. Noonan and Patrolman John Dolan went to investigate and found that Lois Johnson, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Johnson of 19 Grayson road had been treated by Dr. Milton J. Quinn for a cut on the back of the head, several stitches being necessary to close the wound.

The police were told by William J. Holmes of 36 Hurd street, Melrose, that as he was driving his Hudson sedan north on Washington street he noticed a group of children playing at the side of the street near Grayson road. He stopped his car and as he did so the Johnson girl ran out and fell down, sustaining a cut on the head. Mr. Holmes said he did not know whether she struck his car or not. He took her to the hospital where it was not thought that she was seriously injured.

DRIVE INTERRUPTED BY POLICE

A motor ride which John B. Goulding and five companions were enjoying through Winchester Monday night was unexpectedly interrupted by Patrolman Charles Harrold of the Police Department who escorted the delegation to the station house when he found none of its members had a license to operate a motor vehicle.

At Headquarters Goulding gave his age as 16 and his address as Marlborough street, Chelsea. The car he was driving was registered to Irene O'Connor of 37 Cotton street, Leominster.

Goulding told Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy that he had a right to drive the machine and the Chelsea Police corroborated his statement. The boys were permitted to go but the car was taken to the Central Garage to remain until a licensed operator should drive it away.

Tuesday afternoon Patrolman John Hogan was sent in response to a phone call to the old Puffer Manufacuring Company's plant on Swanton street. He found about 30 panes of glass had been broken in the factory with either a slingshot or bird shot.

TUFTS VS. KENT HILL GAME

U. S. Veterans' Drum and Bugle Corps to be Feature at Manchester Field, Oct. 30

When the Tufts Junior Versity eleven meet the Kent Hill team at Manchester Field on Oct. 30, Winchester residents and their friends, attending the game, will be treated to a unique feature in the presence of 40 patients from the Disabled Veterans' Hospital at Bedford who comprise the U. S. Veterans' Drum and Bugle Corps. The men, garbed in white uniforms, will make their appearance on the field at 2 o'clock and will play before the teams clash and between the halves of the game. As this musical organization has been much in demand, there can be no doubt that its appearance here will offer a real contribution to the spirit of the occasion.

Already much enthusiasm is being evidenced in this athletic event which is sponsored by the Disabled Veterans' Welfare Group of this town, and the proceeds of which will be used in the continuation of its fine work during the winter months.

Supper will be served by the Welfare Group at the Church of the Epiphany following the game for the boys from the Bedford Hospital who, because of the lateness of the hour, would be unable to return to the hospital for their evening meal.

As a courtesy to the Girl and Boy Scouts of Winchester, who will undoubtedly absorb much of value from the work of the U. S. Veterans' Drum and Bugle Corps, it has been arranged that all Girl and Boy Scouts appearing in uniform will be special guests of the management at the game.

The Winchester student body are rejoicing in the happy coincidence that Friday, Oct. 30, is Teachers' Convention Day.

With "Reg" Bankart of Dartmouth as referee, "Bob" Guild of Harvard as umpire, "Al" Noble of Amherst as head linesman and "Jim" Fitzgerald of Tufts as field judge, the official personnel attracts more than special interest.

Watch for the posters to be displayed in our downtown shop windows.

Come everybody! Make Oct. 30 at Manchester Field a Red Letter Day for the Disabled Veterans. If you don't understand the game, you will like the music, and the friendly warmth of getting together in a good cause will make your step lighter and your way brighter.

WATER COLORS BY DOROTHY GEORGE ON EXHIBITION

Artist Daughter of Vesper George and Secretary of Vesper George School of Art

Hawaii will be represented in an exhibition of unusual water colors which will be shown for two weeks at Grace Horne's gallery beginning Monday, Oct. 19. These were painted by Miss Dorothy H. George of Boston during a recent visit to Honolulu. Although Miss George has been to the islands a number of times, her first exhibition was held this summer at the Niumalu Hotel just before she returned to the States.

CAR STOLEN FROM EVERETT AVENUE

The Police were notified Monday evening that during the late afternoon a Ford roadster, the property of Rhoda T. Tutein, had been stolen from in front of the home of Mrs. Tutein's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Townsend of 38 Everett avenue. Mr. Townsend had been told by a servant that a man dressed like a workman had driven off with the car.

The police investigated and learned that three men had been seen driving on Everett avenue shortly after 4:30 that afternoon. The car bore out-of-state number plates and stopping in front of the Townsend residence. One of the men got out and entering Mrs. Tutein's car, drove off in the direction of Sheffield road, followed by the other machine. The local authorities notified departments in surrounding cities and towns to be on the lookout for the two cars.

ANNUAL SALVATION ARMY APPEAL IN WINCHESTER

The annual appeal of the Salvation Army for funds to help meet the expenses of its 24 institutions and departments in Greater Boston will be made in the near future.

The appeal is sponsored by a strong local committee headed by Harris S. Richardson as Chairman and G. Dwight Cabot of the Winchester Trust Company as treasurer.

JOHN A. MURRAY

Following a long illness, John A. Murray, a former widely known Winchester merchant, died Tuesday morning, Oct. 13, at his home, 788 Main street. He was 76 years old.

Mr. Murray was a native of Woburn and the son of James and Elizabeth Elliott Murray. He was educated in the Woburn schools and came to Winchester with his family 50 years ago, succeeding to the kitchen furnishings business which he operated for more than two decades under the name of the Mills Store. He was forced to retire from business because of ill health about 10 months ago.

Surviving are a sister, Miss Catherine Murray, and three brothers, James, Irving and William Murray, all of Winchester.

The funeral was held from the late residence Thursday morning, followed by requiem high mass celebrated in St. Mary's Church by Rev. Fr. Conrad J. Quirbach. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery where the committal prayers were read by Rev. Fr. Francis E. Rogers of St. Theresa's Church, Watertown.

WINCHESTER GIRLS BLANKED QUINCY ON COURTS

A team of Winchester girls didn't drop a set in blanking a Quincy girls' team in a tennis match staged on the Palmer street courts Columbus Day. Winchester lost only 8 games in the five singles matches.

The summary:

Singles

2:30-3 Business meeting.
3 Address by Dr. Helen McGillicuddy of the Massachusetts Society of Social Hygiene.

MANCHESTER FIELD MEMORIAL TO BE DEDICATED SUNDAY

Residents of the town are reminded that the memorial to Forest C. Manchester on Manchester Field is to be dedicated Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

An interesting program has been arranged by the committee in charge and the memorial is to be unveiled by Mrs. Gerald Haddock of Hackensack, N. J., Mr. Manchester's daughter, who is coming on especially for the dedication. The invocation will be made by Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church, and the address, by former Town Counsel Charles F. Dutch. Charles A. Lane, chairman of the memorial committee will present the memorial to the town, the acceptance being made by George T. Davidson, chairman of the Park Board. The memorial plaque was put in place on the boulder yesterday and everything is in readiness for the exercises on Sunday.

POLICE STOPPED UNAUTHORIZED SALVATION ARMY COLLECTOR

Early last Saturday morning Police Headquarters was notified that a young man was soliciting funds for the Salvation Army at Wedgemere Station without authority.

Motorcycle Officer John Murray went to the depot and brought the youth to the station. The latter was 16 years of age and wore the Salvation Army cap but no other regalia. He had admitted that he had no authority to solicit funds for the Army but had been authorized to sell its publication, "The War Cry."

The boy's activities were called to the attention of the police by Salvation Army headquarters in Boston the matter having been reported by a Winchester man who was connected with the organization and who questioned the youth when he approached him to solicit funds.

HUMANE MOVEMENT IN WINCHESTER

For a number of years a group of women in our town have been interested in the great work being carried on by the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Plans are now being formulated for organizing a Winchester Auxiliary, and a meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Richard Taylor this coming week to consider plans for launching the movement.

Mrs. Edith Washburn Clarke, President of the Boston Women's Auxiliary will be the guest speaker, and will tell of the needs of the Angell Memorial Animal Hospital and make further suggestions as to how the Winchester group may be of service in the cause of animal welfare.

WINCHESTER COLLEGE CLUB

The fall meeting of the Winchester College Club will be held at the home of Mrs. J. Harper Blaisdell, 18 Brooks street, Friday, Oct. 30, at 3 o'clock. Miss Jane Louise Mesick, Dean of Simmons will speak on "The Class of 1935." All college women of Winchester are cordially invited to become associated with the club. o16-3t

TO THE TOWN MEETING MEMBERS

Regarding Article No. 7 to be acted upon at Thursday night's Town Meeting, I believe it an unjust and uncalled for expense to cover or patch old roofs in Winchester Center with slate or asbestos shingles that cost twice as much as many good fire resisting shingles do.

I believe if this law was changed many of the old patched up roofs around Winchester square would be covered with good appearing fire resistive shingles instead of being patched or tar coated as at present and a much less fire hazard would follow. "Remember" this article only applies to old third class buildings.

Yours truly,
J. A. Laraway

M. C. W. G. NOTES

The Winchester Branch of the M. C. W. G. will hold a Hallowe'en whist and bridge party Thursday evening, Oct. 22 at 8 o'clock in White's Hall. The proceeds of this party will be in aid of the Holy Ghost Hospital in Cambridge. Mrs. Delia Mulrennan heads the committee in charge. Many tickets have been sold for this event and a large attendance is expected.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Chairman Edmund C. Sanderson of the Water and Sewer Board told the Star that he expected the work being done at Russell Brook to be completed this week. The bed of the brook has been changed and the water piped under ground away from the residence of Mr. Patrick Powers on Watson place. 54 inch pipes being used. The brook has been widened, cleaned and much improved.

The thanks of local baseball fans are due the Winchester News Company for their broadcasts of the world series just past. Proprietor "Bill" McLean plans to continue broadcasting the big college football games and will have the results of the important college and school contests posted on a bulletin board for the benefit of local enthusiasts. Several members of the present high school eleven formerly worked for the News Company as news boys and many of the best players of past seasons carried papers for the local concern.

Mrs. George M. Leghorn of Wedgemere avenue addressed a group of bridge teachers last Saturday in the Magner Studios at the Hotel Copley-Plaza, Boston, on the recent development of the Culbertson system of contract as she observed it during her visit to the recent Culbertson Convention in New York City.

Mr. Clarence G. McDavitt of the Winchester National Bank spoke to the bookkeeping classes of Miss Patricia Smith at the Winchester High School yesterday morning on analyzing bank statements, looking for weaknesses and the damage done by nonsense runs on small banks. Mr. McDavitt pointed out that Winchester banking houses are particularly favorably situated with their Boston bank connections.

Wednesday afternoon at 5:33 the Metropolitan Police notified the Fire Department of a grass fire in progress on Border road.

WINTER BOWLING STARTS

Calumet Teams Toe the Line Next Monday Night

The annual winter bowling tournament at the Calumet Club will start next Monday night with a list of no less than 1[illegible] teams striving for the 13 prizes offered. The tournament will continue until next March, with nightly matches on all of the six alleys at the club.

As is customary, the bowlers are all rated with handicaps which are changed during the season in accordance with their skill. This arrangement makes for keen bowling between all teams, and the experts must show as much skill as the novice, as both meet on equal ground under figures set by actual rolling.

The usual rules will govern the tournament and prizes, with a dinner at the close of the contest will be furnished by the 12 lowest teams in the standing.

| | Alleys 1 & 2 | Alleys 3 & 4 | Alleys 5 & 6 |
|---|---|---|---|
| Monday, Oct. 19 | .... | 5—9 | 7—8 |
| Tuesday, Oct. 20 | 1—6 | 10—11 | 12—13 |
| Wednesday, Oct. 21 | 14—15 | 16—17 | 18—19 |
| Thursday, Oct. 22 | 4—6 | 3—5 | 2—5 |
| Tuesday, Oct. 27 | 13—14 | 14—15 | 1—13 |
| Wednesday, Oct. 28 | 12—13 | 1—8 | 11—15 |
| Thursday, Oct. 29 | 17—19 | 5—7 | 2—6 |
| Wednesday, Nov. 4 | 13—16 | 10—12 | 4—9 |

Everything is in readiness for the opening dinner at 6:30 on Saturday evening, and club officials expect to greet one of the largest and most enthusiastic gatherings yet to attend one of these increasingly popular affairs.

Steward Fred Scholl promises a menu sure to satisfy the most exacting appetite and the entertainment committee has succeeded in securing Miss Evelyn Lewis and "Ed" Burton of the R. K. O. chain to put on a program of songs and chatter that will exclude any possibility of a dull moment during the serving of the various courses.

After the dinner Paul Poehler's All Stars, bowlers extraordinary, will roll an exhibition match on the club alleys and those who like to watch a team of men actually make the pins cry "Kamerad" won't want to miss these boys in action.

Club members are urged to attend and to bring along prospective members and guests. Make supper reservations with Fred tonight to avoid being disappointed. President Harris Richardson is particularly eager to have every one get acquainted early in the season and there is no better way to get friendly than at an opening dinner. Come down and renew old friedships or meet the crowd.

Calumet ladies are reminded of the afternoon bowling on Tuesday, Oct. 20, and urged to participate with the advice, offered gratis, that bowling is a real aid in maintaining the girlish figure.

Friday evening, Oct. 23, is the date of the first dinner bridges which proved so popular last season. Dinner will be served at 6:30 and bridge will start about 7:45. The ability to play good bridge is not necessary to have a good time at these parties, and for those who do not care to play cards the bowling alleys are available. Plan to spend the evening at the club. Dine, play bridge or bowl. Suit yourself, but come.

Bean supper at the club Saturday evening, Oct. 24; and looking ahead a bit, Friday evening, Oct. 30, is the date of the annual Hallowe'en Party, Mrs. Harold Bostwick, in charge of arrangements, promises an evening of pleasant surprises and has already lined up Leon Haffermehl to furnish the music.

Saturday evening, Nov. 7, the club house will tremble on its foundation as a group of professional wrestlers go through their paces in the club hall. The entertainment committee is working hard on this event and already have lined up such wanted pachyderms as "Al" Morelli and "Cupie" Kilroy, ex-Boston College gridiron stalwarts, "Chicago Ed" McNeil and the flashy Bulgar, Boris Demetroff. Wrestling fans don't want to miss this one.

Big "Jim" Fitzgerald had a field day last Sunday, playing for the Fitton-Dilboy football team against the Brockton Okos. Besides playing a very nice tackle indeed "Fitzy" booted over seven drop kicks for important goals after touchdowns.

SHALL WE RETIRE?

Then Let Us Wake Up And Do Something About It.

A recent survey in the wealthiest state in the Union, revealed that 2 out of 3 of its people, scrambling for wealth, are dependent at age 65; and that 9 out of 10 reach age 65 with less than $7000 to keep them for the rest of their life.

If only two years of depressed income are hard on us while we are young, what will a life-long depression beginning at age 65 be like?

Are these present two years our warning?

Why not make sure that you will have a guaranteed income for life?

You can deposit one sum and start your income now: or, you can deposit a few dollars a year in a guaranteed annuity savings fund and start receiving your income for life in any year you choose. Or if you do not want the life income, take the cash with its splendid appreciation.

Is It A Safe Place For Your Money?

You need not worry about its safety. Ex-President Coolidge, on Oct. 6, 1931, told this country that this kind of property need cause us no worry—that it is the essence of financial security.

The rich should know its advantages in willing property. The poor should know of its assured protection in old age.

Why not choose now, a safe and certain plan to financial independence?

This company, which is so big and strong that approximately one out of every 250 dollars in this country is under its protective wing, will help you.

MARY CUTTER AND LUCY FOWLE WON COUNTRY CLUB DOUBLES

Mary Cutter and Lucy Fowle last Saturday won the annual doubles tournament at the Winchester Country Club for girls who had not reached their 18th birthday before Jan. 1. In the final round the Misses Cutter and Fowle after dropping the first set to Betty Proctor and Frances Poinier came back to annex the next two for the championship.

The summary:

First Round

Mary Boyden and Sylvia Hatch defeated Catherine Gilbert and Elsie Stockard, 6—1, 6—2.

Second Round

Sylvia Hatch and Mary Boyden defeated Martha Boyden and Virginia Arnold, 7—5, 3—6, 7—5.

Mary Cutter and Lucy Fowle defeated Gertrude Backes and Deborah Gilbert, 6—1, 6—2.

Semi-Final Round

Mary Cutter and Lucy Fowle defeated Betty Proctor and Frances Poinier, 4—6, 6—3, 6—1.

Robert "Olio" Lee returned to Winchester last week-end from Kents Hill School in Maine and has been resting a bad knee this week at his home on Grove place. Big "Olio" injured his knee while playing fullback for Kents Hill where his work has aroused favorable comment. He is weighing 192 pounds and aside from his wounded leg looks in the pink.

ANNUAL REPORT OF COMMANDER OF WINCHESTER POST, 97, AMERICAN LEGION

It is a pleasure to submit at this time my annual report as your Commander for the year 1930-31. An annual report of any organization is in brief a history of the organization for the period covered by the report. It is a record of the achievements of the year now gone. May I ask you therefore to review with me the history of Winchester Post, No. 97, from October 1930 to October 1931.

The Post has held during the past year the customary regular monthly meetings, except as usual during the months of July and August. It has been our policy to attempt to provide programs containing something worth while and at the same time programs appealing to Legion members. With the limited amount of money that we feel should be used for this purpose this has been oftentimes difficult. I invite all members to feel free to offer suggestions as to how this phase of our work can be improved. At our first meeting the late Colonel Chase, State Quartermaster of our Massachusetts National Guard, spoke on the history of the organized militia. Mr. Larrabee, the expert in "Human Engineering," was with us in December. Other speakers included George A. Parker, then Registrar of Motor Vehicles, and our own Dr. Ordway, who showed us wonderful movies of his trip abroad. In February, Lieutenant Connors gave his lecture on "The First Battle of the Marne." Dr. Tehye Heish, the Roosevelt of China, was with us in March and captivated us all with his wit, oratory and intelligence. Mr. Harlow, manager of the Boston Hockey Club, our own Comrade Dana, Mr. Hunter on the "Red Menace," Mr. Mullen of the Department Headquarters and Merle the "Master of Magic," are others who have been on the program. Banquets were served in connection with the November and May meetings and refreshments have been enjoyed at all other meetings. The attendance at these Post meetings has on the whole been encouraging.

The Executive Board has been in session each month and its members have faithfully and conscientiously attempted to transact the business before it in a manner consistent with the best interest of the Post. Your Commander and Adjutant, with other members, have been present at every District and every County Council meeting and have in this way kept in touch with the outside Legion World.

The outstanding activities of the Legion year are as follows: Each can hardly be more than mentioned briefly.

On Armistice Day, the Post, with band and colors, took part in the big parade at Woburn. This was a slight acknowledgment and reciprocation on our part of the splendid co-operation we received from Woburn Post in taking part in Winchester's history making Tercentenary parade of Oct. 12 and of the help we received from other Woburn units annually on May 30, the Woburn National Guard units and the Woburn High School Cadets. Also on Nov. 11, a delegation from our Post held fitting Memorial services on our own War Memorial grounds. On the evening of Nov. 10, a Pre-Armistice Day dance was held. The party was not as well supported as it deserved to be, but all who were present enjoyed the evening thoroughly.

During the winter a series of wrestling bouts were staged in the Town Hall. The dual purpose of these bouts was to provide good entertainment for the public and to raise funds for the Post. Good cards were presented by the committee in charge and the public saw some of the national wrestling stars in action here in Winchester. Financially the results were not up to our expectations. However, the sum of $84.25 was added to our Welfare Fund from the proceeds.

On Feb. 16 and 17, the Post presented to the public the well known war play "Journey's End" with an all Legion and all Winchester Post cast. This function was successful from every point of view. The committee showed a good profit. The public was pleased and I believe, surprised at the excellent work of the cast. The committee and cast deserve our commendation for their work.

On April 19 a delegation from the Post, with band and colors, took part in the parade at Revere at which time the Revere Post dedicated its new beautiful Legion home.

In May the Post again fulfilled its ever increasingly important part in the local observance of Memorial Day. The Post officially attended as a body Divine Memorial Service on Sunday, May 24. On May 29, representatives of the Post spoke at assemblies in our public schools. On May 30, the graves of the veterans of all wars, buried in Winchester, were decorated with the American flag and wreaths, and the usual pilgrimage was made by the Post to Calvary and Wildwood Cemeteries with memorial services at each place. Proper and reverent respect to the memory of departed comrades is the everlasting duty of the American Legion. I urge upon all Legionnaires an even greater responsibility in the discharge of this obligation. "Fear not that ye have died for naught. The torch you threw to us we caught. Ten million hands will hold it high. And Freedom's light shall never die. We've learned the lesson that ye taught in Flanders Field."

On July 4 the Post ran a carnival on Manchester Field. The program was somewhat abbreviated but none the less effective. Merry-go-rounds and Ferris wheels were for the first time brought to the field and provided proper and popular entertainment for the kiddies. The committee did a splendid job and showed a handsome profit for the Post. They are to be congratulated on their work.

During the past summer a baseball team has been sponsored and run by the Post. The committee and the manager worked hard and I believe deserve more appreciation than most members of our Post realize. There was at no time any idea of financial gain in this project. It was distinctly a Welfare proposition and the Post, by running a schedule of 13 Saturday home games, provided clean and wholesome recreation to the people who were in town during the summer months. The manager produced a team which reflected credit on the Post and which made a fine record, winning 10 of the games played.

The Welfare work of the Post for the past year has again been ably carried on by our efficient Welfare officer. No work or activity of our Post outranks in importance the interest we manifest for the less fortunate of our members. It is one of the foundations on which our order is built and which justifies its existence. During the past year we have furnished clothing, shoes, food, candy, fruit, paid rent, purchased coal and provided jobs for the families of ex-service men in our community. Sick comrades have been remembered with flowers or fruit. Last summer we sent a child to the summer camp maintained by Middlesex Health Association, paying total expenses for eight weeks. The child selected was one who otherwise would not have been able to have the opportunity. The Post has taken an active interest in the Bedford Veterans Hospital. We have supplied entertainment for the programs, furnished smokes for the patients and contributed to a County Legion fund to finance a bowling schedule. In addition, we have as a Post made donations to the Red Cross, Salvation Army, Winchester Citizens' Relief Committee, local Boy Scout work, Winchester Hospital Sustaining Fund, and to the Disabled War Veterans' Group.

The membership of the Post has been maintained at substantially the same number as of last year. We have today 220 paid members, which compares with 221 a year ago. Our financial situation is sound. We had at the beginning of the present administrative year $371.65 in regular Post funds. The books tonight show a balance of $673.65; all bills are paid. The Welfare Fund contains $25.00.

At the first meeting of the Executive Board a year ago, and again at his first Post meeting, your Commander stated that one primary object in the policy of the new administration would be to raise a substantial sum of money to be added to the Post Reserve fund, which consisted at that time of $600. In face of numerous and strong temptations to spend for this or that, we have constantly kept our major objective in mind. As a result we have during the past Legion year added the sum of $500 to our Reserve Fund, and if the recommendation of the Executive Board, to be considered later tonight, is favorably acted upon $400 more will be transferred to our Reserve, and we will have then more than doubled the fund during the year, increasing it from $600 to $1500. It is my pledge tonight that the policy during the coming year will be to put forth every effort possible, consistent with the best interest of the Post, to make sufficient further additions to our Reserve Fund, to bring the total to $2500 by October 1932. This can be done. But, it can be done, as the increase has been made this year, only by the continued hard work of certain members of the Post, by the willingness of the Post to stick to a policy of reasonable economy and by having the objective constantly in view as the year progresses.

During the past year the Post has suffered the loss of one member through death, Comrade Daniel Leahey, who was elected to Winchester Post on Oct. 22, 1930, died December 12, 1930. We have in addition as a Post of the Department of Massachusetts met with the loss of a Past Department Commander, Gen. Charles R. Edwards. He was the first Past Department Commander to go. In his memory our charter was draped in mourning for 60 days. One other staunch friend of our Post, not a Legionnaire, has left us. I wish at this time to pay the respects of Winchester Post 97 to the memory of Miss Mary Richards, deceased May 4, 1931. Quiet, modest, unknown by most of our members, seeking no publicity for herself, Miss Richards was one of the most sincere friends the Winchester Post 97 has ever had. This annual report would not be complete without incorporating in it this word of acknowledgment of and thanks for the splendid character of Miss Mary A. Richards.

Any live and growing organization has its problems. We have ours. It is not my purpose to suggest many of them. One problem that will press itself into our attention in the near future is the matter of a new Legion home. In discussing this problem a bit of Legion history may properly be inserted. The first permanent officers of this Post were elected on Nov. 18, 1919. During the early years of the Post, meetings were held in the Town Hall. On July 21, 1919 the records state that it was voted to rent a room in the Brown Building over Hovey's Drug Store at $5 per month. This room was used for committee and executive board meetings, a storage place for records, etc., but was not suitable for Post meetings. Apparently Post meetings were held for a time during 1921 in White's Hall as well as in the Town Hall. However, on Sept. 8, 1921, was held the first meeting of this Post in this house which has served us as a Legion Headquarters since that time, a period of ten years. The beautiful new Public Library on the adjacent lot is practically completed. It is not conceivable to my mind that the present Legion home will be permitted to remain in its present location much longer. On June 19, 1930, the Post voted a committee of five to investigate future quarters for the Post. That committee has investigated several possibilities but has not found any proposition that seemed to be within our financial reach. A year ago it seemed possible that the town might purchase part of the land of the Corse property directly across Washington street from the Library. At a special Post meeting, held on Oct. 2, 1930, a sense of the meeting vote was passed that in event the town did so act, the Post purchase and occupy the rest of the Corse property as a new Legion home. The town, however, failed to purchase the aforementioned land. The new Legion home committee felt that to swing the whole proposition would be too heavy a burden for us to assume. That is the history of the case to date. The Post will need and will have a home somewhere for many years to come. There are two possible policies for us to follow. We can allow the matter to drift and accept whatever may be available when and if we abandon our present home. Or, we can assume the initiative and interest ourselves actively in the matter immediately. If we as a Post do not initiate the matter no one else will. The problem is our own. Judging from past generous treatment and friendly attitude of the town I believe that the town and certain citizens as individuals will be helpful to us in reaching a satisfactory solution. The new Legion quarters committee is still functioning and I hope may have a definite proposition to submit to the Post in the very near future. This problem will probably come to a crisis during the coming year. Constructive thinking, prompt action and the co-operation of every Post member are needed if we are to successfully meet the situation.

One other problem I wish to discuss briefly at this time and one you perhaps little suspect. I refer to the difficulty in finding or at least recognizing opportunity for community service. Increased membership is sometimes so emphasized that one may be fooled into thinking that large membership is the primary object of the American Legion. It is not the chief job of the American Legion to build up a large membership, however desirable that may be. The first and last object of the American Legion is service. The U. S. on the button of every Legionnaire should stand for "Unselfish Service" for our community, state and nation. When that duty is fulfilled the membership will take care of itself. In preparing this report and reminding myself of the activities of the year I often wished that more could be reported as a part of our community service program. This condition exists not because we have failed to do what we have seen to be done; it is due, as I have already said, to the difficulty or failure on our part to search out additional ways in which we can serve. This will always be true in a community such as ours. It may be, however, that by promoting some playground activity, by sponsoring a junior baseball team, by offering scholarships to needy students, by some Christmas season activity by helping in local Americanization work, by co-operating with our hospital, by associating ourselves actively with the Boy Scout work, by making athletic awards, by providing skating rinks or swimming pools, by safety education, or by founding a boys' club, the sphere of our influence and our service can be broadened. The greatest memorial to our dead is service to the living. Our preamble says "for God and Country we associate ourselves together," and to most of us it is true that the part of our country we serve is our community. In concluding this report I urgently invite your serious consideration to this problem, to the end that during the coming year we may as an American Legion Post render a wider program of constructive community service and thus further justify, to our own satisfaction, our existence as an organization.

The Legion year of 1930-31 has gone. What we have done we have done. Mistakes have undoubtedly been made. Errors have without question been committed. By and large, however, I feel that the year has been a good one. Sound judgment and good common sense have in most cases prevailed. Now a new Legion year faces us. Let us clear the decks for action and forgetting the mistakes of the past go forward to a year of even greater achievement and progress, in the name of the American Legion.

REISMAN'S ORCHESTRA COMING

Welfare Fund to Benefit

Plans are progressing for the dance program in the Town Hall Armistice night, Nov. 11 for the benefit of the Welfare Fund, American Legion Post 97. As was announced last week, Leo Reisman's first dance orchestra from the Hotel Brunswick, Boston, will play from 9 to 1, assisted by radio stars who have consented to come to Winchester to help in this worthy cause. These entertainers will include the famous Varsity Club Trio, well known on Boston broadcasting programs. Reisman's music alone will be well worth hearing, and with the added attraction booked by the Legion, a treat is in store.

The Armistice Day committee of the Legion are devoting the entire proceeds of the evening to welfare work in Winchester among needy families. Many urgent requests for assistance have been received and it is confidently believed that the townspeople by their support of this outstanding event will indicate their co-operation. Tickets at $1 per couple are on sale in various local stores.

Last Words

Last words of dying persons are like the mutterings in a delirium. Why then are they so treasured? asks Dr. J. Shelton Horsley in an article in Hygeia Magazine. The melodramatic picture of relatives hovering over a deathbed is based on the wrong conception. Last words are of no value when they come from a mind benumbed by approaching death. It is better to remember the words spoken while the person was in a healthy mental and physical state

River Back in Old Bed

The prediction made years ago that the river Turkestan Tarim in Chinese Turkestan would abandon its course and return to an ancient channel farther north was recently proved and the Tarim is running where it did 1,600 years ago.

FOUNDATION LOTION

Attending a ladies' meeting one evening, which was composed of old, middle aged and young women, I casually looked around to study the art in which all women are the most interested,—how to make themselves more attractive and beautiful. I was surprised and amazed at the various contrasts as to the application of make-up. I mentioned this fact to several of the ladies present and they said they had also observed this same thing, and wondered why the powder and rouge on many of the faces looked patchy, while others looked so well. "Well," I answered, "there are so many different things to consider, all of which lie entirely with the individual woman's skin-texture." It is a fact that so few women realize the value of a foundation lotion and its use, and of the benefit they can derive from its application. No matter what your skin,—oily or dry,—the use of a good foundation lotion is essential. It not only tones up the skin, but acts as a marvelous foundation for your make-up. Good foundation lotions are obtainable and you will be greatly satisfied and encouraged with its result.

The application is as follows: After you have thoroughly cleansed your face, pat the lotion into the skin. There will come a sense of feeling that here is a lotion thoroughly in tune with your flesh needs, and after you have finished patting it into the skin, it will cast forth a singular glow of naturalness, without which there can be no real beauty.

Frances Mandel will answer questions on Grace and Charm if you will enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope to Frances Mandel, 1030 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass.

A large party of Winchester people spent the week-end holiday at Lake Contooket, Jaffrey, as the guests of Mr. Robert Clark. Included in the party were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. Chesley Whitten, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Hurd, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Willey, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Driscoll and Miss Esther Clark. In the holiday motor boat races Messrs. Clark and Whitten took first prize for inboard motors.

WINCHESTER AND ARLINGTON BATTLE TO A TIE

No Score in Hotly Contested Dedication Game

Winchester High School's gallant little football team held Arlington's cocky and supremely confident band of gridiron stalwarts to a scoreless tie in the annual Columbus Day game between the two schools, played Monday morning on Arlington's new Warren A. Pierce athletic field. Just previous to the game the field was formally dedicated, the squads of both teams assisting with the Arlington High School band.

Arlington took the field very confident of the issue and to those who shivvered in the stands and on the sidelines it surely appeared that the Red and Gray had a decided advantage in size over the Red and Black. Arlington was full of chatter, Winchester grim and determined as the opening whistle blew.

Arlington kicked to Tofuri who returned the ball 15 yards to Winchester's 38-yard line. Lynch got three yards off tackle and Knowlton added two through the line. Hannon kicked well into Arlington territory, but the Red and Gray was offside on the play and the ball was brought back.

It was first down for Winchester, but the local attack stalled and Hannon kicked to the Arlington 37-yard line.

Two thrusts at the line and a delayed pass made a first down on the 47-yard line. Consistent running of Winchester's left tackle followed by a successful forward pass from Wright to Curley added two first downs and took the ball to Winchester's 33-yard line. Here an Arlington fumble was recovered by Daly, but Winchester fumbled in turn, Hannon recovering.

Lynch was held at the line and injured by a too zealous Arlington since. He was able to continue and Hannon kicked short and outside at his own 30-yard line. Arlington fumbled again and Lentini was through to fall on the ball for Winchester. Hannon ripped off nine yards in two rushes off the tackles and an offside penalty against Arlington made it first down at the Arlington 46-yard line. Knowlton was smeared for a 3-yard loss as the quarter ended.

On the first play of the new quarter Hannon dropped back and shot off a pretty pass to Tofuri for a first down at Arlington's 35-yard line. Two bad passes and an offside hurt Winchester at this point and Arlington took the ball on downs at its own 45-yard line.

Two thrusts at the line gave Arlington a first down at the 35-yard line and Randlett went in for Bottger at tackle. Tranfaglia smeared a try at his tackle post and Arlington kicked to Winchester's 28-yard line.

A pass was grounded and Hannon reeled off six yards at end before getting off a pretty boot to the Arlington 30-yard line. Two line plunges made it first down on the 40-yard line, but Arlington was forced to kick and the Winchester line was through fast to block the boot and take the ball on downs. Flaherty recovered a Winchester fumble and Hannon shot off a long pass which was intercepted by the Arlington safety man who was downed on his own 25-yard line. One ineffective try at the line ended play for the half.

McKee went in for Randlett to start the second half and kicked off to Arlington's 38-yard line, incidentally making the tackle. After two line plays were piled up Merrill reeled off a first down at the 44-yard line through left tackle. Here the Winchester forwards smothered three line plunges from a spread formation and Arlington kicked to Winchester's 20-yard line.

Hannon returned the kick to his own 42-yard line and Flaherty and DiAppela smeared two attempts to advance the ball, forcing Arlington to kick, the ball going outside at Winchester's 35-yard line.

Hannon and Knowlton made only short gains through the big Arlington line and Hannon kicked outside at Arlington's 48-yard line. Merrill reeled off nine yards at end and a short pass made it first down on Winchester's 40-yard line. Here the local line braced and turned back three running plays, an Arlington fumble being recovered by Winchester at its own 33-yard line as the third quarter ended.

Arlington had lost its early game swagger and was now trying desperately to get going in the face of the stubborn opposition offered by the smaller Winchester team. Winchester couldn't gain at the line and Hannon booted the ball to the Arlington 27-yard line, Captain Flaherty refusing an Arlington offside penalty to let the ball stay where it was.

Here Daly broke through to smear an Arlington attempted pass for a three-yard loss and Arlington was forced to kick to Winchester's 38-yard line.

Knowlton hit tackle for two yards and then Hannon faded out to the left and tossed off a pretty 25-yard pass to Knowlton who was too close to the touchline to get away for a touchdown jaunt. Winchester couldn't keep going and Hannon booted the ball across the Arlington goal line, play being resumed at the 20-yard line.

Here Arlington started an offensive which crashed along to Winchester's 38-yard line. Winchester was fighting for a tie and Daly broke through to smear a criss cross, Knowlton following with a hard open field tackle that set Arlington back a yard. Two yards were made at center and Arlington tried a pass on fourth down which was grounded, Winchester taking the ball on downs.

Mobbs was hurt during the rush up the field and his place was taken by Dolan. Tofuri and Knowlton had just time enough to rip off 5 yards through center as the game ended.

For Winchester the tie was a real achievement for none of the pre-game dope gave the locals a chance with their heavier, more experienced opponents. Arlington outrushed Winchester, nine first downs to three, and played a lot of pretty rough football. Both teams missed tackles but Winchester's tackling was much cleaner than Arlington's, the latter boys seldom attempting to get a man below the shoulders. The locals followed the ball closely and this ability to recover enemy fumbles made it possible to stave off Arlington early in the game.

WINCHESTER TOWN TEAM AND ARLINGTON PALS IN SCORELESS TIE

A repetition of the Winchester High-Arlington High football game was staged on Manchester Field Monday afternoon when the Winchester Town Team and the Arlington Pals went through four bruising periods of play without a score.

A big crowd saw the battle and were treated to some hard, rough football which on the whole was very clean. There were many injuries, particularly among the Winchester boys who were greatly outweighed by their Arlington rivals.

As the teams took the field the locals appeared positively small by comparison with the husky Arlington linemen, one of whom, left tackle Peterson, being the biggest man to play on the Winchester playground for many years.

The Pals and "Townies" were evenly matched and waged a fiercely fought struggle during the entire four periods. Starting the game, the Arlington contingent used their weight to advantage and for a time carried the game to Winchester.

The aggressive Town Team line, however, soon found itself and stopped the Arlington running game dead. If the visitors had a passing attack, they made little use of it and never could get anywhere through the air.

The game had hardly gotten under way when an Arlington boy and a Winchester player got into a fracas and both were sent from the field by Referee "Steve" Colucci who also plastered a half-the-distance penalty upon the visiting team. The locals made a good bid to get started at this point but a fumble stopped their advance short and it was not until late in the game that they were able to seriously threaten the Arlington goal line.

Toward the end of the third quarter Carroll punted deep into Arlington's territory and on the first play "Livin" McNeil broke through to dump the Pals' ball carrier for a seven yard loss.

Arlington was forced to punt and Neil Kerrigan and Frank Frongilo were through so fast that the Pals' kicker was just able to get his boot away. The ball went outside at the 35-yard line and a nice cutback by Fleming together with a couple of fierce line plunges by "Tony" Chefalo took the ball to the Arlington 10-yard line.

Here the Winchester attack stalled when Fleming sent first Flaherty and then Prue against the burly Arlington forward line. Neither gained his weight and the teams changed goals for the final quarter.

Arlington held for downs and started up the field only to have "Tony" Chefalo intercept a forward pass and migrate 15 yards to the 25-yard line. Winchester took to the air and forwards from Prue and Fleming to Cummings and Chefalo put the "Townies" in scoring position once again.

With the Pals secondaries bracing the line Winchester attempted to plunge for distance and was stopped dead. With a great receiver available in "Livin" McNeil, one wonders why Winchester didn't gamble on a flat pass over the line for the score at once. The locals, however, whanged away at the tackles until fourth down when a pass to McNeil was expected and batted down.

At this point Arlington put on an advance that carried from their own 5-yard line to nearly midfield as the game ended.

Winchester played without its great center "Nutsy" Amico, one of the best linemen in the Mystic Valley, and his loss naturally weakened the team. "Tony" Chefalo also played a great game in the local backfield and Kerrigan and McNeil stood out on the "Townies" line.

The game was slowed up by injuries and frequent time outs, Arlington's Captain Peterson questioning about every decision of Umpire Colucci, who handled the game well enough. "Rough" Haley was linesman.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL GRADUATION EXERCISES

The School of Nursing of the Winchester Hospital held its graduation exercises at the Wyman School on Oct. 7.

The capacity of the Wyman School was taxed to the utmost by the friends and relatives of the students gathered for the occasion. The stage was decorated with autumn foliage and made a charming setting for the bright blue and white of the nurses' uniforms. The glowing colors of red maple and flowering dogwood were combined with palm at the back of the stage and along the footlights, white pine and the brilliant berries of bitter-sweet were mingled together.

The school marched into the hall headed by their superintendent, Miss Hilda M. Torrop. The graduates followed, passed between the double row of students, and to their places on the stage, 16 girls in all as this fall's class and next February's class held their exercises together.

Mr. Harold S. Fuller, the president of the hospital, welcomed the audience and expressed his appreciation of the work of the superintendent.

The address of the evening was given by Miss Jane Louise Mesick, Dean of Simmons College. She spoke to the girls on the qualities and opportunities of a private citizen, begging each one to develop her own personality and not be merely a person absorbed and involved in the technique of her work. She suggested that good manners were not just etiquette or convention but were the result of common kindliness and sincerity and thought for the other person's feelings.

The music of the evening was varied and delightful. Miss Alice Moberg, of the school faculty, with her violin solo and Miss Dorothy Eaton of Winchester, by her piano selections gave a great deal of pleasure. The students' glee club presented two groups of songs. Mr. M. R. Barclay of Milton, the leader of the glee club, has been most successful in stimulating the students in their efforts.

Miss Anne M. Hannon, now at Bellevue Hospital, New York City, one of the graduates, gave a sketch of her three years' work as a student. It was filled with many amusing bits of experience and tributes of devoted appreciation of her teachers, Miss Elizabeth Sullivan and Miss Torrop.

Miss Torrop gave the report of the School of Nursing. This report showed the thought and constant endeavor spent in improving the Winchester Hospital and its Training School. Part of the superintendent's report is given as follows:

The past school year has been one of evaluation—if that word be permitted—at all events one during which a great effort has been made to see ourselves truly, to gauge our strength of teaching and precept and to lay plans for this year with a reason behind them evolved from a deeper appreciation of the things we lack.

We have felt that faculty education was greatly needed, that the head nurse does not realize her inestimable importance on the hospital wards and to the school in her daily contact with the student nurse—that unless she understands methods being taught in the class room she cannot constructively assist in ward teaching and that unless she does—the teaching is in vain.

Our faculty has responded loyally and with a course in educational psychology, and by constructive faculty meetings we hope to pave the way to increased ward teachings.

Sustained by the confidence and loyalty shown in the School of Nursing by the people of Winchester, we are resolved to eventually give in return the best nursing service we can evolve, composed of understanding, skill and sympathy.

We of the faculty are in the somewhat unusual position of having one of our great sources of strength and inspiration a non-resident member and I know that faculty and students alike join me in paying particular tribute to the unselfish untiring help Miss Elizabeth Sullivan has given us in working out these plans for the future.

Our nurses at Bellevue are doing well and we now have three recent graduates as head nurses—one being a member of this class. Bellevue's comments regarding our nurses have been kind and it strengthens our belief in the fact that there is a place in the sun for the small hospital and school if it maintains high standards and makes an effort to turn out women and not machines.

At this time last year we expressed a hope that the furnishing of a library would be accepted as a three or five year project by some group. The Alumnae, at once, undertook the task and it will be a lasting memorial to their vision and loyal support. Thanks to their gift, the reference library is becoming one in the real sense of the word. After due consideration it was decided to give a library table, end chairs and two double lamps as the first year's gift. These are being used daily and are both ornamental and useful, a happy combination.

Our extra curricula studies have included current events, ten lectures from Miss Avery and 20 weeks of English, carrying college credit, given by Professor Conners of the Emmerson College of Oratory. We all remember the suspense with which we anticipated each evening and the chance that we might be asked to perform.

Christmas at the hospital leaves us feeling that our thanks have been totally inadequate, when we review the affection and thought that has been expended upon us.

Four outstanding events are the Christmas tree party, the party to Beacon Hill on Christmas Eve, the singing of carols early Christmas morning and the Christmas service held by one of the ministers of the town.

The Mead Scholarship was awarded to Miss Faustena Blaisdell who is just beginning a year of post graduate study at the University of Virginia. Miss Blaisdell's splendid scholastic record should stand her in good stead during this interesting year.

Your Superintendent was fortunate in attending the Nursing convention held in Atlanta last May and more than usually fortunate in having the President of the Alumnae present. To have an Alumnae Association progressive enough to realize that their strength lies in being up to date and in maintaining a constructive policy is an unusual and a wonderful thing for a small hospital.

To our faculty we give thanks and deep appreciation for what they are trying to do for hospital and school. To our Training School Committee, our lecturers, our doctors who give our pupils such excellent care in sickness, we tender our thanks not only for their unselfish giving of time and effort but for their understanding spirit that condones our failures and rejoices in our successes.

The school pins were presented by Mrs. Stillman P. Williams, chairman of the Training School Committee and the diplomas by the president, Mr. Fuller.

Many of the audience spoke of the simple, dignified and yet friendly and happy exercises, the attractive setting, the excellent appearance of the class and the inspiring and thoughtful addresses.

The senior class held its commencement dinner and dance at the Winchester Country Club, two nights before graduation on Oct. 5. Miss Sullivan and Miss Torrop were the guests of honor. Songs, speeches, toasts and prophecies made the occasion memorable and quite filled the early part of the evening till the guests gathered for the dance. The class colors were combined in the decorations and favors in the candlelit dining room.

The committee in charge of the dance was composed of the following students: Miss Alice Andrews, chairman; Miss Lois Woodworth, Miss Sarah Norton, Miss Jeanette Pleau, Miss Thelma Perrigo, and Miss Ethel Coffin. This committee was assisted by Miss Alice Moberg is to be congratulated on the success of the dinner and dance. The Training School Committee assisted the students in receiving their guests and shared with the girls the general feeling of festivity and gaiety.

WINCHESTER GIRLS AND WINTHROP GIRLS IN TIE

Winchester High and Winthrop High girls' field hockey teams played their first game in the new Interscholastic League round robin on Manchester Field last Friday afternoon, the battle ending in a 1 to 1 deadlock.

The locals showed a greatly improved forward line against Winthrop and only some strong defensive work on the part of the visitors during the second half prevented the Winchester girls from scoring more than the single tally which gave them a tie.

Winthrop scored midway through the opening half when Cawley, right inner, broke through the Winchester line ond drove a hard shot from the 50-yard line on an angle that eluded both local fullbacks and beat Goaler "Jo" Fowle to the corner of the net.

The Winchester girls kept pegging away and just before half time scored three goals which were ruled illegal by the referee. Two of the goals scored were made from offside and the other from a reverse stick with obstructed view.

It would have been but natural for a green team to lose its morale after three such breaks, but Coach Centervall's charges continued to carry the game to Winthrop and had the ball in the visitors' territory during most of the second half.

Time and again the local forwards surged up the field, only to have the Winthrop defense turn their thrusts aside. Finally with two minutes remaining to play, Sharon, Winchester's left inside, took the ball out of a scrimmage in the striking circle and banged it past Captain Gierla in the Winthrop net.

| WINCHESTER | | WINTHROP |
|---|---|---|

Does Liquor Make Prosperity?

The most gigantic foreign news of late is the collapse of the MacDonald government in Great Britain because of the inability to make both ends meet. And yet Great Britain has a tax on a huge liquor traffic. In fact its liquor taxes amounted last year to $645,000,000, which is $200,000,000 more than liquor ever paid even in this country at the highest tax rate ever imposed. Liquor has made England poor instead of rich.

Wine and beer has not lessened the unemployment situation in Great Britain. Miss Agnes Slack of England, world's W. C. T. U. secretary says, "When people tell you that prohibition is the cause of unemployment in your country, point them to England. Our unemployed is many times greater, for in addition to the problem you have to meet, we have the unemployment caused by liquor.

WINCHESTER AND MELROSE CLUBS IN SCORELESS HOCKEY TIE

The Winchester and Melrose Hockey Clubs played a scoreless tie on Manchester Field last Saturday afternoon in the first game of the local independent season. For an initial effort the exhibition was creditable though there was little attempt to "team it" on he part of either eleven.

Melrose seemed to enjoy an advantage during the opening minutes of play and chiefly through the efforts of the Misses Kelley and Colbert succeeded in keeping the ball in Winchester's territory during much of the half.

Only one actual shot was taken at the Winchester net and that, a puny roller from an angle, was easily thrust aside by Goaler Anna Dolan.

Following intermission Winchester went into the driver's seat and with Janet Nichols and J. Albrecht doing some effective carrying kept the Melrose defense busy. Toward the end of the half Winchester worked the ball past middle field where it was taken by Janet Nichols and rushed up to the striking circle. A brisk scrimmage ensued with Winchester pressing Melrose fiercely, and to save a score the Melrose goaler fell across the goal uprights, blocking the ball. A penalty bully was called and Goaler Bourne succeeded in knocking the ball out of danger.

A bit later Janet Nichols rushed to the Melrose net, but her angle shot went wide of the mark. Melrose braced in turn and carried the ball past middle field and into Winchester territory. With Miss Kelley doing some pretty dribbling the visitors several times threatened to score, but the defensive work of Carolyn Nichols and "Midge" Lowcock each time turned their thrusts aside and "Pug" Mercer had no stops to make.

The summary:

FAREWELL RAT BANQUET

Massachusetts State-Wide Rat Campaign, Friday, Oct. 30

Rat relief costs every farm in damaged grain and fruit, loss of poultry, injury to property and buildings, and menace to health.

A farewell banquet to the rats of Massachusetts will be served on Hallowe'en Eve, Friday, Oct. 30. A three course feast of meat, grain, and fish seasoned with red squill, will end the rat problem.

Rat campaigns have destroyed thousands of rats and saved many dollars in Middlesex County. Advance orders from former users are coming in. You cannot use 50 cents to better advantage.

Rat baits will come in tin cans, so order an extra supply—it will keep. One package of three cans will provide 100 baits, enough for the average farm. Red squill poisons rats only; it is not fatal to livestock or poultry. Rats go outside or deep in their burrows after taking the bait.

Co-operate with your neighbor in providing rats this farewell banquet. Community action will give the Hallowe'en witches good use for their brooms in cleaning up dead rats.

Let's give the rats a real feast! All rat bait may be had at the C. H. Symmes Co., 745 Main street, tel. 0900.

FIRE CHIEFS' CONVENTION IMPORTANT

Chief David H. DeCourcy of our local Fire Department, has been attending the national convention of Fire Chiefs which is being held in Havana, Cuba, this year. This convention opened on Wednesday, Oct. 14, and continues for four days.

Possibly, some people think that this convention is held, where Chiefs of Departments of various cities and towns attend, more or less for a good time, but the program which has been arranged this year at Havana gives a very fine idea of the serious thought and consideration that is given to fire extinguishment and fire prevention.

In these days papers are prepared by men who are well qualified to handle the subjects assigned and are heads of various departments, and the open discussion of these papers that have been given bring out a fund of information that is of great value to those atttending. Some of the papers to be presented at the convention, this year, are on the folfowing subjects:

Reducing incendiarism
Investigation of fires.
Uniform inspection visits.
Keeping down fire alarms.
Heading off Hoboy barrels.
Essential duties for modern departments.
Lessons from the major conflagrations.
Rescuing occupants at difficult fires.
Is the Fire College of success?
The present day trend in fire protection.
Lighting up the surroundings at fires.
Rendering aid to neighboring towns.
Developing cooperation between the state Fire Marshal and the Municipal Departments.

Fire control methods employed in Havana, equipment and personnel, strike an important contrast with those employed in the majority of American cities. In the Cuban capital, which many probably will be surprised to know is about the size of the City of Pittsburgh, residences and buildings are constructed to withstand two important enemies in the tropics—fire and hurricane. That Havana has built wisely is clearly evident to anyone who has had a chance to persue the statistics available at Fire Headquarters.

Havana, a thickly settled city of 693,000 inhabitants is protected by a Fire Department that must seem pitifully small to the average American fire-fighter for many an American city one-third its size boasts more men and equipment. Havana's active fire-fighting personnel is 293 men. The equipment distributed over six stations in the Havana area amounts to five motor pumpers, six chemical cars, four ladder trucks and one steam pumper.

Yet in the face of these figures, Havana continues to maintain one of the lowest per capita fire risks in the world. Interesting it is to note that in 12 years but one firemen has been killed on active duty. During the same period only five lives have been lost in fires and there has been no single case of fire spreading beyond the immediate building in question.

| | |
|---|---|
| Total calls | 277 |
| Outbreaks | 30 |
| Fires | 22 |
| Alarms | 89 |
| Special services, i. e. rescues, other duties not immediately connected with fire | 67 |
| Brush fires | 4 |
| False alarms | 1 |
| Automobile trucks burned | 11 |
| Passengers | 19 |
| Busses | 10 |
| Street Cars | 3 |
| Assistance extended over municipalities | 8 |
| Explosions | 1 |

| | |
|---|---|
| Merchandise imperiled | 1,134,856.00 |
| Total property imperiled | 3,181,009.54 |
| Actual merchandise loss | 24,125.45 |
| Capital saved from loss in buildings | 1,944,364.05 |
| Capital saved from loss of merchandise | 1,111,570.55 |
| Total of last two items | 3,056,105.60 |

In view of the fact that the above figures are based on current market values in this depression period, it is readily seen that the estimates are extremely conservative.

Without doubt, the information and knowledge obtained by our local Chief at the convention will be of much value to him and to the town in the work of the Fire Department.

MALDEN MYSTIC THEATER

"Too Many Cooks" starring Bert Wheeler and Dorothy Lee, will be the main attraction on the double bill that opens a run of seven days at the Mystic Theater in Malden on Saturday. The story is designed for laughing purposes only and revolves about the antics of the members of a family who take too active an interest in the affairs of a young couple who are very much in love. Bert Wheeler, in the whimsical role of a hard-working citizen, with an urge to marry and settle down, is a new Bert Wheeler to film audiences. Dorothy Lee, the little lady who appeared in "Half Shot," "Rio Rita" and "Cracked Nuts," offers another cute characterization. Contributing highly amusing roles in the picture are Roscoe Ates, the stuttering star of "Cimarron," Hallam Cooley, Sharon Lynn and Robert McWade. "Too Many Cooks" is a screen version of Frank Craven's stage success and makes a smashing hit as a picture.

"The Sky Spider," with Glenn Tryon, Blanche Mehaffey and Pat O'Malley as the featured players, is the second attraction on the Mystic program for Saturday. "The Sky Spider" is a combination of thrills, romance and action with the most interesting air battle scenes since "Hell's Angels" and "Wings." It is a story of Uncle Sam's air-mail pilots and the capture of an aerial desperado.

"Traveling Husbands" with Evelyn Brent, Frank Albertson and Constance Cummings as the stars, heads the bill that ends its run at the Mystic on Friday. This one is a story of the traveling salesman that starts out as a comedy and finishes up as a melodrama. Hugh Herbert and Frank McHugh supply the laughs of the production. "The Costello Case" with Tom Moore and Lola Lane, is the second attraction on the current bill. "The Costello Case" is a detective story with Tom Moore cast as a smiling cop who unravels a murder mystery.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

One of the greatest programs ever offered in any theater comes to the big Granada Theater in Malden on Saturday, when Will Rogers in "Young As You Feel," and "An American Tragedy" starring Phillips Holmes and Sylvia Sidney, open an engagement of seven days. "Young As You Feel" presents the popular Mr. Rogers as the father of two sons and the owner of a large business establishment. The boys refuse to take business seriously and spend their time chasing around. "Young As You Feel" is as ultra-modern as tomorrow's newspaper and in many ways is the best thing this famous wit and philosopher has done for the screen.

"An American Tragedy" is the widely discussed picture taken from Theodore Dresier's famous novel. Both the novel and the picture have provoked much comment, some favorable and some not, but no one has been discovered who can say that the story is not a true picture of certain phases of American life. There are no villains or heroes in "An American Tragedy." It deals entirely with average human beings; victims of their own fate and environment; fighting, groping, sinnings, laughing and dying.

"The Secret Call" starring Richard Arlen and Peggy Shannon, heads the bill that ends its run at the Granada on Friday. Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in their new comedy hit "Caught Plastered" is the second attraction on the current bill.

STRAND ATTRACTIONS

The feature attraction at the Strand Theatre, Malden, starting Saturday, Oct. 17 will be "Transatlantic" starring Edmund Lowe and Lois Moran. "Transatlantic" has to do with the tangled lives of a dozen or so men and women who set out from an American port for Europe aboard a deluxe liner. Unknown to each other before the vessel slips its moorings, they speedily become involved in a tangle which takes the entire voyage across the Atlantic to unsnarl. Adventures, thrills, romance, comedy, and tense drama all combine to make "Transatlantic" the highly entertaining picture that it is.

"Side Show" the Warner Brothers production featuring Winnie Lichtner and Charles Butterworth will be the second attraction at the Strand Theatre, Malden, starting Saturday. This gorgeous story of the loves and lives of circus folks is laid against the background of wild animals, big tents, little tents, ferris wheels, freaks, and all the paraphernalia of the circus. Winnie plays the part of right hand man to the jovial and tippling circus owner, hires, fires, and on occasion, doubles for cannibal, hula dancer or bearded lady. "Side Show" gives Miss Lightner her first opportunity to blend her clowning with serious emotional acting in which she shows herself capable of fine dramatic acting.

The Boston Sand & Gravel Co. has petitioned the Supreme Court to appoint a receiver for Frankini Bros. Co., Inc., of Medford, with authority in the receiver to complete contracts for several large public works. The bill says the Medford firm is solvent but that part of its property is pledged to a closed trust company and that its cash capital has been seriously impaired. The Boston Sand & Gravel Co. says it has supplied Frankini Bros. with $100,000 worth of materials and is owed $5988 for current bills. Among several large contracts which the Medford firm is now fulfilling is that of the addition to Winchester's High School.

Christian Science

Entitled

Christian Science: Its Logical Interpretation of Scripture

by

of Detroit, Michigan

Member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

Mr. Kilpatrick was introduced by Dr. Hubert N. Bernard, First Reader of the First Church of Christ, Scientist in Winchester who said: "Friends:

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Winchester extends to you all a most cordial welcome.

In the fourth chapter of Proverbs we read, 'Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom; and with all thy getting get understanding.'

The world today needs and is seeking more earnestly than ever before, this understanding, as mentioned in Proverbs and through the study of the Bible, in conjunction with the Christian Science textbook, 'Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures' by Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, and other channels established by Mrs. Eddy, mankind is finding the way to this spiritual understanding of God as Love, and, therefore, divine Principle, whose laws rightly understood are demonstrable and always available.

We have with us this evening a member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, who will speak to us on 'Christian Science: Its Logical Interpretation of Scripture.' It gives me great pleasure to present to you, William Duncan Kilpatrick, C.S.B. of Detroit, Michigan. Mr. Kilpatrick:"

In her various works on the subject, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy, has included many wide and far-reaching predictions. History has proved and is constantly proving not only the verity of these predictions but the further fact that they evidenced a keen spiritual faculty, vision, and foresight. In her book entitled "Pulpit and Press" (p. 22) Mrs. Eddy makes this statement: "If the lives of Christian Scientists attest their fidelity to Truth, I predict that in the twentieth century every Christian church in our land, and a few in far-off lands, will approximate the understanding of Christian Science sufficiently to heal the sick in his name. Christ will give to Christianity his new name, and Christendom will be classified as Christian Scientists."

SECOND CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH NOTES

The moving picture entertainment, supplemented by music and readings which will be given Oct. 30, Friday, at 8 p. m. in the assembly hall of the Second Congregational Church is an effort to reduce the church mortgage of $2000. The Canadian National Railway Company is sending a representative Mr. J. H. Bell, with a complete motion picture outfit.

Unusual pictures will be shown of Alaska and of the so-called Triangle Tour, Seattle, Washington, Vancouver and Prince Rupert of British Columbia and a wonderful picture of the Monarch of the Canadian Rockies, Mt. Robson.

WINCHESTER AT WAKEFIELD SATURDAY

Winchester High School's football team will be dipped deeply in the acid Saturday afternoon when Coach Linderman' charges travel to Wakefield for a game with Wakefield High's contender for the Mystic Valley League championship. Wakefield has its greatest team in years this fall, a veteran combination, most of the members of which have been working for four years under Coach "Bill" Healey. Winchester has an almost entirely inexperienced eleven which has done well to date, losing one game, tieing one and winning two. Wakefield's record is by far the more impressive and Wakefield should win, but if past performance is any criterion, Coach Linderman's boys won't be counted out without a struggle. Kickoff at 2:30.

REV. DWIGHT W. HADLEY INSTITUTED

Bishop Sherrill Conducted Service Sunday Evening

Rev. Dwight W. Hadley was instituted as rector of the Church of the Epiphany last Sunday evening by the Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, Episcopal Bishop of the Diocese of Massachusetts. The altar was attractively decorated with golden chrysanthemums and the church was filled to the doors, many from Mr. Hadley's former parish in Medford being noted in the congregation.

The simple, but impressive service was opened with the processional hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers," the choir being led by Harry Benson as Crucifer. Following the choir came the Church Treasurer, James H. Cleaves; Clerk, Percy E. Gleason; the Vestry, Samuel M. Best, John W. Bodman, William K. Denison, Andrew Elliott, Thomas H. Dumper, Waldo L. Hart, Richard R. Higgins, George E. Kimball and Robert H. Sibley; and the Wardens, Donald Heath and Merton L. Grush. Mr. Hadley was preceded by David Fitts as acolyte and followed by Bishop Sherrill.

Following the reading of the letter of institution by the Bishop, the key of the church was presented to Mr. Hadley by Mr. Heath as Senior Warden of the parish. The service of institution was read by the Bishop and followed by the Lord's Prayer and the chanting of the Twenty-sixth Psalm by the choir. After the Bishop's prayer for his guidance as rector of the Epiphany, Mr. Hadley consecrated himself to serving in that capacity.

Preceding his sermon, Bishop Sherrill spoke informally of the significance which the service held for him because of the fact that he and Mr. Hadley had been classmates at theological seminary. His intimate knowledge of the new rector and his accomplishments led him to rejoice that the Epiphany is to have him for a leader. As he concluded his sermon he wished the new rector and his parish God-speed.

At the offertory the augmented choir, under the direction of organist and choirmaster Enos Held, sang Grieg's "Jesus, Friend of Sinners." Henry Fitts was trumpeter. The closing prayer was made and the benediction pronounced by the Bishop, preceding the recessional hymn, "O Jesus, I Have Promised."

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

The public is invited to attend the "Scout's Own" in the Town Hall, next Sunday, Oct. 25 at 3:30 p. m. Mrs. Margaret Eggleston Owen will speak on "Hunting a Bargain." Mrs. Owen has been director of young peoples' work in one of the large Boston Congregational Churches for ten years and has been a constant worker with boys and girls in their teens since her girlhood. Her books all show her love for and her wide knowledge of the boys and girls in the adolescent period of life. Sunday is the beginning of National Girl Scout week, it being the week of Juliette Lowe's birthday and one in which all Girl Scouts try to give of their services to others, in commemoration of Mrs. Low's gift to the American girl.

Friday the Girl Scouts, in uniform, will attend the football game given under the auspices of the Disabled Veterans' Group and will donate and sell candy for the benefit of that organization. Throughout the week the Scouts are trying to be of service to all. Mrs. Blanche Mann, 11 Myrtle street, will be in charge of the Scouts.

All Troops are enjoying supper hikes up at the cabin and will be glad to open and show the cabin to any interested Winchester friends, if they will get in touch with Mrs. Preston Corey, tel. Win. 0735-W.

ANDREW P. HARROLD

Andrew P. Harrold, a widely known resident of Winchester for many years, died Monday afternoon, Oct. 19, at his home on Washington street, following a long illness. He was 65 years old.

Mr. Harrold was the son of Charles and Catherine (Daly) Harrold and was born in Boston. As a boy he came to Winchester, was educated in the Winchester schools and grew to manhood in the town which has since been his home.

For many years he was in the employ of the Whitney Machine Company, but following the closing of the Company's plant he entered the Park Department, in whose employ he remained until the illness which resulted in his death. He was expert in the care and pruning of shrubs and the excellent appearance of the shrubbery about the war memorial and the town's civic center is largely due to his care and skill.

Mr. Harrold was a member of Winchester Lodge of Elks, holding the office of Tiler for several years. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Alice M. Harrold by three daughters, Mrs. May Hannon of Winchester, Mrs. Mildred Hobley of Mobile, Ala., and Miss Eileen Harrold of Winchester, and two sons, Charles of Winchester, and James Harrold of Linden, N. J. Three brothers Lieut. John Harrold of the Police Department, Charles J. Harrold of the Winchester Post Office staff and James Harrold of Boston, also survive with a sister, Mrs. Mary Reach of Winchester, and 15 grandchildren.

The Elks' funeral ritual was exemplified Tuesday evening at the late residence by Exalted Ruler Charles Farrar and the officers of Winchester Lodge. Myles McSweeney of Woburn Lodge sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "The Vacant Chair."

The funeral was held from the residence Thursday morning with solemn requiem high mass in St. Mary's Church.

The pastor; Rev. Fr. Nathaniel J. Merritt, was celebrant; Rev. Fr. William J. Clarke, deacon; and Rev. Fr. Conrad J. Quirbach, sub-deacon.

Bearers were Charles Farrar, Ovid Lefleur and John F. Donaghey, representing Winchester Lodge of Elks, with John Cogan of Stoneham and James and William Cogan of Woburn. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

JAMES MILTON KING

Winchester Man Overcome by Monoxide Gas

The body of James Milton King of 4 Park avenue was discovered Wednesday evening by Sergt. Edward W. O'Connell and Special Officer Robert Eason of the Police Department in a community garage on Washington street near his home. He had been dead for some hours.

Mr. King left home at 8:30 Monday morning, and when he had not returned Tuesday evening, his brother-in-law, John P. Cobb, of 126 Warren street, Brighton, notified the police.

Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy had the Arlington Police put his description on the teletype and information which might assist in locating the missing man was vainly sought from departments throughout Greater Boston.

Wednesday evening shortly before 6:30, Headquarters was notified that a man had been seen laying in the garage in which Mr. King kept his automobile, and Sergeant O'Connell and Officer Eason were sent to investigate by Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy.

Upon arrival the officers found the body of Mr. King laying behind his automobile, the ignition of which was switched on. The battery of the car was run down and the front and rear doors were open.

Medical Examiner Fred Piper of Lexington was notified and viewed the body, pronouncing the death accidental and due to monoxide gas poisoning. After his examination the body was removed to the funeral home of Kelley & Hawes Company on Elmwood avenue.

James Milton King was born in Canaan, N. H., the son of Charles P., and Loraine H. (Milton) King. At the age of 12 years he went to Boston and attended the Dwight School, graduating from Mechanics Arts High School in 1915.

Upon leaving school, he entered the employ of Warner-Tucker & Co., brokers of Boston, resigning at the time of the war to enlist in the 71st Coast Artillery, M. V. M. For a time he was stationed as drill sergeant at Fort Andrews in Boston Harbor, later seeing service with his battery in France.

After his discharge he became associated with the Retail Credit Company and traveled about the country establishing offices in various cities. Later he was manager of the firm's Hartford office until four years ago when he returned to Boston and became associated with the real estate office of Charles E. Howe Company at Davis square, Somerville.

He came to Winchester two years ago and made his home on Park avenue with his mother who survives with a sister, Mrs. John P. Cobb of Brighton.

Mr. King was a member of Winchester Post, 97, American Legion, and following his death flags on the common and public buildings were at half staff in his honor. The funeral took place this afternoon in the Kelley & Hawes Chapel with Rev. Dwight W. Hadley, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, officiating. Interment was in Mt. Auburn.

Marriage intentions have been filed with the Town Clerk by Harold Francis DeCourcy of 14 Westley street and Mary Agnes Lally of 15 Sargent road.

SPECIAL SESSION OF TOWN MEETING HELD

High Street Project Abandoned—Zoning Law Changed—Proposed Change in Building Laws Defeated

One hundred and forty-eight out of 222 town meeting members attended the special town meeting in the town hall last evening, disposing of the eight articles included in the warrant in slightly less than three hours. Two of the articles only occasioned much of any debate.

Under Article 6 relating to transferring certain sections of Washington street from the business zone to the general residence zone, opposition was voiced by Mr. Vinson, representing a property owner who sought to retain the business rating for his specific piece of property. Mr. Parsons championed the proposed change of designation and the six sections of the article relating to the six individual sections of property affected were accepted unanimously according to the recommendation of the Planning Board. The vote, which does not affect existing business enterprises, provides that in the future the entire length of Washington street from Harvard street to the Woburn line, on both sides, shall be listed as in the general residence district.

Under Article 7 a motion was introduced seeking to set aside the building regulation which requires incombustible material on roofs in the First Building District (center) and permitting the use of "fire resistive" material in the repair or renewal of roofs of existing structures. Mr. Laraway spoke in favor of the motion and was opposed by Building Commissioner Dinneen and Vice Chairman Maguire of the Finance Committee. After the motion had apparently been won, more time was granted for discussion and the project was finally defeated by the close vote of 61 aye, no 66.

The meeting voted unanimously to rescind a previous vote to appropriate $17,000 for the reconstruction of High street, permitting the return of the money to the Excess and Deficiency Fund. The sum of $5500 was appropriated by transfer from the Excess and Deficiency Fund to be added to the amount already provided for construction under the heading, "Highways and Bridges."

Both Allen and Sherwood roads were accepted and the sum of $10,000 was provided from the Excess and Deficiency Fund for the layouts made by the Selectmen. The same Excess and Deficiency Fund was drawn upon for $1500 for grading and otherwise improving the land on which the new Main street school is to be placed.

Finally it was unanimously voted to return to Miss Eugenia Parker 2110 feet of land originally taken by the town to be included in the new Main street school development. The Selectmen asked that this land, which is not necessary for school purposes, be returned to Miss Parker at a nominal fee (or $1) on the ground that it will make possible a proposed development which will benefit the town and enable the Board to close with Miss Parker for the remainder of their taking at the price which they wish to pay. The meeting adjourned at 10:33 p. m.

Notes

Well, what are you going to use on the roof now? Tar or tin?

Mr. Laraway's reply to Mr. Maguire on the connection between present town meeting attendance and civic spirit was pertinent. Going to town meeting now is just an aggravation for the citizen "outside the pale."

Dr. Blaisdell felt that the final vote on the "shingles" wasn't legal and many in the hall agreed with him. Mr. Laraway's motion had passed on an aye and nay vote, and it doesn't seem as if Mr. Dinneen was in order to address himself to a motion on which the meeting had voted. Many felt that at that time only an expression of doubt of the vote was in order. Moderator Hayward ruled otherwise, however.

Mr. Maguire pinch-hit for Mr. Bennett and batted for at least .500.

Mr. Cullen learned from Mr. Whorf that the place to be informed about the doings of the Water Board is at a meeting of that body.

Mr. Laraway did have the zoning "sitchiashun" well in hand, but his memory was poor on Thompson street fires. Maybe he only referred to "roof fires."

When better explanations are made Mr. Parsons will make them.

The closeness of the "shingle vote" was rather unexpected after Mr. Dinneen's appeal. Mr. Farnsworth did much to turn the tide toward a modification of the existing law. Failing by five votes is close enough.

UNION PREACHING MISSION ENDS TONIGHT

The Union Preaching Mission under the leadership of Rev. Raymond Calkins, D.D., Minister of the First Congregational Church in Cambridge, which is being held each evening this week at the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church, is producing much favorable comment throughout the town. Attentive congregations have listened each evening as a variety of subjects relating to the church and the Christian life of today have been presented and discussed by this noted preacher. The service this evening at 7:45 will be the last in the series.

SALVATION ARMY APPEAL IN WINCHESTER ASKS FOR $2000

The annual appeal of the Salvation Army for funds to maintain its 24 institutions and departments operating in Greater Boston for the benefit of the poor and needy will start next Monday. Among these institutions are the Evangeline Booth Home and Maternity Hospital, where yearly hundreds of unfortunate or wayward girls find sympathy, understanding, and tender care; the Staniford street Day Nursery, which last year cared for 11,879 babies and little tots whose mothers were obliged to earn their own living; the Roxbury Clinic, where 6000 patients were cared for; the People's Palace, at 1522 Washington street, which provided lodgings for more than 76,000 people at a tithe of the price charged by a commercial hotel of equivalent service; and "Wonderland," the remarkable fresh air camp on the shores of Lake Massapoag, Sharon, where 2000 boys and girls are each year given two weeks of freedom from the discomforts of city life.

Needless to state, under existing conditions the coming winter will impose a severe strain upon the resources of these splendid institutions, for added to the usual number of needy and suffering folk are the victims of widespread unemployment following in the wake of industrial depression. Coincident with the greatest need for the services of these institutions, the Salvation Army faces a particularly difficult problem this year in raising the necessary funds for their support, as many of their loyal supporters are unable, due to unemployment, part time, or cuts in salary, to help as in former years.

If you are numbered among the more fortunate ones, what better celebration could you make of the approaching Thanksgiving season, than to help the Army meet this steadily increasing drain upon its resources? Your generous contribution at an early date is most earnestly requested, so that expense and effort may be saved in raising Winchester's quota of $2000.

The appeal is sponsored by a strong local committee headed by Harris S. Richardson as Chairman and G. Dwight Cabot of the Winchester Trust Company as Treasurer. Checks should be sent to Treasurer Cabot as soon as possible.

H. M. Bell
Rev. Benjamin P. Browne
Rev. Howard J. Chidley

BENJAMIN TAYLOR CHURCH, M.D.

Many older residents will learn with regret of the passing of Dr. Benjamin Taylor Church, one of Winchester's most popular physicians and a former resident for many years.

Dr. Church died Tuesday night, Oct. 20, at his home on Beacon street in Brookline after a long illness. He gave up the general practice of medicine when he left Winchester in 1917, but he was a frequent visitor in town after that time and until his infirmities prevented his getting about. His health grew steadily worse following the death of his wife in September of 1927 and he had been an invalid for some time previous to his decease.

Dr. Church was born Nov. 9, 1839, in Providence, R. I., son of Benjamin T. and Sarah C. (Peck) Church. He attended the public schools of Providence and afterwards came to Boston in 1857, where he was engaged as clerk in the drug store of Henry A. Choate, under the Revere House. In 1860 he became a partner with Mr. Choate, opening a drug store on the corner of Beacon and Tremont streets. He afterwards took up the study of medicine and was graduated from Dartmouth, settling in Boston until 1878, when he removed to Winchester.

For nearly 40 years he was a successful practising physician in Winchester, enjoying a widespread popularity. He served the town for many years as chairman of the Board of Health and held membership in the Massachusetts Homeopathic Society, Boston Homeopathic Society, New England Hahnemann Society and the Calumet Club. In 1866 Dr. Church married Miss Adaline Barnard of Boston, also a physician and for many years a member of the faculty of the Boston University School of Medicine. There are no immediate survivors.

Funeral services were held this Friday afternoon in the chapel at Mt. Auburn with Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church, officiating. The remains were cremated and the ashes interred at Providence.

WINCHESTER MAN DROWNED AS AUTO PLUNGES INTO MALDEN RIVER

Victor Anderson was President of Anderson Motors

Victor Anderson, president of Anderson Motors, was drowned about 8 o'clock Wednesday evening when the automobile in which he was riding with Herman E. Shaw of 2 Cutting street crashed through the railing of the bridge over the Malden River and plunged into the water near the Locke Coal Company wharf at Medford street, Malden.

How the accident occurred is not known. Mr. Shaw, who was rescued, was unable to tell clearly what happened, beyond the fact that the front end of the car in which he and Mr. Anderson were riding skidded suddenly on the bridge and crashed through the railing and into the river before either he or his companion could make an outcry. A car was approaching the Anderson machine which was at the extreme right hand side of the bridge and it is possible that its headlights may have blinded Mr. Anderson and caused him to lose control of the car.

Mr. Anderson was pinned in the machine and it was about an hour before a wrecker from the Malden Electric Company and boats from the United States Nitre Depot nearby were able to raise the car sufficiently to permit members of the Malden Fire Department to remove the body. Dr. J. W. Proctor and Malden firemen attempted to revive Mr. Anderson, using an inhalator and the prone method, but without success. A medical examiner viewed the body and pronounced death due to accidental drowning, after which the remains were removed to the funeral home of Kelley & Hawes Co. on Elmwood avenue.

Mr. Shaw was able to extricate himself from the plunging machine and swam to a nearby pier. Peter Gailis, 18, of 37 Clinton street, Malden, a high school senior and member of the Malden High swimming team, leaped fully clothed into the river and went to Mr. Shaw's assistance, keeping him afloat until he could fasten a rope under his armpits. By means of the rope Mr. Shaw was dragged from the river, protesting to the men that he was alright and beseeching them to go to Mr. Anderson's assistance.

Suffering from shock and immersion, Mr. Shaw was hurried to the Malden Hospital where his condition was said to be serious.

Victor Anderson was a native of Sweden and in his 62nd year. As a boy he came to this country and before coming to Winchester made his home in Malden.

Upon coming to Winchester six years ago, he founded the Anderson Motors, of which he was president and under which name he handled Packard Motor Cars locally for several years, associated with his son.

About a month ago Mr. Anderson removed his business interests to Woburn, acquiring the Junior Country Club on Winn street and establishing an agency for Oakland and Pontiac, Oldsmobile and Pierce Arrow motor cars. He was a member of Rotary and was widely known throughout this district.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at the late residence, 404 Highland avenue, with Rev. Frederick Pamp, pastor of the Swedish Congregational Church of Roxbury, officiating. Interment will be in Forest Hills Cemetery.

WINCHESTER TOWN TEAM AT CAMBRIDGE

Winchester Town Team plays Sunday afternoon at 2:30 on Russell Field, Cambridge, meeting the Cambridge K. of C. eleven, last year playing under the name of St. John's C. C., with whom the locals had an interesting contest. Coach Amico's boys have rested since their grueling scoreless tie with the Arlington Pals on the holiday and should be rarin' to go on Sunday. A big crowd will follow the team to Cambridge.

WINCHESTER CLUB TIES LEXINGTON, 1—1

Winchester and Lexington Clubs played to a 1—1 tie in a Boston Field Hockey Association match at Lexington last Saturday afternoon.

Both goals were scored before half time, Lexington counting first on a shot from the stick of B. Alexandre, left inner, who beat Goaler Anna Dolan with an angle shot after a short rush up the field.

After the half play on both sides lost some of its speed and toward the end of the game Lexington was waging a strictly defensive battle to prevent a winning Winchester goal.

CHILD HIT BY MOTOR ON SWANTON STREET

Another accident on Swanton street involving a youngster and a motor car was reported to the police at 1:45 Sunday afternoon when Louis Farina, living with Mrs. Elizabeth Fay at 36 Chester street, was struck and knocked down by a Pontiac coupe driven by Ralph L. Purrington of 14 Rangeley ridge who was driving east near Chester street.

Mr. Purrington told the police that the boy ran out of Carroll's driveway as his car approached and it was impossible to avoid striking him. The front fender of the machine hit the boy who was taken to the Winchester Hospital by Mr. Purrington and Harry Carroll. At the hospital Louis was treated by Dr. Richard W. Sheehy for cuts on the head and right leg. He was not seriously injured and was returned to his home after treatment.

WINCHESTER COLLEGE CLUB

The Winchester College Club will offer a number of study groups in different subjects, the final choice to depend on the interest shown. These groups are open to non-members also, and except in the case of the country dancing class meetings will not begin until January.

In collaboration with the Boston Branch of the English Folk Dance Society, a course in English Country Dancing for couples will be given. The dances are the traditional source from which descended our American country dances which many will remember seeing in rural districts. They have a vigorous rhythm which makes them appeal to all music-lovers and provide an exercise that both men and women find enjoyable. The delightful flavor of history and romance suggested by the names is borne out by the tunes and figures of such dances as "The Beginning of the World," "The Black Nag," "Shepherd's Holiday," "Oranges and Lemons," "Dull Sir John" and "Parsons Farewell."

A demonstration class will be held in the Congregational parish house, Monday evening, Oct. 26 at 8 o'clock. Those interested should come prepared to dance Monday night. Clothing usually worn for tennis is suitable, but light weight tennis shoes are necessary.

Another evening group will be organized along the same lines as last year, with a subject to be chosen by the group.

A group to meet probably in the morning will be organized in French Conversation. Another morning group will study how children learn to draw, with practical instruction for mothers who wish to help their children. A third projected daytime group will study the elements of financial theory and practice as concerned with budgets, insurance, home owning, investments, etc.

Members of the College Club will receive more detailed announcements, which will also be mailed to others interested upon application to Mrs. Wm. E. Spaulding, 379 Main street. Early enrollment is desirable, as in some classes the numbers will be limited.

EMBLEM CLUB NOTES

The Winchester Emblem Club will conduct a Hallowe'en party in Lyceum Hall, Wednesday evening, Oct. 28. This will be in the nature of a costume party and all are invited to attend. Dancing will be enjoyed until a late hour and refreshments will be served. A good time promised to all who attend.

Controlling the Nile

Before the flow of the Nile river was controlled by the dam, its average rise was about 5 feet. Thirty feet meant a destructive flood, while 18 feet meant poor crops and starvation. The reservoir behind the dam assures a regulated flow and makes possible the cultivation of 6,000,000 acres that were formerly desert.

WINCHESTER MAN RECALLS EDISON'S LIKING FOR BOSTON

C. F. Ames Had Several Meetings With Inventor

Mr. Charles F. Ames of Wyman court, New England superintendent of Western Union offices, was one of the few in Greater Boston to have a personal acquaintance with the late Thomas A. Edison and his reminiscences of the beloved inventor's love for Boston and the old associates with whom he worked as telegrapher in the Hub in 1868 are especially interesting at this time when the whole nation mourns Mr. Edison's passing.

Mr. Ames had several meetings with the inventor and each time was obliged to answer many eager questions about the latter's friends who worked with him in the old Western Union Office at 109 State street. Following is Mr. Ames' story of his first meeting with Mr. Edison:

"I first met Mr. Edison at a telegraphers' dinner in New York in 1905. I had been in Boston only three years then and, of course, knew comparatively few of the old operators.

"But I was subjected to searching inquiry by him and I think he drew from me every last detail of his old associates whom I happened to know. Many of them had passed on even then, but he pressed me for information of those who were still living.

"I was introduced to him as 'Mr. Ames from Boston.' He seized me by the hand and said, 'Ah! From Boston?' Come right over here, Mr. Ames.'

"He led me to a corner and began a barrage of questioning about his old friends and haunts in Boston. He showed deep concern when I mentioned the death of several of his old fellow-workers and seemed genuinely pleased at the success others had attained.

"He mentioned many little amusing incidents and chuckled as he recalled them. He liked to refer to the days when he occupied little hall bedrooms on Beacon Hill and old landmarks that have long since disappeared.

"But mostly his thoughts were of his old friends in the city. It was a social side of the man that was somewhat surprising when it came to the surface. Frequently he would say, 'Time flies so—it is too bad to lose touch with our old acquaintances.''

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

It might be in order at this time to review the activities of the club this past season. There were no outside canoe interests this year, the new sport of "wherrying" semed to employ all the energies of those who ordinarily would have been the mainstays in the canoe racing. Three rowing shells joined the fleet of four wherries making quite a formidible armada of rowing craft.

Capt. Alan Hovey took to rowing with a vim and vigor which made for him a name over on the Charles River. Due to the shallow water at Winchester Boat Club during the summer months made A. Hovey's shift to deep water at the "Basin" imperative. There is no doubt that rowing has gained quite a foothold at W. B. C. Next year a rowing regatta will be held on Mystic Lake. Plans are all ready on foot and although this will be the very first of its kind on this lake it should prove an attraction.

The three regattas for all Winchester Boat Club paddlers, divided between the "whites" and the "reds" was an inovation that turned out very successfully. The "reds" did win quite convincingly, but there was lots of interest shown and good natured rivalry was manifest our "attempts" to have regattas with Medford. This year will probably be long remembered, there were three in all.

The dances were more successful than in several years previous. There were eight regular ones and two junior dances. These dances for the younger members were tried out for the first time this year. The one which was held in June went over "big" but the second one held in September turned out to be more of a regular W. B. C. dance and probably was the outstanding dance of the season.

The radio dances must not be forgotten! Three or four of these took place in July and August and were "bang-up" parties. Those present will remember particularly the one at which Nelle and Paul Jones were so conspicuous.

Tennis flourished and the "lights" were much in demand, especially in the latter part of the season. This last named feature is certainly an asset to the Boat Club.

The outboard motor boats were not so much in evidence this year. It must have been the low supply of cash in the "jeans" of our exponents of speed motoring.

We must not forget that our clubhouse was capped with a bright new roof which has added much to its attractiveness and efficiency. Also a new coat of stucco is being applied to the outside. These improvements are all necessary.

Taking everything in consideration 1931 has been a very successful year in the boating club.

HELP WANTED!

One thousand persons are needed to allow the Winchester Lodge of Elks to help Winchester this Thanksgiving.

This number in attendance at their annual Charity Ball to be held in the Town Hall, Thursday, Nov. 19 will enable them to carry on the good deserving work of distributing baskets of food.

These times of economic stress present a challenge which our fraternity must accept. So we appeal to you again as a good living spirited citizen to help us help the less fortunate people of our town during the holiday to come.

We are proud of our homes, our streets, our schools, all our departments and all spirited citizens who willingly give unstintingly their time and efforts to serve the interests of this beautiful community.

We should be alert to heed the appeal of an organization willing to strive for the betterment of others who most certainly need encouragement and the right to be happy this Thanksgiving.

Without doubt, we will be called upon to donate a hundred baskets to almost destitute families of this town. Wouldn't you be happy to take part in this?

One dollar in exchange for a ticket to our annual Charity Ball will allow you to take part in this and in return you may enjoy an evening well spent.

To those who do not care to dance a splendid entertainment is in store for them. Those that enjoy dancing will be amply provided with fine music from 9:30 to 1 o'clock. The 11 o'clock toast is a beautiful tribute to the memory of the departed brothers and well worth witnessing.

Sidetrack that trip to the movies or what not that week and spend your money in town for a good cause. Remember, we are enthusiastic and striving for the good of the town, not for our personal gain.

So, when you are approached to buy a ticket just peel a dollar off that roll (regardless of its size) and then realize the glowing satisfaction that you are helping the "other fellow who is worse off."

Better than that! Beat us to it! Send in a donation or a request for tickets to George H. Lochman who is the treasurer of the Charity Ball Committee.

Thank You!

Winchester Lodge of Elks

NEW PARISH TO ERECT PORTABLE CHURCH

Rev. Fr. James Fitzsimons of the newly organized Immaculate Conception Parish announced this week that, after a careful study of several alternative plans, it has been decided to erect a portable church at the corner of Sheridan circle and Main street. The parish has practically outgrown the Noonan School hall as a place of worship and Father Fitzsimons felt that the erection of a portable church would be preferable to leasing any available building and assuming the heavy expense of reconstruction for church purposes. The portable church when it has fulfilled its present usefulness can easily be turned into a recreation center for parish activities.

Census takers in the new parish are busily engaged in checking the families in the district and with a view to assisting, if possible, the Star publishes herewith the names of those covering Winchester:

Mr. James A. Cullen, 27 Sheridan circle.
Mrs. Mollie Doherty, 47 Wendell street.
Mr. Charles A. Gallagher, 23 Canal street.
Mr. William Gibbons, 85 Wendell street.
Mr. Thomas Higgins, 59 Hemingway street.
Mr. Charles Keaney, 10 Loring avenue.
Mr. A. J. McDonald, 968 Main street.
Mr. William McGann, 19 Sheridan circle.
Mr. Thomas Mcgowan, 41 Canal street.
Mr. Edward McKenzie, Jr., 65 Hemingway street.
Miss Marion C. Noonan, 27 Sheridan circle.
Mr. Hugh O'Doherty, 43 Canal street.
Mr. Martin Powers, 951 Main street.
Miss Patricia Powers, 14 Watson place.
Mr. Timothy Regan, 5 Watson place.
Mr. William Regan, 7 Russell road.
Miss Martha Salice, 92 Loring avenue.
Mrs Joseph Scott, 108 Loring avenue.
Mr. Joseph Scott, 108 Loring avenue.

Mr. Scott is acting as chairman and Mr. Cullen as secretary of the census takers. Miss Noonan and Miss Louise Tessier of Woburn are assistant secretaries.

WATERFIELD LODGE HELD INSTALLATION

After the installation a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments served by our board of stewards headed by Everett Hambly. About 100 brothers were present.

DIVIDEND DECLARED

The Board of Directors of the Winchester Co-operative Bank, at Monday evening's meeting in the banking rooms, declared the regular dividend at the rate of 5½ per cent on serial shares and 5 per cent on matured shares and paid up certificates.

The Real Question

The question for each man to settle is not what he would do if he had means, time, influence and educational advantages, but what he will do with the things he has.—

WHITTEMORE—BARTLETT

Only members of the immediate families were present last Saturday when Miss Joan Hayden Bartlett, daughter of Mrs. M. H. Bartlett of Warren street, was married in the Church of the Epiphany to John Ward Whittemore of Newtonville. The ceremony was performed at noon by Rev. William S. Packer, who was acting rector of the church during the summer months.

Miss Bartlett, who was unattended, was given in marriage by her brother, Raymond Y. Bartlett and wore a traveling costume of green silk corduroy with a corsage of orchids.

Mr. Whittemore and his bride will be at home after Nov. 1 in the Beaux Arts Apartments, New York. The bride attended the Cambridge Haskell School and Miss Child's School in Boston. Mr. Whittemore, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Whittemore, is associated with the Heywood Shoe Company.

MEN'S CLUB MEETS NOV. 2

The first meeting of the Epiphany Men's Club is scheduled for Monday evening, Nov. 2 at the parish house. Dinner will be served at 6:30 and Rev. Dwight Hadley, recently appointed rector of the church, will be the speaker. The meeting will be in the nature of a reception by the Men's Club to Mr. Hadley.

This year, in lieu of the customary charge for dues to the club, a season ticket is to be issued which will cover both dues and the dinner charges for the season's events, the ticket being transferable. All men of the parish are automatically members of the Epiphany Men's Club.

FAREWELL RECEPTION TO THE MISSES ETHEL AND FLORENCE JEWETT

On Thursday afternoon, Oct. 15, at Winchester Laundries, an informal farewell was given the Misses Ethel and Florence Jewett by their office associates of the New England Laundries, Inc.

In behalf of their co-workers, Miss Tenney presented them with gifts of gold. Music and light refreshments were enjoyed.

The Misses Jewett will leave the latter part of October for Washington, D. C., where they plan to take up hotel management.

During Miss Ethel Jewett's 23 years of service and Miss Florence Jewett's 18 years of service in the organization, they have made a host of friends and they all wish them the best of happiness and success.

BUILDING PERMITS GRANTED

The Building Commissioner has issued permits for alterations and the erection of buildings on the property owned by the following, for the week ending Thursday, Oct. 15:

Sara Lieberman, Roxbury—repair front of store building at 547 Main street.

United States Close to War With Spain in 1873

The "Virginius affair" in 1873 almost caused war between the United States and Spain. The Virginius, ship of American registry as the property of an American citizen, was captured by a Spanish war vessel on the high seas and taken to Santiago, Cuba was then engaged in the ten years' war against Spain and the Spanish officials contended that the Virginius was about to land arms and men for the rebels. Spain was at that time a republic under President Castelar, and while the President was having an investigation made, pending his reply to the demand of this country that the Virginius be released, Spanish authorities in Cuba took matters into their own hands. On November 7, 1873, Capt. Joseph Fry of the Virginius and 36 members of his crew were shot, and the following day 12 of the passengers were similarly executed. Numerous indignation meetings were held in the United States, with loud demands for war if Spain did not make amends. It developed, however, that the Virginius really had no right to fly the American flag at the time of her capture. The vessel was turned over to the United States navy on December 16, and the surviving passengers and crew released. Spain was not required to salute the American flag and the incident was closed.

Parting Shot

An Irish mistress who had the reputation of being very mean in household matters had engaged a new cook, and in order that she should not compare notes with the outgoing girl, she arranged that they should have separate vehicles to and from the station.

But the girl who was leaving was equal to the occasion, and as the two cars passed each other on the road she stood up in hers and shouted at the top of her voice: "If ye can't eat scraps, Heaven help ye!"

WINCHESTER WON FROM LEXINGTON 6 TO 0

Locals Close to Score at Half—Lexington Failed at Final Whistle

The resumption of football relations between Winchester and Lexington High Schools resulted in a 6 to 0 win for Winchester in a Middlesex League game between the two schools on Manchester Field last Saturday afternoon. The score just about indicated the difference between the two clubs.

Apparently the hard fought Arlington game took its toll from Winchester for the locals were minus much of the light and drive which characterized their play against Concord and Arlington. Lexington may have had a slight weight advantage over Winchester but the visitors were not appreciably larger than the locals as the teams squared away.

Winchester outrushed Lexington, making 10 first downs to the visitors' four. Offside penalties handed the visitors at least one of their quartet and also aided Winchester on one occasion. The locals missed a chance to tally at the half when the whistle blew with the ball on Lexington's 5 yard line, second down, touchdown to go. While Coach Linderman's charges were in the driver's seat most of the afternoon they seldom threatened the visitors' goal line, the local backs finding few holes opened for them in the Lexington frontier and usually running into Messrs. Ward or Barnes who were lovers of trouble for the Blue and Gold.

The local interference was ineffective and the backs seldom availed themselves of what little clearing out there was. Knowlton and Tofuri ran hard as did Mills while he was in the game. Lynch had a fine drive on his touchdown play and Hannon's pass to Mobbs was good. On the local line Captain Flaherty, despite his costly offside play at the end of the game, stood out as did Lentini and little Dexter Mobbs. DiAppela showed improvement as a pass receiver.

Winchester took the field with Ciruso at guard instead of Daley and with Mills at Knowlton's halfback post. Lexington kicked off and the game was only a few minutes old when Lexington got a real break in the recovery of Readel's punt which was blocked by Flaherty. A bad pass however, thrust back the visitors from the 30 to their 28 yard line and Readel kicked to Tofuri at Winchester's 20 yard line. Hannon kicked at once and his boot traveled only 16 yards to the 46 yard line. After a forward went sour Blume ground off a first down on the 30 yard line in two tries at the left side of Winchester's line, and Daly went in for Ciruso.

Here the locals braced and took the ball on downs, Hannon kicking to the Lexington 45 yard line. An exchange of punts gave Winchester the ball at its 25 yard marker and a pretty pass across center from Hannon to Mobbs gave Winchester a first down at the 48 yard line. Then with Hannon, Tofuri, Mills and Lynch alternating, Winchester rushed to Lexington's 25 yard line as the quarter ended.

Lynch hit the line for 3 yards and a short pass from Hannon to Mobbs made it first down on the 10 yard line. Lexington braced sharply and repulsed two thrusts at the line. Knowlton went in for Mills, but two passes were grounded and it was Lexington's ball.

The visitors kicked at once and the ball hit a Winchester man, being recovered by Lexington for another big break. Readel and Blume made it first down at the 40-yard line and a Winchester offside after a Blume line plunge made it first down at midfield. Here Lentini broke through to smear Readel and Lexington was forced to kick. Blume's boot going outside at the Winchester 48 yard line. Hannon returned the kick to the Lexington 20 yard line and a 15 yard penalty against the visitors for holding forced Blume to kick, the ball traveling to the 39 yard line. Here Lynch, Tofuri and Knowlton ground out a first down on the 26 yard line and a 10 yard penalty against the visitors for piling on took the ball to the 15 yard line after a Lynch plunge had netted a yard. Hannon was held at tackle but Tofuri crashed through to the five yard line as the half ended.

Winchester scored soon after the resumption of play in the third quarter. Neither team was able to make its running game go and on an exchange of punts Hannon kicked outside at Lexington's 10 yard line. Two line plays netted 5 yards and Readel kicked to Tofuri at Lexington's 42 yard line. Tofuri reeled off nine yards at tackle, but Knowlton was held at center and Hannon faded back and out to the right to send off a pretty pass which was taken by DiAppela at the 17 yard line. "Indian" had to shake off two Lexington tacklers and was eventually forced outside at the two yard line. Lexington held fast on the first surge into the line but on the next attempt Lynch crashed through behind Captain Flaherty for the touchdown. Stalling set Winchester back five yards on its goal attempt and a bad pass from center spoiled McKee's try for a place kick goal.

Winchester kicked and once again Lexington was unable to get going. An exchange of kicks gave Winchester the ball at the 38 yard line and Knowlton ground out 5 yards on a pretty cut-back. A pass from Knowlton to DiAppela made it first down on Lexington's 15 yard line as the quarter ended.

The officials erred in the matter of placing the ball on the change of goals and their mistake cost Winchester five precious yards on the second down. Hannon kicked to Readel at the Lexington 20 yard line and Randlett went in for Tranfaglia at tackle. Lexington returned the kick to midfield where a short pass from Knowlton to Tofuri followed by a plunge through center by Knowlton made it first down on Lexington's 38 yard line.

A penalty for backs in motion set Winchester back five yards and a long pass was intercepted by Plummer for Lexington. Once again the visitors' attack stalled and Readel kicked outside at Winchester's 30 yard line. Winchester failed to click and this time Lexington was through to block Hannon's kick and recover the ball at Winchester's 40 yard line.

On four down Readel shot off a long pass to McKenzie who was downed on Winchester's 15 yard line. Two line thrusts were piled up and little "Dick" Mobbs intercepted a Lexington pass to run past midfield only to have the ball brought back for a five yard offside penalty against Winchester. With the ball on the 10 yard line Winchester was again offside and it was first down for Lexington on the five yard line with touchdown to go.

Two plunges into the center of Winchester's line netted nothing at all, but on an end sweep out to the right Blume was cut down a foot from the local goal. On the last down Winchester hurled Blume outside without gain and the visitors' last chance was gone.

SPORTS JOTTINGS

Big "Jim" Fitzgerald, ex-Tufts all-eastern tackle, continued his good work for the Fitton-Dilboy Club against Natick last Sunday, playing well on the rushline and kicking three placement goals for points after touchdown. "Fitzy" has a real educated toe and is equally good on drops or placements. Down at Tufts Oval they'll still tell you about the 55 yard dropkick against M. A. C. while playing for the Brown and Blue.

Up at Williraham Academy they're saying nice things about the center play of Winchester's "Dan" Emery, last year's high school captain. Local fans will endorse any praise which may come the way of the great little manner-back who was all Mystic League choice for the past two seasons.

"Frannie" Felt, who was ineligible to play for Winchester his last two years in school, is working regularly at guard for the Brown frosh and showing promise. Felt is a husky lad, plenty big enough for a lineman in college football.

Concord High cancelled its cross country meet with Winchester scheduled for Monday afternoon. The way the local boys have been going it was probably good judgment from a Concord angle though Coach Muerling's youngsters were naturally disappointed. Concord has had some good track teams in recent years and Winchester wasn't looking for any setup Monday.

Coach Margareta Centervall may not win any championship with her present field hockey team at Winchester High, but she has a great looking squad of sophomores who should go great guns in another year or so.

"Ginny" Merrill, former star inner on "Dot" MacKenzie's championship field hockey team, has joined the Winchester Hockey Club and should bolster up Captain Mercer's eleven a lot. The rule which forbade Boston School of Physical Education students from playing with club teams has evidently been removed for there were four girls from that institution in the Melrose lineup at Winchester.

Manager Carolyn Nichols of the Winchester Hockey Club hopes to arrange a game for Manchester Field on Armistice Day. Many in town have no chance to see field hockey played unless holiday games are booked.

Speaking of hockey, if you want to see some nifty stick handling, watch "Kay" Carlisle at her wing position for the Winchester Club. Carlisle played a lot of hockey at Winchester and Wheaton, to say nothing of hockey camp, and surely knows her stuff.

"Bob" Lee and his crutches sat on the Winchester bench at the Lexington game last Saturday and played the game every minute with Coach Linderman's boys. The big Kents Hill fullback is nursing a badly wrenched knee but stated that the leg is responding to treatment and that he would be ready for the Kents Hill-Tufts game here Oct. 30. Lee has lost 10 pounds since the start of the football season and weighs in at 176.

"Dan" Smith, Winchester's other representative on the Kents Hill eleven, has built up to 193 pounds and is back in action at his tackle berth after a brief vacation due to scholastic difficulty. "Dan" has re-established himself in the good graces of the faculty and is now ready for Hebron and one Mr. Kidd of Melrose.

Lee and Smith had a reunion with a former high school team mate when Kents Hill played M. C. I. at Bucksport recently. Wilmer Smith, one of Winchester's backfield dependables for the past two seasons, played quarterback for Central against Kents. "Smittie" is weighing 158 pounds and going well.

Many local sports followers will be interested to learn that Nancy Bradlee flashy wing on Winchester's championship field hockey team of 1928, is now writing women's sports for the Boston Globe.

"Johnnie" Murphy was in town over the week-end, playing right end for Exeter against the Harvard freshmen in the Stadium Saturday afternoon.

"Herb" Nelson, former high school lineman, is seeing plenty of service as a guard with the Tufts varsity this fall and should make his letter. Nelson is not the flashy type of player hailed by the grandstand experts but is one of those steady, dependable performers appreciated by those who know the game.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

"Secrets of a Secretary" which starts Sunday for four days at the University Theatre, is the story of a wealthy society girl who marries an Argentine fortune-hunter and loses him when her father's death leaves her penniless. She is obliged to take a position as a social secretary. When the young daughter of her employer falls in love with her ex-husband, who has now turned out to be a member of a gang of jewel-thieves, the secretary is in a "tough spot." Claudette Colbert plays the role of the secretary. Others in the cast are Georges Metaxa, Betty Lawford, Herbert Marshall, Mary Boland, Hugh O'Connell and Berton Churchill.

"The Big Gamble," the companion feature starring Bill Boyd, is based on a novel by Octavus Roy Cohen. Other players supporting Boyd are Dorothy Sebastian, James Gleason, Zazu Pitts and William Collier, Jr.

One of the most significant and tremendous novels of American life created within the last decade forms the basis of the gripping motion picture drama, "An American Tragedy," which starts Thursday. Acted by a cast of youthful stars, the dramatic episodes of Dreiser's great story live on the screen. Phillip Holmes, playing the greatest role of his career, in the character Clyde Griffiths, has made a name for himself. Sylvia Sidney rises to new heights, far and away beyond her surprising success in "City Streets." Frances Dee, as Sondra Finchley, is beautifully and wonderfully capable in this exacting part.

"Caught Plastered," the companion feature, is a comedy of brand new nonsense starring Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey.

Nothing less than a six can give you built-in smoothness

The whole question was settled long ago—as to how many cylinders it takes in a motor car engine to give satisfactory smoothness. Science definitely established the fact that at least six are necessary. And today, the public accepts the multi-cylinder engine in the same way that it accepts 4-wheel brakes, parallel-mounted springs and every other principle of proved and acknowledged superiority. Everybody knows that nothing less than a six can give you built-in smoothness.

This general acceptance of the multi-cylinder idea has had a great deal to do with the fact that the Chevrolet, month after month, during 1931, has been the largest selling automobile. For Chevrolet is a six.

Today, this six-cylinder smoothness and dependability are within reach of every new car buyer. For Chevrolet has produced a quality car, powered it with a firmly-mounted six-cylinder motor—engineered it to run at less expense for gas, oil and upkeep than any other car—and priced it right down among the very lowest-priced cars in the market.

MEMORIAL TO FORREST C. MANCHESTER ON MANCHESTER FIELD DEDICATED SUNDAY, OCT. 18, 1931

MANCHESTER MEMORIAL DEDICATED LAST SUNDAY

Memorial Unveiled by Mr. Manchester's Daughter—Charles F. Dutch Orator

The memorial to Forest Clyde Manchester, provided for at the last annual Town Meeting and erected during the past summer at the entrance to Manchester Field, was simply but impressively dedicated last Sunday afternoon.

Weather conditions were ideal, a clear crisp afternoon with plenty of sunshine providing an ideal setting for the ceremony which attracted between 150 and 200 persons to the playground. Seated on the platform erected to the right of the memorial were Mr. Manchester's daughter, Mrs. Gerald T. Haddock, who had come on from her home in Hackensack, N. J., to attend the dedication; Mr. Haddock, Henry C. Manchester, Mr. Manchester's brother; Mrs. Henry C. Manchester, Chairman Charles A. Lane of the Memorial Committee; Chairman George T. Davidson of the Park Board, Chairman Harris S. Richardson of the Board of Selectmen, Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church; former Town Counsel Charles F. Dutch and two Girl Scouts, Virginia Bosse of Troop 2 and Mary Elizabeth Hall of Troop 5. The memorial was draped with the American Flag.

The exercises were opened with the blowing of taps by Miss Bosse, those present uncovering. Doctor Chidley made the invocation preceding the dedication address which was delivered by Mr. Dutch. Mr. Davidson presented Mrs. Haddock who unveiled the memorial, assisted by the two Girl Scouts. The memorial was presented to the town by Mr. Lane and accepted by Mr. Davidson. In conclusion taps was again sounded by Miss Bosse.

Mr. Dutch in his address paid high tribute to Mr. Manchester as one who strikingly exemplified that greatest of all leadership which is born of vision, sustained with courage and persistence and always administered with courtesy. The speaker told of Mr. Manchester's coming to Winchester at the age of 26, of his immediate grasp of the possibilities of the town as a residential community and of his extensive labors toward the fulfillment of his plan for civic betterment.

Particularly Mr. Dutch told of the condition of what is now Manchester Field in Mr. Manchester's time, of the tannery, lumber and coal yard, stables, freight yard and tenements it included and of the Manchester plan to turn the area, objectionable to the entire township, into a beautiful recreation center.

As early as 1892 the City of Boston had been appealed to in the matter of Manchester Field because of the fact that Boston was using Mystic Lakes as a source of water supply and there was danger of polution from the waste dumped from the tannery, situated on the present playground, into the Aberjona River. Mr. Manchester realized that the project of abating the existing nuisance involved too heavy expense to be undertaken by Winchester alone and as a consequence he set about enlisting the sunport of both the State and the City of Boston.

In 1893 Mr. Manchester became Chairman of the Park Board, the other members of which were David N. Skillings and Louis Goddu, and through his efforts a bill was passed by the Legislature whereby the State, City of Boston and Town of Winchester should purchase the area in question. The City of Boston accepted its financial obligation and in 1894 at the Town Meeting session of March 12 the matter of local acceptance was put before the town and rejected, 105 to 123.

Far from despairing, Mr. Manchester set about educating public opinion and so effectively did he champion the cause of the playground during the succeeding week that on the following Monday evening, March 19, at the largest town meeting held up to that time, the previous vote was overturned and an appropriation of $50,000 made to pay the town's part of the purchase price of the playground. The fact that 468 favored the measure as opposed to 117 indicates somewhat the amount of work done by Mr. Manchester without the assistance of automobiles and telephones in a short seven days.

Mr. Manchester died Nov. 27, 1899 at the age of 40 years, his early death being attributed to his efforts in making possible the fine recreation center which now bears his name. It was in 1900 that the Town Meeting voted to petition the State to name the playground in his honor.

The Manchester Memorial, dedicated last Sunday, is one which those acquainted with Mr. Manchester's preferences believe he would have chosen. It is a 13 ton boulder, the rugged simplicity of which has been shaped to carry an artistic bronze plaque, bearing the inscription:

MANCHESTER FIELD
named in memory of
FOREST CLYDE MANCHESTER
1859—1899
Winchester Town Counsel
Member of Massachusetts Legislature
Member of Metropolitan Park Commission
First Chairman of Winchester Park Board

He was instrumental in making Manchester Field a public Park. A loyal benefactor of this town, a man of vision and sacrificial spirit, a lover of children and of Nature.

"I have lived only for the right."

The boulder was shaped by T. F. McGann & Sons of Boston whose Mr. L. V. Clark designed and placed the plaque which was executed by the company. Dr. Howard J. Chidley compiled the data for, and wrote the inscription.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOR

The Rev. Thomas R. Reynolds opened the afternoon with an interesting discussion of present day conditions. Mrs. Virgil Ghirardini, president of the Chapter, gave the details on the bazaar to be held by the Guild at the Copley Plaza Hotel in November.

In aid of this event, a rummage sale in the Town Hall on Nov. 7 was announced by Miss Mary Lyons and a cake sale under the auspices of Mrs. M Hinthan and Mrs. Cox at a later date.

Mrs. Frederick O'Brien, the recently appointed President of the Guild of the Infant Savior of Boston was introduced by Mrs. Ghirardini and gave a short talk to the Winchester women. An excellent musical program then followed. Mrs. G. Frank McDonald sang several selections and Mrs. Gertrude Dennis entertained with piano selections. Readings were given by Mrs. Miriam Hendricks Cahalin. New offices appointed for the coming year are Mrs. James Carr hostess and Mrs. E. J. McDevitt, chairman of the Courtesies Committee. Tea was served by the following members: Miss M. McIsaac, Mrs. N. McCarthy, Mrs. T. McCauley, Mrs. F. Mullin, Mrs. E. McDevitt, Mrs. M. McGoldrick.

EPIPHANY MEN'S CLUB NOTES

The newly elected officers of the Mens' Club of the Parish of the Epiphany met with Robert Sibley Oct. 9 and scheduled the dinners and entertainments for the 1931-32 season.

The officers feel that with a new rector they are entitled to, and may expect the whole hearted support of all the men of the parish.

Dinners are to be held on the first Mondays of the next six months. The first, on Nov. 2, with Mr. Hadley as speaker, is to be in the nature of a reception to the new rector.

This year the cafeteria idea will be introduced with tables seating four and six persons. Annual dues have been abolished, and members of the club have individually offered to furnish the entertainment one of the evenings during the season.

The card committee will encounter cosiderable competition from the games committee who have some interesting and unusual plans. Following are the officers and committees of the club:

President Alton K. Jackson.
Executive Committee H. Fred Begien, J. W. Bodman, Donald Heath, Herbert Kelley, Dr. R. B. Blackler, Kingman P. Cass, Winthrop Jackson, Bradford Eddy, John Osmond, Alton K. Jackson.
Reception Committee Dr. Charles Kelley, Herbert Kelley.
Speakers' Committee Donald Heath, Kingman Cass.
Dinner Committee Robert Sibley, H. J. Olmsted.
Card Committee—Fred Begien, Chester Porter, George Fitch.
Games Committee Winthrop Jackson, Dr. Hollister Olmsted.

LION'S CLUB MEETING OCT. 19

Owing to a combination of circumstances the attendance was not as large as was hoped for, as some were out of town and others had important engagements elsewhere. Those who were not present missed a treat. "Doc" Emery had a suckling pig sent down from his farm, which Fred had dressed and stuffed and cooked to a turn. "Doc" was the victim of much good-natured razing as he did the carving.

Buddy Shepard brought out Don Humbert the radio singer, with his guitar who favored us with a number of selections. Don is called by many a second Nick Lucas. He has a very pleasing voice and an attractive personality and his progrm was much enjoyed.

There will be no meeting next Monday as the club will go to Watertown on Tuesday the 27h to tattend the institution of a new club in that town, leaving the Calumet Club at 6:15 p. m. As the banquet on this occasion will be followed by dancing, it is anticipated that many will take their wives with them.

Extra tickets may be obtained by applying to Luther Puffer, 3rd, on or before Saturday the 24th

The entertainment committee is now functioning and at future meetings we are to have entertaining and instructive speakers.

WINCHESTER GIRLS BLANKED WATERTOWN

Winchester High School girls' field hockey team had no difficulty defeating Watertown High in a practice game on Manchester Field Wednesday afternoon, 3—0.

Sharon, Winchester's left inner, tallied the first and only score of the first half, but following intermission the locals tallied twice, Besse, center forward, and Hanlon, left wing, caging the ball.

Between the halves of the first team game the Winchester seconds smothered the Watertown seconds, 8—0. The summary of the first team game follows:

| WINCHESTER | | WATERTOWN |

Life's Sheerest Joy

The sheerest joy of life is that of the advocate who can win over a jury or a senate or a mob to a cause which to himself is a matter of comparative indifference. — G. K.'s (London) Weekly.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

Wouldn't it be wonderful if every man in and out of Winchester so contrived as to live within his means? Living within one's means is of the very essence of honesty. Those men who are extravagant and who fail to give heed as to how much money they can afford to spend, very often live dishonestly upon the means of somebody else. Winchester as is true of every community is cursed with people who are careless about personal expenditure, and consider merely their own gratification. Such folk as a rule find out the real uses of money when it is too late.

Too many men in and out of Winchester drag along with them a load of debts and obligations which of necessity affect their action as free and independent citizens of the community. The loose cash which many Winchesterites throw away uselessly, and worse, would often form a basis of fortune and independence for life. Those wasters are their own worst enemies. If a man will not be his own friends, how can he expect that others will.

Nobody has a particle of use for a niggardly fellow. Narrow-mindedness in living and in dealing is a pretty short sighted policy and as a rule leads to failure. "The penny soul," according to an old saying, "never comes to two pence." Generosity and liberality like honesty, prove the best policy after all. Though Jenkinson, in the "Vicar of Wakefield," cheated his kind-hearted neighbor Flamborough in one way or another every year, "Flamborough," he says, "has been regularly growing in riches, while I have come to poverty and a jail." Practical life as it is lived in Winchester from day to day abounds in cases of brilliant results from a course of generous and honest policy.

Eugene Bertram Willard

GOD OF WINCHESTER

(Written for The Winchester Star)

God of Winchester! Thou, who in the hush
And beauty of the earliest life did'st say,
It was not good for man to be alone;
Who settest him in families, and castest
The strong enduring bonds of love around
His inmost nature from the loveliness
Of sleep and the retirement of the night
Callest him daily forth to live with men
Teach Winchester's people their duty among
All their fellow citizens, lest they be overcome
With hurried thought and celing losing thus
The highest right and appanage of man
To hold his soul calm beneath thy calm regard.
O God, sustain Winchester's people! that they may not fail
Of ready help, pure counsel and kind word.
And in the community's various life feel
Their own life bears its true proportionate part
And yet many with a calm and balanced soul
Turn from the relative unto the one
Eternal, absolute, and there compose
Men's ruffled sympathies and quickened pulse.
Shine Thou upon Winchester's people! Let all men keep their way
Through tangled thicket and through mazy path,
Yet looking up, see in the clear sky
The Eternal index; may Winchester's people follow that.
Content to multiply all cares and thoughts,
So may all men serve in singleness of soul.

THE TRANS-ASIA EXPEDITION REACHES KANDAHAR, AFGHANISTAN

Kandahar, caravan trading metropolis of the southern half of Afghanistan, has just welcomed the Trans-Asia Expedition, according to a radio message received today by the National Geographic Society, which is co-operating in the expedition. The party was met at this town, by the Minister of the Interior, the first of the officials of the central Afghan government to receive them.

From Herat, near the Persian border in northwestern Afghanistan, the expedition has traveled since May 24 over 500 miles of the worst Afghan terrain which they will encounter. The road, over which few motor vehicles have passed, crosses and recrosses numerous swift streams that flow from the mountains to the north. Between streams the motor caravan found gullies, irrigation ditches, and washouts. Its tanklike cars were able to overcome the obstacles and ford most of the rivers under their own power, according to the radio messages received in Washington, but it was necessary to tow the auxiliary trucks across the streams.

The only major river encountered, the Helmand, had to be crossed by means of an ancient ferry. The transfer of the 21 cars, trailers, and trucks across the Helmand consumed two days. During this interval motion picture and sound records were made of the folk dances and songs of the neighborhood, while the scientists attached to the expedition collected specimens.

After a brief stop at Kandahar the expedition will strike northeastward en route to Kabul, capital of Afghanistan. Most of this next section of the road lies between rivers and over mountain passes.

WUCHOW: BACKWATER CITY OF SOUTH CHINA

Wuchow, whence American citizens were recently urged to flee before the city should be bombed by Cantonese airplanes, is one of the chief commercial distributing points west of Canton, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Wuchow lies on the north bank of the Si-kiang or West River which is connected with the Canton port by a canal.

There are no railroads within 200 miles of the city, says the bulletin. Roads radiating into the surrounding region are almost impassable for vehicles, so Wuchow really lives by its river-front traffic.

Dilapidated Boats Make Dingy Panorama

Junks, sampans and many other types of native craft fill the the harbor. Ocean-going vessels can navigate the West River to this point and frequently a huge, funnelled craft noses its way toward the city. The U.S.S. Guam is anchored at Wuchow to protect American citizens.

Another touch of modern commerce penetrating the depths of China's waterways, is the increasing number of motor boats that skim over the river, passing through lanes of anchored native boats and dodging others that lazily float here and there under the muscle power of one or two half-naked yellow-skinned coolies.

Laden with lumber, indigo, rice and tea, many of the boats come from distant provinces. Here is an old junk with gaping holes only a few inches above the water line. If it ever had a coat of paint, there is no evidence of it.

Small Boats Swarm Around Ocean-going Craft

The smaller boats clustered together, also are dingy in appearance, but now and then a red and yellow painted craft adds a gay touch to the riverside panorama. When a large boat arrives at Wuchow to transport cargoes of the smaller ones downstream to Hong Kong and Canton, there is a rush of small boats which soon entirely surround it.

To the average traveler, the singsong chatter of the families aboard the native boats is all alike. One familiar with Chinese dialects, however, finds that Wuchow harbor is a jumble of natives from many regions. The dialects of Kwangsi Province, of which Wuchow is an important gateway, dominate but there is also the chatter of the Kwetchow natives and even that of the natives of Yunnan, indicating that some of the boats in the harbor have been drifting downstream for weeks.

Part of City Occupies Pontoons

Wuchow itself begins before the river bank is reached. Now and then in the summer the West River goes on a rampage and rises 40 to 50 feet. So the business houses that were inundated during these annual floods built offices and warehouses on pontoons which are tied to the shore.

Beyond the pontoons, Wuchow presents a picture of a typical Chinese city that the outside world has not yet marked. There is no wide quay or band but from the river bank the narrow, tortuous, ill-smelling streets begin, offering no breathing spaces until one emerges from the other side of the city. Fifty thousand natives and a handful of foreigners live in these mere passageways.

EXPEDITION CARS FIGHT WAY ACROSS PAMIRS

Literally fighting their way, inch by inch, against Nature's mightiest travel obstacle, the Pamir mountains mass in Kashmin, two study band driven tractors cars of the Citroen-Haardt Trans-Asia Expedition are reported in the skyscraper pass near Bunji, toiling over a precipitous road that wheels have never before touched, facing the added difficulty of massive landslides that have obliterated sections of the narrow defile road.

Raido dispatches to the National Geographic Society in Washington state that the two cars with the unit of the expedition led by George-Marie Haardt arrived at Doian, a settlement on "the roof of the world" south of Gilgit, at noon, July 30.

Landslides Blot out Roads

After bitter struggles the cars climbed over the rocky defile, corrugated with steep hills, so long as there was a semblance of a road; but between Astor and Dashkin, where landslides had completely blotted out the pass, the cars had to be dismembered and the parts were carried for a mile past the landslide area by mountain coolies who used tree trunks as carrying poles.

Beyond the landslide area the cars were reassembled; and after the food, forage, and ponies were brought across the debris, the party resumed its toilsome climb. The height of the pass over which the expedition is proceeding is between two and three mile, higher than many of the peaks of the Alps, in Europe.

Square Mile of Mountain Moves

One landslide beyond Doian represented an earth movement from an area of more than a square mile That piece of mountain, toppling down ,the dispatches say, "caused a chaotic inferno of hugh crevices and pressure ridges alonge a road which zigzags down an unstable area."

This area was reached July 31, and, the dispatch continues, "our cars passed the danger zone while all available workers traced a route across the frightful mass of disordered rocks. Minor landslides are still slipping all around us in torrents."

Slide Tore Away Bridge

Before seaching Bunji the expidition must cross the Astor River at Ramghat where, in 1922, a landslide tore away a suspension bridge. There British engineers promptly restored the suspension bridge, and built another for emergency use.

At Hattu Pir the trail makes a sharp ascent, taxing the porters and ponies accustomed to rigor of Pamir travel. The Hattu Pir ascent, however, brings travelers to a plain where there is a slight respite, and a magnificent view of the confluence of the Astor and the Indus, in the deep, swirling gorge of the latter mighty river.

Mice That "Sing"

The singing mouse has been immortalized by Emerson Hough, who wrote about these peculiar little animals that make a sound that resembles singing. Much has been written about them, and the fact that they do sing is supported by the evidence of trustworthy witnesses. Mice are unquestionably fond of music, but it is not fully determined whether their ability to make it is normal or is an individual peculiarity. Some writers have gone so far as to assert that it is due only to a diseased throat.

C. D. OF A. TO HAVE HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Plans were completed for the Court's annual frolic which will take place on Thursday evening, Nov. 5.

The Hallowe'en parties which have been held in the past will be surpassed by this year's event, in novelties, setting, games and surprises.

Miss Bernice Connell's orchestra will furnish music for dancing and Grand Regent Frances T. Conlon and organist Mabel M. Coty will stage the entertainment.

Mrs. Harry E. Brown, Mrs. Catharine Reuben and Mrs. Anna Swymer have the dancing in charge and they will select the judges for the old-fashion waltz for which suitable prizes will be awarded.

There will be prizes, also for the most unique and prettiest costume. Also, there will be fortune-telling and a doughnut eating contest.

The refreshment booth will be presided over by Mrs. Nora O'Melia, Miss Mary Ryan, Mrs. John Murray, Mrs. Elizabeth Fitzgerald, Mrs. Sarah Quill and Mrs. Hannah Stiggles.

Mrs. Jane King and Miss O'Connor will arrange the Hallowe'en decorations.

BRIDGE HOUSE

Have you heard that Mrs. Frank Merrill and Mrs. George Leghorn are planning the opening of Bridge House at 10 Oxford street, Winchester? Bridge House will be equipped to supply the needs of Bridge Losers. It will afford a meeting place on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, where those interested, may gather for play or discussion.

Duplicate Contract is becoming very popular and Duplicate Tournaments have been adopted by many clubs. Bridge House, right here in your own town, will give you this same opportunity.

BENEFIT BRIDGE FOR MT. HOLYOKE

The Mt. Holyoke Club of Boston is sponsoring money-raising activities in many of the towns around Boston for the benefit of the Scholarship fund for which they must obtain $1000 each year in order to complete the fund for presentation to the college on its 100th anniversary in 1937. Mrs. Wayland Blood, who is on the executive board of the Boston Club, gave a very successful benefit luncheon bridge at her home at 50 Yale street on Friday, Oct. 16. She was chairman of all the arrangements, with a committee consisting of Mrs. Fred H. Abbott, Mrs. James S. Allen, Mrs. Emil Ekern, Mrs. Charles E. Greene and Mrs. Fred S. Hatch.

Other members of the Winchester Mt. Holyoke Club assisted in making the affair a success socially and financially. A dainty luncheon was served for over 70 people, who afterwards enjoyed auction or contract for the afternoon.

BUILDING PERMITS GRANTED

The Building Commissioner has issued permits for alterations and the erection of buildings on the property owned by the following, for the week ending Thursday, Oct. 22:

Ellen C. Foley, Winchester—private garage attached to present dwelling at 26 Mt. Pleasant street.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

A very successful bridge and whist was held last evening in Whites' Hall in aid of the charitable fund under the direction of Mrs. Delia Mulrenan and Miss B. Young.

The Guild's annual day at the Holy Ghost Hospital will be Sunday, Nov. 22.

The first use of the name "the unspeakable Turk," referring to the Turkish empire, is credited to Thomas Carlyle in a public letter in 1877.

ROTARY CLUB

At the regular meeting on Oct. 22 five absentees were recorded.

We are pleased that our October attendance shows a marked improvement over that of September and August which was much too low. When we fall below the district average it is a matter of concern to the district as well as to ourselves. A perfect attendance record does not necessarily make a good Rotarian, to be sure, but as a rule it is true that the man whose interest in Rotary is such that he makes a real effort to attend all meetings is the man who can be depended on to do substantial acts for Rotary and its ideals when opportunity is presented. How do you stand when measured by this yard-stick, and how do you wish to stand?

President Church Hindes fittingly voiced the sorrow with which we learned of the passing of our charter member Victor Anderson in the accident at Malden bridge last evening. Although "Vic" was constrained to withdraw from our midst some time since, we shall not forget his kind heart, good fellowship and loyalty to our Club.

Last December Dr. Clarence Ordway of this town entertained this club with motion pictures taken by himself during his recent trip to Europe. This feature was so successful that we were much pleased when Dr. Ordway kindly consented to show us today, three more reels of these pictures. The trail today took the travelers through Germany, Austria and Italy, and there was not a dull moment during the display. We wish to congratulate the Doctor on his success as a cameraman.

As recently announced a representative meeting to consider the unemployment situation in this town, will be held in the small Town Hall on Tuesday evening, Oct. 27 at 8 o'clock. Our club has interested itself in this work as a matter of course, and if any member has constructive ideas to present he will be welcomed at the above meeting.

Our next meeting on Oct. 29 will be the last of the first half of our fiscal period. It will also be an excellent time to stage that 100 per cent meeting which we have sought so long. May we have the pleasure of greeting every member at this time.

Percentage of attendance, Oct. 15—90.62 per cent.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Leader Training Course Got Off to a Good Start

Prof. Frank C. Lane of Tufts College and for many years associated with Scouting as a Scoutmaster and Deputy Commissioner, was the first speaker. His subject, "The Nature of the Boy" was of course one that greatly interested the men. The second discussion subject was "A Scout Program Which Meets the Needs of the Boy." This discussion was lead by Scout Executive H. T. French. Twenty-four men signed up for the course on this, the first meeting. The enrollment is expected to increase at the next session. A list of those enrolled follows:

Medford F. Edgar Hubbard, William H. Russell, Edward W. Means, Edward A. Zink, George H. Buck.

Woburn John Dietel, J. A. Greeno.

Arlington Robert Sproul.

WINCHESTER S. P. C. A. AUXILIARY NOTES

An enthusiastic group of women met at the home of Mrs. Richard S. Taylor, Wednesday, p. m., to listen to a talk given by Mrs. Edith Washburn Clarke, President of the Boston Auxiliary to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. In an interesting and informing manner, Mrs. Clark spoke of the hospital work and other work pertaining to the Society where the assistance of women is so greatly needed today.

After questions and discussion it was voted to form a Winchester Auxiliary with the following officers elected:

President Mrs. Richard S. Taylor.
Vice President Miss Bessie Small
Secretary Miss L. Evelyn Parker
Treasurer Mrs. Richard B. Derby
Press and Magazine Our Dumb Animals Miss Caroline B. Rice.

Following the meeting a social hour was held. Mrs. Walter L. Reed and Mrs. Louis J. Catheron assisting the hostess.

MR. LARAWAY'S PLAN

Following is a copy of a letter addressed by Mr. Laraway to the Board of Selectmen in which he offers a suggestion for meeting the present financial emergency.

To the Honorable Board of Selectmen
Winchester, Mass.

Gentlemen:

I may be considered radical but I believe it is not too soon to be making plans for what seems to be coming. This winter more people must have financial assistance from some source than ever before.

People in all walks of life have lost their jobs and and can not find new ones; to say nothing about those who have flourished on stock market gambling. Many are too proud to seek assistance from our unpopular, squabbling Welfare Board—they would prefer starving to seeking assistance through that channel.

I believe you would be doing a great service, should it meet with your approval, to appoint a good sized committee, one that would represent all parts of the town, to go about this unpleasant task, men and women that would go ahead and saw wood and keep their mouths closed.

Many young people seem to be out of work who have helped their families financially. Just look around and see if this is not true. Living expenses have dropped a lot but with no income what does this amount too?

If this depression keeps on I believe every man and woman working for the Town from School Superintendent to the man who sweeps our streets should contribute 10 per cent of their salary, which are the highest in our Town's history, with very few exceptions, to a relief fund. Living expenses have dropped why not steady job salaries? I don't say reduce, I say "all" except the poor fellows who are getting two or three days work a week.

It might be well to give some of our big fellows an opportunity to help out—some of those who lie awake nights or take a trip abroad—to think up a foolish or selfish way to spend their hard earned incomes.

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., who have five or six stores in Winchester and pays $34.80 tax on all according to your report and, by the way, getting all the Public Welfare orders at present, I should think might contribute a substantial amount. There are many more too numerous to mention who, no doubt, would help out as poor real estate suckers on our taxes if they only had an opportunity offered.

Winchester, Sept. 7

HOME FROM HAVANA

Fire Chief David H. DeCourcy and Selectman Irving L. Symmes returned Wednesday night from the convention of the International Fire Chiefs' Association at Havana, Cuba. Both gentlemen report a fine trip, but found the weather, which ranged from 100 to 108 degrees too hot, for comfort. The members of the convention, while not in executive session found time to visit points of interest in the Cuban capitol and were at all times under the protection of secret service men because of local conditions percipitated by the revolution. An informal reunion was held in the office of the Town Clerk yesterday afternoon at which the Star reporter was privileged to be present. Both the Chief and the Selectman are good raconteurs and their reminiscences of the convention were well worth listening to. Mr. Symmes "trousers story" was voted the best of all.

FORTUNES

ANNOUNCES OPENING OF LAW OFFICE IN WINCHESTER

Mr. Beggs has a wide circle of friends and acquaintances in and around Winchester. He is the son of Mrs. William Beggs and the late Mr. Beggs of Madison avenue, was graduated from Harvard with the class of 1926 and from the Boston University Law School in 1930. During June of that year he married Miss Betty Fessenden of this town and is now making his home in Cambridge.

WILLITTS—PARSHLEY

Miss Hilda Parshley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Warren Parshley, of Stevens street and Alfred Sidney Willitts, son of Mrs. Sylvia B. Willitts and the late George S. Willitts, U. S. N., were quietly married on Saturday, Oct. 17, at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. Donald McLeod, D.D., of Jamaica Plain. The couple were unattended. Following a wedding journey Mr. and Mrs. Willitts are to make their home in Saco, Me., where Mr. Willitts is engaged in business.

Metals and Alloys

Alcohol mixes with water in all proportions. In one sense, alloys such as steel, babbit metal, pewter, brass, etc., are considered as metals. In the strict chemical sense, the name "metal" is limited to metallic elements such as iron, nickel, gold, copper, etc., while mixed metals like brass, bronze, pewter, are called "alloys." Both sets of substances have true metallic properties.

"Lovely" Plumbing
-- it really means something

Now that the social season is commencing, look at your plumbing arrangements with a critical eye. Are they as colorful, as smart in line, as distinguished in their accessories as the other rooms? If you want to know what we mean by "lovely plumbing," drop in at our store and see the color, the lines, the fittings, now available for kitchen and bathroom. You'll repeat that phrase, and you'll want your guests to see such appointments in your home.

Visit to Vik in Norway

In the ancient Hardanger village of Vik in Norway, the tourist will find an epitome of many of the attractions in this region. It is one of the oldest and most picturesque. Here will still be found some of the old turf roof cottages. The turf is laid on several layers of birch bark and is absolutely watertight. Spinning wheels and looms will also be found in some of the homes. The church is a typical peasant church of pre-Reformation days and one of the first of its kind. It has ancient frescoes and carved furniture, all the work of local talent. An ancient leather collection bag, fixed to the end of a long stick, has a small bell attached, to wake the sleeping worshiper.

CALUMET NOTES

The opening dinner was a great success, ranking both socially and gastronomically with the best of recent years. Steward Fred Scholl served his usual tempting repast and the large gathering included many new members as well as those who have been Calumet regulars for years.

President Harris Richardson welcomed the newcomers and guests, outlining briefly some of his plans for the winter season. During the dinner a splendid entertainment program was offered by Miss Evelyn Lewis and "Ed" Burton of the R. K. O. chain with Miss Mae Fitzgerald at the piano. Miss Fitzgerald was a favorite with Calumeters some years ago and old timers were glad to welcome her to the club again.

One of the high lights of the dinner was the community singing under the new leader, "Big Jack" Johnson, who promises to become very popular in this capacity. Miss Fitzgerald assisted at the piano and many favorite selections old and new, were rendered with plenty of pep and power. Unfortunately "Art" Ross, popular Bruins' manager was unable to be present, but has promised to include Calumet among his earliest engagements.

After the dinner the gathering repaired to the alleys where members and their guests were treated to some very classy bowling during an exhibition match between a picked team of Calumeters and Paul Poehler's All Stars, a group of the best bowlers in the East.

The Calumet rollers made a fine showing after a summer of inactive but naturally were outclassed by the All Stars who rolled up the highest score ever made on the club alleys. It was some consolation to have Frank Higgins turn in the high single of the evening with a top notch 158, Poehler rolled the high three strings, 381 on a high single of 137. "Doc" Priest, "Newt" Purington and Harry McGrath didn't roll a string less than 100.

The summary:

| POEHLERS' ALL STARS | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Walsh | 123 | 146 | 102 | 371 |
| Miller | 116 | 125 | 128 | 369 |
| Hardy | 123 | 119 | 121 | 363 |
| Haley | 127 | 131 | 121 | 379 |
| Poehler | 122 | 122 | 137 | 381 |
| | 611 | 643 | 612 | 1863 |
| CALUMET CLUB | | | | |
| E. Purington | 116 | 129 | 92 | 337 |
| Priest | 115 | 107 | 114 | 336 |
| N. Purington | 105 | 103 | 115 | 324 |
| McGrath | 103 | 106 | 109 | 318 |
| Higgins | 93 | 158 | 101 | 352 |

Calumet members are reminded of the first dinner bridge at the club tonight under the direction of Mrs. Harry McGrath. Dinner at 6:30; bridge at 7:45; bowling for those who do not care for auction.

Those Saturday evening bean suppers Fred is serving are bound to become the thing, once Calumeters get the idea that they can have all they can eat for 50c. Dinner from 6 to 7:30. Get the Saturday evening Calumet habit.

The first of the inter-club matches in the Mystic Valley League comes Monday evening, Oct. 26, with Central Club of Somerville at Calumet. Monday evening, Nov. 2, Calumet journeys to Woburn to take on the Towanda Club.

Ladies' afternoon bowling Tuesday, Oct. 27 at 2:15 and next Friday evening, Oct. 30, comes the eagerly awaited annual Hallowe'en party, this year under the direction of Mrs. Harold Bostwick. Save the date and plan to attend. Don't miss an evening of fine music and pleasant surprises with an atmosphere of genuine good fellowship.

The wrestling committee has received the list of grapplers for the bouts at the club Nov. 7, and from the caliber of the pachyderms mentioned it's safe to say that every one will get the full worth of the modest 50c subscription assessed to assist in defraying expenses. "Al" Morelli of Boston College, Boris Demetroff of St. Louis, already booked to wrestle Diglane for the title; "Ed" McNeil of Boston; "Jack" Nelson of New York, Arthur Davis of the Tufts Department of Physical Education and "Eddie" Elzear of St. Paul are a classy list of workmen who should absolutely eliminate dull moments from the bill. Lunch will be served. Save the date, Saturday, Nov. 7.

"MICKIE" ALPERT TO APPEAR AT ARMISTICE DANCE

"Mickie" Alpert, well-known master of ceremonies at the Seaglades Night Club of the Hotel Westminster, will appear in person at the Armistice night dance for the benefit of the Welfare fund, American Legion Post, 97, in Winchester Town Hall, Nov. 11. "Mickie" Alpert has won increasing fame in charge of Boston night club entertainments and in token of his popularity with the radio public was recently presented with a silver cup by the Boston Traveler.

Leo Reisman's premier dance orchestra from the Hotel Brunswick, Boston, will commence the festivities at 9 o'clock, playing for the dancing until 1, an orchestra needing no introduction to those who appreciate good music. Alpert will come out from Boston between his evening shows especially for the welfare fund and will take charge of the floor show bringing with him "Billy" Payne tenor of the Seaglades' Club and known throughout New England as an entertainer of the first order.

Assisting "Mickie" will be Earl Weidner and his varsity trio from the WEEI and WNAC studios, rounding out an evening's show the like of which has seldom been seen in Winchester. The admission price is $1 per couple and all proceeds will go to the Legion Welfare fund for work among needy families in Winchester.

Some Wall

The Great wall of China is huge. More bricks and stone were used in its construction than in all the buildings of the British isles.

BENEFIT GAME NEXT FRIDAY

Kents Hill vs. Tufts J-V's on Manchester Field for Benefit of Disabled Vets.

Interest is daily increasing in the football game to be played next Friday afternoon, Oct. 30, on Manchester Field by Kents Hill School of Maine and the Tufts Junior Varsity under the auspices of the Disabled Veterans Welfare Group of Winchester for the benefit of the work which this group of women is doing at the Bedford Hospital and among needy veterans' families here.

The Welfare Group had faced a curtailment of its activities both locally and at the hospital and as a consequence were particularly happy to sponsor the football game as a means of realizing funds to make possible a more comprehensive program and one which will enable the group to assist the local community welfare committee with the families of needy veterans in Winchester.

Every one is strongly urged to get behind this benefit football game. Buy a ticket. Make it a point to attend. You will see and hear the Veterans' Drum and Bugle Corps, a real attraction, and witness a football game between one of the strongest prep-school elevens in Maine and the junior varsity team of our neighboring college, Tufts.

The game in itself, aside from its charity angle, has vital Winchester interest. "Olio" Lee and "Dan" Smith, two of Winchester High's most popular football players of recent years, are in the Kents Hill lineup and local sports followers are eager to see these boys in action once again. Supporting them is a galaxy of former Greater Boston schoolboy gridiron stars who have made Kents Hill a power in Maine prep-school football.

Winchester interest in the Tufts Jay-Vees is centered in the fact that the college boys are coached by Prof. Robinson Abbott of the Tufts Engineering Faculty, a resident of Everell road. "Bob" was a first string guard and tackle in the days when Tufts played such teams as Harvard, Princeton, Dartmouth, West Point, Rutgers and Syracuse on even terms. He promises to bring a worth while team to Winchester though he regrets the fact that he can't use "Herb" Nelson, ex-Winchester high school star, on his frontier. "Herb" has been crashing into the varsity lineup with too great regularity of late to be risked on the afternoon preceding Tufts' game with New Hampshire.

Through the efforts of Robert F. "Bob" Guild, former Harvard fullback and coach, the services of "Larry" Bankhart, Dartmouth gridiron immortal, have been secured as referee. "Bob," himself will umpire and "Al" Noble, old Amherst fullback, will serve as head linesman. "Jim" Fitzgerald, Tufts all eastern tackle, will be field judge and the linesmen will be Ronald Linderman of Springfield, coach of Winchester High, and "Bill" Thompson of Kenyon College. Kick-off at 2:30 with an interesting preliminary program commencing at 2 p. m. Don't miss it.

WINCHESTER'S DOMESTIC WATER SUPPLY SYSTEM

The Water and Sewer Board are anxious to have a large number of our town's people make the tour of inspection and education as related to our valuable town water supply system.

As this date is set for Saturday afternoon, Oct. 24, let us not forget the privilege and pleasure. Please note the remarkable growth of the evergreen trees where they have the sunlight and the uncontaminated air as contrasted with the baby trees trying to exist under the tanic acid of the oak tree leaves. Please notice that wherever the evergreen trees are well developed no under-growth can, or does exist for this under-growth requires a large amount of water to sustain its life.

It is well to remember that science has proven that the hardwood trees in breathing throw much more water in the form of vapor into the air than do the ever-greens.

Mr. F. W. Rane, former State Forester, has stated that it requires 56 gallons of water to grow one pound of hardwood leaves as compared with five gallons of water to grow one pound of the evergreen foliage.

What about the water needs of the human family?

Please note the shore line of our three reservoirs equal to a distance of 10½ miles. The shore line of the South Reservoir is a remarkable act of God's creation of rock and ledge formation. The action of the water, breaking upon this kind of a shore line is arested by the mixing of oxygen with the water, purifying it to a remarkable extent.

Mr. Caleb M. Seville, Chief Engineer of the water supply system of Hartford, Conn., has stated that during the last 10 years the quality of the water in our South Reservoir has improved remarkably and he considers it among the best grades of water in the State.

Is there any one who can say how much we are indebted to our three original water commissioners for their remarkable judgment for our good. Let us become more appreciative of this most valuable possession.

Beautiful Madeira

The little Portugese island of Madeira is known for its picturesque beauty, its pleasant climate, and for its world-famous wine. Situated off the northwest coast of Africa and having a population of about 200,000, Madeira is called "The Flower Garden of the Atlantic" because of its brilliant vegetation. No spot, it would seem, could be less fitted for political troubles and military demonstrations.

Madeira is oval in shape and has a mountainous surface with a number of steep ravines radiating on all sides from the central ridges. Its highest peak, Pico Ruivo, is 6,059 feet above sea level. Wooded summits, dripping rocks and rippling streams add to the island's beauty and grandeur.

REV. SAMUEL M. LINDSAY, D.D., AT TOWN HALL, NOV. 9

Russia and its tremendious potentialities, which holds the center of interest on the world-stage, will be the attraction extraordinary on the stage at the Winchester Town Hall on Monday evening, Nov. 9, when Dr. Samuel M. Lindsay of Brookline, who spent the summer in Russia, will graphically relate his own exciting experiences, observations and personal impressions in that land of the much talked about and little understood "Five Year Plan."

Dr. Lindsay met and talked with the highest officials and most prominent personages in every walk of life in Soviet Russia. He was aided in his search for knowledge and first hand information by a flattering letter of introduction from William E. Borah, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations of the United States Senate, as follows:

United States Senate Committee on Foreign Relations
June 27, 1931

To Whom This Letter
May Be Presented:

The bearer of this letter, Rev. Samuel M. Lindsay of Brookline, Mass., a distinguished Baptist Clergyman, is planning a visit to Russia.

Dr. Lindsay is a man of culture, of broad and liberal views, and is in every respect worthy of his high calling. He is visiting Russia to acquaint himself with Russian problems and to know better the Russian people.

Any courtesies which may be extended to him will be greatly appreciated.

Very respectfully yours,
Wm. E. Borah

In this timely address, Dr. Lindsay will make some startling revelations about Russia as "a land of contradictions." He visited prisons, hospitals, workshops, farms, universities, churches, stores, homes, in fact the places one would wish to visit on a tour seeking first hand information concerning religious, political, industrial, agricultural and social conditions in modern Russia, described as a land whose power and resources, if properly directed and utilized, would shake the foundations of the world.

Dr. Lindsay, as a keen observer and powerful speaker, is among the most prominent of the day and his magnetic personality, good humor and inimitable "Scotch" wit, make his addresses enjoyable as well as interesting.

Rarely, if ever, has a more timely address been arranged than Dr. Lindsay's, and he is so well known and highly regarded in Winchester, that the First Baptist Church, under whose auspices he comes, has arranged for the use of the Town Hall in order to accommodate the townspeople who will want to hear him. Tickets may be obtained at the Star office.

KERAGINSKOE: THE LINDBERGHS' DOOR TO ASIA

Karaginskoe, the Lindberghs' first scheduled stop in Asia, is a small village on the Kamchatka Peninsula with a few hundred inhabitants, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

To locate Karaginskoe, draw a line due eastward from Seward, Alaska. A short distance from the point where the line crosses the Pacific shore of Kamchatka, it will nearly bisect the village.

While aviators have successfully crossed and recrossed Kamchatka in the vicinity of Karaginskoe, the region offers many flying hazards. Nowhere on the peninsula do the volcanic peaks, some of which are still smoldering, rise more than 5,000 feet while the surrounding mountains seldom attain more than 4,000 to 4,500 feet. But some portions of the peninsula's interior have scarcely been explored, and even the explored regions are sparsely settled. The whole province of Kamchatka, including the peninsula, has only 30,000 inhabitants.

Although nearly on the same latitude as Labrador and the British Isles, Kamchatka is not so bleak and dreary as the former, but is far less sunny and verdant than the latter. In the winter it is swept by chilly breezes that drive the thermometer down to a January average of about 13°. In summer the vegetation is luxuriant.

Mosquitoes Invade Lowlands

Wild flowers fill the valleys with brilliant bloom, the short rives teem with ducks and geese, and the tall grass that flanks the streams and the forests abound with birds and beasts. One of Kamchatka's chief summertime drawback is the masquitoes which make life miserable for the natives, many of whom migrate to higher regions to rid themselves of the pests.

Usually enveloped in reindeer skins, the inhabitants of the Karaginskoe region are a mixture of Russian and natives. The Russians have introduced the cultivation of rye, potatoes, turnips and other foodstuffs while the natives have shown the Russians the art of reindeer herding, hunting and fishing.

Houses on Stilts Are Popular

Many of the natives live in yurts—yurts that are different from the felt-covered yurts of Central Asian plain. The Kamchatkan yurt is often constructed on a sturdy wood frame with an outer wall of thick sod.

The balagan, a structure shaped like a pyramid and built atop 10-foot stilts, is another favorite type of native abode. A notched tree, leaning against the front door threshold is used as steps. Drying fish unually adorn the underside of the balagan.

Dread of Civilized People

Civilized people are those that have conquered the wilds and have nothing to dread except each other.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

Summing It Up

It is a good thing to be rich and a good thing to be strong, but it is a better thing to be loved by many friends.

MANCHURIA: CHINESE KEEP OUT—BUT 25,000,000 CAME

But 25,000,000 Chinese flouted the command. They push into Manchuria at the rate of more than a million a year.

Chinese gatherers of ginseng root and falcon feathers were excepted from the Manchu emperor's immigration tabu. That was years ago when Manchuria produced only ginseng roots, falcon feathers and Manchu soldiers.

China's Land of Promise

Today Manchuria is China's golden land of promise, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society, on the scene of Far East struggle.

Today Manchuria rolls up more than one-third of China's exports. Ginseng and falcon feathers have been buried under an annual mountain of 5,500,000 tons of soy beans. More than half the railway mileage of China is in Manchuria. Dairen, the chief port, has risen from 30th to third among Chinese ports. In 1928 Dairen handled 8,097,000 long tons of exports and imports, a total shipping greater in tonnage than that of any American port except New York.

Observers compare the Manchurian migration to the Western march of Americans in the '70's and '80's. Manchuria is as big as Montana, North Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin and has much the same kind of country. Here are the treeless plains of the Dakotas; here are Wisconsans birch and pine forests; here are mountains to stand in place of the Rockies and the Black Hills; here are the sod huts of homesteaders trailing new railway lines.

Chinese Immigrants Walk Along Railroad

Box cars drawn by Philadlphia engines over Pittsburgh steel rails are the covered wagons of the immigrants. But thousands cannot pay $7 (Mexican) for a railroad ticket. Father, mother and children walk the ties north and it is 600 miles to Harbin where China's "West" begins.

Manchuria in terms of people is not so pleasant to look upon as Manchuria in terms of figures.

The immigrant arrives at Dairen with his family on a steamer packed tighter than an African slave ship. He has left behind the home and farm of his ancestors, and what is more painful to a Chinese, the graves of his ancestors. In his old home he was ordered by the government to grow poppies for opium. When the crop was ripe the bandit-governor seized the crop as illegal and confiscated his land for violation of law. His son was forced into the governor's army. Famine threatened slow death. There was one hope—Manchuria.

Sell Children for Traveling Fund

He sold his eldest daughter to pay for passage $1 per person, on a Japanese steamer. With his wizened old father mounted on his shoulders, he fought his way on board. They stood or squatted throughout the voyage. There was no room to lie down.

A happy settler lives 20 miles from Taonan which the railroad reached this last year. His one-room house, half sunk in the ground, has kaoliang (sorghum stalk) sides covered with mud and sod. Sometimes he cannot see the sun because of dust storms blowing out of Mongolia. He has to sell his bean crop for depreciated currency. But he and his family have teans to eat. He was able to pay the railroad a little on the land he took from them. The summer is short and he dreads the winter. In January it often goes 50 below zero. Still Manchuria is paradise compared with famine-ridden, tax-raiden, bandit-scourged Shantung.

The next "Manchurian" encountered is a girl whose flaxen hair is bound by a scarf. On a back street of Harbin she cleans the windows of a Chinese house. This girl is the Russian wife of a black-haired Chinese. With the swipe of her cloth she has created a greater revolution in the Orient than all the chinese armies of the last 20 years. White men never worked with their hands in China until the horde of penniless Russian fugitives from Soviet Russia descended on China. When the first Russian cleaned windows in a Chinese house all white men lost caste in China. Harbin, with 110,000 Russian residents, is the first white city in the world to be run by yellow men.

The last actor in the Manchurian drama is a trim Japanese minor official of the South Manchurian Railroad. He and his countrymen have made the South Manchurian one of the best railroads in Asia. This efficient Japanese has moved the Chinese millions to the land, converted Dairen to a modern, Western-style, asphalted city, built steel mills, worked mines and forests. He helped to plant Japanese colonists but they could not compete with the Chinese scale of living. Japanese railroad operators are now content to pour Manchurian products and dividends, which Japan must have, across Chosen Strait, but they cannot help but wonder if the Chinese flood they have let in will not submerge them as it has in turn the hardy Manchu, the sheep-herding Mongol, and the Russian.

Westminster Chimes Tune

The Westminister chimes were invented by Doctor Crotch in 1780 the air being supposedly taken from a work of Handel's. It is believed that the phrase of four notes was taken from the fifth bar of the opening symphony of "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth."

POWDER AND ROUGE

The art of applying powder and rouge is one which should come natural to every woman, but few women really know how.

There are many things to consider; the proper lighting, the correct shades of powder, and the right color of rouge. All these things enter into consideration.

In the daytime, be sure the natural daynght is reflected fully on your face when applying powder, and at night always apply your powder and rouge in a well-lighted room,—otherwise your complexion will not balance.

Powder, like all other beauty preparations, should be bade to blend with the complexion of the skin. Blondes will need a much lighter shade than brunnettes, and one with a dry skin will need a different powder than one with an oily skin.

Use a foundation lotion before applying powder. Be very careful however, that there is no powder left on your eyebrows, corners of your mouth or in the creases of your nose.

As to rouge, do not try to use the color of rouge that is fashionable; just remember that the well dressed woman is the one whose coloring harmonizes, so be sure to select the color rouge most adaptable to your particular complexion.

In applying rouge,—for a full face put on nearer the nose;—for a thin face, put on away from the nose spreading it outword.

A LECTURE ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

This prediction was made relatively a short time ago. Very recently, according to reports appearing in the press of the country, one of the large Protestant church denominations in the United States, at its regular, general convention, was presented with a report submitted by a joint committee composed of bishops and deputies of that organization, after six years of careful study and investigation on the part of the committee, which report finds as follows:

1. "That Christian healing has passed beyond the stage of experiment and its value cannot be questioned.
2. "That throughout the world spiritual healing is no longer the hope of a few, but the belief and practice of a large and rapidly increasing number of persons.
3. "That such healing is an experience of mankind that can no longer be questioned.
4. "That while faith in any supposed remedy produces some effect, vital faith in God, as revealed in Christ, is followed by results which are more sure, more lasting, and of a more evidently spiritual character."

That report was signed and submitted not only by bishops and deputies of the church but by some of the leading physicians and surgeons of the United States.

MARY BAKER EDDY

The spiritual vision and foresight which prompted the many phonheeies and predictions so characteristic of Mrs. Eddy's writings enabled her in the early sixties to discover and give to the world the religion which she predicts will eventually become the religion of all mankind. Christian Science came to the world through the revelation of Truth given to Mrs. Eddy after her release from a life of invalidism, through her consecrated study and search of the Scriptures. The question naturally presents itself as to how and why this revelation came to Mrs. Eddy. Revelation is simply the unfolding in individual consciousness of any ray of light that leads to the ultimate understanding of the great fundamental truths of existence. How does a revelation of the truth come to anyone? How did it come to the prophets of old who foretold the coming of the great Master Christian, Jesus of Nazareth? How better things. This life of prayer, devotion to God, and an earnest longing did it come to Moses, Elias, Daniel, Peter, James, John, St. Paul, and to know more of what have been others? How does it come to you and to me? The individual revelation of truth, the unfoldment in individual human consciousness of the great realities of being, comes only when individual thought has been nurtured and prepared to receive it. It comes because the mental soil has been cultivated and purified by unceasing desire for the pure and holy, and the contemplation of these.

It required the mind of a mathematician to discover and give to the world the truths about mathematics. It required the mind of a physical scientist to discover and give to the world the physical sciences. And so it required a mind drilled and cultivated in spiritual things to discover and give to the world the great truths of Christian Science. Had not Mrs. Eddy given her entire life, her every thought and motive to spiritual and higher things, she would not have been prepared to take that higher step and to rise to that plane of spiritual understanding and vision far above the thought of the world about her, where the great light of Truth could dawn on her consciousness as a divinely revealed effulgence.

So when we understand the true meaning of a revelation from God; when we can begin to understand, in reality, what God is, and our individual relation to Him, then will we cease to think of a revelation from God as a supernatural phenomenon experienced only by the chosen of God, but we will look upon it as a natural, everyday experience of those who, themselves, love and obey God. And with this understanding of what a revelation really is, do you not see that Christian Scientists can not and do not idolize or deify Mrs. Eddy? Christian Scientists respect and love her for the great good she has brought into their lives through the revelation of this Truth which Jesus said centuries ago would make us free, not only in mind but in body.

Mrs. Eddy's life was a most exemplary and unusual one. It was a life lived so close to God that when the still, small voice of Truth came to her she was able to receive and interpret it and give it voice and vitality and pursuit of spiritual things far beyond those of her years and surroundings. She hungered and thirsted for the truth which she knew the world did not have and which it so sadly needed. She read, prayed, and wrote constantly on the higher and better things. This life of prayer, devotion to God, and an earnest longing to know more of what have been called the "mysteries" of existence, brought her, in her mature years, to that height of spiritual vision where the light of a new faith and a new concept of God, man, and the universe was borne in upon her consciousness, and she has given this great revelation to the world in her book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." This revelation came not suddenly but gradually, until finally, after years of consecrated study and self-denial, she was enabled to prove by works of physical healing and moral regeneration that Christian Science is the same truth that Jesus taught and practiced in the valleys of Judea and by the shores of the Galilean sea.

GOD

Mrs. Eddy's perception of the truth about God and man's relationship to God was the outcome of her exhaustive and exclusive study of the Bible, and through the understanding which Christian Science has thrown upon that sacred Book, the Bible has become the chart of life to thousands upon thousands to whom it has heretofore been closed. The foundation of the entire revelation which Mrs. Eddy has given to humanity in Christian Science is the clear concept of God and man which she gained through her ceaseless and prayerful search of the Scriptures. Therefore it is to the Scriptures we all must go if we would know the true God revealed in Christian Science. By way of deduction let us see if we cannot come to a clear concept of God. In the first chapter of Genesis we read this: "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; . . . and God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good." Here we find man a perfect image of God, pure, holy, spiritual, and upright.

Now, turning to the very next chapter of Genesis, just six verses farther along in the Bible, we read this: "But there went up a mist from the earth, . . . and the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." Here we have a second account of the creation of man diametrically opposed to the first account in the first chapter of Genesis just six short verses removed. Then going on a little farther, the third chapter of Genesis has this to say about this man made from the dust of the ground, this man who goes by the name of Adam, this man of flesh and blood and bones: "And unto Adam he [the Lord God] said, . . . cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life; thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee; . . . in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken; for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return."

Now there must be something wrong somewhere. What do you suppose has become of the dominion, the power, the goodness, the purity, and the holiness with which God endowed man only a few verses back, before the mist arose? Here we have clearly two distinct and opposing statements about man. One is that man is good, pure, holy, and spiritual, has dominion over everything, is created of God, and is like God. The other is that he is a helpless, defenseless, powerless creature, made of plain everyday dust from no particular pattern whatever. The only thing in the Bible that separates these two differing accounts of man's creation is the "mist." No mention is made of the man created in the image and likeness of God as having sinned and fallen, or as having been changed in any way. There comes the mist, and then comes the account of the creation of man as about the most helpless and miserable creature one could imagine.

You will remember that we started out to ascertain what is the true nature of God. Now comes the question: Which one of these two creations, or men, described in the Bible as having been created by God, is like God? Both cannot be; that is certain. If we can determine which one of these two men is like God, we can determine what God is like. The Bible from beginning to end is replete with answers to this query. Isiah, for instance, having knowledge, evidently, of this account of creation which depicts man as made from dust and as having had the breath of life breathed into his nostrils, writes: "Cease ye from man, whose breath is in his nostrils: for wherein is he to be accounted of?" Job commenting on this same man, this Adam man, this man of the dust of the ground, says: "Man that is born of a woman is of few days, and full of trouble. He cometh forth like a flower, and is cut down: he fleeth also as a shadow, and continueth not . . . . For there is hope of a tree, if it be cut down, that it will sprout again, and that the tender branch thereof will not cease . . . . But man dieth, and wasteth away." Jesus said, "The flesh [that is, the material man] profiteth nothing." We are not, then, left long in doubt as to what the writers in the Bible think about this dust man,—this man of flesh and blood and bones,—this Adam man.

Of the man described in the first chapter of Genesis, made in the image and likeness of God and having dominion over all the earth, the Psalmist wrote: "For thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, and hast crowned him with glory and honour. Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands; thou hast put all things under his feet." Some difference here between the man made in the image and likeness of God and the man made of the dust of the ground, who is depicted as a miserable, groveling, helpless creature! If we are to put any confidence at all in the Bible we are bound to the conclusion that this man of flesh and blood and bones, this Adam man, is not the man of God's creating, and that, therefore, mortal, material man does not represent God. We are bound to the further conclusion that the man spoken of in the first chapter of Genesis, who is depicted as good and as having dominion over all the earth, is like God. So, if we have done nothing else from this course of reasoning, we have found that God is in no wise similar to that which you and I have been wont to call material man. And thus, by the process of elimination, we have abolished completely any sense of God as a humanly circumscribed personality.

Now, to face about in our reasoning: Jesus described God as Spirit, which, of course, has nothing to do in any way with what may be termed matter or the physical. Spirit signifies infinite, filling all space, ever present, everywhere, here and now. Jesus also referred to God as good; not as a good God, but as good itself. Goodness is what? Mental, of course. Goodness is not and never can be a quality of matter. It must be mental. St. Paul refers, on several occasions, to the "mind of the Lord," or the "mind . . . which was also in Christ Jesus," pointing out that the animating Principle or God of Jesus the Christ was Mind, and that this Mind is the true God. St. John tells us that God is Love. To be exact, St. John says: "Every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love." What is love? It is mental, is it not? It is something expressed in thought. Thus we see that the Bible leaves no room for doubt as to what God is and His exact nature.

Now, there is no equivocation whatever about Jesus' statement that God is Spirit. No one could misunderstand that. There is no question whatever about St. John's statement that God is Love. No one would deny that love is something expressed in thought, word, and deed. If, therefore, God is something expressed in the consciousness of man, is it not clear that the God of man must also be the Mind of man? And if this conclusion is a logical one then is it not clear that man, the image and likeness of God, which the Book of Genesis describes as good and as having dominion over all the earth, is mental or spiritual, and not physical?

MAN

For instance, if God is Love, as St. John says, do not you and I express the image and likeness of Love in the degree that we think in terms of love, kindness, gentleness, compassion, forgiveness, et cetera? If God is good, as Jesus said, do not you and I express the image and likeness of good to the extent that we think in terms of goodness, purity, honesty, et cetera? If God is Spirit, as Jesus points out, is He not everywhere present and ever available the instant we turn to Him in thought and express Him in our thinking? The Bible also tells us that God is our Life. If God is Life and if God is Mind, is it not clear that life must be spiritual or mental and not material or physical? When Jesus said, "The flesh profiteth nothing," he also said, "It is the spirit that quickeneth." That is, it is the understanding of God as Spirit and man as spiritual that brings to us life eternal. For does not Jesus go right on to say, "The words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life"? So, the man of God's creating, the image and likeness of God, must be the conscious expression of that Mind which is God, and this consciousness which constitutes the real man of God's creating can know nothing of matter or the dust man. The true man must be the conscious expression of Love and of Life and of Truth. Mind, purity, harmony, abundance, dominion, power, et cetera. This conscious expression of God, or Mind, Mrs. Eddy has called ideas of Mind, because idea is the only medium through which Mind can be expressed. So do you not see that the sons and daughters of God, or Mind, are right ideas and that you and I become children of God only to the extent that we express in our thinking those right or divine ideas? For does not St. Paul say, "For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God"? Explaining that sonship with God has nothing whatever to do with material birth.

THE MATERIAL UNIVERSE

But, someone may question: What about this Adam man, this man made from the dust of the ground? Does not the Bible say that the Lord God created man from the dust of the ground? Yes, the Bible does say that, but it says that after plainly stating that a mist arose which was responsible for this concept of creation. This material concept of creation, which includes the Adam man, is nothing more nor less than a mistaken understanding of creation, an illusion, a dream, which exists in the minds of mortals as the result of the mist. Then comes the question, What is the mist? Let us see. In II Corinthians, St. Paul has this to say: "For the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal." Meaning, of course, that the things which you and I cognize through the material process of seeing, feeling, tasting, smelling, and hearing are not of God and hence not real. Now, all that can be cognized through the medium of the five physical senses is matter in one form or another. Nothing at all but matter can be seen, felt, tasted, smelled, or heard with the material senses. Therefore, according to St. Paul's statement that "the things which are seen are temporal," the material universe, which can only be cognized through the material senses, is not of God. If not of God, whence comes it, you say. What is it that makes it possible for you and me to see, feel, taste, smell, and hear materially? When we have determined this we have explained the mist.

In answering the question as to what constitutes the mist, Christian Science teaches that the material universe, which includes material man, is the product or manifestation of material thinking, or of what St. Paul has termed the carnal mind, and that we see, feel, taste, smell, and hear materially because we think materially. Matter and all things cognized through the medium of the physical senses are simply objects of thought and, therefore, that which is cognized through these senses is thought. Matter is material thought. Every object of sense is a thought of the carnal mind, otherwise Jesus never could have walked the waves, passed through closed doors, or instantaneously transported the ship across the Sea of Galilee. Matter and mortal mind are one and matter cannot exist in your or my experience without the operation in our thinking of the carnal mind which St. Paul says is "enmity against God." Even physical science is now beginning to recognize and admit the findings of Mrs. Eddy regarding matter.

Dr. Alexander Findley of Scotland, for example, in an address before the American Chemical Society recently, made the statement that "matter is a vacuum as empty as the sky and the most we know about it is that it is almost entirely space. It is almost as empty as a perfect vacuum."

The American Bell Telephone Laboratories in a recent statement in the press find that "life is inexplainable in material terms; that ultimate division of the life energy in every cell is not explainable in terms of material physics. In other words, it corroborates the belief that all life is of metaphysical origin."

And listen to these words by Professor James J. Walsh, medical director of the Fordham University School of Sociology: "The body is just as mysterious as the mind and while we know a great deal about it we are beginning to know how much there is about it that we do not know. The mind and body are not two separate things but are one thing. The mind represents the principle of life in the body and the two are so intimately associated that there is only a mental distinction between them."

Thus we see how Christian Science is leavening the thought of humanity in respect to matter and the material universe. Matter, sin, sickness, and death are the products of material thought or a state of consciousness, and that which obscures from our vision the true, the spiritual, and the eternal creation—that which constitutes the mist—is simply the world's wrong thinking. We see, feel, taste, smell, and hear exactly what we are conscious of,—what we think. If we could change our individual thinking sufficiently we would completely change our individual concepts of the world. The material universe with which you and I are familiar indicates the measure of the carnal mind which we hold in consciousness.

So, is it not becoming clear to you that what you and I conceive to be a material creation with all of its sin, sickness, poverty, want, misery, unhappiness, and death is the product or object of so-called mortal mind? As Professor Eddington of Cambridge University has recently said, "The universe we live in is a creation of our own minds." Each of us, then, is the author of his own little universe of matter. That is our individual concept of matter, the world about us (everything that we see, feel, taste, smell, and hear materially), exists only in our thinking, in our consciousness, and we experience just exactly what we admit into our consciousness, even to the experiences of sin, sickness, and death.

THERE IS NO DEATH

This thinking which constitutes our material concept of existence is the product, or expression, of the carnal or mortal mind. On the other hand, as we have seen, God is divine Mind. Therefore, to the extent that you and I cease thinking in terms of the carnal and begin to think in accordance with divine Mind, God, to that extent are we expressing the image and likeness of God, and to that extent are we entering the kingdom of heaven, which, as Jesus so clearly explained, is not a place, a locality, or a mysterious future state of existence obtained through death, but is wholly a state of spiritual consciousnes, or Mind. Have you ever stopped to consider what a ridiculous position we have always taken in regard to death and heaven? We have been taught, and most of us have believed at one time or another, that death is a stepping-stone to heaven: that is, that when we die we go to a place or a locality called heaven, and this in spite of the fact that the Bible plainly teaches that God knows nothing at all about death and that death is the worst enemy man has. But, nevertheless, we have been taught and we have believed that death is God's gift to man and that heaven is death's crowning glory. But have you ever noticed with what consistency even the best of us have been avoiding death to stay out of heaven? We get sick and, if we don't happen to be Christian Scientists, we send for the doctor. What for? So we won't die and go to heaven. The doctor comes and what happens? The struggle is on right then as to who is going to win—God or the doctor. If we get well, the doctor wins and he is a good doctor. If we die God wins and He is a good God. And then we are blandly told that God in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to take us to Him, the while our loving friends are left to mourn our exceedingly good fortune. Question mark! If, however, as Christian Science teaches, the attainment of the kingdom of heaven, or complete salvation, is a spiritual or mental process it becomes clear that death cannot, of itself, advance us one step towards the kingdom, for death is not of God and heaven is a divine creation. It becomes also clear that if material existence is a state of mind, then all the experiences which go to make up material existence are likewise experiences of the same so-called mind. This would include the experience of death, which, as Jesus proved on more than one occasion, is a mental experience.

To explain: Each one of us, as we have seen, lives in a world of thought of his own experiencing. You and I see, feel, taste, smell, and hear alike because we think alike. If our individual thoughts differed in essence or quality each would be individually conscious of an entirely different world from the other. For example: Your concept of others with individual consciousness of those about you is the same as their individual concepts of themselves only because you all think alike. I belong to your world and you belong to my world because of the coincidence in our thinking. The question then arises, What of the experience of death? Inasmuch as the experience of death has nothing to do with individual consciousness, but is confined solely to our concept of matter, we pass through that experience only to find that our individual concept of ourselves and the world about us has not changed at all; and we awaken from that dream as material as before the experience, but with the additional understanding that there is no death. As matter is a mental concept or an object in thought, and a death does not alter thought, our individual concepts of existence are not changed by passing through an experience which is simply a phase of the material dream of existence. So, right where you and I seem to be enjoying an exclusive material universe may be any number of material concepts of creation exactly similar to our own, because according to Professor Findley, just quoted, matter and the material universe require neither time, place, nor space for their expression. They are simply objects of thought. The experience of death does not involve a change of place. It is an experience of consciousness. Heaven is many steps beyond.

You will recall, by way of illustration, the Biblical account of the experience of Jesus and Peter and James and John on the mount of transfiguration. In the Bible a mount or mountain is used typically to designate an exalted state of thought or spiritual elevation. On this particular occasion Jesus had taken aside with him Peter and James and John, three of his most promising students, for a period of prayer and spiritual regeneration. While he was alone with them, and when their thoughts were elevated to a high level of spirituality, there appeared talking with Jesus, Moses and Elias, one of whom had passed on some fifteen hundred to two thousand years before. That is, Peter and James and John had been mentally raised to such a height of spiritual understanding by what Jesus had been teaching them that they were able to perceive and recognize the identity of Moses and Elias. This incident, taken together with what follows in the Bible account thereof, shows that death is really a mental experience, and that when you and I arrive at the mental state or plane of those who have gone before we will be with them, and recognize and associate with them consciously and materially.

That the world is beginning to glimpse the teachings of Christian Science in this regard is evidenced in the words of Professor William Brown of the University of London, who, speaking at New Haven, Connecticut, recently, said: "Modern science has not been able to prove that the mind does not survive physical death, since it achieves a greater and greater freedom from the body during the lifetime of a person. There is nothing to prevent us from holding the view that although self-conscious mind may have developed out of simpler forms of biological process, it gradually achieves a greater and greater degree of freedom . . . and eventually survives physical death." Now, if the mind survives physical death, as Professor Brown indicates, and if the mind and body are one, as Professor Walsh states, and as Christian Science teaches, does it not necessarily follow that the physical body (so called) must survive physical death? "But," someone asks, "what about burial?" Why, inasmuch as the physical body is in reality only an individual mental concept, you and I bury our individual mental concept while the deceased proceeds on his way with his individual mental concept.

Jesus' resurrection, after his crucifixion, proved that death does not change the body and also that death does not bring us any nearer the kingdom of heaven than we are at the time death overtakes us. We have the problem of existence to work out as certainly after death as before, else what becomes of the necessity of being good and spiritual here and now? The Bible tells us that Jesus showed himself several times to his disciples after his resurrection, and to prove that it was the same Jesus and the same body he showed them the nail-prints in his hands and the spear-thrusts in his side. Jesus' ascension, after his resurrection, proved that the attainment of the kingdom of heaven is the individual mental overcoming of all matter and materiality through spiritual understanding.

PRAYER

The process of accomplishing this great spiritual regeneration whereby we can follow the Master in thought, word, and deed is a process of true prayer. True prayer consists not in beseeching God to look down upon us, miserable sinners, in pity and mercy, but consists rather in spiritually raising ourselves to the full recognition of our sonship with the Father and claiming our true heritage of dominion and freedom. Prayer is not the process of self-debasement or self-effacement. It is a process of self-immolation, whereby, with St. Paul, we put off the old man with his deeds and put on the new man by the renewing of the mind. It is the process of putting off the carnal, or mortal, mind in our thinking, and of expressing, in thought, that "mind . . . which was also in Christ Jesus." Prayer is raising up in individual consciousness the Christ, Truth, which animated the life of Jesus, and which St. Paul refers to as "the spiritual Rock" of which Moses drank in the wilderness. We are prone, in our thinking, to confine our concept of the Christ to Jesus alone, whereas the Christ is that understanding of God and man which enables us to overcome the carnal mind with its sin, sickness, and death. St. Paul explains the impersonal nature of the Christ where, in I Corinthians, referring to the experiences of the children of Israel, some fifteen hundred years before the time of Jesus, he said: "How that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; and were all baptized unto Moses . . .; and did all eat the same spiritual meat; and did all drink the same spiritual drink; for they drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them: and that Rock was Christ."

FEAR

Jesus made no distinction between the healing of sin and the healing of sickness. In fact he healed both, as Mrs. Eddy says (p. 210), by "the same metaphysical process." He recognized the fact that the world's sickness is largely the result of the world's sin. In Science and Health (p. 411) Mrs. Eddy writes, "The procuring cause and foundation of all sickness is fear, ignorance, or sin." Jesus, you will recall, in a great many instances bade those whom he had healed of sickness to "go and sin no more," explaining that sin was the cause of their sickness. In other cases he told the patient not to be afraid, indicating that fear was the foundation of his trouble. In a few instances he referred to their ignorance of the spiritual significance of the Scriptures as the cause of their trouble. It was always, with Jesus, one of three causes—fear, ignorance, or sin—which produced sickness.

The longer I study Christian Science and the more I observe the workings of the carnal mind in the affairs of mankind, the more I am convinced that fear plays a far larger part in the sickness, the unhappiness, the poverty, and the death of men than has ever yet been supposed. Jesus knew it and Mrs. Eddy knew it, but it takes most of us a long time even to glimpse it. It would seem that the very warp and woof of material living is fear—fear from the cradle to the grave. Take two men, by way of illustration; one of them an adept swimmer and the other not able to swim a stroke. Let them both be thrown into a body of deep water. What happens? The man who knows how to swim will stay calmly on the surface of the water, perhaps not even moving a muscle. He does not even try to swim and yet he does not sink. He does nothing but float around on the surface of the water. The other man who does not know how to swim will flounder around, churn the water, beat the air, and make all possible attempts to save himself, and unless aid comes he sinks. Now, what is the difference between the two men? Does the difference lie in the fact that one knows how to swim and the other does not? Not fundamentally. The difference is in their thinking. One is full of fear and the other has overcome his fear. The one who harbors fear sinks. The one who has no fear stays on the top of the water. There is no physical difference between them. Now, if fear will do that to a man, is it at all unlikely that it can make him sick, poverty-stricken, and a failure?

JESUS WALKS THE WAVES

The example just given has a most striking parallel in a certain Bible incident. You will recall that on an occasion the disciples of Jesus were in a ship in the midst of the sea, and a storm arose that threatened the ship and the lives of those in it. At the height of the storm Jesus came to them walking upon the waters. The disciples were unaware that it was Jesus, it being nighttime, and they were frightened at the spectacle, but Jesus, reassuring them, bade them be calm and unafraid. Then Peter, whom Mrs. Eddy has designated as the impetuous disciple, being still in doubt, cried, "Lord, if it be thou, bid me come unto thee on the water," whereupon Jesus answered him, "Come." Peter, descending from the ship, started to walk to Jesus on the water and, according to the narrative, did walk some distance, but after he had gone a little way, the storm which was raging, filled him with fear and as soon as he began to be afraid he began to sink and Jesus had to stretch out his hand and save him. Then Jesus said to Peter, "O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?"—wherefore didst thou fear?—indicating very positively that fear will subject a man to about any phase of evil, while lack of fear will enable him to overcome even the laws of so-called physical or material science.

When mortals begin to understand the operations and workings of the carnal mind which finds expression in sin, fear, worry, human will, mad ambition, lust, hypocrisy, and a thousand other forms of evil, and how to meet and master these conditions through the Christ, then will they begin to gain that dominion over the earth which is vouchsafed them in the first chapter of Genesis, and health, prosperity, and happiness will be normal, necessary conditions rather than exceptions or accidents.

SOME EXAMPLES

In answer to the charge which one sometimes hears, that Christian Science does very well in cases of temperament or minor functional disorders but is not effective in case of organic diseases, I want to relate one or two instances of healing which I am prepared to verify to the fullest degree. A young lady whom I know was born totally blind in one eye and stone deaf in one ear. In early childhood her other eye, with which she had been able only to distinguish light from darkness, became totally blind. She also early lost all sense of hearing in her other ear, so that from infancy to early womanhood she was completely blind and deaf. Because of her wonderful achievements through the senses of touch and smell as a blind and deaf subject, she attracted the attention of the medical profession in her quest for freedom, and exhausted the skill of the best medical talent in many parts of the country. On one occasion alone she was under examination by a clinic of over one hundred prominent physicians and surgeons. While in a state institution for the blind, she learned of Christian Science and later found herself in a position where she could avail herself of Christian Science treatment. She was under Christian Science treatment just one year when her healing was complete, and today she can see, hear, and talk as well as anyone. In her own words, "I hear and see perfectly now."

Another case was that of a young man, a student at the time at one of our large state universities. In infance he had suffered an attack of infantile paralysis which left him with one leg shorter than the other, and in a withered and deformed condition. While at the university, he endeavored to take up swimming by way of exercise and recreation, but on examination by the swimming master was told that it would be impossible for him to accomplish anything along this line because of the condition of his leg. By that time, he and his family had become interested in Christian Science, and the next time he was home from the university on a vacation he called a practitioner one evening by telephone, and explained the situation, and asked if the practitioner thought he could be helped. The practitioner assured him that all things were possible to God, and that he would be glad to help him. That night the practioner gave the young man one treatment, and the next morning, bright and early, this young man called up the practitioner, and with almost overwhelming joy told him that when he awoke that morning he had found his withered leg as normal as the other, and like the man of Bible history whom Peter healed at the gate of the temple which is called Beautiful, he was literally "walking and leaping and praising God."

SCIENTIFIC CONTROL OF THE BODY

Physiology classifies the actions and the activities of the human body in all of its processes and functions as either voluntary or involuntary. Some actions or motions of a man's body, it tells us, are governed by the human will, or mortal mind, while other activities of his body are carried on entirely without the volition or will of the human mind. It says that when I walk across the room my legs are acting under the volition of my own thinking; whereas when the heart performs its duty of sending the blood through the veins, it is acting entirely of its own volition and quite independently of mortal thinking. The former statement as to voluntary action is correct; the latter statement as to involuntary action is incorrect. The heart, the stomach, in fact all the organs of man, perform their functions under the direction and supervision of the mind just as certainly as one's arms obey his thinking when he makes a motion with them. The mortal mind, whether the individual be conscious of that fact or not, controls the entire system of the human body, be it arms, legs, heart, stomach, lungs, or what not, and there is no involuntary action. The sooner men begin to learn this fact the sooner they will cease to be victims of their own ignorant thinking. Therefore, do you not perceive how absolutely necessary it is for each one of us to see that the mind which governs the body is freed from that which goes to make for sickness, disease, poverty, death, et cetera? We all have heard of instances where people have been killed by sudden shock or fright. Most of us know of people who have worried themselves sick or dead. Tears spring from the eyes, not because of any volition on the part of the eyes, but because of thought. It has been discovered that the secretions in the stomach of an animal animated by fear often became poisonous. There is no wrong thought entertained by a mortal which has not some ill effect on some function of the human body. There is not a condition of sickness or inharmony of any name or nature that does not have its foundation in human wrong thinking; and I care not whether it be a broken bone, a cancer, contagion, heredity, insanity, old age, poverty, crop failures, pestilence, storms, devastation, or what not.

So, is it not clear that to effect a cure of any disease or bodily disorder we must begin at the source—wrong thinking? If disease is the result of wrong thinking, does not the remedy, and the only true remedy, lie in right or spiritual thinking? And does not spiritual healing appeal to you as the only true and permanent method of healing? The body, which, itself, is an expression of the mortal mind, can be healed only as mortal mind, so called, yields to divine Mind, which governs harmoniously. Here is what St. Paul says, "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." And he tells us how this is to be done where he says: "Be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind."

MATERIAL METHODS OF HEALING

But, someone may say, Would you dispense with the doctors and material methods of healing? Not at all. At least not while there are so few Christian Scientists. Christian Scientists are not opposed to doctors or to medicine for those who need them. Christian Scientists feel that they have advanced beyond material methods of healing through Mrs. Eddy's discovery not only that the cause of all disease is mental, but through her discovery of the spiritual method of coping with disease. No one knows better than the Christian Scientist his shortcomings in the practice of healing through Christian Science, but in view of the fact that the ranks of Christian Science are filled with those who have been healed through Christian Science, after all other known methods of healing have failed, he is not inclined to let his failures turn him from the high purpose of his chosen calling, that of healing the sick in the name of Jesus the Christ. And further, he does not recognize the right of any other system of therapeutics to point at him the finger of criticism even in the event of his occasional failure.

It is often remarked that certain individuals would make good Christian Scientists because they do not believe in taking medicine, as though Christian Science were a religion opposed to medicine. Christian Science is not a religion opposed to medicine. It is not a religion opposed to anything. It is a religion in favor of good. It believes that God can heal better than man can heal, and it is proving its position. Christian Scientists are by no means the only people who do not resort to the use of drugs or medicines in time of illness. Nearly ten years ago I read a statement in one of the leading medical journals in the United States to the effect that at that time there were over forty million people in the United States alone who did no resort to the use of drugs or medicine in times of sickness.

DIFFERENCE BETWEEN MATERIAL AND SPIRITUAL HEALING

Sickness is a product of the carnal mind. Matter is also a product of the same mind. Therefore, if sickness seems to be cured by matter we have one phase of the mortal or carnal mind taking the place of another phase of that same mind, and the question is, Which phase is the better? On the other hand, if sickness is displaced by an understanding of God—by spiritual understanding—then the healing is a true and lasting one, and one which has advanced the patient one step nearer to the kingdom of heaven.

If, for example, a pupil were sent to the blackboard to do a problem in mathematics and he put down two times five equals fifteen, what would we call that? We would call it an error. Where did the error originate—in the blackboard? No. In a false belief concerning the relation of numbers, entertained by the pupil. Now, suppose that the teacher were to go to the blackboard and erase the two times five equals fifteen; has that operation corrected the error? Not at all. It has simply removed the evidence of the error. To correct the error, the teacher must go to the source of the error, or the wrong thinking of the pupil, and as soon as the error is corrected in the mind of the pupil it ceases to exist. But until the pupil's thought has been changed he might repeat that error indefinitely. Sickness and its manifestation on the body are parallel to the error on the blackboard. As the erasure of the error from the blackboard does not correct the error at its source and thus prevent its repetition, so the healing of disease through material means does not go to the source of the disease, which is human wrong thinking. Whatever is not of God men need not accept.

Health, happiness, freedom, and abundance are normal, natural, and God-bestowed. Sickness, sorrow, bondage, and poverty are abnormal and unnatural. Let us then become natural and normal men and women. Let us claim our God-given heritage of freedom in the name of Christ, Truth. Let us strive to understand man in the image and likeness of God and not be mere creatures of clay molded by every whim of the carnal mind; human shuttlecocks tossed to and fro by the battledores of creed and dogma; puppets, at the beck and call of change and circumstance; sycophants, bowing to the ills and foibles of the flesh, but, in the words of Mrs. Eddy: "Take possession of your body, and govern its feeling and action. Rise in the strength of Spirit to resist all that is unlike good. God has made man capable of this, and nothing can vitiate the ability and power divinely bestowed on man" (Science and Health, p. 393). "When the illusion of sickness or sin tempts you, cling steadfastly to God and His idea. Allow nothing but His likeness to abide in your thought. Let neither fear nor doubt overshadow your clear sense and calm trust, that the recognition of life harmonious—as Life eternally is—can destroy any painful sense of, or belief in, that which Life is not. Let Christian Science, instead of corporeal sense, support your understanding of being, and this understanding will supplant error with Truth, replace mortality with immortality, and silence discord with harmony" (ibid., p. 495).

THROWN FROM HORSE IN FELLS

Margaret Ryan of 71 Bay State road, Belmont, was painfully injured last Sunday when thrown from her horse while riding in the Middlesex Fells. Her plight was discovered by Special Officer Robert Eason of the Police Department who rendered first aid and took Miss Ryan to the Fulton street Riding School in Medford, from where she was removed to her home. She sustained injuries to her legs, but was not thought to be seriously injured.

Miss Dorothy Mullin of Main street, a senior at Emmanuel College, has been chosen to serve as business manager of the Epilogue, the Emmanuel year book.

Miss Lois P. Gibson, librarian of the Winchester High School, attended the annual fall meeting of the New England School Library Association at New Bedford, last Saturday.

A Million Healthy Babies tell the story of Hood's Milk

Every farm has a clean, white milk house. Barns are whitewashed, clean, airy. Walls and ceilings tight to exclude dust. Floors kept sweet with slaked lime . . . Three tons of ice per cow are stored (or the equivalent in electric refrigeration) for immediate cooling after milking. Farmers are paid Grade A premiums for this premium milk, and the results accurately determined by rigid laboratory tests . . . MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

Preaching from the text, "Truly our fellowship is with the Father and his Son, Jesus Christ," from the Epistle of St. John, Bishop Sherrill recalled that the early group of Apostles without wealth, education or social position, was able to dominate the powerful Roman Empire and reminded his congregation that it was because of their efforts that we are today privileged to meet in beautiful churches for the worship of Almighty God. The Apostles owed their power to the fact that through knowing the presence of the living Christ they were bound together in a Christian brotherhood, against which nothing could prevail.

The first business of the church, said Bishop Sherrill, is the worship of God through Jesus Christ. Entertainment and social functions have their place but they are distinctly by-products and any parish basing its appeal upon them can not long endure. The Christian Church, because it exists for peace, courage and strength, is an inspiration for the battle of life and is much needed in present day living.

Christians as joint heirs of God with Christ are bound together in a common brotherhood, and because the things which are common to us all so overshadow our differences, these differences of race, wealth, creed and education pale into insignificance beside our common baptism as children of God.

A parish, continued the Bishop, should be a unit in its brotherhood based upon the deepest experiences that can come to man, and whenever a Christian church is bound together in this common brotherhood real progress is being made. When people outside the church see those within the fold living in such a brotherhood then will they believe that Christianity does count.

The church faces a great opportunity for people want the peace that can only come through the message of Christ. Each of us faces this same opportunity, for everywhere there is need for what the church has to give. Many are in no way connected with a Christian Church and many who are members are only superficially connected.

The real significance of last Sunday's service, in Bishop Sherrill's opinion, lay not in the coming to the local parish of Mr. Hadley as rector, but rather in the consecration of each member of the parish to be a missionary of the gospel of Jesus Christ. For, said the Bishop, when we grasp what it means to be disciples of Jesus Christ we will have a real brotherhood and when this time shall come then it will be possible for the Christian Church to win the world as the early Christians conquered the Roman Empire.

Training Course Starts

The course in "Principles of Scoutmastership" met for the first session on Wednesday, Oct. 21, at the Winchester District headquarters.

Professor Frank C. Lane of Tufts College was the first speaker, talking on the subject "The Nature of the Boy." This followed by a discussion of a "Scout Program That Meets the Needs of the Boy."

District Commissioner to Meet

Scout Commissioner W. E. Moats has called a meeting of the Field Staff of the Council, composed of District Commissioners and Field Commissioners, to be held on Monday, Oct. 26, for the purpose of developing the Council's fall and winter program of rallies. An announcement to the field will be made as soon as possible after the commissioner's meeting.

New Field Commissioner

Robert Sproul, a former Scoutmaster from Arlington, has been appointed by the Executive Board to serve as a Field Commissioner in this Council. Mr. Sproul has come up from the ranks as a Scout and plans to become a Scout Executive in the future. He will devote three evenings a week in troop visits and service to Scoutmasters in this Council as a volunteer.

Courts of Honor

The Medford District Court meets on Thursday, Oct. 22.

The first session of the Burlington-Woburn Court will be held on Thursday, Oct. 22, also.

The Stoneham Court meets the last Wednesday of the month.

The Winchester District Court of Honor will meet in December. The date to be announced later.

Scout Leaders Club

A tentative date for the next meeting of the Scout Leaders' Club has been set for Nov. 5. This meeting will be held at the Burlington Town Hall.

New Scouts

There are now 24 troops in the Council. Some of these troops are filled to capacity, and some are new, with an enrollment less than the National maximum of 32 boys. An effort is to be made this fall and winter to bring the smaller troops up to the maximum of 32. Boys who are 12 years of age and who would like to be a Scout are urged to call at the Scout office, Room 2, Medford Building, or to visit the troop nearest to their homes to find out what is to be done to become a Scout.

An Imperial Court

The court of the judicial committee of the privy council in Downing street, London, is one of the most famous places in England, for here is laid down the law for the empire. The three law lords sit in judgment on many issues involving large and small affairs, and the rights of people of all races and creeds. A dispute originating in a local Indian court often finds its way to the privy council, or perhaps an African chief who believes that his time-honored rights have been violated will send his case to the Downing Street court, where learned barristers in wig and gown argue solemnly.

The Winchester High School Class of 1906 observed the 25th anniversary of its graduation Wednesday evening with a reunion in the silver room of the Hotel Kenmore, Boston. Twelve members of the class were present and thoroughly enjoyed an evening of reminiscences and amusing anecdotes of the "good old days" at school.

Rev. Timothy J. Donovan of Danvers acted as master of ceremonies and announced that the anniversary celebration was made possible by the small sum of money remaining in the treasury when the class graduated, a sum which in the succeeding quarter of a century grew to sufficient size to detray the expenses of the reunion dinner.

The table decorations were most artistic and added much to the pleasure of the occasion. They were the work of the art department of the Boston Trade School for girls and made under the supervision of the principal, Miss Esther McNellis. The ladies were presented with compacts as favors and the gentlemen, with cigarette cases.

Miss Eva M. Palmer, for many years instructor of mathematics in the high school and now acting as dean of girls, was guest of honor. Mr. Edwin N. Levering, principal of the school when the class of 1906 was graduated, was unable to be present. A letter was received from the class president, Dr. Robert J. Carpenter of North Adams, who was prevented by his medical duties from attending the reunion.

Among those present were Rev. Timothy J. Donovan of Danvers, Margaret Hunt Bradlee, Margaret Briggs Hill, John Barnard of Brookline, Fred O. Snow, Adnah E. Smalley, May Winn Whittaker, Rev. Charles A. Donahue of Maynard, Tina McNulty Coleman of Somerville, Persis Richardson, Helen Ayer Senior of Medway and Mary Doherty.

Timepieces That Are Marvels of Precision

The most accurate precision timepieces now available are the Shortt clocks made in England. The United States naval observatory has three of them. So sensitive are they that the mere temperature of the body is enough to render them inaccurate as standard timepieces, and so it was decided to install them in a vault in the ground below the frost line.

There are really two vaults, one within the other. An air space of 18 inches between the vaults serves as an insulator and also makes it possible to inspect and clean the inner vault.

It is almost a holy rite to enter the sacred inner vault. Since the timepieces must not be exposed to atmospheric changes the privileged enter the inner vaut only through an air-lock. Electric lamps are so mounted that they can be changed and cleaned without the necessity of entering the inner chamber.

Visitors to Washington who want to see how the nation keeps its time must gratify their curiosity through a periscope.

FORBES—WELD

In the First Baptist Church last Saturday afternoon Miss Katherine Tufts Weld, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ollis Weld of Winthrop street, became the bride of Curtis Brooks Forbes, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Albert Forbes of Jason street, Arlington. Rev. Benjamin Patterson Browne, pastor of the Church, performed the ceremony at 4:30 o'clock in a setting of white chrysanthemums, palms and lighted candles in tall candleabras. The wedding music was played by Helen Palmer MacDonald, organist.

Miss Edith Yeager of Lexington was Miss Weld's honor attendant and the group of bridesmaids included Miss Barbara Forbes, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Elizabeth Winchester, cousin of the bride; Miss Roberta Kendall of Chevy Chase, Md.; and Miss Eleanor Healey of Winchester.

Mr. Forbes had for his best man his brother, Sherman Hinman Forbes, and the ushers were Jerome Kelliher, Henri David, Neal Cargill and Herbert Moseley, Jr., all of Arlington; Cary Snow of Newton and Parker Rice of Manchester, N. H.

The bride wore a period gown of ivory satin with a tulle veil and carried a bouquet of roses and gardenias. Miss Yeager wore coral satin, trimmed with brown fur, and a brown tulle and velvet turban. Her flowers were talisman roses. The bridesmaids wore frocks of beige satin with brown tulle and velvet turbans and carried brown pom pom chrysanthemums.

Following the ceremony a small reception was held at the Winchester Country Club, after which Mr. Forbes and his bride left on a wedding journey which is to include hunting in Northern Maine and a motor trip through Canada. Upon their return they will make their home in Winchester at 3 Myrtle street.

The bride is a graduate of the Winchester schools and attended the School of Fine Arts and Crafts in Boston. Mr. Forbes is assistant clerk of the Third District Court at East Cambridge.

SANDBERG—WHITTAKER

Only members of the family and a few intimate friends attended the marriage of Miss Janice May Whittaker and Lars Joseph Sandberg Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Whittaker of Highland avenue. The candlelight ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by Rev. Howard J. Chidley, D.D., pastor of the First Congregational Church. House decorations were Talisman roses, bronze chrysanthemums, deep Talisman colored snapdragons and laurel.

Miss Whittaker had her sister, Miss Mary Louise Whittaker, as her honor attendant and another sister, Miss Betty Whittaker was bridesmaid. A third sister, Miss Joanne Whittaker was flower girl. Edward Sandberg of Winchester was his brother's best man.

The parents of both the bride and bridegroom assisted in receiving at the reception which followed the ceremony. Upon their return from a wedding journey Mr. and Mrs. Sandberg will make their home in Winchester at 22 Fells road.

The bride attended Winchester High School and was graduated from the Junior College of Lasell Seminary in 1930. Mr. Sandberg, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Josef Sandberg of Wolcott road, is an instructor at the Harvard School of Business Administration, from which he was graduated in 1931. He is a graduate of the Winchester High School and of Harvard, in the class of 1929.

TOWN TEAM AT DEDHAM SUNDAY

Winchester Town Team, fresh from its victory over the previously unbeaten North Cambridge K. of C. eleven, will journey to Stone Park in Dedham Sunday to meet the strong Dedham Town Team, the only club to defeat the locals last season.

Those who saw Winchester at Cambridge Sunday were loud in their praise of the "Townie's" showing. Coach Amico has changed his offensive scheme of things somewhat and expects a greater scoring punch as a result of his new game. There is no gainsaying the defensive strength of the local team, and with a stronger attack, Dedham is going to have no cinch repeating its 1930 victory on Sunday. Kickoff at 2:30 p. m.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

Winchester Girl Scouts opened Juliette Lowe week with a "Girl Scouts' Own" last Sunday afternoon in the Town Hall. Scout Dorothy Glidden very ably conducted the meeting and gave the reading. Scout Frances Gaum was color bearer and Scouts Nash and Wilson, color guard. Capt. Doris MacElwain, who was graduated from Boston University School of Religious Education last June, made the prayer, which was followed by the Scout Chant. Capt. Annette Haynes led the singing.

The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Margaret Eggleston Owen who held the girls' interest throughout her talk and left them with many things to think about and ideals to live up to.

Mrs. Owen spoke on "Hunting a Bargain" and said that in the usual case we get what we pay for; that there is no such a thing as a bargain in accomplishment, religion, education or girl scouting. She showed the girls a string of ivory beads which she bought in Africa, made by a native who was not looking for a bargain in effort. He had spent 16 hours in making the large centre bead alone. He felt amply repaid when he found that his beads were to go to Boston and the words of his instructor "Make poor bead, nobody like. Make good bead, everybody buy," were proven to him to be true. The beads have ever since been an inspiration to Mrs. Owen. She sent the native boy a very fine lathe to work with to take the place of the old broken tools she had seen him using. When he thanked her he wrote saying that he did not use the new lathe all the time as he did not want to forget how to work hard.

At the request of Commissioner Hall, Mrs. Owen was given one red rose bud and asked to tell the girls about the perfect red rose her father grew for her when she was 11 years old. Together they planted the bush, nourished it properly and well, and guarded it from all harm, until at last the perfect bud was formed which soon opened to the perfect rose. He cut the rose off for her and told her to care for her life as he had the red rose and protect it from anything that would take away from right living. As she grew and when she was tempted in any way her father's words came to her as a guide—"I want you to be and I expect you to be like the red rose."

Out of town scouts were well represented, there being an especially large group from Arlington accompanied by their commissioner.

Captain MacElwain said the benediction and taps were sounded by Scout Edna Hanlon and echoed by Scout Elizabeth Philbrick. Music for the processional and recessional was played by Milded T. Spaulding and Mrs. Jennette Drake who also accompanied the scouts in their chant and hymn.

Mrs. James Storrow, member of the World Committee of Girl Scouts and Girl Guides entertained 60 Commissioners representing the Councils of Massachusetts, at her home in Lincoln on Tuesday and for a treat had for special guest, Dame Catherine Furse, also a member of the World Committee. Dame Furse gave an interesting account of Girl Guiding in Europe and talked interestingly on the plans for the new Chalet, the gift of Mrs. Sorrow to Girl Guides and Girl Scouts all over the world, at Adelboden. Mrs. Storrow had pictures showing the Chalet had actually been started, and stated that the first general training course would be held here at "Our Chalet" in September 1932. The spot for the Chalet is really known as Eggeti, meaning "little corner." There are beautiful views up and down the valley, safe little hills for skiing and sheltered spots for campfires. Mrs. Storrow hopes girls from all countries will meet here and enjoy scouting together. American Scouts are furnishing the office of the Chalet in colonial period.

The Drum and Bugle Corps will meet on Monday evening at a supper in Fortnightly Hall served by the committee, Mrs. Albert Wilson, Mrs. Alton Jackson, Mrs. Kelley, Mrs. Cora Phelps, Mrs. Truman Godfrey and Mrs. Clifton S. Hall, Commissioner.

Tuesday at the Hotel Statler the State meeting will be held at 11 o'clock, luncheon at 1, and at the afternoon session Miss Oleda Schrottky of the National Bureau will speak on rallies and public demonstrations, all friends of scouting are invited.

ROTARY CLUB

The club gathered at home quarters on Oct. 29 with six absentees recorded.

President "Church" Hindes gave a report of the proceedings at Springfield on Oct. 24 when the President of Rotary International, Sydney W. Pascall of London, England was entertained by clubs of the 30th district. Several hundred Rotarians from all New England were present at this meeting and President Pascall was warmly welcomed.

Another official of Rotary International will be entertained in Cambridge the coming week. Louis E. Steinmann of Antwerp, Belguim, chairman of the Vocational Committee, R. I. will be present at Elks' Hall, Central Square, Cambridge at 6 p. m. Nov. 5, Thursday. The Cambridge Club is putting forth its best efforts to make this meeting a notable success. Tweny clubs in his immediate vicinity have been invited to attend and all of our members who possibly can are urged to take this opportunity to become better acquainted with the international aspects of Rotary.

Ralph has promised us new song sheets, the same to put in appearance two or at most three weeks from date. his announcement put much pep in this days singing and the much favored cruise to Mandalay.

We have missed "Tom" Quigley at the past two meetings. It is indeed unusual when "Tom" fails to appear but a severe attack of grippe has kept him in bed for some ten days. He hopes to attend our next meeting and we shall indeed be glad to greet him again.

At this meeting the club was favored with another classification talk from one of its members. Clarence McDavitt gave us the story of the development of banking through the ages with particular attention to the subject of loans. In view of the present financial situation this talk was most timely and we are pleased to note that Clarence displayed an intimate knowledge of his subject and presented his statements in a lucid and entertaining manner.

The November "Rotarian" will come to you shortly. There are many outstanding contributions to this issue, don't miss them.

DR. EDWARD F. CURRY

Dr. Edward F. Curry, 57, widely known throughout New England as a surgeon, died suddenly Thursday at Union Hospital, Fall River while in conference with two of his closest friends. He was a native of Winchester.

Dr. Curry was past president of the Massachusetts Medical Society, the Bristol House Medical Society and the Fall River Medical Society, and past vice-president of the New England Pediatric Society. He was graduated from Harvard Medical School in 1896, and made his home in Fall River.

His widow and two children, Elizabeth, and Langdon, a student at Norwich University, survive; also three sisters, Miss Abbie Curry of this town, Mrs. John Lothrop Brown of Willinova, Pa., Miss Elma Curry of Washington, D. C., and a brother Thomas of Dorchester.

NOTIFIED OF THEFT

Police Headquarters was notified Tuesday morning that a house on Holland street had been entered and some lead pipe stolen from under the sink in the kitchen. The report stated that the lock on the door had been broken, but Patrolman John Dolan who was sent to investigate found the door locked upon his arrival.

He gained access to the house by means of a window, and found evidence that some one had been in the dwelling. A candle and some burnt matches were found on the floor in front of the sink with an empty burlap bag. The door of the closet under the sink was open but the pipes had not been disturbed. The occupants of the other side of the dwelling reported that they had heard no one in the house.

CLAIMED INJURY TO LEG AS MOTORS CRASH

Harold McCue of 83 Sheridan circle claimed injuries to his left leg as the result of a collision between the Chevrolet truck he was driving north on Main street shortly after 9 o'clock Wednesday evening and a Ford coupe, headed south and driven by William R. Mathews of 390 Highland avenue.

The truck, which was registered to James P. McCue of 83 Sheridan circle, was making a left turn into that roadway when the accident occurred. Both machines were damaged and the Ford had to be towed to Conlon's Garage.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

A most successful and enjoyable Charity whist was conducted in Whites' Hall on Thursday evening, Oct. 22. Delia Mulrenan and her able committee composed of Sentinel B. Young and others deserve much credit.

Sunday, Nov. 22 is Guild Day at the Holy Ghost Hospital when a musical program will be rendered for the patients by talent from the various Guilds.

FIRST SUMMONSE SERVED HERE FOR AIRCRAFT VIOLATION

Sergt. John H. Noonan of the Police Department has the distinction of serving the first summonse for violation of the aircraft laws to be sent to Winchester headquarters.

The aviator, a Winchester young man, is charged by an inspector of motor vehicles with flying an unregistered plane in East Boston, and he will appear in court in that city.

FOUND FOR EAST BOSTON BUILDER

The Winchester Board of Appeal in a finding made recently in connection with the proposed building development of Ralph Testa of East Boston at Salisbury, Wildwood and Cambridge streets, has ruled in favor of Mr. Testa against the protest of neighboring property owners.

Residents of the vicinity have strenuously objected to the number and type of the dwellings which Mr. Testa seeks to erect on the old Purrington farm, and after several meetings of interested parties, Attorney Clarence E. Warren filed a formal protest with the Board of Appeal.

After careful consideration of the case the Board handed down a lengthy document in which the finding was for Mr. Testa, whom the Board found had violated neither the Building nor Zoning regulations of the town. In its finding the Board of Appeal recommends that Mr. Testa be granted the permit to proceed with his development which Building Commissioner Maurice Dinneen had witheld pending the result of the appeal to its members.

FOUND STRIPPED CAR ON POND STREET

At 1:40 yesterday morning Patrolman John J. Regan of the Police Department discovered a car on Pond street which he at first thought was disabled with a flat tire. Upon coming closer he found that both front tires and rims were missing as other parts and accessories of the machine.

Officer Regan notified Headquarters and an investigation disclosed the fact that the car had been stolen in Boston and was the property of Kenneth Ernest of 5077 Putnam avenue, Cambridge. The police of that city were notified.

At 9:35 Thursday morning Joseph Parlette of Railroad avenue, an employee of the Water Department, brought to Headquarters two large chromium headlights and a wire wheel complete with tire and tube which he had found in some bushes near the sand pit on High street. The police are of the opinion that another stolen car is concealed in that neighborhood.

RETURNED BY POLICE FROM BANGOR

Last week Thursday night Police Headquarters was notified that a car, registered to William B. Stearns of 30 Glen road, had been stopped by the police of St. John's, N. B., and that the authorities there were holding the operator one Alexander McPhee of Somerville.

Chief William H. Rogers investigated and learned that the machine had been stolen on Oct. 19. He wired the St. John's authorities to meet him with the prisoner in Bangor, Me., and set out for that city accompanied by Sergt. Edward W. O'Connell.

Taking McPhee into custody, Chief Rogers and Sergeant O'Connell returned him to Winchester and he appeared Tuesday in the District Court at Woburn, charged with the theft of the car. He was held in $1000 for the Grand Jury.

WINCHESTER HARRIERS WON FROM BRAINTREE

Winchester High finally got a team to run against its fast stepping combination and added Braintree High to its growing list yesterday afternoon, 19 to 56, running over the Fells course.

Captain Corby of Winchester was the individual winner, but only after a nip and tuck duel with Schoffield of visiting team. The next seven men to cross the finish line wore Winchester jersies. The summary. Corby (W), 1st; Schoffield (B), 2nd; "Al" Lynch (W), 3rd; McPartlin (W), 4th; Cross (W), 5th; Maffeo (W), 6th; Richard Pettingell, (W) 7th; Roger Pettingell (W), 8th; Andrew Lynch (W), 9th; Johnson (B), 10th; MacDonell (W), 11th; Paine (W), 12th; Morcom (B), 13th; Haskell (W), 14th; Peters (B), 15th; Briggs (B), 16th.

SEVERAL FIRES THIS WEEK

The Fire Department answered several alarms on Tuesday, none of which was for a serious fire.

At 11:03 there was a telephone call from the Beggs & Cobb shop for a fire in the fence along the Boston & Maine Railroad near Swanton street. At 11:30 an overheated boiler called the men into the residence of Mr. J. A. Dolben on Lakeview road.

Box 44 came in at 5 o'clock in the afternoon for a grass fire at the corner of Canal and Farrow streets. At 6:19 burning leaves called the apparatus to the rear of St. Mary's Parochial property, and at 8:37 there was a woods fire in the rear of Wedge Pond.

ENTERTAINED AT NOVEL BARN PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Messenger of Washington street entertained 18 guests, many of whom were in unique costumes, at a barn party on Saturday evening. The decorations were in keeping with the Hallowe'en season. Indirect lighting on ghosts, cobwebs on the ceiling, and Jack-o-lanterns most effectively carried out the decorative scheme. A grate filled with glowing charcoal just outside the barn doors furnished a novel way to toast weenies; and pies, doughnuts and coffee were served. Games and tricks afforded a great deal of amusement, and a radio furnished music for dancing.

DeCOURCY—LALLY

The marriage of Miss Mary Agnes Lally, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Lally of Sargent road, and Harold Francis DeCourcy, son of Fire Chief and Mrs. David H. DeCourcy of Westley street, took place last Sunday afternoon in the rectory of St. Mary's Church with the pastor, Rev. Nathaniel J. Merrit, officiating.

Miss Lally was attended by her sister, Mrs. Gerald Ryan of the Bronx, New York, and Mr. Ryan, formerly of Winchester, was Mr. DeCourcy's best man. The bride wore a gown of white satin, empire style with a long train, and a veil of tulle and orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet was of orchids, valley lilies and sweetheart roses. Mrs. Ryan wore buttercup yellow silk taffeta with a brown hat and slippers and carried a bouquet of roses.

After the ceremony a largely attended reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Upon their return from a honeymoon in Washington, D. C., Mr. DeCourcy and his bride are to make their home at 14 Park road in Winchester.

The bride is a graduate of Winchester High School and of Burdette Business College. Mr. DeCourcy was graduated from Winchester High School and from the Bentley School of Accounting and Finance. He is employed as an accountant in the Boston office of Stone & Webster.

CHORAL SOCIETY NOTES

The response to the Society's appeal for new members was most gratifying, several new singers reporting at Tuesday evening's rehearsal. It is still possible to accept singers in all the parts, and any who are interested are urged to report to Director J. Albert Wilson or President George W. Stidstone at the Calumet Club any Tuesday evening. A voice test for quality and the ability to read and carry a part is required. A cordial welcome is awaiting all prospective members.

It was definitely decided on Tuesday to refrain from attempting any extensive financial campaign this season because of the unusual demands being made upon the public purse at this time. A campaign is however to be undertaken with a view of increasing the number of associate members of the Society and letters to past and prospective members will soon be in the mail.

Meanwhile weekly progress is being made with the music for the Society's first concert which promises to be fully as interesting and worth while as its predecessors.

ENJOYED MOVIES AT BIRTHDAY PARTY

Thirteen friends of Miss Mary Louise Collister of Penn road enjoyed an entertaining afternoon of movies, games and refreshments Wednesday on the occasion of her ninth birthday. Mary Louise made an ideal hostess and was warmly and generously remembered by her friends. Prizes were awarded the lucky winners in the games and two reels of juvenile movies proved a most fascinating entertainment. Among those who attended were Suzanne Gleason, Nancy Newton, Jane and Bonney Gerrish, Grace Croughwell, Jane and Betty Cottle, Constance Budgell, Phyllis Cummings, Jacquline Cape, Nancy Christiansen, Jean Drake and Betty Campbell of Melrose.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF PLAYS

Find Enthusiastic Public Support at First Congregational Church

The series of three plays, to be given by the First Congregational Church Dramatic Society for the benefit of unemployment relief in the church parish, have been practically sold out.

This unusual response from the public reflects not only a keen interest in unemployment relief but as well, the anticipation of three enjoyable evenings of entertainment during the season.

Next week, the Star will print a brief resume of the farce, "Tons of Money," to be presented Nov. 6, at "The Little Theater Beneath a Spire" and give a short sketch of some of the leading actors.

WINCHESTER WINNERS AT GARDEN SHOW

Constance Greco's Grelight won a blue in the green hunter class of the Boston Horse show at the Garden Tuesday evening. On the same day Arthur Black's Flamingo took the red in the three gaited saddlers' event and Marjorie Danforth's Boiling Over was fourth in the saddle ponies' class.

On Thursday Miss Danforth's Boiling Over and Tramp took the red in the event for pairs of saddle ponies and Mr. Black's Abie's Irish Rose was second in the fine harness horses' class.

Nov. 17, Tuesday. Rummage Sale for the Philanthropy Fund.

BELMONT HERE TOMORROW

Coach Ronald Linderman's Winchester High School football team faces a real objective game tomorrow afternoon when Belmont's undefeated eleven visits Manchester Field for a contest which will go far toward deciding the Middlesex League championship.

On paper Belmont is the favorite. Coach "Polly" Harris' charges have a much more impressive record than has Winchester, but the Red and Black learned a lot at Wakefield last Saturday and expects to play its best game of the year tomorrow.

Coach Linderman has wisely been using both Knowlton and Barksdale as sparingly as possible to permit early season injuries to round into shape for the real objective games which are coming.

Wakefield's score would very probably have been smaller by one touchdown had Knowlton been at his halfback berth earlier in the game when the Scarlet passed the local boys to death. Later in the battle "Piggy" spoiled several Wakefield attempts to make its passing game go while his hard and deadly tackling kept the Scarlet running attack within bounds.

The local rushline did a good job against Wakefield during the second half of last Saturday's game and Belmont will find it a stubborn fighting group tomorrow. Kickoff at 2:30.

SHIVERICK—HOLT

Miss Doris M. Holt of 193 Warren street, Allston, and Paul Nye Shiverick of 18 Mystic Valley Parkway, were married last Saturday afternoon in the Crawford Memorial M. E. Church by the pastor, Rev. J. West Thompson.

Miss Holt was attended by Mr. Shiverick's daughter, Miss Priscilla B. Shiverick, and Paul B. Shiverick was his father's best man.

The bride wore brown chiffon velvet, trimmed with egg shell satin, and Miss Shiverick's gown was of brown crepe. After a wedding journey Mr. Shiverick and his bride are to make their home in Winchester where the bridegroom is widely known as Master of Mystic Valley Lodge of Masons and District Deputy Grand Secretary of the Sixth Masonic District. The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Holt of North Jay, Me., is a member of the Mizpah Club of Milton.

BENEFIT GAME TODAY

Local sports' followers are reminded of the football game which the Disabled Veterans' Welfare Group is staging on Manchester Field this afternoon, commencing at 2 o'clock. Kents Hill School of Maine, undefeated and yet to be scored upon is playing the Tufts Junior Varsity eleven, coached by "Bob" Abbott of Everett road. Everyone knows that Winchester's former grid stars, "Dan" Smith and "Olio" Lee, are members of the Kents Hill team. "Larry" Bankart of Dartmouth, "Bob" Guild of Harvard, "Al" Noble of Amherst, and "Jim" Fitzgerald of Tufts are to do the officiating and the Veterans Drum and Bugle Corps is to be present along with a delegation of wounded vets from the hospital. Seats in the stands are 75c and this is one game every one will want to support.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

The next regular meeting of the Womens' Republican Club will be held at Association Hall, Vine street, on Wednesday, Nov. 4, at 2:30 p. m.

The speaker of the afternoon will be Mr. William H. Cliff, Secretary of the Home Market Club. His subject will be, "The Tariff."

The Home Market Club is a corporation, organized under the laws of Massachusetts, to promote the couse of protection to American industries.

It favors a national and impartial policy and opposes class and sectional distinctions. The Club publishes "The Protectionist," a quarterly magazine which contains articles by experts upon all the economic questions of the day.

Mr. Franklin Field of Boston, baritone, will present a program of music.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Leaders Training Course to Meet

The second session of the course in "Principles of Scoutmastership" will be held in the rooms of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Medford Building, on Wednesday evening.

Gordon Williams, Scout Executive of Lowell will be the principal speaker, his subject being "Ceremonies in the Scout Program." Mr. Williams has been serving as Scout Executive of the Lowell Council for the past five years, before which he was Executive of the Bridgeport, Conn. Council. He has specialized in Scout ceremonies for many years, several ceremonies which he has developed are now used throughout the United States. Twenty-five Scouters are now enrolled in the course, more are expected to enroll Wednesday evening.

Public Court of Honor

The public court of honor held last February in the Roberts Junior High School was such a success that the members of the Court of Honor comprising Messrs. Guy Larcom, Ralph Webster, William Neilson and Jasper Derry, at a recent meeting decided to hold a public Court of Honor in January. Second class, first class, merit badges, star, life, eagle and other awards earned at November, December and January Courts will be awarded at this public Court. The date wil be announced soon.

Scout Leaders Club

The next meeting of the Scout Leaders Club is to be held at the Burlington Town Hall on Thursday, Nov. 5. Following the supper, which will be served at 6:30 p. m. the men will participate in a program of games as a demonstration of the patrol method. Scouters who attend this meeting will have a new stock of games for their Scouts to play at Troop meetings.

Scouters Roundup

The annual Scouters Roundup held last year at Malden and participated by eight local Councils will be held at Lowell this year. A meeting of local Scout executives was held Monday at the Regional Scout office in Boston to make plans for the annual roundup. The roundup is primarily a conference for volunteer workers in Scouting and is usually attended by 300 men.

Commissioners Meeting

A meeting of district and field commissioners of the Council was held at the Scout office, Monday evening. Plans for a program of district rallies to be held during December, and a council rally to be held in January were formulated. A full announcement of the rally program will be made to the men in the field in the next few days.

Courts of Honor

The November and December meetings of the Medford District Court of Honor will be held on the third Thursday of these months instead of the fourth Thursday, to avoid the holidays.

The next session of the Burlington-Woburn Court of Honor will be held Tuesday, Nov. 3. Work on the construction of a merit badge counsellor list is progressing nicely. This Court will be ready for the review and award of merit and other badges in another month. The Scouts of Burlington and Woburn districts are urged to start now on their second and first class tests.

The Stoneham district court meets the last Wednesday of the month.

The Winchester court meets in December, date to be announced later.

The Medford Board of Review meets the second Wednesday of the month.

Swimming at Malden Y

The first Wednesday of each month, 7 p. m. Thomas MacKinnon, assistant waterman at Camp Kenoza is in charge.

Field Commissioner, Robert Sproul conducts a swimming class for Scouts at the Cambridge Y at 5:30 p. m. every Tuesday. Scouts of this Council who desire instruction in swimming are invited to meet Mr. Sproul at the Cambridge Y, Tuesday afternoons.

WINCHESTER CO-OPERATIVE BANK

SWAMPSCOTT GIRLS EDGED WINCHESTER

Swampscott High School girls' field hockey team edged Winchester High 2—1 in a Greater Boston Interscholastic League game on Manchester Field last Friday afternoon.

The game was closely contested throughout, the elevens being deadlocked at half time with one goal each.

| SWAMPSCOTT | | WINCHESTER |

ON PRUNING SHRUBS

To the Editor of the Star:

Do not allow the man who weeds your garden and cuts your lawn to prune your shrubs unless he knows how and when to do it. Ability to care for a lawn is not evidence of knowledge of landscape gardening or of proper care of shrubs. In many places in Winchester the characteristic beauty of shrubs is perpetually ruined by improper pruning. The beauty of the Berberis Thunbergi, Sirae Vanhouttei, Philadelphus Coronarius for instance, is spoiled by ruthless, mistimed pruning. There are about town many examples of destructive, improper pruning. Spangled sprays that constitute the grace and beauty of the shrubs have been cut away, leaving a stiff, stubby, inartistic group, covering the ground like excrescences. The natural beauty of the graceful plants has been sacrificed. What a pity! Might as well cut away the graceful branches of the elms and the delicate, exquisite flowered sprays of the Spiraea Vanhouttei.

Nature, in her own inimitable way, has given each plant its peculiar beauty; why should we destroy it?

A FORMER ASSOCIATE VISITS PROFESSOR EAGER

R. V. Hayward of High School Faculty Writes of Ex-High School Pedagogue

Lawrence Eager, for four years from 1925 to 1929 head of the English Department at Winchester High School, is enjoying his second year as assistant Professor in the Department of Social Sciences at Dartmouth College. Mr. Eager, having matriculated at Dartmouth, is finding his return to the environment of his college days particularly delightful. Dartmouth has grown even in the few years of his absence, but the quiet little town of Hanover itself, almost hidden away among the mountains is much the same.

Previous to taking up his new work there, Mr. Eager spent a summer in England, being almost a daily visitor to the splendid library of the British Museum. Much of the past summer he spent in Cambridge, Mass., in research work.

At the present time some half dozen or more Winchester boys are studying at Dartmouth most of whom were partially influenced in their choice of college by Mr. Eager.

Upon paying a visit to the "Professor" one is more apt than not to run into most of these boys at one time or another in the Professor's rooms, which suggests that while in Winchester Mr. Eager was something more than merely a teacher. This tendency on the part of former pupils to value contacts made with a former teacher speaks volumes for the teacher's personality. A fair example of Mr. Eager's quiet persistent interest in the welfare of his pupils at Winchester is illustrated in the fact that last June on the day of the College Entrance Exams he telegraphed personal expressions of good wishes to each of the graduates who were to take the exams, and who had been in his own classes the previous year.

At Hanover Mr. Eager resides at the Tuck Graduate School Dormitory with an office in the college library. From the windows of his office one can look across the valley to the towering hills. Those Professors fortunate enough to be assigned offices in the library are provided with ideal conditions for work and study. Access to the room is by private elevator only. One can withdraw entirely from the confusion of the campus and relax or concentrate as the need may dictate.

Mr. Eager is not married yet and there seems to be no available data as to the future on this point.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

Although the boating season is just about finished, nevertheless, it is hard for the ardent enthusiasts to put away oars and paddles. Last week-end saw almost a full fleet of wherries and shells dotting Mystic Lake, not to mention a couple of outboard boats. Alan Hovey, John and George Bryne, Dwight Hill, Junior Gustin, "Ken" Pratt and "Jimmie" Fitch were some of the "late seasoners." Capt. "Al" Hovey had a mean "break" in his new rowing shell which was very fortunate as the boat is nearly new. By Sunday afternoon, it was mended, however, and "Al" was not prevented from skimming the waters late that afternoon. It's pleasant to see this continued activity which means much toward a big season in 1932.

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Willing of 40 Grayson road are the parents of a daughter, Patricia, born Oct. 24. Mrs. Willing was Marion Lane Smith.

Mrs. Edith G. Brown of Norwood street returned to Winchester last Monday after a week's stay in Bethlehem, Pa., where she was visiting friends.

The men of the Water and Sewer Department began this week the annual fall job of syphoning the hydrants about town in preparation for Winter.

DR. BENJAMIN T. CHURCH

Funeral services for Winchester's venerable physician, who for nearly 40 years was one of the most popular doctors practising locally, were held last Friday afternoon at Mt. Auburn. Doctor Church had been retired since 1917 and spent the last years of his life in Brookline where he died Oct. 20, after a long illness. He was 92 years of age and during his long residence in Winchester was active in town affairs, serving for many years as chairman of the Board of Health and in other capacities of an unofficial nature.

At 5:10 Sunday afternoon a Hudson brougham, driven by John Zannadacio of 32 Otis street, Somerville, skidded on Main street near Russell road and struck the curbing, breaking a front wheel.

Among the passengers on the Red Star liner Lapland which arrived at New York Monday from Antwerp, Southampton and Havre was Miss Elizabeth L. Kneeland of 15 Oxford street, this town.

"JOE" PENDLETON RECALLS THE GOOD OLD DAYS

Winchester is justly proud of its "Joe" Pendleton, nationally famous college football official who in his long and honorable career on the gridiron has handled more than 600 school and college games. At 63 he is still calling them after 35 years of active service, but he admits that the game has changed considerably since the days when he was forced to escape in a machine after a contest in which one of the outstanding features was the readiness on the part of followers of the teams involved to indulge in gun play at the slightest provocation.

Mr. Pendleton finds sportsmanship has replaced old rough and ready tactics of by-gone years, and while he thrills to the friendly spirit existing among rivals of the present generation he can't entirely repress a quiet chuckle when he recalls the days when literally anything went and the village blacksmith and neighboring longshoremen played fullback and tackles for many college varsity clubs.

John T. Brady in last Sunday's edition of the "Boston Post" recounts at length many interesting anecdotes of Mr. Pendleton's officiating career. To those who attended last season's banquet of the Winchester Town Team the stories were not new for most of them were recounted on that occasion by "Joe" himself in his inimitable style.

There was the game at Morgantown, West Virginia, between two rival colleges with a few stalwarts among the "ringer" members of their elevens and 5000 partisan miners swarming onto the field immediately after the opening whistle. "Joe" and his brother official "Mike" Thompson, dean of all college officials, were spirited away from the angry mob after the visiting team had won and the police force had refused to risk his life to protect the pair for a paltry $2 per day.

Gouging, twisting, slugging and kicking were all a part of the game in the early days of "Joe's" career and the latter recalls Mr. Thompson's relief as he bent over a prone player, who had apparently lost an eye, to find that the lad had a glass optic and had left it in the gym for fear it might be broken during the game.

"Joe" himself had an odd experience while working in a game when a player rushed up to him and gave him a tooth which had been pried from his jaw to keep for him until after the contest. On another occasion a boy who had been complaining of the slugging tactics of the opposition showed Mr. Pendleton a handful of teeth which had been knocked out of his mouth as proof of his contention. But it's all changed now, and we wonder if sometimes "Joe" misses a bit the thrill of yesteryear when officials took their lives in their hands when they went out to work in a real objective football game.

WINCHESTER PACKARD INC. IN NEW QUARTERS NOV. 1

Mr. Roy A. Metler announces that the Winchester Packard Inc., local distributor of the popular line of Packard motor cars, will occupy its fine new show room and garage at 666 Main street on Nov. 1.

This strictly modern plant which includes a spacious and well lighted repair shop will make it possible for Winchester Packard to serve its motoring public to the best possible advantage. Local motorists generally will be pleased to learn that Comeau & Castle, repair specialists, are to be associated with Mr. Metler at Packard headquarters and will handle the important service department of his business.

Among those who extended greetings to the president of Rotary International, Sydney W. Pascal of London, Eng., upon his arrival in Boston last Sunday was Mr. Alfred H. Marchant of Rangeley, past president of Boston Rotary.

FATAL ACCIDENT ON CAMBRIDGE STREET

Cambridge Nurse Loses Life as Truck and Auto Crash

A Collision between a Pierce Arrow touring car and a truck early last Friday evening on Cambridge street near Pond street resulted in the death of Miss Anna Morrison of 82 Peterboro street, Boston, who was riding in the automobile which was driven by William S. Chamberlain of 141 Capen street, Medford.

According to the police account of the accident the touring car was proceeding south on Cambridge street and failed to negotiate a sharp turn in the road, sideswiping the truck which was driven by Martin L. Boyle of 41 Franklin avenue, West Medford and owned by Harry Good, well known local riding master.

The automobile was one of the old style right hand drive models and Miss Morrison was sitting on the left front seat. The entire left side of the machine was torn away and Miss Morrison was thrown to the road.

Police Headquarters was notified of the accident and Sergt. John H. Noonan with Patrolmen James F. Noonan and Joseph J. Derro hastened to the scene in the department's Ford.

Miss Morrison was unconscious when the authorities arrived. She was placed upon an automobile seat in lieu of a stretcher and taken to the hospital by Patrolman Derro and Arthur J. Humphrey of 47 Pond street in a truck owned by Howard the Florist of Somerville and driven by James J. Pinos of 8 Bradford avenue, Somerville. Chamberlain and Boyle were taken to the hospital by Patrolman Noonan in the Police car.

Dr. Sanford N. Moses pronounced Miss Morrison dead upon her arrival at the hospital, and treated Chamberlain for abrasions to his knee and hand and a deep gash on the forehead. Medical Examiner Vernon L. Stewart of Woburn was summoned and viewed Miss Morrison's body, pronouncing death due to a fractured skull, crushed chest and compound factures of both arms and left leg.

Among her effects was found the name and address of Mrs. E. C. Haines of 386 Memorial drive, Cambridge, and from Mrs. Haines the police learned that the dead woman had been employed as a nurse in the Haines family. A sister of Miss Morrison, Mrs. Fred Warren of 82 Peterboro street, Boston, identified the body.

The automobile in which Miss Morrison and Chamberlain were riding was completely wrecked and was towed to the Central Garage. The truck, in which were two prize horses of the Good stable, was not badly damaged and the horses were unharmed.

As a result of the investigation conducted by the police, Sergt. John H. Noonan placed Chamberlain under arrest, and he appeared in the District Court at Woburn Tuesday morning, charged with manslaughter, with driving while under the influence of liquor and with operating so as to endanger lives. His case was continued by Justice Jesse W. Morton until Nov. 5.

JOHN COLLINS

John Collins, 45, formerly of Arlington, died Thursday morning, Oct. 22, at his home, 38 Henry street. Death was wholly unexpected, he having apparently been recovering from an operation which he underwent several weeks ago and on Wednesday had improved sufficiently to visit Arlington center.

Mr. Collins was a native of Saunders, England, and the son of the late John and Helen Collins. As a boy he came to this country and settled in Arlington where he was educated in the public schools and was employed as janitor of the Menotomy Trust Company and First Unitarian Church in that town. His duties brought him in contact with many residents of Arlington and he enjoyed a wide circle of acquaintances and friends.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Abbie (Magee) Collins, and five daughters, Helen, Edith, Eleanor, Barbara and Marjorie. Four brothers: Charles of Arlington, Harry of Medford, Ernest of Lexington and James Collins of Somerville.

Funeral services were held last Sunday afternoon in St. John's Episcopal Church, Arlington. Burial was in Wildwood Cemetery.

Henry L. Shattuck, treasurer of Harvard College, will speak at the Arlington Chamber of Commerce meeting to be held Tuesday evening, Nov. 3 at 6:30 at the Middlesex Sportsman's Club, Arlington. His subject will be "State and Municipal Finance."

WINCHESTER RED CROSS

The Annual Roll Call for the American Red Cross begins this year on Armistice Day, Nov. 11, extending through Thanksgiving. The quota for the Winchester Chapter is 2000 members.

Since our last roll call the local chapter has done much in relief work for our local community. We have helped many families with loans of money to tide them over an emergency. We have supplied coal, milk, food; we have paid doctor and hospital bills and rents. We have helped secure jobs for many of our unemployed men. We have helped with the Town Committee and supplied Christmas and Thanksgiving dinners.

During the summer the swimming instructor gave lessons in swimming and life saving at Sandy Beach for 10 weeks. We have filled our quota of 50 bags sent to the men in service in foreign ports and our quota for clothes (usually sent to some disaster stricken community) has yet to be filled. Many appeals will come to the people of Winchester during this coming winter—some from outside organizations but it is our first duty to see that our own townspeople are fed, clothed and kept warm. Only a very small per cent of checks over $1 goes to Washington the majority of the larger donations returns to help Winchester people.

Our fundamental duty is the ex-service man and his family but we have reached out in many directions with a helping hand to the unemployed man and his family so that it makes it essential that we not only reach our quota on memberships but that we ask for generosity in larger donations toward carrying on our work here in Winchester. We ask that these donations be sent to our treasurer, Mr. William Priest, at the Winchester Savings Bank.

JUNIOR GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR FORMED

The Misses Marie and Rose Felt of Oxford street, held a bridge party at their home last Friday evening for the purpose of organizing a Junior Guild of the Infant Saviour. After bridge, Mrs. Virgil Ghirardini of Foxcroft road, president of the Senior Guild, spoke to the girls, offering suggestions as to the formation of the club. Then the various officers were appointed for the current year and Mrs. Grace Hayes of Laurel street, was chosen president, Miss Rose Felt, treasurer, and Miss Ruth Clancy of Arlington, secretary. Miss Dorothy Day of Ridgefield road was placed in charge of the entertainment for the meetings, and Miss Muriel Carr of Highland avenue, has charge of publicity. Among those who attended were Mrs. Grace Hayes, Miss Marie Ahearn, the Misses Elizabeth and Helen McCauley, the Misses Dorothy and Lillian Day, all of Winchester; Miss Ruth Clancy of Arlington, and the Misses Pelletier of Medford.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Held by Winchester Laundry Office and Sales Department Employees

Hallowe'en magic cast its spell over the jolly party held Tuesday evening, Oct. 26 by the employees of the Winchester Laundry office and sales department. The party was held in the Odd Fellows Hall in Winchester.

Very unique and bewitching costumes presented themselves, first prize being won by Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Ambrose; second prize, by Barbara Finlan. Mirth provoking games, dancing and refreshments made the evening complete.

Miss Winnifred Thompson, as chairman of the committee, was commented on her splendid work. She was assisted by Margaret MacIntyre, Esther Leydon, Marguerite Merrill, George Widtfeldt, Richard Morgan and Mr. C. W. Tate.

MISS MARY E. FLYNN

Miss Mary E. Flynn, a life long resident of Winchester, died Saturday morning, Oct. 24, at her home on Rumford street. She was 75 years old.

Miss Flynn was the daughter of Michael and Margaret (Bowler) Flynn. She was born in Winchester, attended its public schools and for many years was widely known as a dressmaker.

She leaves a brother, John E. Flynn, with whom she made her home, and a sister, Mrs. Thomas Feeney of Woburn.

The funeral was held Monday morning from the late residence with a requiem high mass in St. Mary's Church. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

WON RIVERS SCHOOL EVENT

Frank Gregory, 15 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Gregory of Forest street, won the trophy for scoring the most points in the senior division of the Rivers School Horse Show, staged last Saturday at Open Circle Farm, the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Lewis in Newton Center. Among young Gregory's notable wins were a blue in the senior musical chairs and a red in the egg and spoon competition for seniors.

WINCHESTER CHAPTER GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

The regular meeting of the Winchester Chapter, Guild of the Infant Saviour will be held Tuesday, Nov. 3, at Fortnightly Hall.

After a short business meeting there will be a food sale in charge of Mrs. M. Hintlian and Mrs. E. Cox.

Come and bring home a loaf of home-made cake. All donations will be gratefully received.

GOOD WORK!

The real benefactor of mankind counts his store in what is spent, not in what is saved. The time has arrived to help our fellow man and cheer him up in these strenuous times.

The first consideration at present is that "Charity begins at home." Winchester needs help. Many destitute cases are reported while others are too proud to let their condition be known. We are proud of our community and should be proud of our deeds, so cannot afford to let conditions of utter distress go unnoticed.

There are several commendable groups doing their utmost to relieve the burdens of others here and elsewhere. It is high time that we put the spotlight on Winchester. Money should be given and spent in Winchester for Winchester.

Thanksgiving is nearing and what better time could be more opportune for a gesture of helping our fellowman. Food, clothing, shoes and coal are the necessities in great demand by many unfortunate families.

A local organization, the Elks, are striving to do their share in this noble work. Their standing as a fraternal organization and as a great asset to the welfare work of this town is vouched for by many who have been acquainted with their work. While they have benefitted many outside institutions and still doing it, the time has arrived when they deem it necessary to concentrate on the needs of our own community. To help the Elks is to help Winchester.

One dollar, admits a gentleman and lady to their annual Charity Ball, to be held in the Town Hall, Thursday, Nov. 19. A week before Thanksgiving. The entertainment is to be first class and the dance music will be a revelation. That dollar or more would be a powerful factor in consummating a fund to be immediately put to work helping some family in dire straits. Do your bit and feel happy!

Instead of reaching for a lucky—reach for a ticket. That's the spirit! If you are not interested in tickets, send a donation. Both can be gratefully handled by George H. Lochman, treasurer of the Charity Ball committee and appreciated by the Winchester Lodge of Elks.

PREVENTIVE MEDICINE

Under the heading "Preventive Medicine from Your Family Physician" the State Department of Public Health has issued two brief statements of interest to all the people. One is as follows:

"There are at least three common diseases that can be prevented. Any case of these diseases in your family means that available methods have not been used.

(1) Smallpox may be prevented through vaccination. Recently smallpox has been widely spread over the country.

(2) Typhoid fever may be prevented through the periodic injection of typhoid vaccine. "Vacation" typhoid is mounting with the increased crowding of the country.

(3) Diphtheria can be prevented in all your family. Your family physician will explain how.

Periodic health examinations at all ages may save you from diseases of middle life due to "wear and tear," such as Bright's disease, hardening of the arteries, cancer, apoplexy, chronic arthritis and diabetes. These diseases are increasing and can be combated by corrected habits and early recognition."

The other states:

(1) Thorough examination by a doctor and dentist;

(2) Prompt correction of any remediable defects found;

COMMUNITY RELIEF COMMITTEE

On Tuesday evening, Oct. 27, representatives from 24 Winchester organizations met in the little Town Hall, with Mr. George T. Davidson, chairman of Community Service of the Rotary Club of Winchester in the chair.

This group voted to form a committee to be known as the Community Relief Committee of Winchester, with the following officers:

Chairman Mr. Frederic S. Snyder.
Vice Chairman Mr. George T. Davidson.
Secretary Mrs. Henry W. Hildreth.
Treasurer Mr. Frank E. Crawford.

Several sub-committees will be formed, their chairmen to serve on the Advisory Board, and their members to come from the various town organizations.

It was the general opinion that a card census would be the best way to obtain information valuable to this committee. It is hoped that when these cards are received they will be answered promptly. By answering promptly, every one in Winchester will have a share in helping the work of this committee.

TO WORK AGAINST RED MENACE

A meeting of the Safety Committee of the Winchester Chapter of the D. A. R., held last Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Sewall E. Newman of Cliff street. After the luncheon, Mrs. Charles J. Bullock of Cambridge, the State Chairman of Membership, spoke on increasing the membership of the organization as a preventative for the spread of the Red menace in America. She stated that it was their object "to prepare and prevent, rather than to repair and repent." There were 21 members present and Mrs. Percy J. Catuna of Waverly, as Regent, presided.

In September there was a get-together meeting at the summer home of Mrs. E. A. Bigelow, at Antrim, N. H. There were 23 members and guests present, who drove from Winchester and the surrounding towns to Antrim to attend the out-door picnic.

The police were called to a residence on Spruce street last Sunday night, a theft having been reported. Patrolman Clarence Dunbury found upon arrival that a dagger had been stolen from beneath the pillow of its owner sometime between 9 and 11 o'clock. The authorities are investigating.

We have lately had two striking examples of the reaction of youngsters to indiscriminate "movies." The boy who staged the imaginary train wreck and the eight-year-old chieftain of the band of boy and girl robbers operating around Gloucester are quoted as admitting they got their ideas from motion pictures. Some day we will either eliminate films which tend to glorify crime or at least make it impossible for children to see them.

Hallowe'en will be observed tomorrow night and a certain amount of boisterousness is expected from the youth of the town. In past years this spirit of mischief has, with but few exceptions, been kept well within bounds and it is to be hoped that such will be the case tomorrow. Many property owners about town have reached the limit of their patience with the destructive spirit which has this fall been rather more in evidence than formerly, and the police, spurred on by some rather sharp criticism, will be unlikely to deal leniently with any cases of malicious mischief which they may encounter. It would be well for parents to impress this fact upon their sons and daughters before they start out on their evening's activities.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Lewis Parkhurst the STAR is able to print this week a summary and views of the improvements to the Aberjona River at Swanton street. This represents a portion of the development of our waterways in accordance with the Kellaway Plan, and that this particular step has been carried to completion under the direction and payment by Mr. Parkhurst is due to his initiative in aiding the project by individually purchasing the land involved and giving the Town the benefit. That the results more than justify the opinions held by leading citizens regarding the benefits to be derived, is beyond question. Mr. Parkhurst's letter is recommended for reading by every citizen. His opinion regarding present conditions and the opportunity to aid worthy workers and the Town at large is well founded and expressed. No more opportune time could be found for the expressing of this sentiment nor for the execution of the idea.

The Manchester Field memorial is now officially dedicated and no one will quarrel with the statement that it has added much to the attractiveness of the entrance to Winchester's most used playground. It is now high time for the town to do something about the actual playing surface of the field which is in just about as poor condition as is possible and still permit the playground to be used. The present condition is the result of years of neglect and each year which passes finds the cost of repair proportionally higher. The turf on the playing surface of the field is almost entirely gone so that a dry spell of any length results in a dusty condition which has resulted in illness for those using the playground for sports and for spectators. This fall the condition of the field caused a vigorous protest from the Concord High School authorities who required some persuading before they would permit their boys to play their football game with Winchester. No one who has experienced the blinding clouds of dust which even a moderate breeze can raise at Manchester Field will blame them. The field hockey court has to be seen to be believed. Full of holes, and noticeably uneven it is a constant menace. The use of the field for fireworks and golfing practice has added the finishing touches. We know times are hard but the situation at Manchester Field is one which needs attention. It is a particularly short sighted policy to spend the money which we do for a physical education program which the condition of the playground in use goes far to nullify. The Park Board is alive to the situation and has been for some time. It is seeking funds for a comprehensive program of improvement. Such a program will not prove too costly and it should be undertaken. The gentleman in whose honor we dedicated the memorial boulder two weeks ago, if he could walk across the field, would not be especially proud of the playground which his vision and energy made possible for the town.

BUILDING PERMITS GRANTED

The Building Commissioner has issued permits for alterations and the erection of buildings on the property owned by the following for the week ending Thursday, Oct. 22:

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Kinnane, Winchester—new private one-car garage at 58 Salem street.

Hannah J. Carlson, Winchester—new private two-car garage at 527 Washington street.

J. A. Laraway, Winchester—addition of a garage to rear of present building 7-9-11 Park street.

Gertrude K. Barstow, Winchester—to wreck and remove present tool shed on lot at 189 M. V. Parkway.

Gertrude K. Barstow—new private one-car garage on lot at 189 M. V. Parkway.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The Fortnightly held its first meeting of the season in the Town Hall on Monday, Oct. 26.

At 2 o'clock a reception was held for new members with the new officers of the club in the receiving line. Mrs. Mary E. Siedhof, chairman of Hospitality, with her very able committee, proved most efficient, giving everyone a feeling of friendliness.

The meeting opened promptly at 2:30 p. m. with Mrs. Idabelle H. Winship, the new president, in the chair. The chairmen of the various committees were seated on the platform and were introduced to the club members so they might feel better acquainted and in closer touch with one another.

Mrs. Mary L. Ghirardini, chairman of music, led the singing of "America, the Beautiful," which was followed by the salute to the flag.

The minutes of the past meeting were read by Mrs. Irene T. Clarke, recording secretary, after which, the President greeted the members and said that it was her earnest desire for everyone to have a feeling of friendliness in the club this year. She said that mingled with the joy of coming together again there was a tinge of sadness also, and asked the members to stand for one minute in silent prayer, in reverence for the five members, who have passed on since the last meeting. She thanked the department chairmen for the good work they and their committees had done, including Mrs. Ada von Rosenvinge for her unique and interesting year book, saying that many compliments had been received by her from other clubs, commenting on the book.

Mrs. Anna C. Grosvenor, Federation Secretary, mentioned "Federation Topics" for those interested, as a medium for news of other clubs. She announced the next Federation meeting to be held Friday, Oct. 30, at the Marlboro Woman's Club.

Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker is to speak on "Geneva 1931." Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, 1st Vice-President of the General Federation, is to be present.

Mrs. Amy G. Grant, chairman of American Home, announced an all day meeting at the next Fortnightly to be held in the Town Hall, Nov. 9, from 10 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. A cafeteria luncheon of sandwiches, cake, doughnuts, and coffee will be served. A course of lectures sponsored by the American Home Department will be held at Universalist Parish House, Pleasant street, Malden at 2:30 p. m. as follows: Nov. 20, "Fear, Normal and Abnormal" by Dr. Abraham Myerson; Dec. 11, "Problems of Modern Family Life" by Dr. David D. Vaughan; Jan. 15, "Understanding Ourselves and Others" by Mrs. T. Grafton Abbott; Feb. 12, "Religion in the Home" by Rev. Russell Henry Stafford.

Mrs. Margaret T. Hintlian, chairman of Art, announced a pottery club is being formed. This is a wonderful opportunity to make all kinds of pottery under a very able teacher. here is also to be a rummage sale, the date to be announced later.

Miss Jean MacLellan, Conservation chairman, stated there would be the usual Thursday morning health walks at 9 o'clock under the leadership of Mrs. Helen MacDonald.

Mrs. Nellie S. Sawyer requested members to kindly notify her of any illness of members that come to their attention.

Mrs. Lillian A. Whitman, chairman of Dramatics, announced a three act play "Love in a Mist" to be given at the Nov. 23 meeting.

Mrs. A. Beatrice Thompson, chairman of Legislation gave a most constructive report, explaining some of the causes for the world wide depression and economic conditions today and read a letter send by Mrs. Jessie Jack Hooper, Federation Secretary of the Woman's Clubs of the Department of International Relations, stressing the need for disarmament and the joining of the U. S. to the World Court. She says that neither of these are partisan questions, they effect the whole country and the whole world, and urges all club members to help bring about a readjustment by signing the petition for the U. S. to join the World Court and Disarmament. Those who have not signed are urged to get in touch with Mrs. Thompson.

Mrs. May C. Kennedy, chairman of Literature, and her committee have arranged a program for the study of the life and writings of Lafcadio Hearn, who is one of the outstanding contributors to American Literature. An invitation is extended to all those in whom the spirit of romance and adventure still lives.

Mrs. Lillian H. Ambler, chairman of Membership, read the names of new applicants for membership and she and her committee were commended by the President for their good work.

Mrs. Mary L. Ghirardini, chairman of music, announced rehearsals would begin Tuesday, Nov. 3, at 10 a. m. in Fortnightly Hall with Mr. J. Albert Wilson, as its able director.

A very vivid picture was portrayed for members of the activities of the State Federation held last May at Swampscott by the splendid reports given by Mrs. Anna G[illegible] and Mrs. Alice Jenkins. Mrs. Grosvenor mentioned what an impressive audience it was when 1200 women rose and sang "America the Beautiful" and said that the Convention Hall had never held a more inspiring group of women. Mrs. Jenkins very ably reported the programs of Wednesday afternoon and evening and spoke of the wonderful sight when 250 club presidents led the march down the hall at the evening meeting. The attendance was the largest the Federation ever had.

Mrs. Winship made announcement of the Grace Morrison Poole bazaar to be held at the Copley Plaza, Nov. 4. There is to be a bridge party both morning and afternoon; also a sale of food, jellies, fruit, fancy articles and a booth of dolls. Luncheon will be served ranging in price accordingly, from State luncheon to cafeteria. In the evening there will be a pop concert followed by dancing. The President urged all club members to make a special effort to attend this bazaar.

Mrs. Winship next introduced Mme. Araxy Odabashian, well known lyric soprano, accompanied by Mr. Variabedian. Her first group of songs were "Luogi dalcarolene" by Larti and "Ali, mai mon cessate" by Douandi. Her charming personality, as well as her well modulated voice, at once won her audience.

Mr. Variabedian, who is a pupil at Moulton Pianoforte School, Boston, played the "Prelude and Fugue of Bach;" "Seventh Waltz of Chopin;" "Schezo of Mendelssohn;" "The Little Flute of Ibert;" and "Fifth Etude of Chopin."

Appreciation and admiration was well expressed by the hearty applause of the audience.

Mme. Odabashian sang a group of American songs entitled "Do You Know My Garden," by Wood; "Slumbersong," by Gretenoff; and "Spring Interlude" by Mrs. Guelisian. In her closing group of a lecture recital of Armenian Folk songs, she was attired in a gorgeous, Oriental Court costume a family heirloom of over 200 years old. In this group she sang, "Groung," "Kele Kele," and "Berjengo." Her excellent interpretation, of these songs, rendered with rare feeling and a voice of clear quality was a fitting climax to the program.

Tea was served by Mrs. Grace B. Aseltine and her committee. The tables were most attractive, carrying out the colors of the fall, with yellow and brown asters for flowers.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S COUNCIL

Fall Conference of Woburn Association at First Congregational Church

The Young People's Council of the Woburn Association will hold its Fall Conference at the First Congregational Church, Sunday afternoon and evening, beginning at 4:30 o'clock. Words of welcome will be given by Bradford Bentley, president of the Young People's Society of the First Congregational Church, followed by an address, "Youth Leads," by Rev. Robert W. Coe, of Leyden Church, Brookline. Supper will be served at 6 o'clock. From 7 to 8 p. m. conferences will be held on the following subjects, "Choosing Your Life Work," leader, Rev. D. N. Beach Payson Park Church, Belmont; "Plans and Programs from Young People's Societies," leader, Rev. Sidney Lovett, Mt. Vernon Church, Boston; "Leadership Training for Young People," leader, Rev. Erwin L. Shaver, Leadership Training Secretary of Congregational Educational Society. From 8:15 to 8:45, Communion Service conducted by Dr. Chidley.

SURPRISED ON BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

Miss Katherine Gerrior of this town was pleasantly surprised last Saturday evening when she was guest of honor at a party in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James N. Smith on Hemingway street in honor of her 23rd birthday. An orthophonic victrola and a beautiful birthstone ring were presented to the surprised young lady.

An orchestra furnished music during the evening and an unusually good entertainment was furnished by talented guests, including dancing specialties by the Misses Mary Dwyer and Evelyn Dickenson, vocal selections by John Keady, George Stevens and Billy Dwyer, Boston tenor; and Irish numbers by Milton Emerald and Miss Katherine McGovern. Dainty refreshments were served.

C. D. OF A. NOTES

Grand Regent Frances T. Conlon and Historian Katherine F. O'Connor represented the local banquet and reception to the State Chaplain, Rt. Rev. Joseph F. McGlinchey at the Hotel Somerset, Boston, on Saturday evening, Oct. 24. Besides talks by the guests of honor and Supreme Regent Mary Duffy of New York, Mayor James M. Curley, delighted all with a splendid address on present day events. G. R. Frances Conlon was chairman of the entertainment program which concluded the evening's festivities and also contributed some delightful readings.

Plans have been concluded for the annual Hallowe'en party and all signs point to a most joyous event. Some fine prizes have been donated for the old-fashioned waltz and the best costumes. An orchestra under the direction of Miss Bernice Connell will furnish music for dancing and Miss Katharine F. O'Connor is chairman in charge of the evening.

WAS BROTHER OF AUGUSTUS J. BOYDEN

Roland W. Boyden, prominent Boston attorney, who died Sunday, Oct. 25, in the First Parish Unitarian Church, Beverly, following an acute heart attack, was the brother of Augustus J. Boyden of Central street.

The deceased was internationally known as America's "unofficial" observer with the Allied Reparations Commission and umpire of the commission considering American and German war claims, having been made a member of the delegation to the peace conference by President Wilson. During the war he was in charge of the enforcement division of the Federal food administration under Herbert Hoover.

For four years he served with the Reparations Committee and later represented the United States at the World Finance Conference at Brussels. Comptroller for Austria and Hungary, fiscal advisor to Poland and American Ambassador to Japan are some of the posts for which he was considered.

His most recent appointment was that of president of the arbitrational tribunal, set up under The Hague agreement of 1930 to deal with German reparations. His appointment had the approval of all the great powers. He also had been named, on the elevation of Charles Evans Hughes to the position of chief justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, the American delegate to the permanent international tribunal at The Hague, which he had accepted, although the position was expected to prove largely an honorary one. He attended the world economic conference at Geneva.

For his services to the various conferences on European affairs he received decorations from a number of governments: The Belgian grand cross of the Order of Leopold; grand officer of the Order of the Crown of Rumania the French Legion of Honor, commander of the Order of Dannebrog of Denmark, and an Austrian decoration.

Mr. Boyden was a native of Salem a graduate of Exeter in the class of 1881, and of Harvard, in 1885, playing on both the baseball and football teams. He was graduated from Harvard Law School in 1888 and at the time of his death was a member of the Boston law firm of Ropes, Gray, Boyden and Perkins.

50 YEARS IN BUSINESS

On Nov. 1, 1931, 50 years will have passed since the firm of Stone & Forsyth Co. came into existence. During this entire time the present Treasurer, Mr. Edward H. Stone has been at the head our Company. While many live to complete 50 years in one line of business, few are privileged to see the 50th anniversary of a Company, during which time they have been at the head, and in celebration of this event, the directors, executives, and salesmen of the Company are tendering Mr. Edward Stone a dinner on Tuesday, Nov. 3 at the Hotel Somerset, Boston, as a slight token of appreciation and regard at this momentous occasion in his business career, an event that few are ever privileged to see, namely, the completion of 50 years of successful business endeavor.

Kept His Feet Down

It is recalled by his admirers that Jefferson invented a swivel chair. While in office however, he did not make a practice of sitting in it for hours together, with his feet on the desk. – Minneapolis Journal.

OUR ROVING CENTER OF POPULATION

Westward continues the course of empire, and a trifle southward, too. Latest figures from the Bureau of the Census place the center of population of the United States in Stockton Township, Greene County, Indiana, not far from the town of Linton. In the 10 years that have intervened since the last census the population bulk of the country has shifted 22.3 miles westward and 7.6 miles southward.

An interesting story is revealed in the slowly moving dots that mark centers of population since 1790, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. While the average movement has been only three miles a year the trend has been always westward, mostly along the line of the 39th parallel of latitude, with occasional jogs to the north and south.

Like the Gauges on an Engine

Like the gauges on a steam engine that reveal steam pressure, water, air-brake pressure, speed, etc., the census dots, by erratic little movements each 10 years, indicate just what has been taking place in the great engine that is the United States. Cattle, wheat, oil, real estate booms, resorts, motion pictures, minerals, cotton, fruit and national defense, all have "jiggled" the census gauge.

With a preponderance of people in the great cities of the northeastern part of the country a major migration is needed to move the gauge even the slightest bit. Yet, in 140 years the advances have totaled some 589 miles. While it has slowed considerably in the last 40 years, there is nothing to indidcate that the center of population has reached a "dead center."

Trace the movements of the 10-year dots that mark the successive taking of the census, and for each important event in our national life a corresponding jog in the center of population will be noticeable. The first census in 1790 placed the center of population near the city of Baltimore. In the next 10 years the center of population shifted almost 40 miles west, and a trifle south, due to the Louisiana Purchase.

The growing south continued to exert a steady pull on the population center during the next 30 years, although the greatest movement was toward the West. Increasing population of Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, and Georgia, and the annexation of Florida, pulled the gauge down by 1830 to a point about 16 miles east of Moorfield, in what is now the State of West Virginia, then Virginia.

Growth of the prairie States, and of Michigan and Wisconsin, turned the tide northward again between 1830 and 1840, and also sent it on a long jump west to the vicinity of Clarksburg, West Virginia. The annexation of Texas is clearly discernible in its southward movement during the next decade.

The progressive period preceding Civil War, the "gilded age" of farming in the Middle West, jumped the center of population from West Virginia well into Ohio, reaching a point southeast of Chillicothe. If one did not know that the Southern States were devastated by the Civil War there is a hint of it in the northward movement of the center during the next decade. It is said, too, that the count of some Southern States was not so reliable for some decades after the negroes had been enfarnchised.

The next 20 years saw the population dot again on the move, with a dip down into Kentucky and a long hurdle over into Indiana, where it remained for the next 40 years—up to the present. Although it has moved very slowly in the last few years, the trend will remain westward if the Pacific Coast States continue their population advances. California alone increased about 2,250,000 in the last decade.

Kansas Has Geographical Center

The center of population, however, has a considerable distance to travel if it ever intends to coincide with the geographical center of the United States. This point has been determined to be in Smith County, Kansas—latitude 39 degrees, 50 minutes; and longitude 98 degrees, 35 minutes.

A simple but ingenious method was devised as one way to determine this spot in western Kansas, which is midway between the extreme outer fringes of continental United States (excluding Alaska). A large map of the United States was pasted on a sheet of cardboard and the cardboard trimmed to conform to all the indentations, even the most minor, around the map. The balancing point, found by the use of pins, is the geographic center of the United States. Some 675 miles separate it from the present population center.

EXPEDITION CONQUERS THE HIMALAYAS

Met by a caravan of 60 camels and 60 horses that had been waiting for several months, the Citroen-Haardt Trans-Asia Expedition has transferred its equipment from its ponies used in rough mountain work through the rugged and rocky trails of the Himalayas and has reached Tashkurgan on the northern slope of the great mountain barrier in Sinkiang (Chinese Turkestan).

News that the Expedition has won its way through the Himalayas in one of the worst seasons known in years when many precipitous trails had been washed out by floods, came in a wireless message received by the National Geographic Society headquarters here. The camels bearing food, bedding and tents were lost for a day on the last leg of the journey to Tashkurgan, the message stated, and the members of the Expedition were forced to sleep on the cold ground and had short rations.

The Expedition still has about 150 miles of mountainous region to traverse before reaching Kashgar where it will meet the China unit equipped with special tractor type automobiles that have come overland from Peiping (Peking) to facilitate the journey on the main expedition across China.

Tashkurgan was reached on Sept. 8, but because the expedition was far from telegraph and wireless facilities, Georges-Marie Haardt, the leader, had to send a courier back into India to the end of the British telegraph line at Mintaka before word could be gotten to America.

Since Sept. 1 when the expedition left Misgar in the extreme northern portion of Kashmir (India) it has suffered many hardships, climbing over 15,600-foot Kilik Pass, and the slightly lower Wakhjir Pass into Afghanistan. The nights have been freezing cold, and part of the travel has been through driving rain, sleet and snow.

The party passed close to the remote point where Russia, China, Afghanistan and India meet and the leaders were entertained in the neighborhood in the felt yurts—the tent-like houses—of Khirmshiz natives. There the household duties of the women consist of milking yaks and rolling felt from yak hair with their forearms. Yak cream formed the principal delicacy in the feast tendered the visitors.

Memory Came Back

La Fontaine, having attended the funeral of a friend, absent-mindedly went to call upon him a short time afterward.

"Dead? Impossible?" he exclaimed on hearing the sad news; then recollecting himself, he patted the servant's arm.

"True enough," he said. "I was there."—Golden Book Magazine.

ABERJONA RIVER DEVELOPMENT
Section Above Swanton Street With Development Completed

ABERJONA IMPROVEMENT

Lewis Parkhurst Completes Work of Beautifying and Cleaning River Above Swanton Street

Sometime in the early summer you asked me to explain what I was having done along the Aberjona River between Swanton street and the main line of the Boston & Maine Railroad and the cost of this work. I replied that when the work was completed I would do so. It has been completed.

I purchased eight acres of swamp land bordering the river on both sides. It was a filthy hole. For years the stream had been flowing through it in a muddy, sluggish manner. During this way and time, and the whole area was permeated with odors and the dumping from factories and dwelling houses that emptied into the river. Sewage and turtles [illegible] every tool on a boarding piece for [illegible] A number of [illegible] any [illegible] report of the Waterways Committee published in 1928, printed and distributed throughout the town at that time, also on page 2 of the same report. One could not go across this land without sinking ankle deep in two to six feet deep.

I decided to treat this tract as nearly as possible in accordance with Mr. Kellaway's recommendation as presented in that report, namely, to dredge a part of the area and use the material removed to fill the rest, so that in the end we would have either water or dry land. That has been done. A tract of land about 30 feet wide has been made around the outside, over which one can go afoot or drive a truck, if need be. The rest is water, a pond one-third of a mile long, about five acres in area, practically the same in area and shape as Pond No. 1 outlined in the second map opposite page 68 in the report referred to above. Plans and specifications were made, grade lines established, bounds set, and levels furnished by Messrs. James Fitzgerald & Sons, who represented me on the work when I was out of town. They were most helpful in many ways during the entire progress of the work and took personal charge of the grading and seeding after the dredging was finished.

Cost

On the 65th and 67th pages of the 1928 report is given an estimate of the cost of doing the work from the Main street bridge and the dam to the Woburn line, divided into seven sections, totaling $198,600. This Pond No. 1 is part of this report and calls for an expenditure of $46,800. At the time the report was written I thought that the estimate was too high, but the author said that in public works it was much better to make estimates too high than to make them too low and then be obliged to ask for further appropriations. This custom I heartily approve. Therefore the estimates were published as originally made, but after they were made public some of the citizens said the estimates were entirely too low. The only way to find out was to do the work in one of these sections, and although this was the most expensive of the seven sections, it was the only one in which I could get complete control of the shores.

Careful specifications were made calling for dredging to be done to grade 21.5, which is nearly the same as the grade at the top of the dam in the center of the town, the land to be graded and seeded as one would a lawn, all to be done before Nov. 1. Sealed bids were called for with the following result:

| T. Quigley, Jr., Winchester | $45,650.00 |
| A. P. Rounds, Stoneham | 27,970.00 |
| James J. Fitzgerald Co., Winchester | 23,760.00 |
| George M. Bryne, Winchester | 15,400.00 |

The bid of Mr. Bryne being the lowest the contract was awarded to him, and he has completed the work without one dollar of extras. Not only has he done this work to my entire satisfaction, but on his own initiative he filled in at his own expense a mosquito hole adjacent to my land, and by so doing added a considerable area of dry land on the east side of the stream. I hope he has made a reasonable profit and believe he has. Therefore to do the work it has cost 35 per cent of the estimate published in the report of 1928, and if the same percentage of cost for the other sections is maintained, the rest of this work can be done for about $50,000. I think any engineer would agree that this section was the most difficult part of the work to be done, and I see no reason why this saving in cost could not be made in other sections. Therefore, the question for the town to answer is, not will this work remaining undone be worth $198,600, but will it be worth approximately $50,000?

The cost of the land has not been considered in the work which I have done or in the work to be done, but the town already owns nearly all the land along the shores on which the work is to be done. The rest can be acquired for a very small sum.

Reasons for Doing the Work at this Time

Some of my friends have said, "What in the world possessed you in these hard times to do such an expensive piece of work?" and as many of your readers may feel the same way, I am very glad to give my reasons.

I was appointed in 1911 on a Waterways Committee to study methods of improving conditions bordering on our streams, and as a result of that study and a report printed at that time, the town purchased the Wadsworth property. A new dam and bridge were built and the stream between the center of the town and Bacon street was cleaned out and its shores graded and improved, but nothing was done above the dam. For 20 years I have been interested in changing these conditions on the upper part of the river, which were a serious liability, almost a menace, to our town. Again, in 1927, I served on another committee, and as a result of that committee's report the shores of Wedge Pond have been made an attractive approach to the town from the north, but so far nothing had been done in the main stream, which has been for years a carrier of filth and sewage through the center of the town and into the upper part of Mystic Lake.

The shores of the lower part of the stream, which is referred to as Section A in the Report of 1928, are controlled by the Metropolitan District Commission, and they have repeatedly said that as soon as the sewers through the town were completed and the town showed a determination to clear up the upper part of the stream, they would clear up their part. As evidence of their sincerity they took advantage of Mr. Bryne's dredger being in the stream below Wedgemere Station, and dredged out the stream opposite the station to the extent of their available funds. I feel sure that they will go on with that work as soon as funds can be appropriated, if the town goes on with its work. No appropriation was made by the town for doing anything along the Aberjona in 1931, and while the report of the Waterways Committee found on page 239 of the last Town Report is quite appreciative of the work of the 1928 committee and Mr. Kellaway's recommendation, one finishes reading the report with a feeling that not much will be done beside the purchase of the land in the immediate future and that perhaps the entire plan will never be carried out. Therefore as it seemed quite likely that this work in which I have been so interested for so many years would probably not be done in my lifetime, I concluded to see how one section of this stream would look if improved as recommended. I hoped such procedure on my part might encourage the town or some private individual to complete other sections at an early date, if my treatment of this swamp—perhaps the worst in town—met with the approval of my fellow townsmen.

Yet, there was another reason—an economic reason—why I had this work done at this time. I am a firm believer in thrift and I abhor extravagant and expensive habits, especially on the part of young people. For 50 years ever since I came to town I have advocated the necessity of saving for a rainy day.

The Rainy Day Is Here

Many of our people in this town as well as all over the country are out in the rain. We who are fortunate enough to have umbrellas should be willing to share them in part with our less fortunate brothers. What do these men need in these depressed and pessimistic days? Not the dole, which has nearly ruined England, but work. The world owes no man a living, but it owes every man an opportunity to make an honest living. While I believe in saving I do not believe in hoarding. When a man by hard work and economy, under the protection of society, has accumulated sufficient wealth to provide for his necessities, comfort, pleasure, and a reasonable provision for his descendents, if he is fortunate to have any surplus beyond that, he will get more satisfaction out of life and contribute more to his fellow men by using this surplus to improve the conditions of his own time than by leaving it to the uncertainty of the future.

Acting on this theory, I was able by doing this job to keep several men at work for about four months when it was very difficult to find employment, and, incidentally, destroy one of the favorite domiciles of our troublesome neighbor, the mosquito.

STARTLING REVELATIONS

"What the Eye Sees and the Ear Hears in Russia in 1931"

Lemons at $5 each, baths to be purchased for $3, soap at $10 a cake, "If you can find it," bed bugs in nearly every hotel and home, life reduced to a poverty level which leaves the poorest man in America better off than the richest in Russia, are some of the startling observations of Dr. Samuel M. Lindsay of Brookline, who has recently returned from that land of the Soviets.

And yet—city traffic light systems better than Boston's, excellent newspapers and magazines, radios in nearly every home, opera, plays and movies to be seen for almost nothing, and a people cheerful, enthusiastic and happy in the belief that in Bolshevism they have found the economic salvation which soon will sweep the whole world, makes Russia, says Dr. Lindsay "a land of contradictions."

They are determined to eliminate all religion from the heart of humanity. Their leaders teach the people that religion is only a weapon in the hands of the rich for oppressing the poor. This belief is fully treated by anti-religious propaganda picturing John D. Rockefeller beside the palatial new Baptist Tabernacle on Riverside Drive in New York, and J. Pierpont Morgan beside the Church of St. John the Divine.

Dr. Lindsay, a keen observer and an inspiring speaker, whose perspicacity and inimitable "Socratic wit" make his addresses enjoyable as well as interesting, will give the people of Winchester first hand information on "What the Eye Sees and the Ear Hears in Russia in 1931" at the Town Hall, Monday evening, Nov. 2 at 8 o'clock.

Dr. Lindsay's startling revelations concerning conditions in Russia and the tremendous potentialities of this people and the dangers attending the worldwide spread of propaganda in support of Bolshevism, will prove of commanding interest to our townspeople and in order that all who want to hear Dr. Lindsay may have an opportunity to do so, the First Baptist Church, under whose auspices the address will be presented, has arranged for the use of the Town Hall. Tickets may be obtained at the Star Office.

GRANADA MALDEN THEATRE

"Monkey Business," with the inimitable Four Marx Brothers as the stars, will be the side-splitting attraction that heads the program that opens a run of seven days at the big Granada Theater in Malden on Saturday. The Four Marx Brothers will be remembered for their work in "The Cocoanuts" and "Animal Crackers," the latter generally conceded to be the biggest laughing hit of last year. In "Monkey Business" the quartette continue their foolishness with a new line of screamingly funny gags and comedy business. Harpo, the silent member of the four, continues his excellent work on the harp. Chico, the dialect star, performs the stupid member of the quartette and entertains with his trick piano work. Groucho, of course with his huge moustache carries the burden of the comedy. Groucho's wise cracks and comedy delivery put him in a class by himself. It is utterly impossible to describe a comedy by the Marx Brothers because there never is any sense to it. "Monkey Business" is just plain crazy but it is guaranteed to make any person in the world laugh right out loud. It is every bit as funny as "Animal Crackers" which should be sufficient guarantee for any screen fan.

"The Big Gamble," starring Bill Boyd and Dorothy Sebastian, will be the second attraction on the Granada bill for Saturday. Written by Octavus Roy Cohen, "The Big Gamble," has a novel plot with many exciting situations. Briefly, it concerns a young chap, down on his luck, who agrees to commit suicide one year from date in order to secure the money to pay certain obligations. The plan includes his marriage to a girl he has never seen. Into this weird situation has been woven a story of unusual interest.

Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell in "Merely Mary Ann" is the tonliner on the bill that ends its run at the Granada on Friday. Miss Gaynor and Charles Farrell make up the most popular team in screen history and their appearance in "Merely Mary Ann" has been attracting capacity crowds. "The Star Witness" with Walter Huston, Chic Sale and Francis Starr, is the second feature on the current bill.

SALVATION ARMY APPEAL

Don' forget! The Salvation Army is now making its annual appeal for funds to maintain its various institutions! If you haven't done so, send a check at once to Treasurer G. Dwight Cabot of the Winchester Trust Company.

This is in many respects a critical year. Universal uneasiness and dissatisfaction prevail. Contempt for law is on the gain. Gangs of bandits run riot through the streets of many of our cities. More subtly, but none the less surely, forces of Communism and Sovictism are at work. Nor is there any depression in the ranks of the bootlegging industry. All of these enterprises welcome new recruits. All know instinctively that their best prospects, their easiest prey, are among the unemployed, the dissatisfied, the helpless victims of industrial conditions.

The Salvation Army is organized to reach such unfortunates as these; knows best how to extend the helping hand they so sorely need; spares no pains to relieve their misery, satisfy their hunger, and restore their self respect. Splendidly organized and equipped though it is, you must supply the means that will make this organization 100 per cent effective.

This is the year of the greater need. Give, if you never gave before, to help the Army reach these needy ones before hopelessness and utter despair get in their soul-devastating work.

STRAND ATTRACTIONS

From lofty heights to murky depths—from cruising the skies in a giant dirigible to searching the ocean bottom as a deep sea diver—such has been the diverse experiences of Jack Holt in his last two pictures. When Jack Holt appeared as commander of the airship in Columbia's giant spectacle of the air, "Dirigible," he little realized that his next call would take him 50 fathoms below the surface. His latest vehicle is "Fifty Fathoms Deep," also a Columbia picture, which will be the feature attraction at the Strand Theatre Malden, starting Saturday, Oct. 31. Jack plays the role of a hardened adventurer who loves his pal—so clean, honest, idealistic—more than anything else in the world. He could not bear to have him disillusioned or cheated because his standards were so high it would break him completely. Then he discovers his pal is unwittingly married to a cheap, cheating woman—one with whom he had had an affair. Such is the situation in "Fifty Fathoms Deep" with Jack Holt in the leading role and Loretta Sayers and Richard Cromwell heading the supporting cast. Cromwell gives another of his splendid characterizations which he showed himself capable of in "Tol'able David."

For the last few months the motion picture industry has been over run with gangster pictures, but at last we can have a relief with "Penrod and Sam" which will be the second attraction at the Strand next week. It is an adaptation of Booth Tarkington's classic of the same name. Leon Janney who will be remembered for his clever acting in "Sonny," "Father's Son," and "Old English" plays the leading role of Penrod with Junior Corbian is the pal Sam. "Penrod and Sam" is not a picture entirely for children. It is a picture for the whole family, for me, pa, sis, and brother. If there are some things that you have almost forgotten about your own childhood days, "Penrod and Sam" will bring them all back to you with many a laugh.

MYSTIC MALDEN THEATRE

A host of stars will appear on the program that opens its run at the Mystic Theater in Malden on Saturday. Buster Keaton's new comedy hit "The Sidewalks of New York" which the star is supported by Anita Page and Cliff Edwards, will be the main attraction on the bill for Saturday. Comical capers in a gymnasium, a screamingly funny adventure with gangsters, a love affair that results in his trying to reform a tough district land Buster Keaton in hilarious troubles. As the son of a millionaire he falls in love with Anita Page whose brother is one tough egg. Buster starts a gym and hopes to reform big brother, and, incidentally, poke him a few in the nose. "Sidewalks of New York" is a riot with Cliff Edwards contributing no little of the fun.

"Friends and Lovers," with Lily Damita, Adolph Menjou and Eric Von Stroheim as the featured players, is the second feature on the Mystic bill for Saturday. With three such capable stars "Friends and Lovers" could not help being an outstanding photoplay. With striking dialogue the plot moves from London to Paris and then to India. It is the story of two men, buddies, who fall in love with the same woman, later to discover that she was working a badger game on them both. Lily Damita plays the Continental maid who lures the unsuspecting male to his disillusionment. And it need not be said that Miss Damita is without a peer at this luring business. Menjou and Laurence Oliver are the soldier pals. Von Stroheim is cast as Miss Damita's husband and on his return to the screen he gives one of the most sardonic portrayals of his career. "Friends and Lovers" is sophisticated screen farce that will appeal to discriminating minds.

Richard Arlen in "Caught" heads the bill that ends its run at the Mystic on Friday. This story of the West is based on the career of "Calamity" Jane, a part played in the picture by Louise Dresser. "Night Life in Reno," with Virginia Valli as the star is the second feature on the current bill.

GRACE AND CHARM
—by—
Frances Mandel

CARE OF THE HANDS

The Hands,—to have soft, smooth, young-looking hands. That is of the utmost importance. Remember the first time you noticed that your hands were red, rough and sore. How humiliated you felt while he held your hands that evening. Oh, you know that he likes you a heap, but just like most men he just can't stand scrubby-looking hands. He likes the touch of a babe-like smoothness, the velvety touch of gentleness.

Why, women write me continually asking what to do for rough, chapped, old-looking hands. If you are trying to improve your hands, keep them out of hot water as much as you can. Hot water robs them of the oil moistures and makes them so sensitive, that they not only become red, but tend to wither, dry up and crack.

Never use a strong soap on the hands. Use only a bland, gentle soap. Then apply a good hand lotion, massaging well the fingers and palms. This is very helpful in keeping the hands shapely and smooth, and you should diligently apply this treatment daily. Use plenty of good hand lotion and your hands will always be lovely enough to wear jewels and soft enough to touch a baby's skin. Oh, he'll just be charmed under the caress of your gentle, silken touch.

Frances Mandel will answer questions on Grace and Charm if you will enclose a self-addressed envelope to Frances Mandel, 1030 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass.

"THANK YOU"

Again this year our splendid Girl Scouts under Commissioner Hall and our Boy Scouts under their leaders are helping us distribute posters for the Red Cross Roll Call.

We ask the co-operation of the town merchants in accepting and placing these posters in a prominent position in their shops. We wish to extend our thanks to these youngsters and our appreciation to their leaders.

LETTER TO WINCHESTER RED CROSS

September, 1931

Dear Mrs. Tufts:

Another summer has passed and again the people of Winchester are indebted to the Winchester Chapter of the American Red Cross for the pleasures and benefits derived from instruction in swimming and life-saving at Sandy Beach.

Mr. Carine, the new instructor, fulfilled your expectations in everyway. His splendid work demonstrated how valuable experience may be in teaching. Patient beyond belief, inspiring confidence where originally there was none, he deserves the highest commendation. His charts give you a scant idea of results obtained.

It is the wish of those of us who enjoyed these privileges that more Winchester residents would take advantage of them.

Thanking you and your board and trusting that Mr. Carine may be returned to us next season, we remain

Yours in appreciation,

WAKEFIELD TOO GOOD FOR WINCHESTER

Mystic Valley Contenders Run Up 27—6 Score on Inexperienced Local Eleven

Wakefield's fine football team, contenders for the Mystic Valley League championship, gave Winchester one of its worst defeats in years last Saturday afternoon at Wakefield, tallying 27 points while allowing the locals but six. A huge home-town crowd cheered Wakefield's every move.

Winchester's supporters had little opportunity to cheer for the Scarlet avalanche outclassed the Red and Black in every department of the game. Coach Linderman's boys never did have a chance to get going and it was not until just before the half that they succeeded in making a first down.

Wakefield last Saturday was the best schoolboy eleven we have seen since Watertown's wonder team of two years back. While not as effective through the air as the boys from the Arsenal town, Wakefield's running game with Dulong and Mugford carrying was perhaps a bit more potent than that boasted by the championship Watertown crew. Dulong is a very sweet running back indeed, faster than the great Kidd of Melrose straightaway and just as elusive. Mugford hits a line hard and holds his feet well.

We don't mean to imply that Wakefield hasn't a corking overhead game this year. Burbine is a fast, accurate passer and has two fine receivers in Dinan and Curley. Wakefield's protection for its passer is finely worked out and just about as effective as any we have seen. There are always two men between Burbine and the opposition.

While the Scarlet is not without its stars it is essentially an eleven man football team with every man in each play. Against Winchester the line had a great lift, the boys blocked well and there were always four men ahead of the runner who never failed to make the most of his splendid interference.

It was just another case of a well drilled veteran team against a group of boys, with but few exceptions playing their first game against first class opposition. Small wonder if the locals were a bit demoralized during the first half. Their showing on the whole was not so bad and they deserve plenty of credit for keeping their heads up in the face of a real beating and scoring when the opportunity presented itself. No club had crossed Wakefield's goal line previous to last Saturday when Dolan galloped about 30-yards for a touchdown after scooping up a free ball.

Little Dexter Mobbs was Winchester's hero, playing a mighty fine game at his right end post. Time and again in the second half he smashed into that flying Wakefield interference, making it possible for a team mate to make the tackle. Early in the game he recovered a Wakefield fumble, preventing a sure touchdown, and it was his gritty leap into a clump of Scarlet secondaries which resulted in Winchester's initial first down when Umpire Haggerty ruled interference. Mobbs literally gave everything he had and in the final quarter had to be helped off the field, completely exhausted.

Captain Flaherty played a strong game on the Winchester rushline, fighting every minute and doing his best to keep his green players from cracking wide open. Tofuri and Hal Knowlton in the backfield were towers of strength, the latter making half of Winchester's tackles, including several which were spectacular.

For Wakefield the victory was a costly one, for shortly before the end of the game, Captain Dulong was carried from the field with a bad shoulder injury which may keep him out of the Melrose game. Dulong was injured early in the afternoon and Umpire Haggerty tried vainly to get Coach Healey to withdraw him from the game. With a 20 point lead it would have seemed the part of wisdom to bench the Scarlet spark-plug, but Wakefield was evidently determined to run up as big a score as possible and Dulong remained in action.

It was the Scarlet captain who made Wakefield's first touchdown after a Burbine to Curley pass had placed the ball on Winchester's 10-yard line. An offside penalty forced the fighting locals back to their five-yard line where Dulong skirted Winchester's left end for the touchdown. Mugford failed to kick the goal.

As the teams changed goals for the second quarter Mugford and Dulong made it first down on Winchester's six yard line, but little Mobbs broke through to recover a fumble and Hannon booted the ball to midfield. Burbine returning to Winchester's 34-yard stripe. Winchester braced and yielded only five yards in three rushes, but on fourth down Burbine faded back and shot off a beauty pass cut to his left which was grabbed by Dinan at the five yard line and converted into a touchdown. Burbine dropped kicked the goal for the extra point.

Knowlton went in for Mills at halfback, and following Wakefield's kickoff a Winchester pass was intercepted and the ball run to the locals 30-yard line. Atwell made it first down on the 20-yard line, but a five yard penalty set back the Scarlet. Burbine made up the loss and on the next play Dulong circled Winchester's left end for the third touchdown. Burbine passed to Dinan for the score.

Shortly before the half Winchester got its first down when the officials ruled interference on Hannon's long pass to Mobbs.

Play had hardly resumed when a long pass from Burbine to Dinan took the ball to Winchester's 10-yard line. The locals, however, braced and on fourth down a beautiful tackle by Knowlton cut down Dulong and gave Winchester the ball.

The locals had to kick and as the final quarter began Wakefield had worked the ball to Winchester's 33-yard line. Here Dulong got away for an 18-yard romp, being hurled outside by Tofuri at the 15-yard line. In three rushes Mugford made it first down on the five yard line, from where Dulong went around his own right end for the score. Mugford hit center for the extra point.

Winchester's defense was stiffening. Tofuri was hurt running back the kickoff and Barksdale went into the game, McKee replacing the worn out Mobbs. Wakefield kicked and Lynch crashed the line for a first down on his own 35-yard line. A 15-yard penalty against Wakefield for communicating gave the locals a first down in enemy territory and a pretty pass from Knowlton to Dolan added a third first down at the Wakefield 36-yard line. Here Mugford intercepted a Winchester pass, but two fumbles lost Wakefield 17 yards and Dulong punted.

The ball struck at the Wakefield 40-yard line, but bounced along through a group of Wakefield boys back to the 30-yard line where it brushed a Scarlet player. Like a flash Dolan scooped it up and ran for a touchdown to the great and evident disgust of the entire Wakefield team and it supporters. Dulong was hurt on the play and was assisted off the field. McKee failed to kick the goal, and the game ended soon after.

First Score of the Year Against North Cambridge Caseys

Before a big crowd, including a large delegation from Winchester, the Winchester Town Team defeated the North Cambridge Knights of Columbus, 6—0, at Russell Field, Cambridge, last Sunday afternoon. Incidentally it was the first defeat of the year for the Caseys and the first time any eleven has scored upon their club which last season played under the name of St. John's Catholic Club.

The game was a fine one to watch, hard, but cleanly played. While good football was possible Winchester rather convincingly outplayed the Cambridge boys who had a noticeable weight advantage over the local team.

About midway through the opening quarter with the ball at midfield the Winchester rushline was through fast to block an attempted punt, the ball bounding back to the Cambridge 35-yard line where one of the Caseys recovered.

The Cambridge attack failed to find any holes in the rugged Winchester frontier and on fourth down another punt was tried. This time "Forgy" Doherty was through to block the ball which bumped along to the 15-yard line where it was given to Winchester.

With a touchdown in sight the local attack started clicking and a forward pass from Carroll to Fleming made it first down on the 5-yard line. Here "Jimma" Flaherty lived up to his sobriquet of "Five Yards" by dancing off tackle for the score. Winchester's attempt to pick up the extra point by rushing failed.

This ended the scoring though the Coach Amico's boys threatened in the second quarter when they had the ball a single foot from the North Cambrideg goal line on fourth down. "Dead" Horse" Chefalo lunged into the Casey horde and crossed the goal line, but was immediately hurled back and the Referee refused the forward progress of the ball, claiming that if Winchester couldn't make a foot cleanly, it wasn't entitled to the score; an interpretation of the rules not generally followed by officials.

Play during the second half was badly interfered with by the rain which fell in torrents and neither team could make its offense click. Winchester ran up 11 first downs to 1 for Cambridge, but after the second quarter never seriously threatened to tally. Cambridge was only able to approach the Winchester goal line by kicking.

SPORTS JOTTINGS

Mary Cutter and William S. Packer, Jr. brought a second tennis title to Boston University when they captured the mixed doubles championship in the annual fall open tournament of the Longwood Cricket Club, defeating a seasoned team of Longwood players, Miss Rosamond Newton and Arthur W. Ingalls, 6—4, 3—6, 6—4. In August the Winchester pair won the mixed doubles at the annual invitation tournament of the Eastern Yacht Club and individually won both the men's and women's singles.

Mary has played a whole lot of mighty good tennis during the season just past, having participated in 45 events of 22 tournaments in Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island. She won ten events, was runner up eight times and reached the semi-finals on five occasions. She is still coming and plans to improve her game by winter practice on the Longwood covered courts.

With Helen Bidwell, a former high school team mate, with Mary gave a tennis exhibition last week at Mt. Ida School in Newton. After their match both girls, who are now studying at the B. U. Sargent School and rank with the best college players in the country, explained the fine points of the game to the Mt. Ida student body.

That yell of exhultation you heard about dusk last Saturday was "Bill" Guy celebrating the 20—0 win of Kents Hill over Hebron.

A badly wrenched knee prevented Winchester's "Ollo" Lee from playing for Kents Hill against Hebron, but big "Dan" Smith was in the Kents Hill lineup and oddly enough played opposite Melrose "Art" Hannigan who worked at guard for Hebron. Rex Kidd, former Melrose ace, played quarterback for Hebron, but apparently had few opportunities to run wild during the game.

To afford opportunity for all hockey enthusiasts in Greater Boston to see the visiting Scotch eleven in action Boston Field Hockey Association games scheduled for last Saturday were scratched. This fact accounted for Winchester's failure to get into action on that date.

Capt. "Hennie" Knowlton scored three touchdowns last Saturday to aid in Springfield's 54—0 win over Middlebury. It is said that the sturdy Winchester boy made his first touchdown this fall after three years of play in the gymnasts' backfield. His assignment has been to take them out and when "Hennie" hits 'em they stay hit.

Those who have seen Frank Frongillo box believe that with proper handling the husky Town Team lineman can go places in the fistic game. Frank boxed not long ago at Lewiston, Me., flattening his opponent in four rounds. The Winchester boy is being handled by the veteran "Johnnie" McGovern of Woburn and seconded by "Archa" Amico. He fights at about 162 pounds and hits very hard.

Frank Higgins' single of 158, rolled last week at the Calumet Club against Paul Poehler's All Stars aroused the admiration of this group of bowlers who take high scores as a matter of course. Frank is evidently hitting them this year.

Belmont's 7—0 win over Natick and Maynard's two touchdown defeat of Lexington give Winchester's followers plenty to ponder as Coach Linderman's charges await their coming battles with these schools.

The newly organized Middlesex League is proving no set up for any of its members this fall, strength on the whole being fairly evenly distributed. Right now Belmont and Maynard seem to have the edge on the field.

Those who were wondering what old man's home gave up Umpire Haggerty for the Wakefield-Winchester game last Saturday may be interested to know that the portly, white haired official is by no means in the sere and yellow. He played a whale of a tackle for Tufts back in '16-'17 when he was a memebr of the Brown and Blue teams that beat Harvard 7—3 and Dartmouth, 27—0. He went by the name of "Murder" and opponents always felt that his nickname was particularly well chosen.

Katherine "Kay" Carlisle, star right winger of the Winchester Hockey Club, has been nominated for treasurer of the Boston Field Hockey Association. The election will take place at the annual meeting and dinner of the Association on Nov. 9 in Perkins Hall at the Women's Industrial Union in Boston.

Woburn High's 13—0 win over Arlington may mean much or little as both scores came as the result of intercepted forwards. Every team, however, is finding it tough to score on the Tanners.

PALS IN SOCCER TIE WITH BRIGHTON

WELLESLEY GIRLS WON FROM WINCHESTER

Shinnick, who started at right wing for Winchester, got the locals away to a good start when she caged the ball for the opening goal of the game, scoring unassisted from a scrimmage in the striking circle. McNamara, Wellesley's left wing, knotted the count just before the half on a quick shot from a sharp scrimmage just in front of the Winchester goal.

Following intermission the teams waged a very even battle and it was not until shortly before the final whistle that center forward Wilson was able to cage the deciding goals for Wellesley.

Previous to them, during a hotly contested scrimmage in front of the local sticks, Winchester's goaler, "Jo" Fowle was painfully hurt when one of the combatants hurtled against her as she thrust into the press to turn the shot aside. Few on the field noticed her condition and she gamely stuck to her job, but it was after she was hit that Miss Wilson was able to elude her, once on a shot after a carry and again on a shot from scrimmage. Up to the time she was hurt "Jo" had played a sterling game in the Winchester net, turning in several fine stops.

Between the halves of the first team game the fast stepping Winchester seconds added the Wellesley seconds to their growing list of victims by the score of 2 to 0.

"ALEXANDER HAMILTON" AT THE UNIVERSITY THEATRE

George Arliss, greatest character actor of the day, comes to the University Sunday next for four days in the screen version of his brilliant successful stage play, "Alexander Hamilton." This is the second American Mr. Arliss has portrayed on the screen, his first being in "The Millionaire." "Alexander Hamilton," deals not so much with the financial genius who was the first Secretary of the Treasury and principal creator of the Constitution—but with the man Hamilton, when just past the thirties, and involved in the affair with the notorious Mrs. Reynolds.

In "The Brat," the companion feature, Sally O'Neil enacts the title role of the slangy little Bowery gamin who upsets Long Island society and several hearts at the same time.

"Penrod and Sam," adapted from the Booth Tarkington story and featuring Leon Janney and Junior Coghlan starts Thursday. This is the jolliest, tenderest of all pictures of boyhood—and dads who are not too sure that they understand just what their small sons mean—should take those same small sons with them to see "Penrod and Sam."

"Fifty Fathoms Deep" the companion feature starring Jack Holt is a deep sea drama with lots of thrilling suspense and romance, the underwater scenes of a rescue of one diver by another being intensely exciting. Loretta Sayers, Richard Cromwell and Mary Doran are also in the cast.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
MIDDLESEX, ss. PROBATE COURT

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin and all other persons interested in the estate of Albert J. Young late of Winchester in said County, deceased.

WHEREAS, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said court for probate by Albert J. Dow and Sidney C. Blanchard who pray that letters testamentary may be issued to them, the executors therein named, without giving a surety on their official bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Cambridge in said County of Middlesex on the seventeenth day of November A. D. 1931, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioners are ordered to serve this citation by delivering a copy thereof to all persons interested in the estate fourteen days at least before said Court, or by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks, in The Winchester Star a newspaper published in Winchester the last publication to be one day at least before said Court, and by mailing postpaid, a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate seven days at least before said Court.

DR. STAFFORD TO PREACH

Rev. Russell H. Stafford, D. D. minister of the New Old South Church, Copley Square, Boston is the Sunday night preacher at the community service, 7 o'clock, at the First Baptist Church. These services are bringing popular preachers without respect to denominations to Winchester each Sunday night.

Successor to Dr. George A. Gordon, Dr. Stafford, is a vigorous, intellectual preacher of great power and of wide influence. He is always heard in Winchester with enthusiastic interest. One year ago he gave forth a notable address on the topic, "If I Had Only One Sermon to Preach." This Sunday he brings a favorite, timely sermon.

Other attractions in this series include Dr. A. T. Kempton's famous lecture on "The Homeland of the Master" illustrated with 150 dream pictures of Palestine and Dr. George A. Huntley's illustrated lecture "With the Camera Through the Crisis in China." Next Sunday evening Dr. Howard J. Chidley will be the preacher and the Winchester Trio will sing.

A Forgotten Drink

Many of the large New England haylields have disappeared; so has switchel, which is now merely a name. Switchel was a mixture of molasses, ginger, water and a dash of vinegar, contained in a brown jug cached under the shade of a bunch of alders or partly submerged in a spring hole. On a hot day when men were mowing, raking or pitching hay, frequent trips were made to the switchel jug. Dusty throats needed something to wash away the hayseed, and switchel was the answer. It was consumed in quantities. The coldness of the water was tempered by the molasses, while the ginger and vinegar prevented cramps.

CALUMET NOTES

Don't forget the Hallowe'en party tonight. An ounce of determination to attend will be worth a ton of regret at having missed this event.

Calumet is going big as well as its first inter-club match of the Mystic Valley League season, Calumet Club of Somerville taking 11 out of 15 points Monday evening at the local clubhouse. Calumet took only one point in bowling, with dropping seven, and lost pool, billiards, cowtail and three cushions to the visitors. E. O. Engstrom, Arthur W. Dean, Harold Smith and Charles S. Barry were able to give Calumet a clean sweep at cards and Riddroth scored a cushion three strokes of 3-2 on Ellis. Gustin of Central topped the three-string total by a single pin, but Ball with 347 for high single. Harry Mellard rolled the high [illegible] with 147. Following are the scores in the bowling:

Monday, Calumet will journey to Woburn for a league match with Towanda and the boys expect to strike a winning stride. There is too much talent among the Calumet membership to remain long in the ruck.

It is rumored about the club that the Calumet hunters are even now on their way to the depths of the Maine forests in search of venison for the big Calumet party to be held during January. Just in case they happen to bag a deer (many believe this unlikely) "Zeke" Irish has agreed to keep the animal at the proper temperature in his cold storage plant in Somerville.

The wrestling committee is especially eager to have all Calumeters bear in mind the bouts at the club next Saturday evening, Nov. 14. No pains have been spared to round up a real bill of wrestling built around such men as "Al" Morelli, sensational young college grappler, the veteran Arthur Davis of the Tufts Physical Education staff, and Boris Demetroff, now matched for a bout with the world champion Deglane.

It is expected that "Gus" Sonnenberg, "Gus-the-Goat" in person, will be at the club for the show and it is hoped to have him go on in an exhibition if nothing else. Sonnenberg is one of the two or three big shots of the mat game and his appearance at the club should ensure a record attendance. Don't miss these bouts. Regular Saturday night lunch.

Calumet is announcing a dancing class to meet in the club hall on Wednesday evening Nov. 18, under the personal direction of Constance Berry Page. For further particulars telephone Miss Page at Melrose 2884-M or communicate with Steward Fred Scholl.

Washington Always the Idol of the Populace

On the day that John Adams was inaugurated as President, Washington was greeted at the Capitol, then in Philadelphia, with a volume of cheers and enthusiastic acclamation which even exceeded the demonstration which followed the appearance of the newly elected President.

Having taken the oath of office, Mr. Adams, in his inaugural address, spoke of his predecessor as one "who, by a long course of great action, regulated by prudence, justice, temperance, and fortitude, has merited the gratitude of his fellow citizens, commands the highest praises of foreign nations, and secured immortal glory with posterity."

At the close of the ceremony, as Washington moved forward toward the door to retire, there was a rush from the gallery to the corridor that for a time threatened serious injury to many of the spectators in their eagerness to catch a last look of one who had so long been the object of public veneration.

When Washington was in the street, he waved his hat and returned the cheers of the multitude, his gray hair streaming in the wind. The crowd followed him to his door; there, turning round, his face assumed a grave and almost melancholy expression, his eyes were bathed in tears, his emotions were too great for utterance, and only by gestures could he indicate his thanks and convey his final blessing.—Kansas City Times.

JOHN WEST AND THOMAS CARENS SPEAK AT GAS CO. MEETING

The first meeting of the year 1931-32 of the Arlington Gas Employees Association was held in the auditorium of the Gas Company building on Broadway, Arlington, Tuesday evening, Oct. 27.

A turkey dinner was served which was followed by a business meeting. President Joseph P. Greeley handled his first meeting with the diplomacy of a veteran. At the close of the meeting President Greeley introduced Mr. John West, district manager of the Northeastern district, of the New England Power Association with headquarters in the local office, who because of his pleasing personality is very popular. Mr. West gave a very interesting talk, in his inimitable manner, on the value of the Employees Association to the employee. Mr. West then introduced Thomas Carens, assistant to President Frank D. Comerford of the New England Power Association.

EMBLEM CLUB NOTES

Lyceum Hall was artistically decorated with [illegible] for the Hallowe'en party staged Wednesday evening by the Winchester Emblem Club. More than 50 couples participated in the grand march, at which time costume prizes were awarded as follows: 1st, Mrs. Mary L. DeMorris, old fashioned lady; 2nd, Mrs. Elizabeth Warren, black cat; 3rd, Mrs. Esther McCarthy, old fashioned girl.

Dancing and a general good time followed the distribution of the prizes and during the evening dainty refreshments were served.

LEGION AUXILIARY TO INSTALL

The American Legion Auxiliary to Post 93 will hold its public installation of officers on Monday evening, Nov. 2, in the Legion Headquarters at 8 o'clock. The public is cordially invited and urged to attend this [illegible] were served.

NAINI TAL, WHERE GHANDI GETS HIS MAIL

Naini Tal, where Mahatma Gandhi gets his mail, is a mountain-sheltered town on the shores of a deep blue lake high in the Himalayan foothills, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Little known outside of India, Naini Tal is, nevertheless, one of the most beautifully situated cities in the empire, and, like Simla, is a summer resort popular with residents of the sun-baked plans.

Subject to Landslides

However, Naini Tal has its thorn. The precipitous mountain slopes, thinly covered with trees, are subject to sudden landslides. The most serious catastrophe of this kind occurred in 1880 when many lives were lost. An expensive drainage system has since minimized this hazard.

Naini Tal is perhaps the most accessible of the several mountain summer resorts near Delhi. Only a hundred miles separate it from the new capital of India, and Naini Tal's 6400 foot elevation gives it a climate of perpetual springtime while Delhi is broiling in the sun.

In addition to being the summer residence of the governor of the province, Naini Tal has several European schools and a number of hospitals for European soldier convalescents. Many English residents of lowland cities have Naini Tal cottages, most of them perched picturesquely on the shoulders of the high hills surrounding the pear-shaped lake, the latter an ideal spot for the Englishman's favorite sport—yachting.

A Quiet Resort

The lake, nearly a mile long and a fifth of a mile wide, is fed by springs. Near the Convalescent Depot are sulphur springs and other medicinal waters. Several fine carriage roads and a number of pathways encircle the wooded hillsides, connecting the various lodges and hotels with the town, which fills a notch at the northwest end of the lake. Naini Tal, in contrast to Simla and Darjeeling, is a quiet place, and does not possess many attractions for visitors whose time is limited.

The town itself is the principal community of the United Province district of the same name. Naini Tal District contains some 2721 square miles and a population of a quarter of a million. Not all of it is highlands, the lower, forested foothills being moist and unhealthy. The principal crops of the district are wheat, fruit, rice, and a small amount of tea.

Before it became a European health resort the town of Naini Tal, like its rivals, Simla, Darjeeling and Leh, was an important point on a trade route to the table-land of Tibet. It was not until the advent of the Europeans, however, that the squalid shepherd huts and hovels of caravan drivers gave way to beautiful summer homes and flower-bowered hotels. Now the through traffic at these places is negligible.

The Child's Hobby

Encourage the youngsters to have a hobby of some sort. It will develop constructive ability in the child and prove a splendid source of amusement when all other outdoor things fail and he must remain in. Photography, carpentry, stamp collecting, painting, radio building, are just a few of the many helpful and fascinating hobbies the child may develop. —Grit.

Snyder; Vice Chairman, G. T. Davidson; Secretary, Harriet C. Hildreth; and Treasurer, F. W. Howard. The meeting was largely attended and a contribution of $5 from each of the organizations represented was solicited to defray the immediate expenses of the committee.

It is only natural that there should have been some complaint about the hiring of men during the past summer and early fall, but apparently Hugh Grimes of the Highway Department has handled his difficult assignment both carefully and efficiently. In the vicinity of 215 men have been registered with him for employment since last April and as far as possible jobs have been provided for them either with the town or elsewhere. Work for everyone cannot be found and those who wish the town to assist them must register with Mr. Grimes at the Town Hall.

Yesterday forenoon a short change artist succeeded in getting $10 from a local A. & P. store by tendering a $20 bill in payment for a package of cigarettes.

PICCOLO BROS. ANNOUNCE SALE

An unusual opportunity for thrifty buyers is offered in the sale announced by Piccolo Bros., local dealers in produce and canned goods, for one week, commencing Saturday, Oct. 31.

Seldom are better values offered on staple canned goods. For example, Hatchet Brand Bartlett Pears, No. 2, ½ tins 35c or 3 for $1, $3.65 per doz.; Hatchet Brand White Corn, No. 1 tins, 17c, 3 for 50c, $1.70 per doz.; Libby's Asparagus, No. 1 tins, 35c, 3 for $1, $3.65 per doz.; Wales Jellies and Jam, apple, grape jelly, etc., 4 for $1; Strawberry and Raspberry Jam, 16 oz. jars, 3 for $1; fresh picked spinach, 19c per peck. Wise housewives will not fail to stock up at these low prices and a telephone call to Winchester 1070 will receive prompt and careful attention. Free delivery of course.

Mineral Expands

In halls and similar places where the acoustics are to be seriously considered, engineers are making use of a mineral which is comparatively new and which has several peculiar and valuable characteristics. To the touch it seems like cork, but to the eye it is gold, at least in color, and when used in construction it deadens the wall so that there is no reflection of the sound and consequently no reverberation. Exposed to the flame, it expands several times its former bulk. It has been called zonolite and is found in Colorado and other parts of the Northwest.

Leaders' Club Meeting

A large attendance is assured for the November meeting of the Leaders' Club to be held at the Burlington Town Hall, Thursday, Nov. 5. Supper will be served at 6:30 p. m., after which the men will enjoy a program of games as a demonstration of the Patrol Method of Troop Operation.

Troop 5 of Medford at Camp

The members of Troop 5 of Medford enjoyed a camping expedition to Camp Kenoza this last week-end. This is the second troop to use the week-end camping facilities at Kenoza since the summer camp closed.

Stoneham Troops Hold Joint Meeting

Almost the entire membership of the three Stoneham troops assembled at the First Baptist Church in Stoneham Monday evening to meet with the Men's Brotherhood of that church. The members of the Brotherhood witnessed the opening exercises of the troop under the leadership of Scoutmaster, Francis H. McCall, after which all of the Scouts assembled in the auditorium for the program of the evening.

The first number on the program was the showing of moving pictures taken at Camp Kenoza this and last summer by Scout Executive Harry T. French.

Mr. Kudlick exhibited articles of craftwork which he made made, explaining to the boys how the various articles were made. He exhibited articles carved from bone, bows and arrows, and many other interesting pieces of craftwork.

He concluded his talk on the craftwork by demonstrating the operation of a stove made from a number 10 tin can on which he proceeded to fry an egg. After the egg frying episode the lights were dimmed, and Mr. Kudlick proceeded to tell one of his interesting stories for which he is rather famous. His program was very much enjoyed by the boys and men present.

Courts of Honor

Medford—Board of Review, second Wednesday of the month; Court of Honor, third Thursday in November and December, fourth Thursday other months in the year.

Stoneham—Last Wednesday of the month.

Winchester—December date later.

Woburn—First meeting for business will be held in December.

Troops 7 and 17 Held Camp

Ten Scouts from Troops 7 and 17 went on a three-day camping trip to Camp Davis in Lexington, which is owned by Troop 21 of that town. They were in charge of Edward Zink, assistant Scoutmaster of Troop 7, Medford. They left Friday morning, Oct. 30 at 8 p. m. and returned Sunday night, Nov. 1 at 6 p. m. The Scouts who attended were Joseph Mobilla, John Garvey, Joseph Robbat, Arthur Scott, Frank Benitz, Hugo Schiappa, Harold Leach, Robert Darling, Frank Bradbury. The boys passed several Scout tests. Two treasure hunts and a campfire were some forms of fun which the Scouts enjoyed, and church services were held on Sunday morning. The Scouts attending declared that they had a wonderful time, and expressed a desire to hold another week-end camp in the near future.

Burlington-Woburn Court of Honor

The second meeting of the Burlington-Woburn Court of Honor was held Tuesday evening. This court of honor is now working on the development of a merit badge counsellor list in which an examiner or counselor is to be appointed for each merit badge. The court will be ready to review Scouts and to make awards in December.

Leader Training Course

The course in "Principles of Scoutmastership" will combine its activities with the Scout Leaders' Club meeting this week. The leaders enrolled in the course to date are:

Medford—George H. Buck, Edward Zink, Edward Means, William Russell F. Edgar Hubbard, Robert Neilson, Allison Burt, Roger Carlson.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

Eleven captains and council members attended the Massachusetts State meeting at the Statler Hotel Tuesday. Winchester had the largest representation of any district. The morning session was devoted to short talks by Chairmen of Committees, and an interesting report of the National Convention at Buffalo, by Commissioner Chase of Milton. The trend of the convention was "Girl Scouts for the Community rather than the Community for Girl Scouts. Freedom is more exacting than discipline." Quoting from Mrs. Waterman's article on the convention, "We love to call scouting a game where the girls travel on their little trails. As the years advance their trails become more clearly like the real ones of later life, until the Girl Scout reaches the trail of the grown-up. In this year of depression and trial we may see what part in the alleviation the Girl Scouts will individually and collectively take." Lady Brooks, of Birmingham, Eng., Commissioner for 10 years, told us she had "observed and sensed the spirit of freedom, and joy of bounding forward rapidly in this country" so that she did not wonder at the hard job it was to get the "desired spirit of discipline. In England they are so stolid and wait for what is wise that it is not so hard. Do not try to work with girls as a mass, but as an individual."

The afternoon was taken up entirely with Miss Olida Schrottky, National Director of Plays and Pageants. She convinced us "It is better to give a good play badly, than a bad play well. It is the seed of desire we plant in the heart of the young for love and peace and truth that develops a rich reward. Make the girl understand her soul is clad in gorgeous things. Observation of others is the beginning of wisdom, and the things you take from the street and every day life makes up the creative drama."

Saturday morning at 7 o'clock two Girl Scouts, one pushing a wheelbarrow and one with a pick were seen wending their way towards "Our Cabin," to dig up rocks for our fireplaces. Virginia Stidstone and Marjory Burton. Later breakfast was brought to them and on through the morning they worked with others, with Commissioners Plumer and Hall assisting until plenty of stones were gathered for the Pioneer Group.

The Pioneering group have finished their instruction at Cedar Hill, and on Saturday morning with the assistance of Mr. Jordan built the outdoor fireplaces in a natural formation of rocks, on the Brooks Estate, in front of the Girl Scout cabin. Three small ones over which they may cook many a supper, and pass tests in firebuilding, and one larger one for campfire gatherings.

The Council will meet on Thursday morning, Nov. 12, nstead of Wednesday, Armistee Day.

Call for candidates for the Drum and Bugle Corps resulted in 64 grls reporting for the first meeting of the corps Monday evening in Fortnightly Hall where supper was served by the Drum and Bugle Corps Committee, including Commissioners Mrs. Clifton Hall, Mrs. Truman Godfrey and Mrs Rimington Plumer; Mrs. John Phelps, Mrs. Kelley, Mrs. Altman Jackson and Mrs. Albert Wilsen. Miss Eugenia Parker is to serve as captain of the corps and because of the unprecedented number of girls who wish to be members it is hoped that a junior corps can be formed this year.

Captain Bratt and Lieutenant Howe of Troop 6, with Captain Symmes of Troop 2 were hostesses at a delicious luncheon at "Our Cabin" on Nov. 5. Nineteen were present, including Commissioners, Captains, Brown and Tawny Owls. All were delighted with the new curtains in the cabin and the outdoor fireplaces.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

The State charitable committee will meet at the home of Mrs. Handschumaker in Cambridge on next Saturday afternoon. The Regents from the various branches are on this committee.

The regular meeting for November will be held on next Thursday evening when plans will become pledged for the Holy Ghost Hospital day which is the 22nd of November.

Messrs. Hector D. Cyr of 72 Salem street, Elwell R. Butterworth of 107 Cambridge street and Sidney C. Blanchard of 25 Everett avenue have been drawn to serve as traverse jurors in the Superior Court at East Cambridge, Mr. Cyr and Mr. Blanchard in the civil session and Mr. Butterworth in the criminal session.

SALVATION ARMY APPEAL

The Salvation Army campaign in Winchester is now well under way. To date, $1269 of the $2000 quota has been raised. This means that we have still a long way to go, and your contributions are earnestly requested.

Checks may be mailed to G. Dwight Cabot, treasurer, of the Winchester Trust Company, or your contribution may be handed to the Army representative when he calls at your door.

A word of warning. Be sure you give your money to an "authorized" representative of the Salvation Army. Mr. Ernest J. Oldford is the only authorized representative of the Army now operating in Winchester, and his credentials, signed by Chairman Harris S. Richardson, are always ready for your inspection. He is canvassing the town systematically, and will be glad to receive and turn over to Treasurer Cabot any contribution you wish to make. We bespeak for him a cordial welcome at your hands.

Chairman Richardson today made the following remarks in connection with the current appeal:—"Without wishing to deepen the prevailing cloud of gloom, it is nevertheless true that the Army is anticipating a need for greater resources this winter than ever before in its history in the effort to take care of unfortunates. The much-touted prosperity that has so often been seen just around the corner has failed to appear, and we are confronting a winter of real hardship for many who have not experienced it before.

"In a dozen different departments the Army is organized to contact those in need—through its Home for Girls, Maternity Hospital, Day Nurseries, Free Employment Bureaus, General Relief Work, Missing Persons Bureau, Fire and Emergency Patrol, Workingmen's Hotel, Christmas and Thanksgiving Departments, Boys' and Girls' Organizations, General Hospitals, Fresh Air Camps, Prison Departments, Dispensaries, and Americanization Bureaus. Few realize the tremendous scope of its work. But before it can function—before the sacrifice of time and energy on the part of its workers can register for its full value in extending a helping hand to those in dire need of it—friends must lend behind!"

We of the Salvation Army realize its strength lies in the purity of its purpose and the support of its friends. It is our happy experience that that purpose consistently preserved during 50 years has created an almost universal confidence in our methods. By that trust we are financially sustained, for our friends are always there in time of need.

THOMAS N. SHUFELT

Many in Winchester, and especially Unitarians of long standing, will regret to learn of the death on Monday, Nov. 2 in Medford of Thomas N. Shufelt, formerly for 15 years bass soloist at the Unitarian Church during the time when Mrs. G. H. Lochman was organist and choir director.

Mr. Shufelt was for many years identified with the men's clothing business in Boston, being associated with the Continental Clothing Company and later with Talbot's. He was well known in Greater Boston musical circles and was very popular with Winchester music lovers during his service at the Unitarian Church some years before the war, a particularly pleasing personality winning him a wide circle of friends. He is survived by his wife, two sons and two daughters.

The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon in his late residence at 50 Otis street in Medford.

PAINFULLY INJURED IN CRASH AT MAIN STREET AND PARKWAY

Miss Ethel Feinberg, 19, of 44 Middlesex street, was painfully injured shortly before 10 o'clock Wednesday night when the Ford sedan in which she was riding with her brother on Main street was in collision at the intersection of the Parkway with a Ford sedan driven by John A. Nason of 17 Kimball road, Woburn, the latter driving east.

Both machines were damaged, that driven by Richard Feinberg being towed to the Central Garage. Miss Feinberg was taken to the Winchester Hospital by Joseph Preston and Charles McDonald, both members of the Wakefield Police Department. At the hospital the young lady was treated by Dr. Roger M. Burgoyne for cuts and bruises and a possible fracture of the right wrist. She was held at the hospital for observation.

MAYNARD HERE TOMORROW

Winchester's fighting football team plays its final Middlesex League game tomorrow afternoon on Manchester Field at 2:30 with the circuit leading Maynard High eleven, sporting one of its best teams in recent years.

On paper this should be a real battle. Maynard played Belmont to a scoreless tie early in the season and last Saturday was held to a 6—6 deadlock by Concord. Winchester held Belmont scoreless last Saturday and won by one touchdown from Concord. Maynard is reputed to have a good passing attack, but Wakefield has been the only team to make much of any headway against the locals through the air.

Maynard won 13—6 from Stoneham and will be favored by the wise ones to win from Winchester tomorrow, but the victory will come hard, if it comes. Winchester showed the world it was a fighting football team last Saturday and Maynard will know it has been in a game when the final whistle blows tomorrow.

The Fire Department was called at 12:32 Wednesday afternoon to put out a grass fire in the rear of Irving street.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Literature Committee

Under the leadership of the new chairman, Mrs. May C. Kennedy, the Literature Committee held its first meeting in Fortnightly Hall on Monday, Nov. 2 with a goodly number of appreciative and enthusiastic members in attendance.

The subject for the afternoon was "The Life and Letters of Lefcadio Hearn" by Elizabeth Bisland, and it was handled in scholarly and delightful manner by three members of the committee.

Mrs. Maude H. Bridge portrayed the life of Hearn in clear and telling pictures which showed the influence of his English father, is Grecian mother and his early years in Ireland, upon his later life.

Following his education in France came a period of struggle and poverty in New York City, much time spent in New Orleans, the French West Indies, and at last his trip to Japan. Here, his marriage to a Japanese lady of high rank changed his whole life and brought him happiness at last. Success and recognition followed as he achieved more and more his ideals and dreams through his many writings of poetical prose and teaching. He has left to the world of literature a rare contribution of Oriental translations and folklore written in exquisite style.

Miss Mary L. Hodge's paper was on Hearn the Artist. She showed how he has unconsciously revealed himself through his letters in many characters: the understanding friend, the eager student, the aspiring journalist, the observant travtler, the untiring craftsman, the devoted teacher, the loving husband and father, and the fearless philosopher. Through them all may be felt the soul of the artist, the seeker after truth and beauty. By giving carefully selected quotations and illustrations all these qualities of mind and spirit were clearly brought out, and there was created a desire to know at first hand the writings of so rare a personality.

Mrs. Anna M. Swanson gave more intimate glimpses into Hearn's life in her study of him as a human being. Through his letters he has frankly and sincerely shown his inner life; his spirit of sacrifice, his love of his family, his unusual religious faith evolved from deep knowledge of many religions, as well as his longing for understanding friends.

Mrs. Kennedy gave many suggestions for outside reading before the next meeting, Dec. 7, when Hearn's "Two Years in the West Indies" will be the book for study and discussion.

The following is the program of the all day meeting to be held in the Town Hall, Nov. 9 under the direction of the Fortnightly American Home Committee, Mrs. Amy G. Grant, chairman:

10 to 10:30 Fashion show, Jaegger & Co.
10:30 to 11:15 Garden talk (Breck's) House plants and bulbs. Miss Sally Sorrice.
11:15 to 11:45 Food Values. (Middlesex Extension) Miss Rozina Feeney.
11:45 to 12:30 "Community Aspects of Mental Hygiene" (Mass. Society for Mental Hygiene). Miss Sybil Foster.
12:30 to 1:30 Cafeteria Luncheon (Nominal fee).
1:30 to 2:30 New color trends for fall in house furnishings. (Jordan Marsh Co.) Miss Helen Libby.
2:30 to 3 Business meeting.
3 Address (Mass. Society for Social Hygiene) Dr. Helen I. D. McGillicuddy.

SENTENCED IN FATAL ACCIDENT CASE

William S. Chamberlain of 141 Capen street, Medford, driver of the automobile which collided with a truck on Cambridge street Friday, Oct. 23, resulting in the death of Miss Anna Morrison of 82 Peterboro street, Boston, was sentenced to serve six months in the House of Correction by Justice Jesse W. Morton in the District Court at Woburn yesterday morning.

Chamberlain was found guilty of driving while under the influence of liquor and of driving so as to endanger lives, receiving three months on each count. A charge of manslaughter was dismissed. The defendant appealed and was held in bonds of $1000 for appearance in the Superior Court at East Cambridge.

At the same session of the District Court Wallace French of Lowell, who was arrested after a chase by Officer John J. Regan on Main street near Water street at 1 o'clock Thursday, Oct. 22, was fined $25 for failing to stop when signalled by an officer and $30 for driving while under the influence of liquor. He paid.

On Tuesday Officer James E. Farrell was complainant against George P. Doherty of Medford who was charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. After two continuances Doherty was found guilty and fined $20. He appealed.

DE MOLAY TO SPONSOR BASKET-BALL TEAM

Middlesex Chapter, Order of DeMolay is to put a basketball team on the floor this season, and is giving a dance at the Meadowbrook Country Club in Reading tonight Nov. 6 from 9 until 1 a. m. to secure funds to outfit the club.

This dance promises to be the party you are waiting for with music by "Ted" Potter and his increasingly popular band. There will be refreshments and a general good time, ensuring every one who attends the double satisfaction of enjoying a pleasant evening and aiding the DeMolay basketball team, which with the material available promises to be a worth while outfit.

Mrs. W. H. Bowe of the Parkway is on the committee for the bazaar and bridge at the Hotel Statler Wednesday, Nov. 18 under the auspices of the women of the Rotary Club of Boston.

CONDITIONS IN RUSSIA

Described by Dr. Lindsay

The eyes of the entire world are now focused on the Japanese invasion of Manchuria. The League of Nations is working on plans to settle the dispute and avoid, if possible, the outbreak of another war of mammoth proportions. The government of the United States has been invited to send a representative to meet with the League when it convenes to consider this perplexing situation.

To what extent Soviet activities and Russian influences may have precipitated this alarming situation in the Far East is a matter of conjecture, but certain it is that Dr. Samuel M. Lindsay, D.D. of Brookline, who has recently returned from Russia, will throw some interesting sidelights on this important aspect of world affairs in his address at the Town Hall next Monday evening.

Dr. Lindsay is a keen observer and during his tour of Russia he saw and inquired into every phase of life, religious, social, industrial and political. He saw and talked with men high and low, influential and humble, in this great bivoriac of experiments. He watched intently, listened eagerly and brought back to America a fund of information, enlightening, interesting, revolting and amusing, which every well informed man and woman will want to hear as Dr. Lindsay speaks on "What the Eye Saw and the Ear Heard in Russia in 1931." He is a most fascinating speaker and he is so well known here that a large outpouring of Winchester people is expected to hear his address. The public is invited to attend and may obtain tickets at the door of the Town Hall or at the Star Office.

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT NOTES

One of the outstanding lectures of the School Department was given in the Town Hal on Monday, Nov. 2 by Dr. George Rommert, formerly of the University of Munich, Germany. He had developed such a technique in micro-projection, projecting onto a screen what can be seen only by means of a high powered microscope, that he has been assigned by the German government to lecture in this field. He has recently been lecturing at Columbia University and in the vicinity of New York. Winchester has been fortunate in having Dr. Rommert give his first lecture in New England.

On Monday morning, he lectured to the three upper classes of the high school. In the afternoon he lectured to the freshman class and the 6th, 7th and 8th grade pupils. Although he was handicapped by the very poor accoustics of the Town Hall, he did show to our young people the marvelous life that goes on in the microscopic world. The smallest living organisms were shown in their growth and life struggles. One of the outstanding things was observing a single celled animal dividing to produce another single celled animal.

At 3:15 he lectured to the sicence teachers and to about 30 high school boys and girls who are especially interested in science. This lecture was probably the best of all due to the small number that could be gathered closely around the screen and the more intimate contact with the instructor.

The first Symphony concert of this school year will be held Friday of this week. This continues the series of Symphony concerts for our public school pupils begun several years ago. The players are members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the leadership of Mr. Paul Shirley. This weeks program is as follows:

March from the Opera "Aida" ..... Verdi
Allegro con Grazia from the Symphony Pathetique ..... Tschaikowsky
Entr'Act from the Opera "Mignon" ..... Thomas
Suite from "Peer Gynt" ..... Grieg
The Morning
Asa's Death
Anitra's Dance
In the Hall of the Mountain King
Funeral March of a Marionette ..... Gounod
To a Wild Rose ..... MacDowell
To a Water Lily ..... Koehler
The Mice and the Trap ..... Thomas
Bolero, Spanish Dance ..... Moszkowsky

LEGION AUXILIARY OFFICERS INSTALLED

President—Mrs. Esther Lawson
Vice President—Mrs. Mary Carroll
Secretary—Mrs. Elizabeth Mitchell
Treasurer—Mrs. Bessie Pierce
Historian—Mrs. Blanche Bennett
Chaplain—Mrs. Clara Mullen
Sergeant-at-Arms—Mrs. Ruth Nelson

Mrs. Garrity of Lowell was the installing officer and was assisted by Mrs. Lincoln as sergeant-at-arms. Vocal selections were rendered by Mrs. Helen Studley of Woburn with Miss Helen Carroll at the piano. Master Frederick Housen and Master Donald McDonough featured with piano and accordian selections. Piano solos were played by Miss Mabel Coty. Both incoming and outgoing officers were presented with flowers.

ALL ARE ASKED TO SIGN

The police began yesterday the work of giving out the unemployment census and application cards from which the town's newly formed relief committee hopes to get much valuable information to aid them in an intelligent approach to what is undoubtedly a huge problem. It is expected that every family in town will sign the cards.

ENTERTAINED BOARD OF DIRECTORS

The first meeting of the Board of Directors of the Co-operative Bank was held in the new Banking House last evening. Preceding the meeting the Board were guests of President John Challis at dinnr at the Copper Kettle on Church street.

On the afternoon of Thursday, Nov. 12, will be held Annual Donation Day and Sale at the Home. The members of the Home have prepared throughout the year many articles which their friends will find both useful and attractive. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance of townspeople who are interested in the Home.

JOIN THE RED CROSS NOV. 11 26

Mr. William N. Doak, Secretary of Labor, has stated

"The appeal for members addressed to our citizens by the American National Red Cross this year in the period from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day has an importance to the welfare of our communities, perhaps only equalled by the great emergency of war. In 1917 and 1918 the Nation rallied to the support of the banner of the Red Cross and provided it with funds to carry on its great work for our army of 4,000,000 overseas and at home.

"During the coming year the Red Cross will be called upon to lend its support to a peacetime program of direct relief. It always stands ready to give aid in times of distress, whether occasioned by some sudden disaster, or brought about by other unfortuitous circumstance. Join the Red Cross and thus give your help to its great work.

"President Hoover has described the Red Cross organization as 'belonging to the people themselves, a living embodiment of their heart and soul.' I endorse heartily this tribute to a great beneficient institution. I believe it is the duty of all Americans to an wer 'here' as the roll is being called."

S metime between Nov. 11 and 26 each household will be called upon to renew its memberships in the American Red Cross. It is sincerely hoped that the residents of Winchester will support the work of this organization as they have so splendidly in the past.

TOWN TEAM AT WOBURN SUNDAY

Winchester Town Team will hop up to Woburn on Sunday to play the Woburn Cardinals at the Woburn High School field at 2:30. It goes without saying that this game will attract a real crowd and those who wish to get seats will do well to get an early start.

On the afternoon of Armistice Day at 2:30 the Town Team will play the West Medford A. A. on Manchester Field and as the visitors are reputed to be strong a good game should result.

GARFIELD MORGAN TO ADDRESS WILLIAM PARKMAN

William Parkman Lodge is pleased to announce that they have obtained Garfield Morgan for the meeting of Nov. 10.

Reverend Morgan is very interested in community service and schools. His address will be of great value to us.

WINCHESTER PUBLIC LIBRARY

There will be an Exhibition of Photograps loaned by the Library Art Club Oct. 31-Nov. 21 on "Abbeys of England."

Abbeys were in existence in England before the reign of Alfred the Great, and their multiplication continued until it is estimated that there were 650 of them, owning a quarter of the land. This was not a state of things likely to be permanent, and abolition of a number of small houses came from within the church. But Henry VIII conceived the idea of more sweeping measures, and from 1535 to 1539 bills were passed for the suppression of all houses, their revenues to be turned into the hands of the king. Unfortunately a process of spoliation followed, and there was great waste of many things worth preserving, to which these pictures testify. They are published in an attractive book, with much text, as an advertisement, by the Great Western Railway.

PRAISES WINCHESTER SERGEANT

3 Wolcott road,
Oct. 30, 1931

To the Editor of the Star:

For the last few weeks I have been a juror in the Superior Court at East Cambridge. During that time I have had occasion to hear cases where testimony was given by the police of many of our suburban communities.

In one of these cases our own Sergeant Cassidy testified. He easily carried away all the honors. The precision, conscientiousness and clarity of his answers created a fine impression in the court room. Many of my fellow jurors made favorable comments about him.

As a citizen of Winchester, I felt especially proud of his outstanding performance, which demonstrated to our suburban neighbors the excellent type of man employed in our Police Department.

Yours very truly,
Clinton E. Farnham

A family Hallowe'en party was held last Saturday evening at the home of Miss Elizabeth Clark on Clematis street. The gay Hallowe'en decorations made an effective background for the games and refreshments that the 35 relatives enjoyed.

MRS. VITALINE P. SCHNEIDER

Mrs. Vitaline P. Schneider, widow of William Schneider, former widely known milk dealer of this town, died Tuesday, Nov. 3, at the Choate Memorial Hospital in Woburn where she underwent an operation about three weeks ago.

Mrs. Schneider was 68 years old and a native of Canada. For many years she made her home in Winchester, her husband engaging in the milk business and operating a good sized farm on Cross street near Loring avenue.

Following Mr. Schneider's death in 1913 Mrs. Schneider removed with her family to Woburn, purchasing the Wood estate and farm on Salem street where her sons continued the milk business started by their father.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Charles W. Carter, and two sons, Frank and Fred Schneider, all of Woburn. Four sisters, three of whom make their homes in Canada, and the other in Bradford, N. H., also survive.

Funeral services were held this Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Schneider's son, Fred Schneider, 372 Salem street, Woburn. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

ANNUAL BAPTIST BAZAAR BIG SUCCESS

Much credit is due to the president of tht Woren's League of the First Baptist Church, Mrs. Charles A. Burnham, and to the efficient general committee, Miss Mary Fitch, Mrs. Gustave Felber and Mrs. Clarence Warren, for the success of the annual bazaar which was held on last Friday, from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. The entertainment in the afternoon for the children delighted the large group which filled the social hall, and a program of equal interest entertained the older group in the evening. Afternoon tea was served from 3 to 5 o'clock in the recreation room where the tables presided over by members of the League presented an enticing picture. A goodly sum was realized by the sale, the exact amount of which has not yet been announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Smith of Washington street celebrated their 18th wedding anniversary at the City Club Thursday evening, where they were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis R. Smith of Oak street.

MRS. RALPH M. SPARKS

Mrs. Ralph M. Sparks of 45 Cabot street announces that the Finance Committee of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, of which she is chairman, is to sponsor the initial public appearance in Boston, on Friday morning, Dec. 4, in the ballroom of the Copley Plaza of Major Thomas Coulson of the British Military Intelligence, who will speak on "Women Spies: Their Effect on War and Peace." Major Coulson is the outstanding world authority on this subject and made a profound impression when he addressed the Harvard Club here.

CHOSEN A NEW MEMBER

Mr. Arthur H. Razee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Razee of 306 Washington street, this town, a freshman at Tufts College has been chosen as one of the new members of the Poetry Club. He is asked to present some of his own work at the next meeting of the club.

The meetings serve two purposes—to keep the members up on new works and to stimulate writing on the part of the students themselves.

MOTLEY CLUB WON FROM WINCHESTER

The Motley Club won its Boston Field Hockey Association match from Winchester last Saturday afternoon on Manchester Field, 2—1. The huge crowd, gathered for the Winchester-Belmont football game, interferred with the players considerably during most of the afternoon. After the football game many remained to see the closing minutes of the hockey match.

The visitors won the game in the first half when they scored both their goals Rena MacDonald, national shot-put champion, banged the first goal into the local net from scrimmage, the swirl of sticks preventing Capt. "Pug" Mercer from seeing the shot until the ball was past her.

Hennifer, Motley center forward, made a spectacular carry up the field for the second goal.

Following intermission, Winchester braced and midway through the period Janet Nichols, left winger, rushed the ball into the striking circle and a moment later hooked it out of the ensuing scrimmage to cage the goal.

Motley in turn threatened but shots by Rena MacDonald and Bushell were turned aside by Mercer, and Winchester rushed down the field. The locals just missed scoring at this point when a hard angle shot from "Kay" Carlisle was deflected slightly by a swinging stick and missed the goal by inches.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Plans are now being made for a five cornered cross country meet to be staged in the near future at Wakefield and to include Winchester High School's undefeated team of harriers. Further announcement will be made as soon as definite information can be made public. It is some time since a general cross country meet has been held hereabouts, but back in 1912, '13 and '14 Mystic Valley interscholastic meetings were run off and some excellent competition resulted. Arlington with its Gaylord Goldsmith, "Spin" Wonderlich and "Joe" Swinge had quite an edge on the remainder of the field.

SALE AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The Western Missionary Society and Mission Union will hold a sale of household articles and appropriate Christmas gifts on Tuesday, Nov. 10 from 10 to 4 in the social hall of the Parish House. Christmas wrappings and bridge accessories will also be on sale and orders for Christmas wreaths will be taken from samples.

Luncheon will be served at 12:30. Tickets at 35c may be obtained of Miss Swett, Win. 1913 and Mrs. W. I. Palmer, Win. 0151. It will aid the Luncheon Committee very much if members will secure their tickets by Sunday night, Nov. 8.

HOW ABOUT IT?

A "scooter-bike" is needed to help a ten-year old Winchester boy who is suffering from infantile paralysis recover the use of his legs. This boy is now at the Taunton Hospital and if any one has such a machine that their children can spare, please get in touch with George Lochman (Postmaster) Chairman of the Welfare Board of the local Elks, and he will see that it is properly delivered. Here is an opportunity to do a good deed and make a whole family happy.

Have your car filled with Anti-Freeze, Prestone De-Alcohol. Full line of Weed Chains and Delco Batteries. Oscar Hedtler, 26 Church street. Tel. Win. 1208. *

WINCHESTER WOMENS' REPUBLICAN CLUB

The regular monthly meeting of the Womens' Republican Club was held at Association Hall, Wednesday, Nov. 4 at 2:30 p. m. After the salute to the flag, the secretary's report was read and our membership chairman, Mrs. Scales reported seven new members. Mr. Franklin Field of Boston accompanied by Miss Margaret Copeland at the piano rendered a delightful group of songs, which were greatly enjoyed.

Our president, Mrs. Louis Snyder, then introduced Mr. Lucius Wilson from Ann Harbor, Mich., speaker of the afternoon. He spoke on the new organization of district councils in each of the 32 Senatorial districts, outside of Boston. This will be a new type of political forum in the Republican party. Work is underway to have a new type of political forum composed of a large group of people, leaders in different organizations, to meet in district councils and to undertake to arrive at the definition which constitutes Republicanism. Also to tell the voters why they should vote for Republicans. The lack of a political forum is being disastrous to the Republican party. The adoption of primaries 20 years ago stopped the bringing together of leaders to organize and talk over party principles and standards. All power has been placed on candidates and parties are built on principles not candidates. Political parties cannot intelligently serve without their principles and thought and discussion of present day problems would be an important part of this forum.

Through councils 9000 local leaders will redefine Republicanism, take a stand on the unemployment situation, on prohibition and economic depression. Machine labor has overtaken man labor in the farms and factories and 700,000 men are out of work each year. There has been a dirth of good leadership in the last 20 years and great issues should be discussed for a permanent value through organizations formed to develop leaders.

The forum will be a means to seize the imagination of the youth of America, to define Republicanism in such forms as will get the support of the youth of the nation.

Mr. Field then closed with another pleasing group of songs.

INCREASE IN POSTAGE

Notwithstanding that the increase in postage on letters and cards addressed to Canada was widely published, many people seem to be unaware of that fact. First class postage to Canada is now three cents an ounce for letters, and two cents for a card. The Department has recently made a ruling that all short paid letters and cards addressed to Canada shall be sent along without delay, rated up with double the postage due to be collected from the addressee. Please bear this fact in mind.

MISS AVERY STARTS HER LECTURE SEASON

On Oct. 28 Miss Eunice Avery started her tenth year of lecturing in Winchester.

This summer was a year of crisis Miss Avery told us, with its Spanish crisis, its German and English crisis, the trouble in Cuba, the Chinese-Japanese situation and the world depression. In fact there was trouble almost everywhere.

Miss Avery visited Spain, Italy and France. She traveled from Paris to the Pyrrhenees, then to the home of the Barbary Pirates, from there to the Grand Atlas and back through French Colonial Africa to the Libyan Desert and Italian North Africa. And everywhere was the fact made manifest that the world is smaller than ever before, bound together as it is by telephone, telegraph, radio, aviation and international treaties. We know more about each other than we used to and so we are more fair to each other.

It was the general opinion of the prominent men interviewed by Miss Avery this summer that the world conditions are definitely better.

The lecture closed with a brief character sketch of Premier Pierre Laval and a few words as to the significance of his visit to America.

The next lecture on Nov. 11 will discuss the Manchurian Crisis and the English General Elections.

THADDEUS W. ROGERS

Thaddeus W. Rogers, a former resident of Winchester, died suddenly on Saturday, Oct. 31, at his home in Wakefield.

Mr. Rogers was 66 years old and a native of Cornwallis County, N. S. For many years he made his home in Winchester, later living in Medford before removing to Wakefield. For 18 years he served in the United States Navy and was on active duty during the Spanish-American War.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Rogers, three sons, Wilfred, James and Gregory W. Rogers, and two daughters, Mrs. John Galvin and Miss Florence Rogers, all of Wakefield. A sister, Mrs. Fannie Smith of Winchester, and a brother, James Rogers of Cambridge, also survive.

The funeral took place Tuesday morning from the late residence, 4 Elm street, Wakefield, with a requiem high mass in St. Joseph's Church. Full military honors were accorded the remains by Spanish War Veterans and by a delegation from Corp. Charles F. Parker Camp, U. S. W. V. There were many floral tributes. A firing squad of Spanish War veterans under command of Maj. Edward J. Connelly fired three volleys over the grave in St. Patrick's Cemetery, Stoneham.

Fanciful Names

In earlier centuries, observers thought that land animals had counterparts in the sea, and so they named seals "sea-wolves," fur seal "sea-bears," manatees "sea-cows."

COMMUNITY SUNDAY NIGHT SERVICE

Rev. Howard J. Chidley, D.D. will be heard this Sunday night at 7 o'clock in the notable preachers' series being given at the First Baptist Church. A growing interest is evident in these community services. The Winchester Trio will sing this Sunday evening, "Eventide" by Gaul; "Hark, Hark, My Soul" by Shelley and "Peace I Leave With Thee" by Roberts. Mrs. Idabelle Winship, Mrs. Gertrude Barnes and Mrs. Alice M. Abbott compose this popular Winchester Trio.

Of great educational value will be the coming lecture by Dr. A. T. Kempton of Cambridge on "The Homeland of the Master" illustrated by 150 dream pictures of Palestine. Rev. George Huntley, M.D. of Shanghai, China, will speak on "Through China with a Camera" beautifully vivified with art stereopticon pictures.

Mr. and Mrs. Erastus B. Badger are the parents of a daughter, born Oct. 29 at the Baptist Hospital, Boston.

SHERIFF WALKER THE SPEAKER

The speaker at the Lions' Club last Monday was Deputy Sheriff Harry Walker who gave a very entertaining talk on the duties of his office and some of his personal experiences—some tragic and some ludicrous—and illustrated the fact that not all sheriffs are as hard-boiled or hard hearted as is generally supposed.

Plans were discussed for holding an evening meeting in the near future, and of making this proposed meeting a sort of get together meeting of clubs from the surrounding towns.

An interesting speaker is expected at the next meeting and our usual good attendance is hoped for.

Nov. 4, 1931

Apropos of your editorial in last week's Star, with reference to the movies, may I call your attention to the following letter over the signature of Lucia Ames Mead on the same subject, which appeared in the Transcript of Nov. 3.

"The Twentieth Century Club of Boston has recently established, among its other committees for civic work, one on moving pictures. Its members realize that the matter is not one merely of national interest but of international importance as well. It sees that our national reputation has been gravely injured in Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia because of very low-grade and even vile cinemas sent from the United States which wholly misrepresented our normal life. An Englishman from Jamaica has just told me of the incitement to crime which our movies have created among the Negroes there.

"It now seems evident that the Hollywood producers will not reform themselves and that many of their productions are doing distinct damage to the youth of this country. Is not the time ripe for providing some form of social control as the radio, national banks and railroads are under governmental regulation? The Protestant Episcopal Church declared recently at their meeting at Denver that 'Only such a centralized authority as the United States Government can wisely and effectively regulate the centralized motion-picture industry.'

"Legislation toward this end will probably be introduced into Congress this winter."

Howard J. Chidley

"TONS OF MONEY"

Tonight at First Congregational Church

Tonight at 8:15, "Tons of Money," the first of a season of plays, will be presented at the Parish Hall of the First Congregational Church. The hall has been sold out for several days and we are grateful for the support of the town in this undertaking for unemployment relief.

"Tons of Money" is an English farce based on the experience of a Mr. and Mrs. Allington who are beset by creditors, and the play deals with their attempt to take full advantage of an opportunity to use "tons of money" which comes within their reach. A series of sensational and dramatic events result, giving rise to situations both ludicrous and melodramatic.

Mr. Mervin E. Stevens, the director, has had wide experience in dramatic lines. He is a talented actor himself, having played many leading parts at the Gloucester School of the Little Theater. He is director of dramatics at Andover.

Mrs. A. Kirby Snell, a recent comer to Winchester, is playing the women's lead. She has had a varied experience on the professional stage having played in "Three Maids and a Man" in Boston in Lyceum. She was with the Parker Fennelly Drama Players for some time, and also toured in "Adam and Eve," a popular American comedy.

Mr. Hubert Bernard, who plays the men's lead is well-known to Winchester audiences, but it is also of interest to know that he has played the lead with dramatic societies in Fitchburg, Littleton, Greenfield, Woburn and other towns. Several years ago he was offered a position with the Repertory Theater Company of Boston.

The only member of the cast who has not appeared before in the dramatic society productions is Mr. Donald R. Waugh who plays the part of the solicitor. He is an experienced actor and has been director of dramatics of various boys' camps for several years.

FIELD HOCKEY NOTES

Winchester High School plays a league game this afternoon with Concord High at Concord and next Tuesday meets Lexington in a league match on Manchester Field.

Armistice Day morning at 9 there will be a double header hockey game on Manchester Field with the high school varsity meeting the alumnae, and the freshman whites, captained by Miss Danforth, playing the freshman reds captained by Miss Stevens.

These freshmen teams played a 1 to 1 tie game yesterday and meet again on Monday. They include in their lineups the 28 most promising players among the 48 girls who have reported for freshman sports.

The inter-class hockey teams have been chosen and commence their tournament for the school championship on Tuesday when the sophomores meet the juniors. Coach Margaret Comerford is justly proud of the showing which her second varsity eleven has made this season. This group of youngsters is undefeated in six games and have yet to be scored upon.

Sergt. John H. Noonan and Motorcycle Officer John Murray noticed a 9-year old youngster clinging to a truck going through the center last Saturday. They stopped the machine and took the boy to the station. He gave his name as James McCran of 105 D street, South Boston, and said he was going for a ride. His parents were notified.

ROTARY CLUB

At home Nov. 5, with all members present save three.

We are pleased to observe that our District Governor, "Jerry" Wood of Hudson has received commendatory recognition from Rhode Island headquarters at Chicago for his official activities. "Jerry's" recent letter to his club presidents was an executive masterpiece and was broadcast all over the entire jurisdiction in the regular weekly letter.

This district should be and undoubtedly is proud of its Governor. Our gratitude for our good fortune in having excellent leadership should be expressed by genuine and cheerful effort to carry out the recommendation and policies transmitted to us from time to time.

Reports from our Community Service Committee are to the effect that good progress is being made with their work, as a result of which we are confident that there need be no cases of severe privation this winter in our town.

As we entered the clubhouse today we were greeted by Vice-President George, who with a doleful countenance and profuse apologies explained that he was unsuccessful in providing the anticipated entertainment for this occasion. But we are becoming aware of the fact that George's clouds have silver linings. For he had taken good care to provide a substitute for the regular feature, and we have a feeling that this substitute was fully as interesting as the anticipated feature would have been. In short George took the club members on a prsonally conducted tour of the Winchester Conservatories of which he is manager. We suspect that few Winchesterites realize the magnitude of this establishment which is flourishing in our midst. For instance there are some 22,000 rose bushes under glass and furnishing a well-nigh perpetual succession of blooms. All flowers popular in this section are grown in profusion. Carnations, Callas, Begonias, Geraniums, Chrysanthemums and many others in quantity profuse and in quality supreme. The fern and palm room also is worthy of special mention and that department devoted to the growth of tropical fruits and flowers is an excellent example of what may be accomplished along this line in a latitude not congenial to these plants.

Equally impressive in its way was the heating-plant with its huge boilers to produce summer temperature in winter seasons in these great Conservatories. We are now more firmly convinced than ever that Winchester has within its bounds a high-grade establishment capable of caring for the floral requirements of our citizens. And to George we extend our cordial thanks for an hour of real pleasure.

And this same George has something very much worth while for our entertainment next week. Resolve to come.

Attendance percentage for Oct. 29—90.62 per cent.

HALLOWE'EN AND ANNIVERSARY PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. George Wiswell and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Casey of Wedgemere avenue were joint hosts last Saturday evening at an anniversary Hallowe'en party at the Wiswell home on Fletcher street.

Clever decorations made an attractive background for the unusual costumes in which the guests presented themselves. Mrs. Gloria Wooley, wife of Major Woolley, former American ace, was awarded first prize for her costume of 1892. Mrs. Chester Whitten, garbed as a child, won second prize.

First prize for gentlemen was won by Theodore Hurd as "Backwards and Forwards." Philip Ahlin of Belmont as "Ambassador to Sweden" was awarded the consolation.

The usual Hallowe'en games were indulged in, apples were bobbed, peanuts were hunted and an impromptu entertainment program was put on by the well known radio entertainers, "Hum and Strum," who were guests with Roy Marks, well known in the production end of radio broadcasting.

Supper was served during the evening and before the 48 guests departed all affixed their signatures to a handsome hand drawn plaque which was presented by Mr. Wiswell to Mr. and Mrs. Casey.

The public is cordially invited to attend this demonstration lesson and to meet and talk with Miss DeCarlton. There will be no admisison charge.

Recently announced averages for the Eastern Massachusetts Pistol League list Edward S. Winn of this town in second place with the impressive score of 198.68.

WAS CHARTER MEMBER OF CALUMET CLUB

Mr. Charles L. F. Bridge, formerly of Winchester, and one of the original charter members of the Calumet Club, died suddenly of heart trouble at Malden last Sunday afternoon, Nov. 1., in his 83rd year. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. George A. Blaisdell of Belmont and Miss Ethel M. Bridge of Malden; and three sons, Ernest of New Haven, Roy S. of Albany and Hollings Bridge of Jamaica Plain; also by seven grandchildren.

The funeral services were held at the home of Mr. Arthur W. Hill, husband of a deceased daughter, at 11 Glen street, Malden, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, interment being made at Mt. Auburn Cemetery. There was violin and piano music, including a composition by Mrs. Blaisdell, daughter of the deceased. Among the relatives and friends present were two of the members of Mr. Bridge's Harvard Class of '69. One hundred and twenty-six students entered this class and 112 graduated, and there remain 14 living. The attending members were Mr. Norman Fay, secretary of the class and Mr. William S. Hall, both of Cambridge. These two class members were the same age as Mr. Bridge. The Class of '69 sent a very beautiful wreath of crimson roses.

It will be recalled that Mr. Bridge married Marietta Safford, also of Winchester, who passed away about two years ago. She was the daughter of Joseph A. and Emmaline Safford.

FROM MR. LARAWAY

To the Editor of the Star:

Last night I read in a paper, not the Star, a news item which is very misleading. It read, "Bids were recently received from a number of painters in town for giving the guard room at the station a thorough renovating. Nearly every painter in town sent in bids and the job was awarded to Carl Larson, the low man among all the bidders, although his price was not very much below that of Jonas A. Laraway who also sent in a bid." Now, as a matter of fact, Jonas A. Laraway had very little to do in the matter. The J. A. Laraway Company, which is Massachusetts incorporated, and the oldest firm in Winchester square, with some head, did figure this job, not as a joke, as inferred, but trying to keep work in town.

A certain individual, for some time, has been importing plumbers from a nearby city, whose head is the same shape as his. When times are normal these very unpatriotic town practices go by without notice.

The prices on painting the police station follow: Charles Lawson, $239.50, Harry Dodge $245., George Wyman $275., A. Halberg $290., J. A. Laraway $233., Carl Larson $230. You can see we were in the swim and the lowest bidder for, had we received the job, only Winchester men would be employed and we would have turned 10 per cent into the charity fund as suggested a few weeks ago.

Yours very truly,
Jonas A. Laraway

Mrs. Muriel Nickerson Trout and Mr. Kenneth M. Pratt of Winchester are members of the cast of Captain Applejack which the Tufts Alumni players are producing Saturday evening in Jackson Gymnasium as a feature of the annual Tufts home-coming day. Both Mrs. Trout and Mr. Pratt were active in dramatics while undergraduates at Jackson and Tufts.

Shortly after A. F. "Al" Noble of Newton left his car on Main street near the Unitarian Church last Friday afternoon and went to Manchester Field where he was linesman at the charity football game between Kents Hill and Tufts, a repair truck, owned by the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company, parked nearby, rolled down the hill and against his machine. The accident was caused when the brake on the truck was in some way released. Mr. Noble's car was damaged but no one was injured.

CONSTRUCTION AT HIGH SCHOOL

The School Building Committee of 1931 are pleased to report that the construction work on the High School addition, which was brought to a standstill some three weeks ago as a result of the closing of a bank, is again in full swing.

The concrete footings for the gymnasium are already in place and the work should go forward now at a rapid pace.

The town is now dealing directly in all matters including the making of payments with another contractor, Irving P. Rocheford, of Framingham, although the contract still stands between the Town of Winchester and Frankini Bros., and the interests of the town are stil protected by the bond filed under that contract.

This favorable condition has been brought about as follows:

Alexander Williams as receiver for Frankini Bros. has under the authority and with the approval of the Court, sublet the entire work of constructing the High School addition and alteration as contemplated by the Town's contract with Frankini Bros. to Irving P. Rocheford of Framingham under conditions by which the Town of Winchester will deal directly with the latter in all things including payments.

This arrangement has been made with the entire approval of the School Building Committee and without extra cost to the Town.

The new contractor, Irving P. Rocheford was one of the original bidders for this work. He has done very satisfactory work for the architects on both of our building projects and has their enthusiastic endorsement.

The work on the Main street building has progressed rapidly and a large part of the concrete walls of the main building are in place up to the level of the ground floor.

The excavated material has been used in the rough grading of the playground along tht Parkway and gives a very good idea of what a fine playground this will be.

LEGIONNAIRES HEARD E. E. WHITING

E. E. Whiting, newspaper man, former Washington correspondent and widely known columnist, was guest speaker at the annual pre-Armistice Day banquet of Winchester Post, A. L., in post headquarters last evening.

A real roast turkey dinner with all the fixin's, complete from soup to nuts, was served under the direction of "Cy" Young, Warren Johnston and "Russ" Carroll. At the brief business session reports of committees were heard and final plans for the big Armistice Ball were discussed. Comndr. Wade L. Grindle urged all Legionnaires to assemble at 10:30 on the morning of Armistice Day at post headquarters to proceed to the War Memorial where brief exercises will be held, and stressed the fact that the public is cordially invited to be present.

Mr. Whiting's address was of absorbing interest. He discussed the political situation at Washington intimately and gave first hand word sketches of the likely presidential nominees in both parties. Mr. Whiting believes that Herbert Hoover will carry the Republican colors in the next election and expects the Democratic standard bearer will be chosen from among "Al" Smith, Governor Roosevelt, Governor Ritchie, Owen D. Young and Newton D. Baker, with Representative Garner of Texas as a strong possibility. Senator "Joe" Robinson of Arkansas is another who may slide into the running.

MARRIAGE INTENTIONS

Marriage intentions have been filed with the Town Clerk as follows:

William Edward Harkins of 27 Beacon street, Woburn and Bridget Mary McGonigle of 33 Swanton street.

HIGH SCHOOL WON FROM SOMERVILLE

Local Harries Undefeated This Season

Winchester High School's crack cross country team finished its 1931 season undefeated by winning from the Somerville High harriers Wednesday afternoon, 20 to 39. Six of the first nine men to finish wore Winchester jersies.

Three members of the local team, Capt. Frank Corby, "Al" Lynch and "Jud" Cross, finished in a triple tie, sweeping through the tape hand in hand. The time, probably because of this fact was somewhat slower than usual, being 13 min. 40 sec., but the thrill of seeing three team mates running with clasped hands up the straightaway to the finish more than made up any falling off on the part of the stop watch.

Following is the order in which the runners finished: 1st, triple tie among Corby, "Al" Lynch and Cross, all of Winchester; 4th, Worth (S); 5th, Fletcher (S); 6th, Maffeo (W); 7th, Senior (S); 8th, "Dick" Pettingell (W); 9th, tie between Lynch and Paine, both of Winchester; 11th, Prentice (S); 12th, Goldstein (S); 13th, Haskell (W); 14th, Noble (W); 15th, Twombly (S); 16th, Moran (S) Two of Winchester's dependable runners, "Tom" McPartlin and Roger Pettingell, were kept out of the meet by illness.

The local team has enjoyed one of the best seasons in the history of cross country running here under the direction of its new coach, "Micky" Muerling. The former Springfield sprinter has worked carefully with his charges and has developed his boys to a remarkable degree. So well has Winchester gone this year that two clubs have recently run out of meets with the Red and Black. Arlington, Beverly, Woburn, Braintree and Somerville have all fallen before the fast stepping Winchester tribe. In passing, it might be well to state that this year's team of harriers is the first Winchester outfit to win from Arlington at the hill and dale game.

This year's team is captained by Francis Corby and managed by Charles Main, whose uncle, "Ted" Main, was quite a runner in his own right back in his high school days. It is of interest that Corby is the only senior member of the squad, so that Coach Muerling will have a splendid veteran nucleus to work with another year. The Star offers him and his team its congratulations and best wishes for another win at the Harvard Interscholastics at the Stadium Nov. 14.

LADIES' FRIENDLY SOCIETY

The Ladies' Friendly Society will meet Tuesday, Nov. 10, at 2:30 p. m. in the Unitarian Parish House. "Moravian Customs" is the subject which Mrs. Charles Wellman will discuss. Mr. Arthur Jones, violinist, from the Veterans' Hospital at Bedford will be the soloist for the afternoon. A social hour will follow the program and tea will be served.

On Thursday, Nov. 12, at 6:45 p. m. the annual supper and parish meeting will be held in Metcalf Hall. The chairman in charge of tickets, Mrs. Arthur G. Robbins, Win. 0302, urges parish members to let her know by Tuesday, Nov. 10, at the latest if they expect to attend. The directors in the various districts also have tickets for sale.

The comedy "The Man from Toronto" under the personal direction of Mr. Frank E. Fowle, is to be presented on Friday, Nov. 20, at 8 p. m. in Metcalf Hall. Mrs. H. L. Osgood, 121 Church street, Win. 0355 is in charge of tickets. Mrs. Kenneth F. McLeod, chairman of dramatics, also has tickets for sale. The society invites everyone to come to see this delightful comedy, performed by members of the church and the Ladies' Friendly Society and coached by a true professional.

Do not forget the Annual Christmas Bazaar on Tuesday, Dec. 8. Come and buy useful and attractive gifts for friends and family!

MYSTIC CHAPTER MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

The Mystic School Chapter of the Mothers' Association held its first meeting of the year on Tuesday Nov. 3 with about 80 members present. After a short business meeting the President, Mrs. Charles Livingstone, introduced Mrs. Robert A. Reynolds who gave monologues and told stories about children which were very entertaining and exceedingly well done. Mrs. Leon D. Hughes sang in her usual pleasing manner and her songs were much enjoyed. A violin obligato played by Mrs. Helen Stoddinska Sibley accompanied two of her selections. Mrs. Sibley also gave several violin solos which were ably played and much enjoyed by all. Mrs. Viola Robb accompanied Mrs. Hughes and Mrs. Sibley. A social hour followed during which tea was served.

WINCHESTER BOYS MET ON MAINE GRIDIRON

Last Friday afternoon's football game between Maine Central Institute and Bates freshmen brought together two Winchester boys who are members of the elevens representing those schools. Wilmer Smith, former Winchester High halfback, played quarter for the Bucksport team while Pomford Hill was at tackle for the Bates first year men.

Hill was not a member of the football team at high school, but has been playing regularly for the Bates frosh and is one of the biggest men on the club, weighing 190 pounds. On Nov. 14 "Brad" will meet some more boys from the old home town, Bates playing Kents Hill on that date. "Dan" Smith and "Ollo" Lee are members of the Kents Hill team, but it is doubtful if Lee's bad knee will permit him to play any more football this fall.

Now is the time to have little daughters unruly growing hair made into Permanent curls. Let us explain how easily it can be done. The Idonian Beauty Shop, National Bank Building. Tel. 1408. o23-tf

CALUMET NOTES

"Wrassling" seems to be the happy thought at the Calumet Club this week with interest increasing daily in the big tournament which is to be staged in the club hall tomorrow night as the feature of the regular Saturday night smoker.

The show is for Calumet members and their guests, a modest charge of 50c being made to assist in defraying expenses.

No prima dona grapplers have been secured, and those who see the show need not become bored at the sight of a big shot toying with an opponent whom he is merely carrying to give the cash customers a run for their money.

"Al" Morelli, ex-Boston College football star, already hailed as one of the best of the younger matmen; Boris Demitroff, Bulgar star now matched to meet the champion DeGlane; "Ed" McNeil of Boston and Jack Nelson of New York, the veteran Arthur Davis of Tufts and 'Eddie" Elzer of St. Paul are the pachyderms who will show tomorrow night and all are known to be willing and capable wrestlers. There will be no idle moments with this team in action so come on down to the club and get a close up of the sport which is yearly increasing in popularity, yet is one of the oldest of all forms of athletic competition.

There isn't much to say about the big Hallowe'en party except that if you weren't there, you most certainly missed something. In fact it's whispered about that there is a real and insistant demand for another party along similar lines for the benefit of those who didn't attend last Friday. We warned every one that the party would be good so you can't blame us.

The music was excellent and so too was the entertainment, furnished by professional talent from the Metropolitan Theatre. The party was cabaret style with refreshments served a la carte at individual tables. Clever decorations added the finishing touch and Mrs. Harold Bostwick, who was in general charge of arrangements, deserves the thanks and congratulations of all Calumeters for a top hole evening.

Mrs. Dr. Lincoln was in charge of the ladies' afternoon bowling Tuesday, Nov. 3 at which prizes were won as follows:

High Single, Mrs. Cox, 98.
High Single with Handicap Mrs. Metier, 109.
High Two Strings, Flat Mrs. Pitaran, 172.
High Two Strings With Handicap Mrs. Cass, 202.

Calumeters are urged not to forget the Tuesday afternoon bridge Nov. 10 at 2 o'clock with Mrs. F. W. Aseltine in charge and on Thursday evening, Nov. 12, there is to be mixed bowling with prizes. Save the dates and plan now to attend.

The Calumet hunters have returned announcing good luck, so everything seems complete for that big venison party at the club in January. "Zeke" Irish is hereby warned to dust out the cold storage. Any club member having a trailer which is not in use might communicate with Steward Fred Scholl. No mere automobile will serve to tote the big game back to civilization.

Calumet won from Towanda in the Mystic Valley League Monday evening, 9—6. Points were divided as follows:

| | Cal. | Towa. |
|---|---|---|
| Bowling | 6 | 2 |
| Pool and Billiards | 2 | 1 |
| Cards | 1 | 2 |
| Total | 9 | 6 |

Tuesday evening, Calumet goes to Malden for its third match in the Mystic Valley League series.

CRACK CLARK SCHOOL ELEVEN TO PLAY AT LYNN ON HOLIDAY

"Joe" Tansey, Former Winchester Grid Star, Coach of New Hampshire Team

"Joe" Tansey, one of Winchester's all time football greats, will bring his crack Clark School eleven to Lynn on Armistice Day afternoon for a game with the General Electric School team at General Electric field. Interest in the game is unusually keen in the shoe city because of the fact that the great "Tony" Geniawicz, former Lynn all scholastic halfback is carrying on for Clark and going better than ever.

The New Hampshire school has a fine record, having won from Kendall Union, Cooke School, Waring School of Pennsylvania, Montpelier Academy and Middlebury and New Hampshire freshman teams. Only the undefeated Dartmouth freshmen have succeeded in handing it a reverse.

Many local fans will be glad of a chance to see Coach Tansey's club in action especially since while watching the Winchester boy's team work, opportunity will be afforded to see Geniawicz, who Jackson Carnell, Dartmouth's coach, believes to be the equal right now of any college back in the country.

DR. ROMMERT LECTURED HERE

Dr. George Rommert of Munich, gave three scientific lectures in Winchester, last Monday, under the auspices of the School Department, addressing the high school pupils in the morning and junior high and high school freshmen in the afternoon, later speaking to members of the teaching staff and pupils especially interested in science species.

Dr. Rocmert demonstrated the micro-projection machine, which enables him to put on the screen what is seen under the microscope, doing this by means of the microscope and the arc lamp. Various species of animals that come to life in the water were displayed.

Dr. Rommert thus far is the only man who knows how to use this machine, which is of great advantage in science classes enabling 30 or more youngsters to observe action which under present conditions only one child can see under the microscope.

HALLOWE'EN GENERALLY QUIET HERE

Police and Fire Headquarters both reported a very quiet Hallowe'en with little trouble reported about town. There were no false alarms and a brush fire on Cross street was the firemen's only run during the night.

There were many parties about town, the usual Calumet festivities attracting a big crowd to the club house on Dix street. Private parties undoubtedly kept many youngsters off the street.

The police had several calls from householders who felt that youthful merrymakers were going a bit too far. The Hallowe'en spirit began to manifest itself Friday night when two windows were broken in the old Chapin School building on Swanton street and two posts were torn up and removed from the yard of the First Congregational Church.

Saturday evening's first call took the police to Wedge Pond road where a crowd of boys were throwing sand on the piazza of a house, and a half hour later it was necessary to stop a group of youngsters who were pelting a Ridgefield road house with decayed fruit.

In the latter instance Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy and Motorcycle Officer John Murray rounded up the youngsters, who ranged in ages from 9 to 14 years, and notified their parents.

A fence was pulled down at a residence on the Parkway and it was necessary to stop the bell ringing activities of a crowd of merrymakers on Church street. Sergeant Cassidy was successful and getting two boys who damaged an auto on Ridgefield road and after a talk with their parents took them to the owner where they agreed to make amends for the trouble they caused.

A resident of Mt. Vernon street reported that boys had pitched her clothes reel into the road and when the police went to investigate they found a street sign reposing in the lady's yard. Street signs were broken off at two intersections on the West Side and the Boston & Maine fence on upper Main street opposite Cady's Filling Station was broken down. A wicker piazza chair was recovered on the porch of a Fletcher street home and several windows were broken in a Foxcroft road garage. Most of the mischief reported, however, was not of a malicious nature and no arrests were made.

WINCHESTER COLLEGE CLUB HOLDS FALL MEETING

Mrs. Harper Blaisdell proved a most charming hostess to a group of 60 members of the Winchester College Club at her home on Brooks street last Friday afternoon. After a short business meeting Mrs. Fred Abbott, the president, introduced the speaker of the afternoon Miss Jane Louise Mesick, dean of Simmons who gave an analysis of the problems of the freshman of today in her subject, "The Class of 1931."

"The present day freshman" Miss Mesick said, "is as unsophisticated and full of awe of college authorities as her sisters of 20 years ago and named homesickness and mortification at receiving low grades as two chief troubles besetting freshmen. The girl who has received excellent marks all through her high school course does not always realize that in college she is competing with the upper truth of high school classes, when she finds her true intellectual level and accepts it, the greatest adjustment has been made."

Miss Mesick said "as a result of the financial depression the girls are much steadier and working harder."

Mrs. Kenneth Hall of Smith College and Mrs. Ed. Grosvenor of Wellesley were in charge of refreshments, assisted by Mrs. James Doty, Smith; Mrs. Donald Sherwood, Smith; Mrs. Roy Wision, Wellesley; Miss Mary Hodge, Wellesley; Mrs. Walter Keyes, Wheaton; Mrs. Waldo Ryan, Simmons; Mrs. Ben Schneidar, University of Cincinnati; Mrs. Clifford Cunningham, Oberlin; Mrs. William Kugler, Mt. Holyoke; Mrs. W. P. Blood, Mt. Holyoke.

WINCHESTER REPRESENTED AT BAZAAR

The Massachusetts Women's Clubs held a bazaar, Wednesday Nov. 4 at the Copley Plaza to raise funds for the campaign of "Grace Morrison Poole for President of the General Federation in 1932." In the evening there was a pop concert with specialty acts and a boy soprano. Among the Winchester people present were:

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Howe
Mr. and Mrs. Kingman Cass
Mr. and Mrs. Walter Winship
Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Wilson
Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cunningham
Mr. and Mrs. Carlisle Burton
Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hildreth
Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hall
Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Goodwin
Mr. and Mrs. F. Stanley Smith

WEEK-END FIRES

Week-end activity for members of the Fire Department commenced at 9:45 last Friday afternoon when there was a fire at the town dump.

Saturday afternoon at 2:27 the men were again called to the dump, and at 5:18 Firemen David Meskell and Everett Kimball made a trip to Lyceum Hall to admit a resident of the hall to her rooms. At 6:50 p. m. Saturday there was a brush fire near the home of Mr. Paul Cavanaugh at 293 Cross street.

Sunday at 6:18 p. m. the Central Station was notified by telephone that a tree on Euclid avenue was ablaze. At 8:40 p. m. there was a brush fire near the home of Mr. Ernest B. Dade on Hillcrest Parkway and the final run came shortly after 9 for a brush fire in the rear of Clark street.

Done!

A French expert on deafness says that high-pitched conversation on the part of a wife should be grounds for a divorce. How about adding the whining tenor husband to the list?

STRAND ATTRACTIONS

"Personal Maid," the revealing picture from Grace Perkins' exciting novel, will be at the Strand Theatre, Malden for seven days starting Saturday, Nov. 7, with titian-haired Nancy Carroll playing the title role; Pat O'Brien doing a self-made business man; Gene Raymond, an interesting screen newcomer, as a rollicking rich college boy; George Fawcett happily grouchy as the multimillionaire and rib-tickling Mary Boland making much of the society dowager. "Personal Maid" is the Cinderella story made real, with Nancy Carroll sparkling in and out on her high heels. It's romance, and good fun, but, underneath it all is real drama, lightly and amusingly told, of the emotion-torn, love-muddled lives of American millionaires.

The second attraction at the Strand will be "Pagan Lady" with Evelyn Brent in the character of "Dot Hunter," a lady who has seen life in the raw from Bombay to Maine. Conrad Nagle plays the missionary, Charles Bickford the rum-running sweetheart, and others in the cast include William Farnum, Lucille Gleason and Roland Young.

As an added attraction this week the Strand will present "Legion On Parade" showing the doings at the big Legion Convention at Detroit. On Monday night, Nov. 9 the Malden Post 69 of the American Legion are attending with their families and friends. The Drum Corps and 40 and 8 will be present. It is expected that this will be a big night at the Strand for the Legion.

BOILING OVER SCORED AGAIN

Boiling Over, Miss Marjorie Danforth's mount, scored in Friday and Saturday's competition at the Boston Horse Show in the Garden, placing fifth in the $500 saddle pony stake, 14.2 hands and under, on Friday; and taking third in Saturday's event for saddle ponies ridden by amateurs.

Miss Joan Harding rode Dilwyne Farm's Old Guard to a red in the junior jumping class for the Dedham Hunt Trophies and Miss Ellen Harding was one of the riders on the Dilwyne Farm team that won the event for hunt teams for the Myopia Plate.

INVICTUS

Behind the clouds, the sun
Still shines,
And in the land, there's wealth
In abundance,
And men still need
The metals, the oils, the coal,
For wear and tear goes on and on.
The fields abound with life
In the soil,
And the great Force of Nature
That generates and develops
The crops for men to harvest,
The forests for men to convert
Into shelter
Is not subject to Depression.
Ingenuity, resourcefulness and Genius
Still dwell in the minds of men
And in their hearts, dwells a
Constant desire to commingle,
Renew, Restore, and build
Better and greater things.
When skill in Industry and Government
Shall desert us
And the Earth and Sea
Fail to yield their sustenance
Only then shall we know Depression.

Jesse S. Wilson

Temple to Crocodile

The first known sanctuary to the crocodile god has been found in Egypt. The sanctuary was found in a town sacred to Sekneptynis (a crocodile god), and its identification was made possible by Greek inscriptions carved on one of the altars. To the south of a limestone kiosk was found a a paved court, flanked by four mud-brick buildings constructed for some ritual purposes. It is probable that they were used in connection with oracles, a specialty of the temples of crocodile gods in Fayum. The two entrances of the sanctuary are embellished with lions and sphinxes and other lions and sphinxes adorn the courtyard. At the end of the Sacred way is the principal temple in limestone. Its portals are flanked by a statue of one of the pharaohs and of a sleeping lion.

Foolish Worry

To worry is merely to waste energy on the unknown. Until you know what tomorrow has in store for you, you are wasting your time by worrying. It would be much better to do some solid thinking, some constructive planning. Worry is a negative sort of thing. A crisis needs something positive, and hope is always a better stability in time of trouble than despair. Hope at least prepares us to be ready to greet the unknown tomorrow with a willingness and a preparedness to turn to advantage whatever may turn up.—Exchange.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Guests who were in costume included the Misses Doris and Virginia Carlson, Lillian, Dorothy and Gladys Koons, Helen Colliander, Pauline Clark, Ruth Hanlon, Nancy Snyder, Aileen Snow, Norris Chevalier, and Jean Wilson. A ghost greeted the guests at the door.

The house was gay with Hallowe'en decorations, and the youthful guests enjoyed games, bobbing for apples, and a peanut hunt. Refreshments were served in the dining room from a prettily decorated table.

New floors laid, old floors made new. Estimates given. Tel. Win. 1088. s25-tf

DEDHAM NOSED OUT WINCHESTER

Failure to Get Extra Point Fatal to Locals

In a game marred by the laxity of the officiating Dedham Town Team nosed out Winchester Town Team last Sunday afternoon at Dedham, 7 to 6. Winchester's failure to add its point after touchdown cost it a tie with its most powerful opponent of the year to date.

A huge crowd saw the contest and a big delegation from Winchester made the long trip to Dedham to urge on Manager Amico's boys.

Winchester started like a sure winner when, following the kickoff which the locals received, "Five Yards" Flaherty galloped 35 yards to midfield. "Deadhorse" Chefalo crashed off tackle for 20 yards and the locals were threatening Dedham's goal, only to see their attack peter out in the face of stubborn opposition from the burly home team forwards.

Carroll's kick traveled only to the Dedham 15 yard line but here the Town Team forwards smothered the home club's running game. An attempted punt was blocked and the ball, recovered by McDonnell for Winchester on Dedham's 9 yard marker.

The locals pushed along to the 5 yard line but at this point Dedham braced and Winchester's threat ended when Carroll's pass was incomplete in the end zone.

Play had hardly begun in the second quarter when Carroll tossed a 30 yard pass to Flaherty who was downed on Dedham's 3 yard line. Carroll got a yard at center and Chefalo sliced off tackle for the touchdown. Doherty's attempt to drop-kick the goal was blocked.

Following half time Coach Amico sent several new men into the game and shifted the remaining lineup. Dedham took kindly to the change and rushed from midfield to Winchester's 5 yard line where "Nutsy" Amico hit a 200 pound ball carrier so hard he dropped the ball, Winchester recovering.

Carroll kicked out of danger, but Dedham's power was beginning to tell, and in the final quarter the home team launched a running attack which carried to the "Townie's" one yard line.

On the next play the Dedham number two back crashed over, though Winchester protested that he had gone outside in so doing. Marks in the turf seemed to bear out Captain Kerrigan's contention, but the officials ruled a touchdown and their ruling held.

Then followed one of the shortest five minutes any one could hope to live through. Dedham kicked and the locals had just time for two plays when the whistle blew. One long pass had been completed and anything might have happened if those five minutes hadn't passed so rapidly.

Erskine White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Erskine M. White of Wildwood street, had a Hallowe'en masquerade party at his home last Friday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock. Among the youthful guests were Cynthia Newton, Raymond Wilkins, Edward Scully, Mary Hill, Patty Whitcomb, Clare Capley, "Jimmie" Lane, Bernard Wightman and John Frost.

EPIPHANY MEN'S CLUB

The Epiphany Men's Club opened their season 1931-32 with a well attended and enthusiastic meeting Monday evening, Nov. 2 in the parish house on Church street.

The newly elected President, who revealed himself to be Dr. H. J. Olmsted of Seneca road, all previous reports notwithstanding, greeted the members and after an excellent roast chicken dinner introduced the guest of honor and principal speaker of the evening, Rev. Dwight W. Hadley. Mr. Hadley expressed his very great appreciation of the cordial reception extended to him on all occasions since his arrival in the parish and complimented the club on its apparent healthy status.

During the short business meeting Marcus B. May read the final report of the Rev. Murray W. Dewart Memorial Committee which is given in part as follows:

"In thinking of a memorial there should be considered two outstanding characteristics of Murray Dewart. First and foremost was his love of people and more especially of men. He saw only the good in every man—a nugget of gold that every man possesses—and which is not always apparent to his fellows. He had a deep interest in and affection for the individual and was his friend. He was a man among men, living their hopes and joys and fears and troubles and yet always carrying with him high ideals of life and an intent to guide each man into a path of higher living.

"In the church Murray was primarily the preacher and not the executive or the formalist. He had a message to deliver and he knew it. He felt that he must bring people into the way of Christ. He believed that from the pulpit he could make men see the lessons of the gospel and apply them in their daily lives. He was so full of the spirit of his Master and so confident of the everlasting verity of the gospel, that he felt his mission to be by his preaching to make all men as confident and as sure as himself that the only free life could be attained by a knowledge of the love of God and love of fellow men.

"Thus in erecting a memorial to 'Valiant for Truth,' these two outstanding characteristics of Murray Dewart should be borne in mind."

The memorial is in the form of a beautiful window in the north side of the chancel of the church.

KENTS HILL WON BENEFIT GAME FROM TUFTS JUNIOR VARSITY

A rugged, smooth working Kents Hill football team outclassed Tufts Junior Varsity on Manchester Field last Friday afternoon, winning the benefit game for the Disabled Veterans' Welfare fund, 19—0. A big crowd, including many Kents Hill Alumni, witnessed the game and cheered the Maine prep school boys on to victory.

The Maine delegation arrived in town about noon and dressed at the Fire Station, getting to the field shortly before 2 o'clock. Tufts rode up from Medford in a big bus, dressed for the fray.

Preceeding the game and between the halves the Disabled Veterans' Drum and Bugle Corps from the Bedford Hospital gave a snappy exhibition drill which kept the crowd on edge. Members of the Disabled Veterans' Group acted as ticket sellers and Girl Scouts in uniform sold peanuts and candy.

A veteran group of capable officials handled the game and it was well worth the price to see "Larry" Bankart, "Bob" Guild, "Al" Noble, and big "Jim" Fitzgerald in action. Decisions were made quickly and accurately, infractions of the rules resulting in penalties which quickly made the contestants realize that the arbitors knew their book.

Kents Hill suffered most in the matter of penalties, drawing three 15 yard setbacks for illegal use of hands and several five yarders for offside. Tufts drew three five yard penalties for offside.

The game was not so one sided as the score would indicate. Kents Hill was evidently a bit stale after its objective game with Hebron and the big Tufts linemen waged a stubborn if individual opposition to its running game. The Maine boys made little use of the forward pass, preferring to stick to power plays in which Pollard and Polychronides did some very effective running. In the line Brennan played an outstanding tackle, his 6 feet five inches of bone and muscle making him tower even over the big Tufts players. Meserve and Winchester's "Dan" Smith were stumbling blocks in the way of the Tufts advance. For the Jay-Vees, Morse, the half-pint Gurwitz, Yagjian and Restall were outstanding. A bad knee kept "Bob" Lee, Winchester fullback out of the Maine lineup.

Starting the game, Tufts made the Kents Hill boys look very bad with a series of flat passes over center, but it was one of these forwards which resulted in the first touchdown, when Captain Meserve intercepted at midfield and raced for the score.

Shortly after the following kickoff, Kents Hill came into possession of the ball at the Tufts 32-yard line where Polychronides got away behind nice interference for a dash to the two-yard stripe. In two rushes "Poly" took it over, but once again the try for goal failed.

Just before the close of the first quarter, Tufts attempted a forward pass deep in its own territory. The gigantic Brennan was through very fast and literally took the ball from the Tufts boy's hands to gallop for a touchdown. This time Pollard, who had replaced Wells at quarterback, drop kicked the extra point.

This ended the scoring, and during the second half Tufts played the Maine eleven rather evenly until just before the final whistle. With time about up Kents Hill started a drive from its own side of middle field which had reached the Tufts 15-yard line when the game ended.

WINCHESTER AND BELMONT IN SCORELESS DEADLOCK

Locals Hold Three Times Inside Five-Yard Line

A gallant little band of black jersied Winchester youngsters held Belmont's thundering herd to a scoreless tie last Saturday afternoon on Manchester Field in a Middlesex League football game that had between four and five thousand fans pop-eyed with excitement. Three times Belmont crashed to the very shadow of the Winchester goal and three times that thin black line, led by those fighting fools, Lentini and Capt. "Joe" Flaherty, rallied to hurl back the invaders. The big crowd, one of the largest out-of-town crowds the police have ever handled at a football game, left the field singing the praises of Coach Linderman's boys who just would not be licked.

It must be admitted that Belmont was in the driver's seat all afternoon, and many will tell you the visitors deserved to win. Belmont was three times inside Winchester's five yard line, making 11 first downs to Winchester's three, but when yards meant tallies the visitors lost their punch in the face of a raging Winchester line. No team deserves to win that can't crash through once in three times.

On Winchester's rushline, Lentini and Flaherty were immense, the former reminding one of Frank Melly in his all-around fight. Flaherty was at the bottom of every pile and his example was a constant inspiration to his battling team mates. "Little Gegan" played a great all around game last Saturday.

In the backfield "Hal" Knowlton played some corking defensive football, tackling fiercely and taking a lot of drive out of the hard running Belmont backs. Hannon did some great kicking under pressure, one of his boots traveling from behind his goal line six yards beyond middle field and another going from his 31-yard line across the Belmont goal, a distance of 69 yards.

Belmont showed a flashy running back in Pounder and two hard driving backs in Ford and Dwyer. Aldrich, Murphy and Rubin did a great job on the visiting line.

McKee kicked off and the teams had hardly squared away when Pounder tossed off a 15-yard pass to Ford, the latter running to Winchester's 25-yard line. Belmont fumbled on second down and Flaherty recovered, Hannon and Tofuri crashing for eight yards off the tackles.

Hannon kicked and following an exchange of punts Pounder kicked to Tofuri at Winchester's 10-yard line. On third down a bad pass resulted in Hannon being downed on the two-yard line, but "Tommy" rose to the emergency and kicking from behind his own goal got off a magnificent punt, 56 yards to the Belmont 44-yard line where the ball went outside.

Flaherty and Lentini stopped two thrusts at the line and Pounder kicked to Tofuri at Winchester's 27-yard line. Tofuri and Lynch failed to gain and Hannon kicked to Pounder who ran the ball to Winchester's 45-yard line. Dwyer got four yards at tackle as the quarter ended.

Once again the fighting Winchester line turned back Dwyer and Ford, and Pounder kicked outside at Winchester's 15-yard line. Hannon returned the punt to the 42-yard marker. Aided by a five-yard penalty for offside, Ford and Pounder made it first down on Winchester's 32-yard line, but here the locals took the ball on downs.

A grounded pass and an ineffective end sweep by Hannon forced Winchester to kick and Hannon punted to his own 47-yard line. DiAppela went in for Mobbs who was hurt on the play.

Pounder was forced to kick and his boot was taken by Tofuri for a pretty runback to Winchester's 35-yard line. A pass was grounded and Lynch hit center for six yards, but Rubin tossed Knowlton for a loss and Hannon kicked to the Belmont 36-yard line where Dolan hit the Belmont halfback so hard he dropped the ball, Winchester recovering. Umpire Gerty ruled Dolan had hit the catcher before he got the ball and gave the leather to Belmont. Lentini broke through to smear Dwyer for a two-yard loss and Belmont kicked to Winchester's 20-yard line. Hannon was forced to kick and his boot went outside at Belmont's 46-yard line.

Here the visitors clicked in real earnest and with Ford, Dwyer and Pounder carrying took the ball to a first down 5½ yards from the Winchester goal. Daley and Tranfaglia were rushed into the fray for Ciruso and McKee, and two rushes netted Belmont 4½ yards, the ball being on Winchester's one-yard line as the half ended.

Winchester kicked and Ford returned the ball to his 41-yard line, being tackled by Knowlton. Then with Pounder and Dwyer doing some very effective carrying Belmont crashed along until the visiting quarterback was downed inside Winchester's 10-yard line. Ford picked up four yards, but Flaherty smeared the next play, and Winchester took the ball on downs two yards from the goal line.

Hannon kicked to his 33-yard line and Belmont started again. After three thrusts at the left side of Winchester's line had yielded eight yards, Pounder broke away at left tackle, being finally pulled down at Winchester's five-yard line. Ford and Pounder picked up two yards in two rushes and on a wide end sweep the speedy Pounder was limited to half a yard on a desperate tackle by Knowlton who was hurt on the play.

Knowlton hit the line for 3 yards and Hannon kicked to his 33-yard line, a five-yard penalty against Belmont sending the ball to the 38-yard line on the first play. A pass from Pounder to Alexander picked up 14 yards as the quarter ended.

Dwyer made it first down on the 20-yard line to start the final period and Pounder ground out seven at tackle. A fumble lost two yards, and two line plunges were piled up by Lentini and Flaherty, Winchester taking the ball on downs at the 15-yard line.

Knowlton and Tofuri hit the line for five yards and Hannon kicked to Belmont's 49-yard line. Belmont failed to gain and Pounder kicked to Hannon at Winchester's 25-yard marker.

Knowlton hit tackle for eight yards and Tofuri made it first down, Winchester's first of the game, on the 35-yard line. Knowlton again hit tackle for seven yards, Tofuri and Lynch, getting the other three for a second first down on the 45-yard stripe.

Belmont stiffened and on fourth down a bad pass resulted in Hannon being hurled outside at the 46-yard line, Belmont taking the ball on downs.

On the first play Tofuri intercepted a Pounder pass at his 34-yard line and Knowlton crashed off tackle for a first down on the 44-yard line. Hannon lost three yards and Mills went in for Lynch. Hannon dropped back to his 31-yard line and booted a beautiful spiral, the ball rolling across the Belmont goal line, DiAppela just failing to touch it down inside the field.

After two ineffective thrusts at the line, Pounder shot off a pass to Ford who was downed on his 37-yard line as the game ended.

VETERANS GROUP EXTENDS THANKS FOR ASSISTANCE AT FOOTBALL GAME

The Disabled Veterans' Welfare Group, who sponsored the football game between Kents Hill and Tufts Junior Varsity team on Manchester Field Friday, the 30th of October, wishes to announce that the proceeds are to be used for hospital and local relief work.

The Group wishes to thank all those who assisted in making the day a success and also to acknowledge the services of the police. As there were several men who are on night duty, we realize they were doing overtime work in being present on the field and we are very grateful to them.

The Drum and Bugle Corps from the Veterans Hospital at Bedford made a fine showing in their white suits, played extremely well and were certainly a very attractive feature of the afternoon.

After Kents Hill had beaten the Tufts team 19—0, the Drum and Bugle Corps were served supper at the Episcopal Parish House, Mr. Hadley, the new rector, being present.

Our thanks are extended to all who bought tickets and helped us in any way.

Mrs. R. K. Miller, Chairman

ENTERTAINED FOR MISS ROSE

Miss Jean Roop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. L. Roop of Dartmouth street, had a masquerade party at her home last Friday evening. ## WINCHESTER BRANCH OF THE NEEDLEWORK GUILD OF AMERICA

The directors have sent out the cards asking for the usual donation of two new garments for the Needlework Guild. It is hoped that every member will respond to the appeal this year when there is so great a need. Please give warm, suitable clothing this year in preference to towels, wash clothes, etc. Kindly do your buying in Winchester as exchanges are so much more easily made. The annual meeting will be held at the Methodist Church, Nov. 18 at 2 o'clock p. m. Miss Hilda M. Torrop, Superintendent of the Winchester Hospital will be the speaker. A treat is in store for those who have not heard Miss Torrop and those who have, were very appreciative of her instructive and interesting talk. Come directors and bring your members! n6-2t

COUNTRY DAY BLANKED FENN

Winchester Country Day proved too good for Fenn School last Friday afternoon, winning from the visiting eleven, 27—0, on the Country Day gridiron. Captain Tate and Hill were Winchester's stars, the former scoring two touchdowns and the latter one. Tate scored two points after touchdown and Blackler, one, the latter also scoring a touchdown.

TAX COLLECTIONS TOTAL HALF-MILLION

Tax Collector Nathaniel M. Nichols announced this week that his collections for real and personal taxes since Oct. 10 total more than half a million dollars. Since the short term notes of the town now coming due amount to $425,000, the collections to date ensure a working balance of $75,000, with more money coming in.

With the tax rate the same as a year ago and a commitment of $25,000 in excess of last year for collection, current collections have about increased to meet the increased commitment. Thus far, despite hard times Collector Nichols states that his collections have run within a few thousand dollars of his last year's figures.

MALDEN MYSTIC THEATRE

"Murder at Midnight" one of the most interesting mystery dramas in the history of talking pictures, comes to the Mystic Theatre in Malden on Saturday, for a run of seven days. An all-star cast of players that include Hale Hamilton, Alice White, Leslie Fenton, Aileen Pringle and Robert Eliott enact the principal roles. The picture opens with a house party where the guests are staging a play. At exactly midnight a man is shot and killed. To complicate matters some one has called the police a few minutes before the murder occured notifying them that a man was to be killed at that hour. "Murder at Midnight" is sure to please not only those who like a good detective story but also those who enjoy capable acting.

"The Hard Hombre," with Hoot Gibson and Lina Basquette as the stars, will be the second feature on the bill for Saturday. "The Hard Hombre," while a Western picture, runs more to comedy than anything else. It is a clever little picture, generally rated as one of the best Hoot has done.

Buster Keaton in "The Sidewalks of New York" in which the sad-faced star is supported by Anita Page and Cliff Edwards, heads the bill that ends its run at the Mystic on Friday. This picture is a riot of fun and fast action comedy. "Friends and Lovers," with Adolph Menjou, Lily Damita and Eric Von Stroheim as the stars, is the second attraction on the current bill.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

"Eddie" Cantor in "Palmy Days," and George Arliss in "Alexander Hamilton" is the exceptional program the big Granada Theater, Malden will offer for seven days starting Saturday. Any theater would have the right to be proud to offer two such screen hits on the same bill. "Palmy Days" is an uproarious musical extravaganza that spins along at a furious pace, accelerated by "Eddie" Cantor's wise cracks and great comedy by the celebrated Charlotte Greenwood.

Mr. George Arliss enjoys the distinction of being the greatest character actor of the age and those who have seen him perform in either "Disraleí" or "The Millionaire" will agree that this sterling actor merits this classification. In "Alexander Hamilton," Mr. Arliss plays the title role and his supporting cast includes Doris Kenyon, Dudley Diggs, June Collyer and Montagu Love.

The Four Marx Brothers in "Monkey Business" is the headliner on the bill that ends its run at the Granada on Friday. "Monkey Business" is without question the craziest hodge podge of nonsense ever screened. "The Big Gamble," adapted from a story by Octavus Roy Cohen, with Bill Boyd and Dorothy Sebastian as the stars, is the second feature on the current program.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

The romance of a little London working girl and a brilliant musician forms the unusual theme of "Merely Mary Ann" starring Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, which opens next Sunday at the University Theatre.

Henry King directed this delightful film from Jules Furthman's adaptation of the Israel Zangwill play and Beryl Mercer and J. M. Kerrigan head the supporting cast.

"Daughter of the Dragon" the companion feature, is a fascinating account of a beautiful Oriental stage actress, who turns from her London triumphs to become a true "son" of Fu Manchu. She is cold to romance which brushes close to her, resolute in her purpose that her father's vengeful plans succeed, despite all the opposition of Scotland Yard.

"Devotion" starring Ann Harding, which starts Thursday, reproduces the famed and lovely Temple district of London. Against the exquisite background, in contrast to its air of history and tradition, there is played an unusualy pleasing story of modern romance, light comedy, and drama. Leslie Howard and Robert Williams head the supporting cast.

Deep, elemental emotions underlay the plot of "Silence," the new Clive Brook, Marjorie Rambeau, Peggy Shannon melodrama, the companion feature. It is a gripping story of a man's betrayal of the woman he loves, and his final awakening to a greater love when his daughter is imperiled by the misdeeds of his own past.

OBER-GURGL, TERMINUS OF MAN'S HIGHEST FLIGHT

When Prof. Anguste Piccard and his assistant brought their stratosphere balloon down on the Gurgl Glacier, in the Austrian Tyrol, they suddenly raised the near-by village of Ober-Gurgl to world-wide prominence as the terminus of the highest flight—about 52,000 feet—ever made by man.

Ober-Gurgl, itself the loftiest town in Austria, is situated among some of the most imposing scenery of the eastern Alps, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. More than a mile above sea level, Ober-Gurgl has a winter eight months long, and at no time is it entirely free from snow. Here the traditional Tyrol yodel is seldom heard, for Nature has a stern aspect in the upper Oetz Valley, and the serious and silent men of the mountains are in direct contrast to the gayer, song-loving Outer Inntal peasants.

Although the balloonists may not have appreciated the technical niceties of the glacier and mountainsides down which they were forced to scramble to the town, the district around Ober-Gurgl is a mountain climbers' paradise. Lovers of vertical sport come to Ober-Gurgl for a post-graduate course, for although its near-by peaks are not the highest, they are difficult to scale, and call into play all the skill and resourcefulness of experts.

Hoher First, Liebenerspitze, Grosser Ramolkogel and Hinterer Spiegelkogel lift their hoary locks more than two miles above sea level, and afford magnificent views of vast seas of ice formed by the Gurgl, Langtal and Gaisberg Glaciers. In the lateral moraine—debris along the side—of the Gaisberg Glacier the climber can sometimes pick up a garnet as a souvenir of his trip.

Be Silent of Faults

CARE OF THE TEETH

How wonderful it is to have nice, clean, white and healthy teeth. Most all of us have the opportunity of keeping our teeth in good condition. In this present era, there is absolutely no excuse for teeth decaying,—it is only through dire neglect that many peoples' teeth are in that condition. One who does not take the proper care of their teeth find plenty of trouble later on. No one wants dull, dingy, yellow and discolored teeth. One should look at tooth and gum disorders as they would at common bodily diseases. Bleeding gums, if allowed to go on, will cause no end of annoyance. This condition often precedes many gum disorders, the most dread pyorrhea. It can happen to anyone, at any age, and oft times rheumatism is the ultimate result. Clean your teeth at least twice a day, morning and night, and if convenient, after every meal. There are many men and women who carry a tooth brush with them constantly so they may clean their teeth after every meal when not at home. See your dentist regularly every six months, or oftener. Let him direct your fight for firm healthy gums and sturdy teeth. Everyone should use a good dentifrice, and a good mouth wash. Remember, through your mouth most germ diseases enter. Salt water or lime water are good mouth washes, and there are many good mouth washes on the market one can buy. Milk of magnesia is also a good wash and helps to neutralize the acids in the mouth.

Your teeth are always in season and always admired, but once you neglect them, the results may prove disastrous. So whatever you do, take care of your teeth and perhaps you will keep them all your lifetime.

Frances Mandel will answer questions on Grace and Charm if you will enclose a self-addressed envelope to Frances Mandel, 1030 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass.

Superintendent "Bill" Nicholson and his men of the Tree Department began yesterday the work of removing the big elm in front of the First Baptist Church. The big tree is going the way of others which have been removed to make the highways safer for automobiles, it having been decided to widen the junction of Washington and Mt. Vernon streets, a bad intersection when traffic is heavy.

If all those who attended the costume party at the Calumet Club last Friday were as convincingly attired as James V. "Jim" Haley, well known patent leather manufacturer, it's a small wonder the affair was so successful. "Jim" went to the party attired as a fair damsel and so chic and coy did he appear after plying rouge, pencil and lip-stick, that several lonesome motorists attempted to "pick him up" as he walked along Main street to the club house on a dare. Never again says James.

WINCHESTER CO-OPERATIVE BANK

Incorporated November 1893—Commenced Business November 1893

The fine new building of the Winchester Co-operative Bank under construction since early in the year, will be thrown open for public inspection Saturday, Nov. 14. For several weeks the artesians have been busily engaged putting on the final touches, and when Winchester people and banking representatives throughout the State enter the structure tomorrow they will find every detail complete in what is considered by many as the finest suburban bank building in Massachusetts.

Hailing a new and delightful scheme in architectural construction, the new bank building embodies all of the very latest conveniences and arrangements known to modern methods. Edward R. Wait, the designing and supervising architect, has made an even greater hit with this new building than he did with the first Winchester Trust Company building years ago.

It will amply pay all Winchester residents to avail themselves of the coming opportunity to inspect the new bank. They will be amazed at the modern construction and the perfect blending of newer metals, designs and colors. From its silver acoustic ceiling to its aluminum front and fixtures, it is a marvel of modern ingenuity.

The new building was started the last of January, when work was commenced demolishing the former "Water Works Shop" on which site it is erected. The steam shovel started work on the foundation March 1, and the concrete was poured April 18.

In the erection of the building the Directors and committee in charge laid special point in the employment of Winchester firms and contractors, and the bulk of the work has been done by local artesians. Mr. John M. Tobin, the erecting contractor, is to be highly congratulated upon the result of his work.

The public inspection tomorrow will be from 3 to 9 p. m. and the Board of Directors, aided by Treasurer Ernest R. Eustis, who has been untiring in his efforts to aid in carrying the building to a successful completion, will be present to greet the friends and patrons of the bank.

ARMISTICE DAY IN WINCHESTER

Usual Exercises in Morning—Fine Party in Evening

Winchester observance of Armistice Day consisted as usual of Post 14 American Legion. Following the custom of preceding years, except that there was no participation in out-of-town celebrations by Local Legionnaires.

Shortly before 11 o'clock a detail, comprising the Post and National colors, color guard, escort and bugler, under command of Post Commander Wade L. Grindle left the Legion House and marched to the War Memorial, at Main street and the Parkway.

Commander Grindle placed a wreath at the foot of the monument and as the clock struck the hour the detail came stiffly to salute while taps was blown by Bugler David Fetter. There was no address, after the simple but what impressive ceremony, the line of march returned to headquarters and disbanded.

The annual Legion Armistice Day Ball, held in the Town Hall during the evening, was characterized as the finest party the Post has yet sponsored and one of the best ever held in the hall.

Banners and flags were used to drape the balconies and the stage was banked with palms. A big crowd truly representative of the town and including many out-of-town guests, was in attendance and entered into the evening's festivities in a splendid spirit of good fellowship.

At times the spectacle was a brilliant one, evening clothes mingling with uniforms in a striking manner. From the opening to the closing number there was not a dull moment.

George Barton, chairman of the Ball Committee, welcomed the guests and turned the party over to Carl Moore who acted as master of ceremonies. Leo Reisman's first string band furnished intriguing dance music under the direction of "Dave" Lefberg, and most of the guests danced through to the final number at 1 o'clock.

At 11 an excellent entertainment program was offered by Earl Weidner's Varsity Quartet and Flufferettes. Helen Barr, soprano; and "Billy" Payne, tenor of the Seaglades. All were enthusiastically received and gave their best. Miss Barr, welcomed vociferously to her home town, sang the popular "Street Song" from Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta" and Mr. Payne's clear high tenor had an especial appeal in "My Song" from Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book." The Varsity singers rendition of "Shoes" came in for much applause.

At the rear of the ball refreshments were served by Randall, local caterer. Doctor Cyr was in charge of the box office.

The committee in charge of the ball comprised George Barton, chairman; Kenneth Hall Warren Johnston, Stephen Neilley, Kingman Cass, Harry Goodwin and Lucius Smith.

Tuesday night the police recovered an automobile, the property of Mrs. Thomas I Freeburn of Cabot street, which had been stolen in Boston. The police of Somerville tried to stop the machine as it passed through their city and one of the Somerville officers was knocked by the thief from the running board of the car as he attempted to prevent its flight. One of the rear tires was punctured by a bullet from the police revolvers, disabling the machine which was abandoned on Winthrop street extension. Sergts. Thomas F. Cassidy and Edward W. O'Connell searched the surrounding vicinity for the thief but were unable to locate him.

Will You Help?

In 1927 the Waterways Committee, after examining the Aberjona River from the Mystic Lakes to the Woburn line north of Washington street, proceeded to follow up Horn Pond Brook from Wedge Pond to the Woburn line near Horn Pond.

This brook passed for a long distance through the land of Mr. Sylvester. A considerable proportion of his land was 50 years ago a mill pond, furnishing the power to a mill manufacturing mahogany piano cases. After a time the dam was torn down and the mill pond bottom purchased by Mr. Sylvester, who developed it for building purposes. We were surprised to find that he had already, at an expense of $1500 dredged out the stream through his entire property, doing exactly what we were to recommend that the town do along the Aberjona. The mud was not very deep and there is a difference in elevation of nearly six feet between Wedge Pond and Horn Pond so that the good water from Horn Pond was pouring along a gravelly bottom to Wedge Pond, thus carrying continually fresh water. Below the Lake Street bridge the brook was in fairly good condition.

Mr. Sylvester was about to build some houses with their backs to the stream. We explained to him that if the houses faced the brook, the shore would be more likely to be kept clean and the neighborhood would thus be more attractive. He saw it at once, changing all his plans to conform to Mr. Kilham's suggestion. There are now in that neighborhood only two houses backing up to the streams, and these were built before this time.

We then told him we were to recommend that the town secure possession of all the shores of the streams and look after the streams, seeing that they are not used as a dump. We asked him if he would sell the town a strip 50 feet wide, including the stream which is about ten feet wide, and for what sum. In a few days he stated he would sell the strip, about 1000 feet long and containing approximately three acres, with the dredging all done for $5000. We thought that a reasonable figure, and said we would recommend that the town buy it at that figure, which we did. In June, 1928, a vote was passed appropriating $5000 for the purchasing of the bed of Horn Pond Brook from the Woburn line to Lake street.

However, this area lies just as the town bought it three years ago, except that the weeds and bushes have grown undisturbed, whereas before they were occasionally cut. I believe here is a chance to make a greater improvement for the money needed that at any place in the town. Clear up this strip and grade it, making a walk on one side of the brook with arches in the other side cut in a few places across the brook so that this fall of about 20 could be gathered up into a series of little falls and this whole section of the town would be vastly improved. People of the neighborhood would thus be encouraged to keep their grounds cleaned up, and the general tone of that part of our town improved.

The dredging is all done, the loam and gravel taken out is thoroughly dry. The work could be done in cold weather, and eight or ten men could be kept busy for two months or more. I understand there is no money available in the town treasury with which to do this work. No appropriation was made at the special town meeting for work of this kind, and nothing can be done by the town until after the next annual town meeting. What is needed to be provided before that time is work.

The Park Board has control of this land, and I have made them the following proposition—to undertake to raise the necessary funds to begin this work at once and carry it through to completion if I can get help enough to do it. I estimate that it can be done for $2500 or less. Only unemployed residents of Winchester will be given work on this job, and preference will be given to men with families. The General Town Committee will be asked to recommend men—the wages will be $3.50 per day—the hours of labor the same as prescribed by the Selectmen for similar work done by the town.

The Park Board has authorized me to go ahead. The Waterways Committee approves. If there are any citizens of the town—men or women—who would like to help do this work, let me know at once the amount you will contribute, and I will personally see that your contribution is economically expended. Any sum—large or small—will be most acceptable. I wish to begin the work right away.

THANKSGIVING

Contributions of food are solicited from the general public for distribution with the Thanksgiving baskets. Such contributions may consist of canned goods, preserves, jellies, vegetables, etc. and also groceries of all kinds, and may be left at the rooms of the Winchester Community Relief Committee in the basement of the Town Hall any day from now to the day before Thanksgiving. The Committee will be glad to have sent to them the name of any family needing one of these baskets. These names will be checked up by the general committee in order to see that there are no duplications, but we want every needy and deserving family to be properly taken care of. There need be no fear of any publicity on the part of any applicant, as these names will be unknown to any one but the committee actually in charge of this particular work.

"The memory of a good deed freely and promptly performed will continue forever."

ROTARY CLUB NEWS

Six absentees were recorded at our regular meeting on Thursday, Nov. 12.

Club members were greatly pleased to welcome a new comer to the fold in the person of Avard L. Walker who was elected to fill the classification "Monumental Stone." We bespeak for Avard a long life of Rotarian service and this will mean a balance of profit for him and for Rotary. The club now has 71 men on the roster.

Since the beginning of our Rotary year there has been much discussion in regard to procuring a new song sheet; much discussion in fact but no apparent action. But now all that has been changed. For our good T.P. took it upon himself to place new and novel song sheets in the hands of all present last Thursday. We venture to say that Ralph, who unfortunately was among the absentees, will smile when he sees these songs, as did the rest of us.

Our guest speaker on this occasion was Fletcher Twombly of the Rotary Club of Reading, who spoke on the subject, "Dyestuffs." Fletcher was formerly connected with the well-known Dupont Company and therefore has had a thorough training in the chemistry of this important article of commerce. As in the case of countless other products modern dyes have their origin in the immense beds of coal which lie just under the earth's surface. The speaker related for us a fascinating story of the vast number of products which the ingenuity of man has derived from this immense deposit of carbon and then described many varieties of dyes and the manner of their utilization.

The Rotary Club of Woburn has kindly invited us to join with them in an inter-club meeting to be held at the Woburn Country Club on Tuesday, Dec. 8 at 12:15 p. m. Past District Governor Bruce McCullough will be present and will address the meeting. Our club should send a large delegation to this important meeting.

It is not too early to give consideration to our meeting during the week of Thanksgiving. Members will recollect that the club has accepted an invitation from the Rotary Club of Lexington to meet with them on Monday, Nov. 23 at 12:15 p. m. in Masonic Hall. We should show our genuine appreciation of this gesture of neighborly kindness on the part of the Lexington Club by the largest possible attendance. A hearty welcome and a royal good time awaits us. Let us not belittle it by a meagre response.

Our next meeting will be regular as to time and place viz Thursday, Nov. 19 at the Calumet Club, but Fred has passed on the hint that as far as his department is concerned there will be material evidence that the season of Thanksgiving is at hand. You know Fred's reputation with respect to management of the groaning board. Our commiseration goes forth to those who absent themselves on Nov. 19.

BENJAMIN F. PARKER

Benjamin Franklin Parker, a former well known resident of Woburn, died Wednesday, Nov. 11, at the home of his son, Ernest E. Parker, 205 Washington street, following a six months' illness.

Mr. Parker was born in Woburn, Mass., Sept. 8 1850, the son of Benjamin and Mary (Waite) Parker. Previous to his recent illness he had made his home in Woburn, where for more than 50 years he was in the employ of W. P. Fox & Sons, retiring two years ago because of failing health.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary M. (Childs) Parker and five children, Lewis F., Ernest E. and William C. Parker, Mrs. H. E. West and Mrs. Mabel L. Parker. There are also five grandchildren.

The funeral was held this Friday afternoon, Nov. 13, with services at the late residence. Interment was at Woodbrook Cemetery, Woburn.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

American Home Day, Nov. 9, was a most successful event, opening at 10 a. m. with a fashion show by Jaeger & Co. Mrs. Lillian Ambler, Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. Estelle Little, Mrs. Mabelle Long, Miss Margaret Winn, members of the club and Miss Mercedes Specht, daughter of a Fortnightly member, acted as models and displayed the chic costumes presented by Jaeger & Co., to good advantage. The numbers selected represented the latest modes in sports, spectator sports and street wear and brought out the smartness of the new tweeds and knit goods.

Following the fashion show Miss Sally Service of Brock's Nurseries gave a most interesting talk on bulbs, emphasizing especially those suitable for winter bloom in the house. She gave specific directions as to the different methods of forcing, planting and caring for the bulbs and the particular best suited for forced bloom. She also touched on the planting of bulbs outside and the excellent part of planning and [illegible] with the growing bulbs and bowls containing Gumpy's [illegible] of the accent chosen always take [illegible] with the [illegible] groups.

Miss Kerina Farrar of the Middlesex Extension, the next speakers, gave a constructive talk on food values, in relation to supplying the requirements of the human body for building and repair—and by means of charts, so that comparison was easy, gave a clear understanding of which foods were most beneficial. In closing she gave a summary of the daily diet suited to the enjoyment of the best health.

Assembly singing, led by Mrs. Idabelle Winship with Mrs. Nancy Alexander at the piano, brought a pleasant break in the program. Miss Sybil Foster, the last speaker of the morning session had for her subject, "Community Aspects of Mental Hygiene"—a subject, she said, of concern to all, since it enters every field—home, school, playground, office, factory and places of amusement. The Massachusetts Society for Mental Hygiene, a private organization, interested primarily in educational work, co-operates and maintains the hospitals and schools for the mentally ill and defective. One great function of the Massachusetts Society for Mental Hygiene is to do everything possible to dispel the feeling of fear and shame, which persists in attaching to things pertaining to mental difficulties. The society works in conjunction with parents, teachers, leaders of adolescent group organizations, heads of colleges and industries to help those, who cannot get along with themselves and others, make a better job of social living.

At 12:30 a cafeteria luncheon was served. The afternoon session opened with a talk on "New Color Trends for Fall in House Furnishings" by Miss Helen Libby of Jordan-Marsh Company. She spoke of brightening homes for winter and illustrated how it might be done through the combination of lovely wall papers, and beautiful and colorful rugs and fabrics which Jordan Marsh Company so generously supplied.

A short business meeting followed. At this time reports were given of the State Federation Meeting at Marlborough by Mrs. Anna Grosvenor and Mrs. Elizabeth Christiansen. Mrs. Lillian R Whitman announced the play, "Love in a Mist," to be presented on Monday, Nov. 23, at the Town Hall by the Dramatic Committee, with an all star cast. Mrs. Gladys R. Wilson called attention to the rummage sale on Nov. 17, at the Town Hall. At the close of the business meeting the president, Mrs. Idabelle Winship was presented with a Federation pin.

The speaker of the afternoon, Dr. Helen I. D. McGillicuddy of the Massachusetts Society for Social Hygiene, gave a very interesting address on the family as a social unit and told how parents must learn and teach their children the art of living together in harmony. At the end of her address Dr. McGillicuddy answered questions and mentioned literature suitable for the child's use.

At the close of the session Mrs. Winship asked that a rising vote of thanks be given Mrs. Amy Grant and members of the American Home Committee for the splendid program they had given on their American Home Day.

WINCHESTER WON CROSS COUNTRY MEET AT WAKEFIELD

Winchester nosed out Beverly by a single point to win the second annual interscholastic cross country meet at Wakefield Tuesday afternoon.

Coach Muerling's boys placed five runners among the first eleven and totalled 38 points to 39 for Beverly. Stoneham with 105, Wakefield with 108 and Woburn with 114 finished in that order. The individual winner was David Dellinger of Wakefield who ran the two and one-half miles in 13 minutes, 45 seconds. Harold J. Neveps, Wakefield High coach, was in charge of the meet.

Following are the first 13 to finish: 1st Dellinger, Wakefield; 2nd, "Al" Lynch, Winchester; 3rd, Davoren, Woburn; 4th, Grassam Beverly; 5th, P. Davoren, Woburn; 6th, Lunn, Beverly; 7th, Cross Winchester; 8th, Corby, Winchester; 9th, "Dick" Pettingell, Winchester; 10th, Thompson, Stoneham; 11th, Maffeo, Winchester; 12th, Duncan, Beverly; 13th, Maloof, Beverly. Paine, McPartlin, "Andy" Lynch and Farrar and Haskell, of Winchester finished 17th, 18th, 27th and 33rd, the last named pair ending in a tie.

TOWN TEAM WON FROM WEST MEDFORD

Poor Kick at Goal Line Lead to Only Score

The West Medford A. A. turned out to be plenty strong enough to give the crippled Winchester Town Team a hard battle Armistice Day afternoon, a poor kick in the second quarter leading to the only score.

Coach Amico's charges won, 7—0, in what turned out to be a battle of lines with the honors very much even. The locals' ability to take advantage of the one big break which came their way gave them their victory.

It should be said that several of the Town Team players were on the side lines nursing reminders of the Cardinals' game last Sunday. In particular the club missed Frongillo and Carroll, the latter being the locals' best passer.

West Medford, too, was said to be not at full strength, but the visitors had a corking defensive club and it was but seldom that the "Townies" were able to get anywhere with their rushing game.

After a scoreless first quarter with honors about even the teams changed goals and about midway through the period "Five Yards" Flaherty got away for the longest run of the game, a 20-yard romp around his own right end to midfield.

West Medford braced and Winchester was forced to kick, Fleming's boot landing at the 20-yard line and rolling to within a couple of yards of the West Medford goal.

The visitors succeeded in touching down the ball and immediately tried to kick out of danger. The entire Winchester line was through very fast, and the hurried Medford kicker barely got his boot away.

The ball went outside at about the 8-yard line and Winchester had its first scoring opportunity.

Flaherty sifted through for two yards, but West Medford held Horn at the line, only to have a five yard penalty for offside advance the ball to the one yard line. Here "Deadhorse" Chefalo crashed over off his own right tackle, and "Goose" Fleming added the extra point with a beautiful drop kick.

Starting the third quarter on a fake kick play, Freyburg broke through the right side of Winchester's line for 15 yards, but the locals braced and smothered a couple of passes and the visitors kicked short and outside at midfield.

Here the "Townies" made another bid for a score when they rushed to a first down and picked up another on a short pass from Fleming to Chefalo. With the ball on the 20-yard line Flaherty slid through for six yards and Chefalo picked up three at right tackle. Horn found no hole in the West Medford frontier and a pass was knocked down, the visitors taking the ball on downs at their 11-yard line.

On second down West Medford tried a pass which had it been completed, might have gone for a sorce. The receiver was out in the open, all alone with two men between him and the only Winchester man who could have figured in the play, only to drop the ball.

So it went. The visitors had a sweet passer, but their receivers were unable to hold the ball when holding it meant long gains and possible scores, though they turned in several clever catches for short advances.

As the final quarter wore along the West Medford kicked off a beautiful punt which rolled to the shadow of Winchester's goal. A moment later the visitors recovered a fumble and were in a position to score. A linebuck was piled up for no gain and a short pass out to the right was batted down. Another pass was completed for five yards, and on fourth down a third pass was batted down, Chefalo kicking out of danger.

The game ended soon after with neither team showing anything in the closing seconds of play.

FLIM FLAM ARTIST ARRESTED HERE

Man Also Wanted in Belmont, Lexington and Arlington

The career of a flim flam artist, which had previously included successful visits in Belmont, Lexington and Arlington, was cut short Tuesday afternoon by the Winchester Police after notice of the man's activity had been phoned Headquarters by Bernard McCall, manager of the First National Store at the corner of Washington and Swanton streets.

Mr. McCall reported to the police that the man had entered the store and purchased an order of groceries which he asked to have delivered at 5 Webster street with the stipulation that the boy was to bring with him change for $10.

A description of the man was secured by the police and Patrolmen Henry P. Dempsey and John J. Dolan were sent to investigate. They found 5 Webster street unoccupied but learned that a boy had been seen around there. The youngster was picked up by the police at the corner of Webster and Washington streets and a few minutes later a man answering the description given the authorities by McCall was found sitting in an automobile at the corner of Washington and Hancock streets.

The man was identified by Mr. McCall as the one who had been in his store and admitted ordering the merchandise in question. He was taken to Headquarters and booked on an attempted larceny charge.

He gave his name as Albert E. Cunha of 436 Revere street, Winthrop Highlands, and an investigation disclosed the fact that he is wanted by the police of Belmont, Lexington and Arlington. The boy who was working with him gave his name as Robert McDonald, 13, of 177 Sherman street, North Cambridge. He was released in custody of his mother.

Cunha appeared in the District Court at Woburn Thursday morning and was found guilty as charged by the police. He was given a three months' suspended sentence in the House of Correction by Justice Jesse W. Morton. Chief Rogers had a warrant for his arrest from the Belmont Police, and after the trial Cunha was returned to Winchester and turned over to two officers from that town.

WEDDED 56 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel B. Badger of 12 Prospect street celebrated their 56th wedding anniversary in a quiet way on Tuesday, Nov. 10, with a few members of the family at dinner. They were well remembered by friends with a great quantity of flowers and many congratulatory messages by phone. Mr. and Mrs. Badger enjoy the best of health and Mr. Badger is still active in business as president of the E. B. Badger & Sons Co., where he started to learn the coppersmith's trade in 1866. The Star adds its congratulations to those of a host of lifelong Winchester friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. MacKinnon of Montreal, formerly of this town with their daughters, the Misses Helen and Florence MacKinnon, who are attending Salem Normal School, spent the past week-end at their summer home, the Ragged Mountain Fish and Game Club.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Scout Leaders' Club Elects Officers

The November meeting of the Scout Leaders' Club was held Thursday evening in the Burlington Town Hall. Over 40 Scout Leaders attended. At 7 p. m. the men sat down and enjoyed a splendid supper prepared by a committee composed of Mrs. Gove Sleeper, chairman, Mrs. Carl H. Bussey, Mrs. Ener Hunt, Mrs. Ralph McDonald, Mrs. F. S. Pearsons, and Miss Abbie Foster.

After the supper a program of games and stunts was greatly enjoyed, in which the men turned back the hands of time and entered into a program as would a group of Scouts. Learn by doing is one of the Scout slogans. The men who attended learned many new games that they can use in their own troop programs.

As it is the custom of the club to elect officers at the November meeting, President W. O. Jones appointed a nomination committee which brought in the following list of proposed officers:

President—Gove Sleeper, Burlington.
Vice President—Francis McCall, Stoneham.
Secretary—Elmer Waters, Woburn.
Treasurer—Frederick Hatch, Winchester.
Auditor—Ronald Pratt, Medford.

The full slate as prepared by the Nominating Committee was unanimously elected to serve until November 1932.

The retiring president, W. O. Jones, was given unanimous vote of thanks for his services during the past two years.

Council Makes Progress

At the National office of the Boy Scouts of America careful records on membership conditions of the councils of the country are kept. Statistics are compiled with reference to the number of troops and Scouts per 10,000 people in the territory, the number of new troops registered each year, the per cent of old members re-registering and many other items.

In total points scored, the Medford Council at the close of 1930 was in 41st place in New England, which has 46 councils. At the close of June 1931, the council had climbed into 14th place. Figures just received at the Scout office show that at the close of September 1931, the council is in eighth place. In other words, the council through the loyal and enthusiastic work of its many Scoutmasters, troop committeemen and other has climbed from a position very near the bottom to one that approaches the top.

Leader Training Course to Meet

The fourth session of the training course, "Principles of Scoutmastership" will be held in Room 3, Medford Building, 7:30 p. m. Wednesday, Nov. 11.

Ralph Whitman, Scout executive of the Algonquin Council with headquarters at Marlboro will speak on "The Measure of a Good Troop" and "The Measure of a Good Scoutmaster."

Interest in the Training Course gains as the meetings proceed. Next week, Nov. 18, James Quinn, Superintendent of Schools at Winchester, will speak on "Educational Objectives." Rodney Spiers, field executive of the Boston Council will again address the leaders, this time on the subject of "Troop Management."

Scouts may enroll in the course on Wednesday, Nov. 11, after which the course is closed to new enrollment. Thirty Scout leaedrs are now enrolled.

Winchester District Hike

The Scouts of the Winchester District will go on a hike Saturday afternoon, Nov. 14, leaving the First Congregational Church at 2:30 p. m. The hike will be to Camp Gleason, and will feature outdoor Scouteraft and tests. If the weather is unfavorable, the hike will not be held, and an announcement of a future date for the hike will be made to the Scouts.

The Winchester District Court of Honor has announced that its first meeting of the season will be held on Dec. 5.

CHURCH FAIR AT METHODIST CHURCH

A silhouette artist will be one of the interesting features of the church fair at the Methodist Church on Friday, Nov. 20. Thinking that many people will appreciate the idea of silhouettes as novel and attractive Christmas gifts, the committee in charge has arranged for this very clever artist to be present throughout the day. A variety of tables containing fancy articles, housekeeper's needs, food of all kinds and candy will present an inviting display. Many things will be suitable for Christmas needs. Tea will be served throughout the afternoon. Of special interest to the children will be the postoffice (grabs) and motion pictures featuring "Charlie" Chaplain and Felix the Cat. Pictures will be shown at 3:30. A turkey supper will be served by the Young Women's Club at 6:30.

FIRST OF SERIES OF CHARITY PLAYS GIVEN

Crowded House at "Tons of Money" in Little Theatre Last Friday

"Tons of Money," a three act comedy by Will Evans and Valentine, was given last Friday evening by the Dramatic Society of the First Congregational Church in the Little Theatre Beneath a Spire, as the first of a series of three plays to be given this season by the society for the benefit of the town's unemployed. An audience which completely filled the theatre and necessitated the placing of extra seats at the rear of the hall was most appreciative and at times so enthusiastic that the actors found it difficult to put over their lines. Those who have appeared many times in Winchester stated that seldom had they played to so responsive a gathering.

Chief among the reasons for the enthusiasm of the audience was the play itself. "Tons of Money" abounds in subtle humor which kept everyone in a perpetual chuckle, except for moments of real suspense when it became necessary to pause a bit and wonder how the several characters were to extricate themselves from the seemingly hopeless muddle in which they were involved.

The plot dealt with the adventures of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Henry Maitland Allington, an English inventor and his wife, who inherit a large fortune in Mexico only to realize that they are so deeply in debt that the money will merely pass through their hands to their creditors.

Casting about for a way to circumvent such a contingency, they learn after a far from careful scanning of the will in question that the estate, should Aubrey die, would go to his cousin, George Maitland, in Mexico, whom they believe to be dead. It occurs to them to have Aubrey die suddenly and reappear as his cousin George, claim the fortune, remarry his own wife and live happily ever afterward.

Meanwhile the inevitable butler, Sprules, a man of some enterprise, and also acquainted with the terms of the will, conceives the idea of having his brother, 'Enery, a former actor, impersonate Maitland and collect the money on a percentage basis. Aubrey arrives back on the scene before 'Enery, and both he and his wife believe the former actor to be the real Maitland, confessing their duplicity to him and agreeing to split the inheritance 50-50. This happy solution of the situation is rendered useless when Maitland arrives at Aubrey's house in person, having learned through news reports of the fortune and Aubrey's demise.

The real Maitland has been secretly married to one Jean Everard, a cousin of Aubrey's wife, who happens to be visiting her relative during the fortune sweep-stakes.

When Aubrey and his wife had believed 'Enery to be the real Maitland it had been expedient to kill off the head of the house of Allington once again. His first demise had been brought about by means of a premature explosion in his laboratory, and on the second occasion he was accidentally drowned, returning to be on the scene as a country clergyman with a penchant for profanity.

Seeing Maitland and 'Enery in competition for the fortune he and his wife believe it wise for him to become himself again, pretending that he had been in a dazed condition following the explosion which was supposed to have killed him and had been unable to remember where he lived.

This is done and a three cornered fight for the fortune is waged among him, Maitland and 'Enery, the trio vicing with one another in making love to Maitland's wife. The latter establishes her husband's claim to being the real Maitland, and just as the legacy seems about to be disposed of legitimately a cable announces the fact that the Mexican Government has taken in taxes all but a mere pound, ha-penny. Caveat emptor!

Friday evening's performance was a splendid one, the cast being without exception adequate, well coached and skillfully made up. All were excellent in their respective roles, but special mention should be made of Mr. Bernard's handling of the lengthy and difficult part of Aubrey, of Mrs. Snell's Louise and Mr. Waugh as Attorney Chesterman. Mr. Crowers' cockney dialect was also "a bit of orl right."

The mechanics of the play, lighting, stage furnishings, etc., were on the same high plane as those of previous Little Theatre productions. Coffee was served in the foyer between the acts under the direction of Mrs. Clifford Cunningham. Hall decorations were fall flowers and autumn leaves. Young ladies, who served as ushers and sold candy between the acts, were the Misses Joy Adriance, Louise DeCamp, Helen Nowell, Barbara Chidley, Janet Smith, Barbara Wentworth and May Thompson. Mrs. Howard J. Chidley as chairman of the Dramatic Society's executive committee exercised a general supervision over the entire production.

CHAIN STORES PAY TAXES

Nov. 3, 1931

To the Editor of the Star:

Although I am not connected with the chain store referred to in the article published in the STAR, Friday, Oct. 23, signed by J. A. Laraway, I am connected with another chain that operates throughout New England.

Mr. Laraway's representation of the amount of taxes paid by the chain referred to is faulty and misleading. The $34.80 tax is but a tax on machinery belonging to the chain located in Winchester. You will find upon investigation or request from Tax Commissioner Long at the State House, that a very substantial amount of taxes on other property paid direct to the state by the chains, is placed to the credit of your community and that the total tax paid by chains, as far as Winchester or any other community is concerned, is proportionately equal to that paid by other property owners.

It will be interesting to you to investigate the real estate development in the business section of Winchester from a real estate standpoint; compare the valuations and real estate rentals in your shopping center with what they were 10 or 15 years ago. Also, you will observe that where formerly the majority of Winchester residents went out of town to shop, that today most of them are shopping at home. No small part of this improvement is due to the development by the chains of what now is an attractive shopping centre in the Town of Winchester.

The article published in the STAR was called to the attention of the writer by Charles F. Dutch, a prominent attorney residing in Winchester, who, from his own experience and long residence in the town, believes that such a misleading statement should be promptly corrected.

Yours very truly,
C. R. Sherburne

YOUTHFUL BICYCLE THIEF CAUGHT

A 13-year old boy with an interesting police record was arrested Monday afternoon by Chief William H. Rogers of the Police Department, charged with the larceny of a bicycle from in front of the office of Dr. Arthur L. Brown on Church street.

Police Headquarters was notified shortly after 3 o'clock that the bicycle the property of James Wilkinson of 47 Yale street, had been stolen and from information received Chief Rogers felt certain that the thief had gone either to Arlington or Medford.

He notified the authorities of both places and not long afterward was informed that Sergeant Pick of Arlington was holding a boy with a bicycle answering to the description of the one stolen from Dr. Brown's.

The youngster who had the bicycle first insisted that he had purchased the machine at Sears Roebuck's, but upon being confronted by Chief Rogers confessed that he had stolen it in Winchester.

It was not until late in the evening that the local authorities were able to get the boy's real name and address, he previously having given them several fictitious names and two addresses, one of which proved to be a slaughter house.

It was finally learned that his name was Salvatore Ranno, that he lived in Somerville and was 13 years of age, having been in this country five years. He was found to have a record, having been arrested for pulling a false alarm, for dicing and for stealing from automobiles. He is at present on a suspended sentence from the Lyman School and will appear in the juvenile session of the District Court at Woburn Nov. 19.

SOMETIMES RIGHT

To the Editor of the Star:

The State House authorities that are embarrassed over the mispelled words on the Congressional Medal plaque should take a lesson from the Tercentenary signs in Winchester. Let them study the technique of the marker at Symmes Corner. Identically the same message, cast in metal, is found on each side of the marker. Yet on one side you read of the "descendents" of the Rev. Zachariah Symmes, on the other of his "descendants."

Thus you cannot always be wrong.

"STREET SCENE" AT THE UNIVERSITY THEATRE

"Street Scene" picturized from the famous Pulitzer prize play by Elmer Rice, will be presented at the University Theatre starting Sunday for four days. Not so much with the street, but more so with the people whose lives radiate from its rusty brownstone houses, is the play concerned. A girl, her mother, an insensitive father, a cynical old Jewish socialist trying to read a purpose into life, young love trying to rise above the misery, a lonesome woman, hungry for some one to talk to, the improvident poor—these are the strings King Vidor weaves together as the play relentlessly moves toward the hysterical murder that neither ends the play nor solves life's mystery.

"Waterloo Bridge," the much discussed picturization of the sensational Robert E. Sherwood drama of the same name, starts Thursday, with Hollywood's latest "find" Mae Clark; Kent Douglas, Enid Bennett and Doris Lloyd in the principal roles. Directed by James Whale, who filmed "Journey's End" and photographed by Arthur Edeson, the capable cinematographer of "All Quiet on the Western Front" the British-flavored picture of air raids and the love of a London lady for a young Canadian private, is reported as one of the dramatic gems of the year. The Sherwood story depicts all the ill luck of a pretty chorus girl who descends, as the war progresses, to a cheap artist's model. A boyish soldier literally runs into her during the course of an air raid, on London's well-known Waterloo Bridge, and eventually falls madly in love with her.

Comedy and romance, cleverly mixed together, are the principal ingredients of "The Great Lover" the companion feature starring Adolphe Menjou.

MYSTIC THEATER, MALDEN

"Bad Company," with Helen Twelvetrees, John Garrick and Ricardo Cortez as the stars, will head the double feature bill that opens a seven day engagement at the Mystic Theater in Malden on Saturday. The story of "Bad Company" presents a fresh, new angle of thought against a background of roaring, thundering, chaotic America. It is the problem of a beautiful, well-educated young woman who falls in love with a youth whose business backround remains a mystery to her. Love, however, is paramount in her mind, and she does not take the trouble to inquire too deeply into his secrets. When she does learn the truth, and when she realizes that she is the only individual in the world who can save her husband, the story furnishes a dramatic suspense which is excellent entertainment. "Bad Company" has much to recommend it to the screen lover. Miss Helen Twelvetrees gives a great performance as the girl who discovers too late that her husband's business is "shady." John Garrick and Ricardo Cortez play the husband and other man respectively.

"Dancing Dynamite," with Richard Talmadge, Blanche Mehaffy and Robert Ellis as the featured players, will be the second feature on the bill for Saturday. "Dancing Dynamite" is the first talking picture to reach the exciting action of the old silent picture. It is a succession of high calibre thrills and exciting incident that keep the spectator on the edge of the chair.

Pictures of the Sharkey-Carnera fight at Ebbet's Field are one of the attractions on the bill that ends its run at the Mystic on Friday. These official fight films are remarkably clear, showing every round, punch and knockdown. "Murder At Midnight," a mystery play with Aileen Pringle, Hale Hamilton and Alice White as the stars, is the second attraction. Hoot Gibson in "The Hard Hombre" is the third feature on the current program.

LAYING THE CORNER STONE

OF THE

NEW BANK BUILDING

MAY 6, 1931

In the group of those present are Lewis Parkhurst, John Challis, George A. Fernald, Edward H. Stone and John Lynch, who were among the original petitioners for the charter of the Bank.

Thirty-eight years ago a group of 31 men, for the most part residents of Winchester, joined in an agreement of association to form a co-operative bank in Winchester. They met on Oct. 23, 1893, formed a preliminary organization and signed a petition for a charter. In due course the petition was granted and tht Winchester Co-operative Bank was organized.

Among the petitioners were Lewis Parkhurst, John Challis, George A. Fernald, Edward H. Stone and John Lynch, who are still residents of Winchester. Mr. Challis is now President of the Bank, and Mr. Fernald is its Vice-President.

The first officers of the Bank were elected at the meeting held Nov. 2, 1893. The Directors then chosen were Lewis C. Pattee, Nicholas T. Appollonio, Thomas B. Cotter, Francis J. O'Hara, George A. Fernald, Howard D. Nash, Patrick W. Reardon, William B. French, Anson Burton, Lewis Parkhurst and John Challis. Lewis C. Pattee was elected President, Nicholas T. Appollonio, Vice-President and Thomas B. Cotter, Secretary and Treasurer.

The Bank has had three Presidents. Lewis C. Pattee, the first President served until his death in 1900. He was succeeded in the office by Howard D. Nash who also served until his death in 1927. The present President, John Challis, succeeded him. Like his predecessors in the office, Mr. Challis has been connected with the Bank since its very beginning.

The Bank has had nine Treasurers: Thomas B. Cotter, 1893-1901; Thomas S. Spurr, 1901-1907; Thomas B. Cotter, 1907-1911; George E. Pratt, 1911; Raymond Merrill, 1911-1912; Herbert E. Stone, 1912-1915; William G. Packard, 1915-1919; Walter S. Wadsworth, 1919-1921; and Ernest R. Eustis who began his service as Treasurer in 1921.

The Bank has had two attorneys. Howard D. Nash was chosen, and he continued in that capacity until his death in 1927. He was succeeded as attorney for the Bank by his son, Judge Curtis W. Nash, who, since 1912, has also been Clerk of the Board of Directors.

The full list of officers of the Bank as of November 1931 is given at the end of this article.

The growth of the Bank has been steady and consistent. The end of each decade of its existence has found the Bank with total assets of approximately three times its total assets at the beginning of the decade. As shown by its semi-annual statement, October 1931, the total assets of the Bank are now $2,876,930.31.

The Bank has always been under the management of Winchester men and has always sought primarily to meet the needs of the residents of Winchester. At the present time 98 per cent of its loans are on Winchester property.

The Bank began business in a small room in the Lyceum Building. After a time, growth of the business of the Bank necessitated its removal to larger quarters which were obtained in the Lane Building, now called the National Bank Building. Two years ago, finding that these quarters had become inadequate, the Board of Directors voted, on Sept. 5, 1929, to acquire for the Bank from the Town of Winchester the so-called Vine street lot, then occupied by the Water Works Shop, as a site for a bank building of its own.

Three months later the Board of Directors voted to create a Building Committee of five. The President, John Challis; the Treasurer, Ernest R. Eustis; and James J. Fitzgerald, Alfred H. Hildreth and Curtis W. Nash, Directors, comprised this Committee. It organized on Jan. 22, 1930, when Mr. Challis was chosen Chairman, and Mr. Eustis, Secretary. Subsequently, in May 1930, Mr. Hildreth, on account of the pressure of other business, resigned and Raymond Merrill, another Director, was appointed in his place.

The Building Committee, being authorized by the Board of Directors on September 4, 1930, to have plans and specifications prepared for a new bank building, after considering several designs and plans, selected Edward R. Wait as Architect. On Sept. 29, 1930, the Board of Directors gave the Building Committee full authority to proceed with the erection of a bank building. In execution of that authority the Building Committee accepted the bids of John M. Tobin, Inc., General Contractor; Fells Plumbing and Heating Co. for plumbing and heating, and McFarlane & Abbott Co. for electric wiring.

The general contract was signed Jan. 15, 1931. Wrecking of the old building was started Jan. 26, excavation was started Mar. 1, the first steel was set April 18 and the first brick was laid April 30.

The new Bank Building, now completed and opened for business, is well adapted for the needs of the business of the Bank. Every effort has been made in its design and construction to facilitate the business of the Bank and to provide for the comfort and convenience of its shareholders, its officers and its employees. At the same time it has been the desire of the Building Committee and of the Board of Directors to have the building in keeping with the spirit of the best structures in Winchester, a credit to the Bank and to the Town.

In reference to the new Bank Building Mr. Wait, the architect, says:

"The development of the design of the new building was affected to a considerable extent by the desire of the Building Committee to secure for the Bank and for Winchester a structure of individuality and dignity. It was also influenced by the wish to make use of a number of practical materials and devices recently developed and now available to the building industry. These include various alloys of aluminum in castings and extruded form, actinic glass for modifying and diffusing daylight, decorative glass, acoustical and insulating materials and fabrications, air conditioning devices, new lighting methods, and so on. This field of new materials and new processes offers many valuable opportunities for improving the comfort and conveniences of modern buildings, and as they are already extensively employed elsewhere it was agreed that the design of the Bank should be such as to facilitate their reasonable use.

"The building is fireproof throughout and so, aside from any question of design or style, it contributes an example of advanced building practice that should have its influence in stimulating better building in the business center of Winchester."

FIRST MUNICIPAL BUILDING IN WINCHESTER
Built 1851
SITE OF THE NEW BANK BUILDING

This structure, known in recent years as the Water Works Shop, stood on the site of the New Bank Building. It was erected by the Town of Winchester as its first municipal building and served as a meeting place for the Board of Selectmen and other town officers. It also housed the hand fire engine which was built for the town in 1851 and used till 1875.

GRANADA THEATER, MALDEN

A specially selected program to celebrate the fifth anniversary week of the big Granada Theater in Malden will open its run on Saturday when "Bad Girl," starring James Dunn and Sally Eilers, and "Devotion" with Ann Harding as the star, will open an engagement. "Bad Girl" is one of the year's biggest screen hits and is a screen version of Vina Delmar's sensational novel. James Dunn, as the sensitive, conscientious young husband in this, his first picture, gives a performance that made him a screen favorite. Sally Eilers, the girl-wife heroine, is also well cast and her performance has been eulogized by all film critics. Briefly, "Bad Girl" is a story of young love. It concerns a shop girl and a young radio mechanic who fall in love. The young couple marry and have a baby. The bitter conflict brought about by mutual misunderstanding as to whether the baby is wanted or not forms the basis for the dramatic episodes in which the picture is told.

"Devotion" comes to the screen with a distinguished cast headed by the superb actress Ann Harding. Among the lesser lights of the picture are included Leslie Howard, Robert Williams, Olive Tell and O. P. Heggie. "Devotion" is a story of London's upper strata of society. Leslie Howard is cast as a famous lawyer who hires a governess for his child. The girl falls madly in love with him, not knowing that his wife is still living. Complications ensue when the wife discovers that the governess is living in the same flat with her husband. Miss Harding is a great artist and does well with a difficult assignment.

"Eddie" Cantor in "Palmy Days" and George Arliss in "Alexander Hamilton" make up the program that ends its run at the Granada on Friday. "Palmy Days" is a sure-fire screen hit. Cantor is aided in his laugh-getting by Charlotte Greenwood and a bevy of beauties. A number of musical hits are introduced in "Palmy Days." In "Alexander Hamilton," Mr. Arliss is said to have his best screen role, and this is quite a statement considering his work in "Disraeli" and "The Millionaire."

WINCHESTER HIGH AND ALUMNAE IN SCORELESS TIE

Bright and early on the morning of Armistice Day the Winchester High School field hockey team and the Alumnae eleven played to a scoreless tie before a good sized crowd on Manchester Field.

During much of the first half the high school kept the ball in the graduates' territory, the Alumnae threatening the varsity goal on very infrequent occasions. The fast pace commenced to tell on the Alumnae who at the half were playing very much of a defensive game.

Following the half the Alumnae commenced to press the high school and several times rushed up the field. Each time, however, Goaler "Joe" Fowle turned their shots aside, and the only time the ball got by her in the net the shot was ruled illegal.

The veteran "Kay" Carlisle was a veritable thorn in the side of the high school attack, and seldom were the school girls able to get past her into scoring position.

Once late in the game Edna Hanlon and Virginia Besse succeeded in passing both Carlisle and Anna Dolan, the former swooping down on the Alumnae goal, guarded by Capt. "Puggy" Mercer. Edna permitted the ball to get too far ahead of her to get any power in her shot and Mercer kicked the try a good 25 yards away from the Alumnae sticks.

Goaler Fowle made one corking stop of a hard driven shot out of scrimmage, catching the ball with her hand and clearing nicely. Capt. Barbara Shaw saved her team's bacon on one occasion when "Joe" had been pulled out of the cage, by thrusting aside a shot from a spirited scrimmage right in front of the high school goal.

Between the halves of the Alumnae game the high school freshmen reds defeated the whites, 2 to 1, ending their series. Goals were scored for the reds by Randlett and Sharon, and for the whites by Captain Stevens.

The lineup of the Alumnae game follows:

| WINCHESTER HIGH | | ALUMNAE |

Notes

The crowd at this year's game was much larger than that at the Motley game on Armistice Day last year and one of the most interested spectators was Rev. William S. "Bill" Packer, local Park Commissioner, than whom there is no stronger booster for girls' sports.

Four of Winchester's finest wings played on the Alumnae team in the persons of "Kay" Carlisle, "Dot" MacKenzie, Nancy Bradlee and Janet Nichols. All were important cogs in the high school machines on which they played.

It is also of interest that four members of what has always been considered Winchester's finest forward line were in action during the morning. MacKenzie, Bradlee, "Fran" Pettingell and "Giny" Merrill were all forwards on the championship team of 1928, the others being Ruth Humphrey and Muriel Carr.

Coach Centervall gave an audible sigh of relief when "Joe" Fowle made her fine one hand stop of that lifted drive from scrimmage in the second half. For a split second it did look like a score. The high school mentor left in a hurry after the game for Buckingham Field where she was to play for the championship Commonwealth Club in a Boston F. H. A. match.

"Jack" Hanlon, one of Winchester's finest catchers, was on hand to see his daughter, Edna, perform for the high school. He agreed that hockey, while not in baseball's class, is nevertheless quite a game. Most of those who come down to scoff at the game are quickly turned into rooters.

LADIES' FRIENDLY SOCIETY

Mrs. Charles Wellman spoke on Moravian customs at the meeting of the Ladies' Friendly Society at the Unitarian Parish House on Tuesday, Nov. 10 at 2:30 p. m. She gave an interesting historical sketch of Moravian religion and customs in Europe and America. Love of music with its great influence both in church and home and a deep religious life were the two real forces in the Moravian life of yesterday and they still are today. Typical Moravian hymns were played at the close of Mrs. Wellman's talk by Mrs. F. C. Alexander.

Mr. Arthur Jones from the Veteran's Hospital at Bedford played several violin solos in an accomplished manner. Mrs. W. A. Lefavour was his accompanist. During the social hour that followed the program Mrs. M. C. Mason and her committee served tea.

Once again Winchester merchants have experienced the antagonism which rises with the lack of cooperation in the matter of closing their places of business on a holiday. As in past instances it was the chain stores who refused to fall into line, and their failure to observe Armistice Day made local merchants, who otherwise would have closed, keep their shops open. It is to be regretted that we cannot have concerted action on holiday closing and it is an even more deplorable condition which permits outof-town interests to scab Winchester's business policies.

The new home of the Winchester Cooperative Bank is now complete and tomorrow afternoon the officers and directors are to hold open house to permit shareholders and friends to inspect the handsome and well-appointed banking rooms. While one of the growth of the organization during the 38 years of its existence. The new building is a fitting tribute to the enterprise and solidarity which have characterized the business methods of the bank, principles which have enabled the organization to triple its assets in each succeeding decade. With its present assets well over the two million mark, the bank is, and always has been strictly a Winchester institution, officered by Winchester men and closely identified with the life and growth of the town. Ninety-eight per cent of its loans are made on Winchester property and many a citizen has been able to own or improve his home as a result of the bank's interest and assistance. The splendid new building is a tribute to those who have shaped the policies of the bank and to them the STAR offers its congratulations, realizing that its new quarters will enable the organization to serve the community even more effectively in the future that it has in the past.

NEW TRAFFIC LIGHTS NEEDED

New traffic lights are badly needed in the center of the town if pedestrians are to be at all safeguarded. Under present conditions it is almost impossible to cross any of the streets without dodging or running from an auto. The present lights are all placed within the area bounded by the markings for the cross walks. Automobiles approaching the red light, on which the pedestrian has the only right to cross, coast across the path with no regard whatever for men, women or children. Such cars as stop a reasonable distance from the cross walks are passed by others traveling at speed. If the present conditions continue it will be next to impossible to cross the center unless all traffic lights are turned to red and the pedestrian travels on the railroad tracks. It is generally conceded by those who are oblized to cross the center that lights should be placed back of the cross walks on all approaching streets. It might seem inconceivable that cars approaching the red light, with people crossing in front of them, should drive through them. But it is done every hour of the day—and at a speed which would have sent the driver to jail a few years ago. With the lights placed in front of all cross walks, the pedestrian may at least have a sporting chance to get across. Under present conditions, except at the path between the traffic box and Hovey's Corner, where an officer is stationed during certain hours, no one on foot appears to have a fair chance at crossing. The situation is bad and needs attention.

C. D. OF A. HALLOWE'EN PARTY

The Catholic Daughters of America and a hall crowded with guests enjoyed the Court's 17th annual Hallowe'en frolic on Thursday evening of last week. The committee in charge of this year's frolic deserve great credit for the fine entertainment and fun they provided for the members and guests. The costume march, so long that it stretched almost twice around the hall, started promptly at 9 o'clock led by the chairman, Miss Katharine F. O'Conner, who made a perfect "Southern Mammy." Miss O'Connor was escorted by Joseph M. Kelley, who, as a Southern gentleman of uncertain habits, took one of the first prizes under the title, "The Prodigal Son." Miss Bernice Connell's Orchestra played "Hail! Hail!" the Gang's All Here" for the march, and it also provided music for the dancing that followed.

The entertainment, all in Pantomime and of a Hallowe'en nature was staged by Grand Regent Frances T. Conlon and organist Mabel M. Coty. The real hit of the entertainment was the "Lady with the Sprinkling Can," Mrs. Mabel O'Brien one of our members from Bethel, Me., who watered flowers with a realism that left nothing to the imagination. In the second part of the concert, Mrs. O'Brien in costume sang "The Auld Plaid Shawl."

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Nora O'Melia, Miss Mary Ryan and hard working committee. The committee in charge besides Miss O'Connor included Grand Regent Frances T. Conlon, Mrs. Nora O'Melia, Miss Mary Ryan, Mrs. Elizabeth McDonald, Mrs. Harry E. Brown, Mrs. Elizabeth Fitzgerald, Miss Mabel M. Coty, Miss Christine O'Melia, Mrs. Anna Swymer, Mrs. Katharine Rowen and Mrs. John Murray.

Plans for the 1931 Girl Scout conference are under way. At a meeting of the general council at Headquarters last Saturday morning, the officers for this year were elected:

Chairman, Barbara Cherry of Belmont; Vice-Chairman, Betty Hodgson of Wellesley; Secretary, Josephine Vernon Bell of Chestnut Hill; Treasurer, Virginia Bellowes.

The dates of this year's conference to be held at Lima are Feb. 13 and 14, the theme chosen was "Service." The subject is very appropriate, there being a wide world need of service.

Troop 1

Troop 1 is having a sale of home-cooked food Saturday, Nov. 14 from 10 to 2 at Pierce's store.

Troop 1

Capt. Annette E. Giles has created a cozy and attractive cover to "Our Cabin." Now we may touch homemaking at our home. Mr. James Murray has donated an upright piano, and with the electric lights installed this week, our little house carries all the earmarks of a cozy home.

Troop 8

Troop 8 held a meeting of the troop committee at the home of Lieut. J. O. Murray, 19 Crescent road, Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 10. Commissioner Hall was present and explained to the mothers that it was their duty to assist the captain by hearing their girls when necessary and attending the troop meetings when asked. Plans for raising money for a cabin gift were also discussed. After the business meeting tea was served in the living room by Mrs. J. O. Murray, assisted by Mrs. Edward V. French.

WORLD VOYAGE NEARLY COMPLETED

William Albert Robinson of Cambridge, a former Winchester boy and the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert T. West of Mason street, reached Morehead City, North Carolina, Wednesday, on the last leg of his three year voyage around the world. He sailed from Long Island in his 32-foot ketch, Svaap, his cousins, Kenneth and Daniel West of this town, sailing with him from Long Island to New London. Leaving New London, Mr. Robinson went on to Bermuda to the races there and took with him a young Englishman. From Bermuda he went to Tahiti where he took on as the sole member of his crew Etera a Tahitian who sailed with him on his voyage through the South Seas, Italy, France, the Balearic Islands, Gibraltar and the Canary Islands. Now they have reached home after a 38 day trip from Teneriffe, Canary Islands to Morehead City. At the latter port a stop was made for food and water and Armistice night the Svaap cleared for New York. Mr. Robinson expecting to arrive in that city in about two weeks.

The young man has been writing for the Rudder Magazine, and when he reaches home he intends to write a book. There is not a doubt that this book will be interesting and highly exciting, for among the adventures which he has had are two captures by pirates in the Red Sea, in one of which he tricked his captives, escaping by bribery in the second instance. Two tidal waves near Java almost wrecked his small craft. Once he was saved by soldiers from fanatics, when he appeared at a religious ceremony, which no white man has ever witnessed and lived to tell of his experience.

On July 23, Mr. Robinson met his grandmother, Mrs. Ida Kniffler, formerly of Winchester at Villefranche, and he was but 12 minutes behind his schedule for that port.

Mr. Robinson attended school in Winchester, later spending two years at school in Milwaukee, before graduating from the Lowell Textile School in 1925. A celebration has been planned for him in New York and after that he intends to come to Winchester for a visit.

Not the College Motto

The guard escorting a number of Temple university students on a tour of the Eastern "Pen" stopped to point out the coat-of-arms of Pennsylvania above one of the arches leading to the cell blocks.

"That was painted by one of the 'boys,'" he said, and after a pause, "the only thing wrong with it is that those three words—'Virtue, Liberty and Independence' seem a little out of place."—Philadelphia Record.

LITTLE RED SCHOOLHOUSE FOR ATTU, AMERICA'S FARTHEST WEST

Attu, America's very far west, will have a schoolhouse next year. An appropriation from the Office of Indian Affairs, Department of Interior, has provided for a building and an American teacher in this remote outpost of the United States at the extreme western end of the Aleutian Island chain Alaska. All the pupils will be native Aleuts.

No Longer a Dying Race

The Aleuts, or natives of the Aleutian Island chain, are not Indians nor Eskimos, Mrs. Gardner writes, and consequently they should be considered as a third branch of the Alaskan family of native people. Contrary to prevailing opinion the Aleuts today are not a dying race. Although they do not exist in the numbers they did when Russia discovered the islands, the alarming decrease in native population of the 18th and the early part of the 20th centuries have been stopped, and the Aleuts in recent years are slowly increasing in numbers and general well-being. Recent figures from the Census Bureau show that the native population throughout Alaska increased 12.9 per cent during the past decade.

The early Russian fur traders who came over from the Siberian mainland in the middle of the 18th century found some 25,000 Aleuts on the islands and the peninsula region of Alaska. They were industrious people and good fighters until they were ruled by the cruelties of the Russians. Depletion of their seal herds, the main source of food and clothing, and the introduction of white men's diseases—even chicken pox and measles killed them off by the hundreds—soon reduced their numbers to a few thousands. In 1920 only 1800 survivor in the Aleutian Islands but the number has increased to 1115 in recent years due to improvements in living conditions and the spread of education to remote islands and villages. The population of the Bristol Bay district grew from 966 to 1286 between 1920 and 1930.

The Aleut today is racially an extremely mixed type. In appearance he resembles somewhat the Eskimo, and his speech is distantly related to the tongues of tribes to the north. Intermarriage with Russians, however, has given Aleuts many of the finer features of the white races. Under Russian rule they became Orthodox Christians and today they are devout members of the Greek Catholic Church.

Neat Frame Houses, Painted White

When the United States took over the Aleutian Islands with the rest of Alaska in 1867 the Aleuts lived in miserable sod huts dug in the ground. Driftwood timber and whalebone held up the roof and the single room was entered by a tunnel and ladder. Gradually these huts have been replaced by neat frame houses, painted white, which resemble those of New England and Nova Scotia fishing villages. Supply warehouses, schools and churches are scattered throughout the Aleutian chain, and up the peninsula to the Bristol Bay district, which is the extreme northern and eastern limits of the Aleut people.

Some 30 American girls are bringing the benefits of modern education to the children of the present day Aleuts. The school district is scattered over some 2500 miles of territory, which makes it one of the largest under the American flag. Each winter the superintendent must make a 1000-mile dog sled journey along the Alaskan Peninsula, visiting the schools. Many of the remote islands, such as Attu, cannot be visited in the winter time at all, and all contact work must be in the spring or fall by boat.

It is a lonely life for many of the American school teachers. On some of the islands their only neighbors are the native Aleut fishermen, fox trappers and their families. No dances or movies brighten the social life of the villages, although radio programs from the United States can be obtained when atmospheric conditions are suitable. Many of the American teachers say they like the isolation of their posts. A few find time for writing during spare hours; one teacher has already two books to her credit.

Aleuts Like Our Comics

The Aleuts show a keen interest in everything connected with education. The native women have long been famous as basket weavers, and their sons and daughters are apt pupils in simple vocational work. They take a keen interest in writing and drawing. Colored pictures — especially American comics—keep them occupied for hours.

In the mode advanced schools a new generation of Aleut substitute teachers is in training, and soon American-educated Aleuts will be able to take over the education of their people. At Kanakanak, on the Alaska mainland, the orphans of 300 adults, who died during the world-wide influenza epidemic of 1918, are being educated in the largest industrial school in Alaska. The Aleuts are good-natured as a rule, and extremely fond of American sports. Since the visit of the American round-the-world flyers in 1924 the boys have shown an interest in aviation, and have been disappointed that most of the recent flights have been across the northern part of the Bering Sea.

Unalaska, the commercial and governmental center of the southwestern district of Alaska, is a busy, wide-awake community with a land-locked port—known to seamen as Dutch Harbor—and considerable social life. Here the winters are not much colder than those of Kentucky or Tennessee, despite the fact that Unalaska Island is as far north as Labrador. Snow-white revenue cutters and other boats patrolling the sealing grounds put in here for supplies, as do the boats trading with the islands of the Aleutian chain. The Aleuts are still permitted to hunt seals at sea if they use only native equipment. Most of the income of the native population today, however, is derived from trapping the blue fox, whaling, and fishing for cod and halibut.

LAGOS: FORMER SLAVE CENTER NOW MODERN PORT

Armed with experience in wiping out yellow fever in the American Tropics, medical men have outwitted yellow-fever-carrying insects in western Africa, according to reports from Lagos, Nigeria.

Lagos, capital of British Nigeria, is an example of the change in western Africa that has brought health to a once disease-ridden region, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Bombay of West Africa

Lagos has been called the "Bombay of West Africa" because it is situated on an island, but until recent years a citizen of Bombay would have resented the comparison. The island is but a few feet above sea level. Before the British drained and filled the swampy part of the island, Lagos was huddled on the only dry spot.

Insect hordes rose from the waterlogged area and attacked the city. Lagos was a "harvest" for the winged enemies, for sanitation was unknown and the streets between rambling rows of huts of mud, sun-dried brick, odd pieces of corrugated iron, and battered oil cans, were mere shadowy slits where feverish men, women and children lounged amid nauseating odors.

1000 White Inhabitants

While all Lagos has not been made over, several streets in the old portion of the city have been widened; two story, spotlessly white modern buildings now occupy sites of dilapidated huts; a handsome government building overlooks a broad tree-studded lawn on a quiet lagoon. A cathedral, its cornerstone laid by the Prince of Wales in 1925, schools and hospitals have been built. Electric lights now throw their beams into corners that the suns rays did not penetrate; modern sewage and water systems have been installed; and many of the once popular lounging places of the inhabitants are busy business marts.

In 1897 Lagos had about 30,000 inhabitants. Today the older city and the modern suburbs, which occupy a portion of the former island swamps, accommodate 100,000 people. Only 1000 are white.

The outer rim of the long lagoon which incloses the southwestern coast of Nigeria protected the early settlers of Lagos from the ravages of the sea. It also protected native canoes, which would safely emerge from the rivers that intersect the coast and deliver their cargoes of fruits and vegetables at the Lagos market place.

Railroad Keeps Port Busy

The lagoon rim also hampered Lagos' growth in world trade, for ships anchored at sea. More than $20,000,000 has been spent by the British to dig a channel through the barrier and to improve Lagos' harbor works. Now more than 20 ocean-going vessels may be warped into the city's docks, which are equipped with modern cargo handling devices.

Canoe-borne cargoes continue to supply the Lagos market and some of the articles find their way into export lists. The recently completed railroad which runs from the mainland opposite Lagos, to Kano, Northern Nigeria, more than 700 miles inland, is one of the principal factors which assures the Nigerian capital British port of the Gulf of Guinea.

Its rails penetrate some of Nigeria's richest agricultural regions and bring to Lagos cotton, cocoa, coffee, palm oil, ivory, ebony, rubber and maize for export.

Lagos was discovered and first settled by the Portuguese. A century ago it was the leading slave trading center on the west coast of Africa. The British have occupied the city since 1861.

Prussian King's Really Good Joke on Voltaire

There was once at the court of Frederick the Great of Prussia an Englishman with an amazing memory. One day Voltaire was due to read to Frederick a new poem in his honor. Frederick arranged that the Englishman should be able to overhear it from the next room.

Voltaire arrived and read out his masterpiece—an ode of great length.

"Very nice," said Frederick, "but of course I have heard it before."

At this point the Englishman wandered in casually and was asked if he had ever heard a poem beginning so-and-so.

To Voltaire's horror, the Englishman took up the line and went on reciting word for word the poem Voltaire had just read. Anguished, Voltaire tore his manuscript to pieces. Then, the joke being explained, the Englishman had to dictate the poem again to Voltaire.—Golden Book Magazine.

REVOLT HITS MARKET BASKET OF PARAGUAY

Southern Paraguay, scene of the most recent South American revolt, is a roughly triangular district which produces most of the food crops of the inland republic.

Except that it is subtropical and sparsely populated, southern Paraguay is much like the lower part of Illinois, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Two huge rivers, the Paraguay and the Parana, define its western and southern boundaries, and at no place is the land very far above them. As there are no levees or dikes in Paraguay floods ocurse unchecked through the bottomlands.

The Parana River, which for 400 years has been the chief artery of trade in the heart of South America, brings the traveler to Humaita, on the Paraguay River, the first Paraguayan town on the route from Buenos Aires to Asuncion, the Paraguayan capital. Humaita, 50 miles south of the scene of the revolutionary disturbances, is typical of the towns of the south country of Paraguay. The streets of this river port debouch on a velvety green parade ground, and they, too, are like green lawns—wide, quiet, old-worldly, with cows placidly grazing and an occasional small brown boy sauntering leisurely brown boy sauntering leisurely across. Outside of the capital automobiles are almost unknown in Paraguay.

For 100 miles more the Paraguay River winds, passing flooded islets and vast grassy prairies, to Asuncion. Inland, out of reach of flood waters, is one of the best fruit-growing regions of the world, although most of the region is still undeveloped and given over to the raising of cattle. Rice, corn, and sugar are other crops which could be produced in quantities sufficient for export. Much rice is grown in the extreme southern part of the district, although not enough to meet Paraguayan consumption of the cereal. Cotton is the chief export of the region.

An industry of increasing importance in southern Paraguay is the distillation of essence of petitgrain, a basis for perfumes. The industry dates from the early seventies of the last century when a French botanist, who was interested in the production of "agua de azahar," or the extract of orange blossoms, turned to the utilization of the leaves of the bitter orange tree. Paraguay supplies about 70 per cent of the world demand for this essence, used in flavoring extracts as well as perfumes. The industry centers around the little town of Yaguaron, southeast of Asuncion.

The eastern side of the revolt region is bounded by the only railroad in Paraguay, a 150-mile line which follows a range of hills between Asuncion and Villa Encarnacion, on the Parana River. Along this line are the principal plantations and many of the more prosperous cattle ranches.

Oranges from the interior are brought by oxcarts to the railroad stations and dumped on the ground, and passengers on the line can buy large numbers of them for a few cents. Where driking water is not good oranges are both food and liquid refreshment. So plentiful are they that in many places oranges are fed to cattle, who seem to relish the fruit. With modern refrigeration methods and rapid transit southern Paraguay could become one of the world's chief producers of the fruit.

Efficiency ceases to be efficient the moment it becomes fuss.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE

By virtue and in pursuance of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage given by Albert Barker to Louis Levin, dated March 23, A. D. 1931, and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 7535, Page 261, of which mortgage the subscriber is the owner and holder, for breach of the conditions in said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at public auction on Lot 3 of the premises hereinafter described, on Saturday, December 5, A. D. 1931, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by the said mortgage, and therein described substantially as follows:

"The land in Winchester, Massachusetts, bounded shown and designated as Lot one on Westland Avenue and lot three on Oneida Road, on a plan entitled 'Plan of Lots, Winchester, Mass.,' dated April 26, 1926, drawn by Parker Holbrook, Engineer, which plan is recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, book of Plans 377, Plan 26, to which plan reference is hereby made for a further and more particular description of the granted premises. This conveyance includes all stoves, ranges, furnaces, radiators, plumbing goods, gas and electric fixtures, shades, screens, pipes, boilers, tanks, screen doors, awnings, storm doors and storm windows which are now or may hereafter be on or wrought into or affixed to said premises and each lot thereof; and the grantor covenants that nothing above named or referred to has been or shall be purchased upon a contract of conditional sale. Being the same premises conveyed to me by the Vail Bros.-Mauger Corporation by deed of even delivery and to be recorded herewith."

The premises will be sold subject to all unpaid taxes, outstanding tax titles, municipal liens and assessments, if any there are. One thousand dollars in cash will be required to be paid by the purchaser at the time and place of sale; other terms will be announced at the sale.

Louis Levin, Owner and Holder of said Mortgage, 24 School St., Boston, Mass., Room 518. n13-3t

A certain amount of opposition is a great help to a man; it is what he wants and must have to be good for anything.

WINCHESTER WOMAN HONORED BY EMBLEM CLUB

Mrs. Fred H. Scholl New District Deputy Supreme President

Mrs. Fred H. Scholl of Vine street, has been appointed District Deputy Supreme President of the Supreme Emblem Club of the United States, news of her appointment and installation having been made public this week.

Mrs. Scholl was installed last week Thursday evening at Newton by the Supreme President, Mrs. Bernard McHugh and her suite. At the same time Mrs. George H. Lochman, Mrs. John D. Coakley and Mrs. John McCarthy were named as members of supreme committees.

The newly named Deputy Supreme President is widely known in local Emblem Club and Elks' circles. She has been very active in the work of the Winchester Emblem Club, No. 28 and is past president of the club. Her husband, Fred H. Scholl, is one of Winchester's prominent Elks and past Exalted Ruler of Winchester Lodge, 1445.

Mrs. Scholl is in personal charge of the bridge which the big sister committee of the Emblem Club is sponsoring at the Calumet Club Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 18, for the benefit of charity in Winchester. For tables or any information telephone Mrs. Scholl at Winchester 1731.

MRS. MARY LOMBARDI

Mrs. Mary Lombardi, nee Seladino, wife of Martin Lombardi of 1 Holland street, died Friday, Nov. 6 at her home, following a long illness. She was 41 years of age and is survived by her husband, a son and a daughter, all of Winchester.

Mrs. Lombardi was a native of Italy, but as a girl came to this country and had made her home for some years in Winchester, being well known among the Italian residents of the town.

The funeral was held Monday morning from the late residence with a requiem high mass in St. Mary's Church. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

At the bazaar of all Nations held at the Copley Plaza on Nov. 10 under the auspices of the Guild of the Infant Saviour, the Winchester Chapter was very well represented.

The striking Chinese costumes worn by those in charge of the table added a charming touch of color.

The following were present:
Mrs. J. Carr
Mrs. J. Doherty
Mrs. J. Felt
Miss F. Fallon
Mrs. V. Ghirardini
Mrs. M. Hintlian
Mrs. F. Howe
Miss M. Lyons
Miss M. Siske
Mrs. C. Shaw

COMMUNITY RELIEF COMMITTEE OPENS OFFICE AT TOWN HALL

The Winchester Community Relief Committee has opened headquarters in the basement rooms at the westerly end of the Town Hall. For the present the office will be open daily from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Clothing is being received and large amounts can be used. The active canvass for cash contributions will be undertaken as soon as the results of the card canvass can be tabulated. The police have distributed two cards to each house in Winchester and they are now being collected.

A telephone is now installed in the office—Win. 0793-M.

Anne Hathaway

Little is known concerning Anne Hathaway. She lived at Shottery, a village near Stratford, where her thatched cottage still attracts thousands of pilgrims. On the settle, where it is said that she and Shakespeare courted, many young travelers now sit in conformity to the tradition that sitting thereon will insure a happy marriage. Anne is mentioned in Shakespeare's bond for license of marriage, dated November 28, 1582. She is known to have remained in Stratford during the years Shakespeare lived in London. Anne Shakespeare survived her husband seven years.

LINCOLN PLAYERS

On Wednesday evening, Nov. 4, the Lincoln Players, under the direction of Walter L. Rice, gave a concert for the veterans at the U. S. Hospital at Bedford. And it is worthy of comment that this group is considered by them to bring one of the finest concerts of the year to the hospital. Among the boys are many who know and appreciate the best in music, and so it is that the program offered by the Lincoln Players being largely classical with a certain number of lighter compositions and stirring marches, have a special appeal.

At this most recent concert the soloists were Miss Joy Adriance, Miss Ruth oJhnston, Mr Guido Talone and Mr. Mathew Fox.

Miss Ruth Johnston charmed by her artistic dancing. She has a personal charm. Her dances and costumes were unusual and very effective.

Miss Joy Adriance charmed her audience by the beautiful quality of her voice. I a serious student and should go far with her art. Mr. Talone's trumpet solo was one of the outstanding numbers, as was his playing with Mr. Fox who joined in a trumpet duet. Both numbers were received with great enthusiasm.

One of the outstanding features of the concert was the violin playing of Mr. Arthur Jones, one of the veterans at the hospital. His playing of the familiar Adoration by Borowski, rendered with such exquisite tone and feeling, is something to be remembered by those privileged to hear him.

Mrs. Florence Adriance who was accompanist for the orchestra and soloist played with fine taste and finish, as did Mrs. Frank Knight who played for Miss Johnston.

Following is the program:

MUSIC GARDEN

The Music Garden held its first meeting of the 1931-32 season at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Carter on Monday evening, Nov. 9.

The club continues to flourish and it is gratifying to observe that our local musicians support it so generously. Two members have been lost from the roster by removal from town, much to our regret. On the other hand, four active members and one associate were elected to membership at this meeting and there is a nomination to be acted upon at the next. The club unanimously and enthusiastically elected Miss Mary French to honorary membership.

The musical program of the evening was devoted in the main to the compositions of Louis M. Gottschalk.

This composer who has been generally neglected in recent years was probably the most popular concert pianist of the middle years of the 19th century and his works well repay diligent study. Our program committee succeeded in furnishing a production which brilliantly displayed the charming melodies which Gottschalk produced in abundance.

A list of selections rendered follows:

Paper—Life of Gottschalk
Mrs. Knight
Piano Solo—Orfa Grand Polka ..... Gottschalk
Mrs. Lochman
Baritone Solo—O Loving Heart Trust One ..... Gottschalk
Mrs. Sellers
Accompanist, Mrs. Lochman
Piano Solo—Last Hope ..... Gottschalk
Miss Wilcox
Soprano Solo—Wishpering Hope
Miss MacLellan
Accompanist, Mrs. Lochman
Piano Duet—Radieuse ..... Gottschalk
Mr. and Mrs. Knight
Vocal Quartet—Softly Now the Light of Day

A CHARMING ENGLISH COMEDY

"The Man from Toronto" an English comedy once acted by Miss Ruth Chatterton, will be presented Friday, Nov. 20, at 8 p. m. at the Unitarian Parish House. This play tells in a humorous fashion of the trials and joys of a young widow, Mrs. Calthorpe who is to inherit a large fortune provided she marries a certain Canadian, Mr. Wimbrush, whom she has never seen. Her adventures before the story is told are many and varied as you may well imagine. But come to the Unitarian Church on Nov. 20 and see the following cast perform this gay comedy in true professional style:

Fergus Wimbush, a Canadian of five and thirty, just over on his first visit to England, and for reasons which the comedy will show ..... Theodore R. Godwin
Ruth Wimbush, his elder sister .. Alma Nutter
Ada Wimbush, his younger sister ..... Caroline Drisko
Mrs. Calthorpe, a young widow spending most of her time at Beach House, Teignmouth ..... Claire C. Reynolds
Mr. Priestly, guardian, trustee, uncle by marriage and legal advisor to Mrs. Calthorpe ..... Charles R. Carter
Robert Gilmour, her young cousin on a visit to Beach House ..... George Dunham
Martha, the smart little cook-general of Beach House ..... Doris McLeod
Mrs. Hubbard, the ugliest woman in Christendom, whose features play an important part in the comedy ..... Dorothy Carr
Minnie Hubbard, her daughter .. Jean Merrill

The Misses Dorothy and Lillian Day of Ridgefield road and Dorothy and Elizabeth Mullin of Main street attended a tea at Marycliffe Academy in Arlington last Sunday afternoon. Miss Dorothy Day was chairman of the entertainment committee.

LEXINGTON GIRLS TRIPPED WINCHESTER

Coach Centervall started almost an entire second team against the visitors, only Shinnick and Colucci, wingers, being varsity players.

Whether the seconds had stage fright in their first taste of varsity competition hasn't been announced, but Lexington immediately after the opening whistle rushed up the field and scored the goal which proved enough to win.

Coach Centervall began inserting first team players into the game after the Lexington score and had the entire varsity in action before half time, but the damage had been done and the visitors were able to hold their edge, though the game was very even following intermission.

Between the halves of the first team game the Winchester seconds won a 5—1 victory over the Lexington seconds. The summary of the first team game follows:

LISTEN TO GEORGE!

It pays to advertise in the Star. In last week's issue we asked for a scoot-bike for a victim of infantile paralysis, and before 5 o'clock we had received two calls over the phone; one was offering a scooter and the other call was from a good brother Elk, who said "George, go buy the best one you can find and send the bill to me." Needless to say the offer of this brother was accepted and the Winchester boy was made tremendously happy and his recovery hastened.

In addition to the above, a lady came to see me and stated that her daughter had saved up a little money and wanted to contribute what she had towards the purchase of the bike. We told her to tell her daughter that we appreciated her offer very much, but that the matter had already been taken care of, but that we would keep her offer in mind and might find occasion to call upon her later.

It is incidents like the above that compensate somewhat for all the bother and worry and labor in Welfare work.

G. H. Lochman,
Chairman of the Elks' Welfare Board

CHANGING FASHION REVIVES OSTRICH INDUSTRY

A figure from history did what living economic experts failed to do—revived the ostrich feather industry. Empress Eugenie, wife of Napoleon III, put a feather in her hat, and the modern woman, keeping pace with a new style trend based on the "Second Empire," does likewise. Ostrich farms in South Africa, California, Algeria, Australia and elsewhere reap the profits.

Ostrich feather farming, as an industry, went into a decline with the advent of the automobile, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. When the motor car came into general use, women took to untrimmed, windproof hats the world over, dooming ostrich plumes to presaic dusters, pillow stuffings, and circus horses.

Skins Also Valuable

Tailored costumes and felt hats of the World War period plunged the entire feather market into a hole from which it did not emerg until this year. South African ostrich farmers had almost a million birds in 1914, it is estimated, which number decreased steadily until last year, when about 100,000 remained. Drought forced the slaughter of between 400 and 500 of the big birds daily in Cape Colony 15 years ago. Before the World War South Africa exported considerably more than a million pounds of plumes annually. In recent years ostriches have been profitable only as a source of tanned ostrich skin used in the manufacture of pocketbooks, shoes and other articles, but the income from ostrich skin cannot compare with plume earnings when demand is brisk.

South Africa, where the largest living bird was first domesticated about 1863, is still the largest producer of ostrich feathers. Before 1863 the wild ostrich was hunted throughout Africa for its plumes, but the wild bird had to be shot to be plucked, and domestication finally was introduced to save the birds from extinction. The ostrich was found easy to domesticate and bred freely under semi-confined conditions.

The chicks of the ostrich are hardy and easily reared, and by selective breeding and constant elimination of inferior birds the feathers of the South African ostrich were raised to a high standard. In 1912 the South African breed was successfully crossed with a number of ostriches from Northern Nigeria, resutling in a new blend of feathers noted for their sensitiveness.

Most Pampered Anima!

Although the estrich needs constant attention, and consequently has been aptly described "the most pampered animal in existence," an ostrich farm is simplicity itself. Pasture land capable of growing cereals, a few miles of fences, a water supply, and a warm, sunny climate—this is essential equipment.

The rest of ostrich farming is principally a matter of maintaining the highest state of nutrition throughout the six months required for the growth of a feather crop. The wild ostrich lives on native grasses, but the plumage of a wild ostrich cannot compare with that from modern domesticated breeds raised on alfalfa and cereals. Regularity in feeding is important, because any check or lowering of the vitality of the bird during the period of feather growth causes a marked imperfection, like tree rings in drought years, in the feather at that particular stage of its growth. Proper mating also is a factor in maintaining feather standards.

Does it hurt an ostrich to cut its feathers? No, if the feathers are "ripe," that is, full grown, the operation means less to the bird than shearing to sheep. At the end of the six months' period the pith, which carried the blood to the growing feather, has dried down to the edge of the wing and the clipping of the feather at this stage is like paring one's finger nails. The stump or quill, if not pulled out three months later, will be pushed out by the new feather which starts to grow beneath it.

Can Be Profitable Type of Farming

Before the slump of 1913-14 ostrich farming was one of the most lucrative types of farming in South Africa. The capital required was small and the returns, if properly managed, large. One pair of good breeding ostriches could raise as many as 30 chicks, and the profit from the sale of chicks and breeding stock was as great as that from feathers in the best years.

The principal ostrich breeding districts are Ouitshoorn, Ladismith and Calitzdrop, all in the Cape Province.

The Blue Danube

The lazy green water of "The Blue Danube," the theme of Strauss' most popular waltz, winds its way through the heart of Budapest. At one time it separated the two sections into different cities, Buda, a Roman colony, and Pest, a flourishing German settlement, until they were united in 1872. In 1802 it became a royal residence and today it is the capital of Hungary and the center of Hungarian intellectual life. Buda today gives the visitor the impression of a quiet provincial town, while Pest, with its throbbing life and rushing traffic, has the air of a western metropolis. Buda's mountains outlined against an azure sky present as different a picture from her twin sister Pest as though they were not located at all.

GRACE AND CHARM

By Frances Mandel

YOUR EYES

Eyes. What is so wonderful, so alluringly charming as clear, bright and attractive eyes. Oh, the magnetism in a woman's eyes. Why it has been said that more men fall in love with a woman's eyes than any other of her features. And how very true that is.

What a lot of meaning eyes have. Did you ever stop to think of the numerous kind of eyes? There are the sad eyes, the lonesome, the dreamy, the bewitching, the sympathetic, the playful,—and often we are thrilled—by the eyes you can't forget.

So many women do not realize that in their eyes lie real beauty, and instead of preserving and enhancing their natural sparkle and loveliness, they allow them to grow dull and lusterless. All of us should treat our eyes with the same careful attention as we do our teeth and complexion. Use a good eye lotion, morning and night,—it will keep them fresh, clean and youthful throughout the advancing years. The make-up of your eye-brows and lashes is also important and essential. Use eye shadow to give your eyes additional expression. It makes them appear larger. Mascara should be applied so as to make the lashes look longer and heavier, and use the eyebrow pencil to correct the lines of your eyebrows. If your eyebrows are too heavy they can be plucked, within reason,—but too extensive plucking is unwise. Pluck only those unruly hairs. Enough cannot be said about the care of the eyes, so take care of yours, and keep them always clear, keen, sparkling and beautiful.

Frances Mandel will answer questions on Grace and Charm if you will enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope to Frances Mandel, 1030 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass.

"Spite Wife"
EVERY girl dreams of marriage as a sacred rite that binds two hearts in vows of eternal love.
Judith Denning joined hands with Stanley Carter in the parlor of her home in Summerfield while the old minister, whom she had known all her life, said the words that made them one. Judith was happy—proud of this handsome man who was her husband—thrilled that he had chosen her from among all the millions of other girls. She had known him one short month, but that only added romance to the day.
How was she to know she was being cheated—that he could never give her that which any girl has a right to ask of her husband—love. That is the start of "Spite Wife." Now you read what happens—

WINCHESTER TOWN TEAM WON FROM WOBURN CARDINALS, 13—0

Winchester Town Team won its most wanted victory of the season last Sunday afternoon, when it tumbled the widely heralded Woburn Cardinals, 13—0 at the high school athletic field in the tanning city. The game was played before a huge crowd which included a big delegation from Winchester, and it might be said that local fans were amazed at the liberties which the youngsters took at the game in the matter of running about on the playing field while the game was in progress.

When the teams took the field the Winchester eleven, by comparison with the husky Cardinals, looked very small and light, many believing the game would be a walk away for the Woburn club. After a few minutes scrimmaging there was no doubt of the ability of Coach Amico's boys to hold their own with their heavy adversaries and throughout the entire matinee the "Townies" carried the battle to the Cardinals.

The locals scored soon after the opening whistle. Winchester kicked to Woburn and the Cardinals found the hard charging Town Team linemen too tough to gain against. McGilvary kicking from well in his own territory. Carroll returned the kick to the Cardinals' 30-yard line where on second down Woburn fumbled and Winchester recovered.

Two first downs by straight rushing took the ball to the Cardinals' 10-yard line where "Goose" Fleming, on a perfectly executed criss-cross, ran around his own right end for a touchdown without a Woburn hand being laid upon him. Fleming's try for goal was blocked, but Winchester wasn't through scoring.

Following the local kick-off and exchange of punts gave Woburn the ball on its 40-yard line. Here "Dan" Linscott, old Exeter and Harvard player tried Quigley's tackle. He was hit so hard by "Joe" and "Nutsy" Amico that he fumbled the ball and while he was trying to recover "Sam" Horn came up very fast and grabbed the leather in the air.

Aided by some really pretty clearing out by "Package" O'Melia, the diminutive Samuel raced 40 yards for a touchdown, and this time Carroll passed to O'Melia for the extra point.

During the remainder of the game Winchester got the ball pretty much in Woburn's territory, though the Cardinals tried desperately to score. With his running game getting a little less than nowhere, Dartmouth "Bart" McDonough took to the air, but Winchester was too alert to permit anything like a scoring aerial to go.

Both clubs did a lot of kicking and both Linscott and Carroll got off some fine punts. Winchester rushed to 11 first downs while Woburn was picking up but two. The Cardinals were penalized several times during the game, and once were set back 25 yards for an illegal substitution.

HIT AND RUN DRIVER 15 YEAR OLD BOY

Last Saturday night Alfred E. Lofgren of 20 Alfred street, Woburn, reported to Patrolman John J. Regan that his Ford car had been damaged in a collision on High street at Ridge street with a Ford roadster, the driver of which had failed to stop after the accident.

Officer Regan returned to the scene of the accident with Lofgren and as they approached Arlington street the latter recognized the machine which had struck his car turning into that roadway. Officer Regan stopped the roadster and found it was being driven by a 15-year old boy, Arthur Vorce of 20 Oxford street, Somerville. Brown Cantwell, Frank Roque and Catherine Kimball, all of Somerville, were riding with him in the car.

In response to Officer Regan's question Vorce said he hadn't stopped after the accident because he had no license. He was taken with his companions to Headquarters by Sergt. Edward W. O'Connell in the police car, and later turned over to the New England Home for Little Wanderers who guaranteed his appearance in court whenever the local authorities desire. The car he was driving was towed to the Central Garage to await the coming of its owner, Donald Vorce of 22 Harvard street, Natick.

MRS. MARGARET F. HUDON

Mrs. Margaret F. Hudon, widow of Charles Hudon and a former well known resident of Winchester, died Sunday at her home, 581 Union street, Manchester, N. H. She had been seriously ill only two weeks but had for some time previous been in failing health.

Mrs. Hudon was born in Winchester 66 years ago, the daughter of Patrick and Hannah DeCourcy. She was educated in the Winchester schools and made her home here until her marriage to Charles Hudon of New Hampshire, after which she removed to Manchester where she enjoyed a wide circle of friends.

Surviving are two brothers, Chief David H. DeCourcy of the Winchester Fire Department and Henry DeCourcy of Fitchburg. A niece, Sister Elise of the Sisters of Mercy in Berlin, N. H. also survives.

The funeral was held Wednesday morning from her late residence with a requiem high mass in St. John's Cathedral, Manchester, N. H. Following the mass the remains were brought to Winchester for interment in Calvary Cemetery.

MAYNARD NOSED OUT WINCHESTER

7 to 6 Victory Comes With Seconds Only to Play

Winchester's chances to finish in a top tie for Middlesex League honors went glimmering in the closing seconds of last Saturday's game with Maynard on Manchester Field, the visitors completing a long pass for the tieing touchdown and kicking the goal for the all important winning point. Only 11 seconds remained to play as the teams lined up before the play that shattered the locals' hopes.

Few in the crowd about the gridiron would have cared to gamble on Maynard's chances before that life saving pass. Winchester had held grimly to the six points it picked up in the first quarter by means of a blocked punt and its resulting touchdown, and it surely looked like Coach Linderman's boys were headed for a win. A typical Winchester goal line stand had turned back the visitors the only time they had really threatened shortly before the half. Quarterback Arcisz, who had been injured earlier in the game was rushed back into action as the umpire dusted off his whistle for the closing blast of the matinee and called for the only possible play, a long pass which Winchester was expecting, yet which went and won the game.

Laying aside the fact that Winchester should have broken up the play, should have won, should have played the end differently, etc., etc.—the fact remains that Coach Linderman's boys put up a great fight against a much stronger team and deserve plenty of credit for nearly staging one of the biggest upsets of the season in the Middlesex League.

Maynard played the better football during much of the afternoon and as the game wore on had a distinct edge. For those who like statistics it might be stated that the visitors made 7 first downs to Winchester's 5, totalling 207 yards to 97½ for the Red and Black. The Orange completed 7 passes for 83 yards while Winchester made one aerial good for 20. Penalties hurt the local cause, Winchester being set back 55 yards, including two 15 yards penalties; to 25 yards for Maynard.

Captain Flaherty and Lentini played sterling games on the local rushline and Knowlton was great defensively behind the line. Maynard showed a great back in Kendra, another good back in O'Leary a nice end in Thompson and a sweet guard in Bukarz, one of the best we have seen this year.

McKee kicked off for Winchester and Kendra was forced to kick from his 39 yard line to Hannon at Winchester's 15. Mills and Hannon ground out 9 yards and Hannon kicked to Maynard's 44 yard line. A pass from Kendra to Thompson made first down on Winchester's 46-yard stripe and O'Leary squirmed through for another first down at the 30 yard marker. Winchester braced and took the ball at its 25 yard line when a short pass failed to make first down.

Here Hannon faded back and shot off a 20 yard pass to Knowlton who was downed at the 45 yard line. Mills failed to gain but Lynch crashed off tackle for a first down on Maynard's 44 yard stripe. Mills picked up five yards, but Knowlton and Hannon failed to make the extra five and Maynard took the ball at its 35.

Winchester kicked to Maynard's 36 yard line and O'Leary got 9 yards off tackle as the quarter ended.

dropped back to shoot off a pretty pass dropped back to shoot of a pretty pass which was completed for a first down at Winchester's 35 yard line. Daley went in for Ciruso and Hannon intercepted a pass at his own 20 yard line. Mills hitting the line for 4 yards. Hannon was held at the line and kicked to O'Leary at Maynard's 48 yard line. Tofuri replaced Knowlton who hurt his bad knee on the play. O'Leary and Hintsa ground out a first down and a minute later Kendra broke out into the clear to be pulled down at Winchester's 25 yard line. Symmes went in for McKee and O'Leary made a first down in two rushes at the 14 yard stripe. Randlett went in for Bottger and Winchester took the ball on downs at its 5 yard line, Tofuri breaking through for a first down on the 15 yard line. Here a risky lateral amounted to nothing either way, fortunately, and Hannon kicked to O'Leary at Maynard's 45. Here Hannon intercepted a long pass from Kendra and galloped to Maynard's 25 yard line as the half ended.

Coming out after the half Winchester started clicking at once and receiving the ball at their 45 yard line, rushed to Maynard's 37 yard line, despite a five yard penalty, Hannon, Lynch and Mills doing some nice carrying. On fourth down Hannon shot off a long pass which the Maynard safety man caught on his own 10 yard line for what looked like a big break for Winchester.

The officials however called Winchester for holding and the ball was brought back for a 15 yard penalty. Hannon then got off a flukey kick which went outside at Maynard's 42 yard line and from this point the tide of battle turned definitely toward the visitors.

A five yard penalty against the Orange for backs in motion was nearly made up by a short pass and a Kendra line buck, a five yard offside penalty against Winchester giving Maynard the first down. Winchester braced and Kendra kicked to Tofuri at Winchester's 30. As the quarter ended Kendra intercepted a Hannon pass at his 48 yard line.

Kendra kicked to start the final period, the ball being blocked by the charging local linemen and given to Winchester on downs at its 45 yard line. A 15 yard penalty set the locals back and another five yarder forced Hannon to kick, the ball going outside at Maynard's 20 yard line. Kendra and O'Leary picked up 9 yards, but Winchester recovered a fumble at the Maynard's 30 yard line. The locals failed to click, and once again Hannon kicked, short this time and outside at the visitors' 20 yard stripe.

Lynch was hurt on the play and Knowlton went back into action. On the next play Maynard lost 15 yards for illegal use of hands and Kendra after picking up five yards at tackle, kicked to Winchester's 36 yard line. Tofuri and Hannon lost 5 yards on two rushes and Hannon kicked short to his own 43 yard marker.

Winchester piled up the visitors' running game and on 4th down Kendra tossed off a pass to O'Leary who was downed on Winchester's 21 yard line. The injured Arcisz was rushed back into the fray and with 11 seconds to go Kendra tossed off another pass to left end Thompson who wriggled across the goal line for a touchdown. Kendra got off a beautiful place kick to pick up the winning point and the following kickoff ended the game.

DEDICATED GATE, GIVEN AS MEMORIAL TO WINCHESTER MARINE

Appropriate exercises on Armistice Day in the cemetery at Peak's Island, Me., marked the dedication of the handsome memorial gateway, given in memory of St. Earle MacNeil Randall, U. S. M. C., by his mother, the late Emily MacNeil Randall, of Winchester. Lieutenant Randall, a former Winchester boy, lost his life while flying with the Marines at Quantico after the war and is buried at Peak's Island. The dedication exercises were in charge of Earle MacNeill Randall Post, 142, American Legion, named in the dead aviator's honor. A sister of Lieutenant Randall, Miss Margaret E. Randall of Salisbury street, was among those present.

Rev. Allen B. MacNeill, Lieutenant Randall's uncle and Chaplain of the Ridgefield Park Legion Post in New Jersey, delivered the address, and it is of interest that coincident with the dedication of the gateway, the new flag, presented to the Peak's Island Post by the family of Lieutenant Randall, were also dedicated and formally accepted by the Post Commander.

DRIVER ARRESTED AFTER CRASH

Traffic on Main street last Sunday afternoon was tied up when a Chevrolet touring car, driven by Angelo Fiore of 59 Conn street, Woburn, and a Ford sedan, driven by Harold S. Cook of Great Pine avenue, Burlington, were in collision on Main street at Fairview terrace. Both machines were damaged and the Ford, which was smashed, was towed to the rear of the Fire Station. Cook was taken into custody by Sergt. John H. Noonan on the charge of drunkenness and operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. He was cut about the face and was given first aid by Officer John Hogan. Frank Mazarrella of 54 Lowell street, Boston, riding with Fiore, complained of injuries to his right knee.

In the District Court Monday morning Cook was found guilty as charged by the police and fined $50.

STILL AT IT

On Friday afternoon the police were notified that boys, while stoning a dog which was in the Mill Pond had broken a window in an automobile on Converse place. The youngsters escaped in the direction of Symmes corner.

Saturday afternoon the owner of a building on Wildwood terrace notified Headquarters that a window had been broken by boys playing nearby. The name of the youngster said to be responsible was secured by Patrolman John Dolan who warned the boy to keep away from the premises.

WINCHESTER GIRL WHEATON TENNIS WINNER

Miss Mabel Tompkins of this town has made an auspicious athletic debut at Wheaton College where she is a member of the freshman class. Miss Tompkins has the distinction of making the varsity hockey team as a freshman and is playing regularly at center halfback. She also won the recent tennis tournament for first year girls. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Tompkins of Glengarry and was graduated from Winchester High School in June, winning highest honors scholastically and varsity letters in basketball, tennis and field hockey.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

All day meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the home of Mrs. George Arnold, 20 Dix terrace on Friday, Nov. 20. Business meeting at 2:30. Mrs. Anna Grosvenor will give the report of the State convention. Sewing on comfort bags for the Sailors' department. Basket lunch.

The "Prohibition Patriots," will meet in the Baptist Church classroom at 3:30 on the same afternoon. All children from 7 to 14 years of age cordially invited.

Dr. Harold A. Gale was one of the speakers on the work done by the Association at the annual meeting of the Southern Middlesex Health Association held at North Reading Tuesday evening.

MR. BENEKER TO EXHIBIT IN ARLINGTON

The Woman's Club of Arlington which took the state prize of the Federation of Women's Clubs last year for their work in promoting art interests has spread out more than ever this year in sponsoring six exhibitions of art which will be hung in the Arlington (Robbins) Public Library. The first of these exhibitions is the work of our fellow townsman, Gerrit A. Beneker. A collection of some 30 of his Cape Cod paintings, including two or three landscapes of New Hampshire in winter and three or four portraits opened last Monday and will continue for the remainder of this month. Mr. Beneker gave an informal talk before the Arlington Woman's Club last Monday afternoon and that evening he gave his stereoptican lecture before the Teachers' Association and the College Club of Reading.

Among the paintings hung in the Arlington Library are "New Hampshire in Winter" painted last winter from the estate of Arthur Black at Freedom, N. H.; a portrait of Dorothy Junkins of Danvers, entitled, "The Amber Beads," which has been exhibited in the National Academy in New York, the Pennsylvania Academy in Philadelphia, etc.; a double portrait of the artist's two younger daughters, entitled, "Little Women," and several colorful paintings of Cape Cod landscapes and marines near the artist's home at Truro.

Mr. Beneker's industrial paintings are on exhibition this month at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., where the artist will lecture on Nov. 19 and 20. Mr. Beneker left Tuesday for New York to fulfil a portrait commission. The Magazine World for this month contains a very interesting article about Mr. Beneker's work—reprinted from the Landmark for last June.

In response to a telephone call received shortly before 11 o'clock last Saturday, Patrolmen John J. Regan and James F. Noonan made a hurried trip to the junction of Church and Bacon streets where a man had been seen who was reported as intoxicated. Upon arrival the policemen found a man who was lurching along, but learned upon investigation that his peculiar gait was caused by a wooden leg and not by over indulgence in alcoholic beverage.

WINCHESTER GIRLS IN SCORELESS TIE WITH CONCORD

CALUMET NOTES

A big crowd, including many visitors, turned out last Saturday night for the wrestling bouts in the club hall. Promoter Paul Bowser promised to send out teams that would furnish action and he was as good as his word.

Blonde Jack Nelson, 180, of Chicago and Eddie McNeil, 178, of Hyde Park went on for the first bout and wrestled 20 minutes to a draw, giving a good exhibition which pleased the fans. Neither enjoyed much of an advantage until just before the gong when McNeil rammed home three head butts which bothered Nelson, though he seemed in no particular danger of being thrown.

The second bout, between the veteran Arthur Davis, 185, of Tufts and Stuart Spears, 183, of Boston, was the best of the evening, furnishing the crowd with some clever grappling. Davis is a past master of all the inside stuff which is a part of the mat game, but he was unable to pin the slippery Spears who has been for some time a great favorite here.

The Boston boy weighs no more than 183 pounds and he found Davis too big and clever for him. The bout was very fast and clean during the whole 25 minutes, the men breaking immediately at a word from the referee. Both boys were given a fine hand as they left the ring without a fall.

The main bout of the evening was a distinct flop as a wrestling bout, but furnished plenty of fireworks. "Bull" Martin, a pugnatious 215 pound pachyderm from Louisiana, and Boris Demitroff, 205, of St. Louis were the grapplers, and the bout hadn't gone five of its 45 minutes before the referee was warning Martin to wrestle and not fight.

The big fellow apparently knew next to nothing about wrestling but was very strong and anything but cool headed. The peppery Demitroff, himself no gentle lamb, stood for plenty of rough stuff before he commenced to retaliate, but at no time could he approach Martin who used the strangle whenever he could and was particularly fond of kneeing Demitroff in the stomach at every opportunity.

After 26 minutes of mauling, slapping and kneeing the big fellows got onto the ropes and the perspiring referee attempted to break them. In doing so he and Demitroff, working nicely together, wrestled Martin to the floor where Boris rolled him for the fall.

Martin protested that the Ref had aided Boris, which he certainly did, but his yelp went for nothing and he returned to the ring for the second fall in anything but a genial mood.

Most of the second bout was devoted to slugging, and finally the long suffering referee, after repeatedly warning Martin to stop his kneeing ended the bout and awarded the decision to Demitroff. "Bull" raised a loud squawk and both boys expressed their entire willingness to fight it out then and there. This privilege was for obvious reasons denied them and the show was over.

Ralph Dixon of Woburn handled all the bouts and had a tough job of it with Martin and Demitroff, once being knocked down to have the gigantic Martin clamp on a painful toe hold which "Bull" was in no hurry to break. "Johnny" Tobin of Woburn was announcer and his brother, "Hughey," timer. Refreshments were served after the bouts.

There was a large attendance at the afternoon bridge for ladies, held at the club Tuesday under the direction of Mrs. Fred Aseltine and Mrs. Warren Cox.

Calumeters are reminded of the big Turkey Roll to be held tomorrow evening on the club alleys. No bowler or near bowler will want to miss this big event.

Middlesex visits Calumet Monday evening for a match in the Mystic Valley League series. All members are requested to turn out and give the Calumet teams some encouragement in their efforts to make a good showing in the league competition. Lunch will be served.

Ladies' afternoon bowling on Tuesday, Nov. 17, at 2:15, and Friday evening, Nov. 20, at 6:30, another of the popular dinner bridges in charge of Mrs. Fred Aseltine and Mrs. W. E. Chamberlin.

It's not too early to make your reservations for the biggest New Year's Party the club has staged for years, and the committee will appreciate it if you will signify your intention to be present just as soon as possible. Lou Haffermehl's band which was so popular at the Hallowe'en Party has been engaged to furnish the music.

FLORENCE CRITTENTON NOTES

Members of the local circle are reminded of the all day sewing meeting to be held Thursday, Nov. 19, at the home of Mrs. Chauncey L. Mitchell, 4 Summit avenue, commencing at 10 o'clock. There will be a box luncheon and coffee will be served. The meeting is important and all are urged to be present.

Ohio's First Capital

Chillicothe was the first capital of Ohio. In 1800 the seat of government of the Northwest territory was removed from Cincinnati to Chillicothe, and in that year the statehouse was commenced for the accommodation of the territorial legislature and courts. It was finished the following year and the legislature held its session in it for the first time. The convention that framed the constitution of Ohio was held in the new building, and the first state legislature met here in April, 1803. The legislatures continued to meet here until 1810. The sessions of 1810-11 and 1811-12 were held at Zanesville, and from there removed back to Chillicothe, where they were held until 1816, when Columbus became the permanent capital. The first settlement in Ohio was made at Marietta.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

NORTH BORNEO: WHERE "WILD" MEN HAVE BEEN TAMED

Trade with North Borneo is of such importance to the Sultan of Sulu that he is contemplating a trip to London to plead with British officials over certain trade rights with the British possession.

North Borneo is no longer the land of the "wild man from Borneo," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Before the British took possession of this portion of the world's third largest island, young native tribesmen proved their manhood by hanging heads of enemies to the rafters of their huts, but head hunting now is a thing of the past.

Roads Are Rare

A tangled mass of lofty, wooded mountains range from 4000 to more than 13,000 feet, deep valleys furrow the interior, and wide areas of alluvial flats lie along the 800-mile seacoast. The area thrusts itself from the wild, jungle-clad border of Dutch Borneo toward the Philippine Islands.

There are only about 100 miles of modern improved roads in North Borneo, which covers an area the size of Ireland. Yet North Borneo is only an eighth of the huge island. There are less than 100 miles of railroads, but there are numerous rivers, many navigable for more than a hundred miles by the shallow-draft native boats.

North Borneo trade amounts to about $11,000,000 annually. The Chinese who control a greater portion of the trade send natives into the jungle to collect commodities ranging from lumber to armadillo hides.

Sea Slugs for Chinese Soup

Forests of the alluvial coastal flats yield bark of a small mangrove tree from which tannic acid is derived. Gutta percha, insulator for electrical devices; damar (gum or resin) which is widely used in the manufacture of paints and varnishes, wood oils, and incense woods which give off a sweet odor when burning, are important products of the interior forests. Numerous species of fish, seed pearls, shells, clams, turtles and oysters, and beche-de-mer, a sea slug from which the Chinese make a delectable soup, are procured off the coast by native fishermen.

Until the eighties, North Borneo's trade was negligible. In 1882 some rubber plants reached the island from Brazil by way of London and Ceylon. In 1928 rubber plantations covered nearly 100,000 acres and produced more than 15,000,000 pounds of rubber for export. The next year foreign tobacco plants were tried out and new tobacco plantations are springing up in North Borneo clearings. Palm trees from Africa are successfully grown and the area bids fair to be a supply source of the palm oil that is widely used in soap, candle and substitute butter manufacturing in Europe and the United States.

Chinese Are Business Leaders

Growing of manila hemp, sisal, cocoanut, rice and tropical fruit employs native labor. Many plantations are owned by white men. Small quantities of sugar and coffee are produced. Before rubber became a major crop, coffee was ones of the leading North Borneo products.

North Borneo has a quarter million inhabitants. Only some 400 of them are Europeans. Chinese are the business leaders of the country and in each of the larger villages and towns, the Chinese bazaars are the centers of trade.

Sandakan, the capital, with about 12,000 inhabitants, is the largest town in North Borneo.

The Sultan of Sulu claimed a portion of North Borneo but he gave his holdings to an Englishman in 1756 as a reward for procuring his release from Manila. For more than a half century North Borneo has been under lease by a British corporation somewhat resembling the East India Company.

Easier to Write Poem Than Make Good Joke

To every fifteen persons who can write verses there is only one who can write a joke, a wisecrack or a line of satire. At least, that's our experience. Ought not "wisecracking" be cultivated in the halls of learning as well as poetry? It is a form of literature quite as respectable. And so rare that all the satirists are remembered—while all the poets are not—not by a million or so.

We believe that the fund of humor and witticism in the world would be enormously augmented if they were pursued as an art. It is not even an "exercise" where learning is taught. One can write poetry—such as it is—with scarcely a thought; but to say something smart demands an intellectual activity as strenuous as the physical activity that gets results in baseball, football and the other athletic sports.

Next time that you sit down with your overflowing sentiment—and presumably inspiration—to write a poem, seek to turn it—if only as a pastime—into an epigram or a list of persiflage—and see what you get.—F. H. Collier in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Thoughts of Druids

When you are in Carnac in France, and you go out to see the mysterious Druid menhirs, which are among the most impressive in the world, you will, of course, be told, as you were at Stonehenge, in England, that they mark warrior graves or are stones connected with sun-worshipers and so on. It is well to recall that we know very little of the religion of the Druids, in fact, one of their laws was, "Do not discuss religion among yourselves." Other laws were, "Women may become judges." "No child shall be reared in a city but only in a village," and Caesar has left the testimony that "It is a law of the Druids that no man shall be richer than his neighbor."

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH EDIFICE, BUILT 1840, DESTROYED BY FIRE 1853

"THE ROMANCE OF THE LITTLE WHITE CHURCH"

Next Sunday morning at the First Congregational Church, the pastor, Rev. Howard J. Chidley, D.D., will give an historical sketch of the church and the town in the early days of its settlement, dealing with some of the romantic incidents of those early days, and in the light of this background, an interpretation of the church's policy today.

Here is a word picture of the building of this "little white church" back in 1840.

"At the summons given by the building committee, who, one and all, with inspiring zeal brought their own muscle and tools to the work, there was a general gathering of men and boys of the society. He who had oxen and cart, or a horse and cart, or a wheelbarrow, or at most a shovel, hoe, or pick, or in the lack of such property, whosoever had a pair of hands —all rallied to uproot the small pines that crowned the hill, and dig down the unsightly cone of sand and gravel, to distribute and reduce to an appropriate and comely grade the unsightly mass. Even the boys had a mind to work. They could lead the horses to the dump, could run errands, bring refreshing drinks to the toiling deacons, squires, doctors, mechanics, tradesmen and farmers, who were all there and side by side digging, picking, shoveling (or advising). The natural difficulties of the site were overcome and the ground made into a Church-site unsurpassed in Massachusetts.

Those interested in the early history of the town and church are invited to be present.

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS

The year 1931 is the 50th anniversary of the founding of the American Red Cross. Space does not permit a recounting of the splendid relief work conducted by this organization in national emergencies. This record alone calls for the unstinted support of all citizens, but during the present period of unemployment and want, it is not only our duty, but also a large measure of self interest, for each of us to renew our memberships and to donate as much as our means allow.

Fifty per cent of each membership subscription accrues to the local Chapter and will be expended on direct relief work in this area. Winchester has always exceeded its membership quota. It is to be hoped that in this year of unprecedent suffering the people of Winchester will not only surpass their previous record, but will make their donations in proportion to the needs of this emergency, and allow the local Chapter to carry on its work to a satisfactory completion.

DEDICATION OF THE MEAD MEMORIAL

Last Sunday, Nov. 15, the Rev. John W. Suter, D.D., Rector Honorarius, visited the Parish of the Epiphany to preach and dedicate the beautiful Sanctuary Seat which has been given in memory of Doris Neva Mead. This Seat has been placed on the Gospel side of the Sanctuary, under the supervision of the architect of the church, Mr. F. Patterson Smith. Above the arch over the Seat is a finial from the reredos above the High Altar of Winchester Cathedral dating from the 15th century. Beneath the arch are four tiles from Winchester Cathedral of the same period. These are set in a background of Moravian tiles made in Doylestown, Penn. The service was an inspiring one. There was a large congregation with many of Dr. Suter's old friends present to greet him.

HOME FOR AGED PEOPLE

Reception and Donation Day was held at the Home for Aged People on Thursday, Nov. 12.

The Board of Directors wish to thank all who so generously contributed. The family were pleased to see and visit with many of their friends.

The ladies of the Home have made many attractive and useful articles which are now on sale at the Home, 110 Mt. Vernon street.

Prices are very reasonable. Visit this sale, you may find just the desired article.

CHILDREN URGE MEMBERSHIP IN THE RED CROSS

An interested group of parents were present at a Junior Red Cross program given by the children of the sixth grade of the George Washington School. The subject as announced by the president, Lincoln Grindle, was "Why We Should Join the Red Cross." This is a very timely topic as the Senior Red Cross drive for membership is now going on. Florence Farnham gave a concise little talk on the help given by the Red Cross as reasons for joining. Edward Gelsthorpe told a stirring tale of a man who refused to co-operate with the Red Cross until taught a personal lesson when the village in which he lived was almost destroyed by flood. A group of six girls gave in acrostic form the motto of the Junior Red Cross, which is, "I serve." The climax of the program was a play entitled, "Why Jimmie Joined the Red Cross." This was an original production, written by the sixth grade. "Jimmie" Smith, in spite of the efforts of his friends, refuses to join the Junior Red Cross. Marjorie Lawson as the Spirit of the Red Cross, volunteers to show him why he should. In turn she causes to appear before him three scenes. In one, a little sick boy is visited by Juniors who bring him a basket of fruit and toys to cheer up his convalescence; in another, a group of Juniors are packing Christmas boxes to go overseas; in the third, a group of foreign children are made happy on Christmas Day by the gifts packed by the American Juniors. In the end "Jimmie" decides he wants to do his share of helping, and so becomes an enthusiastic member of the Junior Red Cross.

UNINJURED IN FORTY FOOT DROP

Terrance P. Livermore of 54 Wyman street, Arlington, had a narrow escape from serious injury and possible death Wednesday afternoon when the Essex coach he was driving on Bacon street went through the fence at the side of the road about 50 feet west of the railroad bridge and plunged 40 feet down the hillside over a five foot stone wall and into the pasture of the Ginn estate.

According to the story Livermore told the police he was driving from the Parkway and making the turn at Wedgemere to go east on Bacon street. As his car turned a bottle of oil in the rear of the machine tipped over. Livermore attempted to pick it up and in doing so, lost control of the car which quickly crossed Bacon street, went over the sidewalk and through the fence, crashing down the steep banking into the pasture.

The police found Livermore apparently all right after his thrilling experience and when John "Cap" Johanson pulled the Essex from the pasture with the Central Garage wrecker the car was able to leave under its own power, the sole casualty being a flat front shoe.

UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICE

The churches of Winchester are uniting in a Union Thanksgiving service on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock in the First Baptist Church. The Rev. Dwight W. Hadley, the new rector of the Church of the Epiphany will be the preacher of the Thanksgiving service. Music will be furnished by the choir and the quartette.

Other clergymen of the town assisting in the service include Dr. Howard J. Chidley, Rev. George Reed, Rev. John E. Whitley, Rev. J. West Thompson and Rev. Benjamin P. Browne.

The churches are issuing a special call to this Thanksgiving service. In view of the crucial conditions of our times all Christian citizens feel the hour opportune to renew the rugged New England virtues of loyalty to country and fidelity to God. This service affords an important opportunity for community thanksgiving.

MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED

Announcement is made of the marriage, Oct. 17 in Washington, D. C., of Miss Hermione John, daughter of Mrs. Lilian N. John of that city to Mann U. Cox, son of Mrs. Harry Cox of 1 Lewis road and the late Mr. Cox. Mr. Cox and his bride are making their home in Winchester.

CONTRIBUTIONS WILL BE ACKNOWLEDGED

Nov. 18, 1931

To the Editor of the Star:

It was very thoughtful of you to give my appeal to our public spirited citizens so prominent a place in the last issue of your paper.

As a result, hardly had the ink on your paper become dry before one of those appealed to did not even wait to use the mails, but brought his check at once to my home. I not only appreciated his check, but was especially pleased with his promptness. Others followed rapidly so that work will begin next Monday morning and will proceed as rapidly as weather and contributions will permit.

Acknowledgment of contributions will be made in the form given below. Funds will be deposited in a local bank. All disbursements will be made by check through Mr. James J. ## MRS. JULIA O'CONNOR

Mrs. Julia O'Connor, wife of Roger O'Connor of 76 Sheridan circle, died Monday evening at her home following a brief illness. She had been in failing health since the death of her daughter three years ago.

Mrs. O'Connor was born 62 years ago in Ireland, the daughter of John and Mary (Welch) Sweeney. As a young girl she came to this country and for the past 42 years had made her home in Winchester. She was a member of the Married Ladies' Sodality of St. Mary's Parish and of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters.

The deceased was married in Winchester to Roger O'Connor who survives with two sons, John J. of New York City and William F. O'Connor of Winchester. There are also seven sisters.

The funeral was held Thursday morning from the late residence with a solemn requiem high mass in St. Mary's Church. Rev. Fr. James Fitzsimons, pastor of the Immaculate Conception Church, was celebrant; Rev. Fr. Charles J. Foley of the Immaculate Conception Church, deacon; and Rev. Fr. Conrad J. Quirbach of St. Mary's Church, subdeacon. Six brothers-in-law of the deceased, John Dooley, Edward Dalton, Patrick Lally, all of Winchester, Bernard McGurn of Woburn, John Dalton of Stoneham and John O'Connor of Roslindale, were bearers. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery, where the committal prayers were read by Father Fitzsimons.

JAMES EDMOND COREY

James Edmond Corey, a former widely known resident of Winchester, died Wednesday morning, Nov. 18, in the Winchester Hospital after a two days' illness with heart disease.

For more than 50 years Mr. Corey was in the wholesale fruit business in Boston and during most of that time he made his home in Winchester. Following the death of his wife, Mrs. Rosa C. (Mack) Corey Dec. 28, 1925, he removed to West Medford where for the past five years he had made his home at 4 Grove street.

Mr. Corey was the son of Theodore and Mary (Sawtelle) Corey and was born in Brighton April 4, 1864. He was a past director of the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange, a member of the First Congregational Church in Winchester and of the Calumet Club, being active in club affairs. He was a Mason, a member of William Parkman Lodge and of Winchester Royal Arch Chapter.

Surviving are two daughters, Miss Pauline G. Corey of New Brunswick, N. J., Mrs. Robert Johnson of Woburn; a son, George R. Corey of Boston; and two grandchildren, Richard C. and R. Wade Johnson, both of Woburn.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon in Ripley Memorial Chapel of the First Congregational Church with the pastor, Rev. Howard J. Chidley, officiating. Burial was at Northborough.

MRS. MARY A. DOHERTY

Mrs. Mary Ann Doherty, for the past 20 years a resident of Winchester, died Friday morning, Nov. 13, at her home, 18 Canal street, after an illness of several months' duration.

Mrs. Doherty was born in Boston, the daughter of James and Elizabeth (Sheerin) Maguire. For some years previous to coming to Winchester she made her home in Woburn where her father was widely known as one of the pioneer leather manufacturers on the west side of the city.

The deceased was a widow, and is survived by four daughters, Miss Elizabeth F., Miss Mabel A., Miss Ellen G., and Miss R. Madeleine Doherty, all of Winchester; by three sons, J. Joseph, Francis A., both of Woburn, and Austin A. Doherty of Newton, a sister, Miss Rose E. Maguire of this town and a brother, John F. Maguire of Woburn. Her husband, James K. Doherty passed away nine years ago.

The funeral was held Monday morning from the late residence with a requiem high mass celebrated in St. Mary's Church by Rev. Fr. Charles J. Foley of the Church of the Immaculate Conception. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery where the committal prayers were read by Father Foley.

MARRIAGE INTENTIONS

Marriage intentions have been filed with the Town Clerk as follows:

Oswald Thompson Walker of 50 West 91st street, New York, N. Y. and Georgena Wilhelmina Thompson of 29 Clark street.

HIGH SCHOOL PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION MEETING

High School Alterations Completed by September

The addition and alteration of the local high school will be completed by next September, was the welcome word brought to a well attended meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the high school last Monday evening, by Mr. Robert Stone, chairman of the School Building Committee.

A beautiful auditorium, seating 750, with a stage capable of holding 150 more, and a well equipped gymnasium large enough for two complete basket-ball courts are the features of the new addition. In remodeling the present building, plans call for seven new class rooms, a library twice the size of the present one, a cafeteria accommodating 400 patrons, as well as many other improvements.

Friends of the school were glad to learn that with the work completed the present two-platoon system will be a thing of the past. Chairman Stone was enthusiastically applauded for his very clear presentation of his committee's well-made plans.

Dr. Fred Smith, of Harvard University, brought the principal message of the evening. He emphasized the point that a college education is not a guarantee of a successful career. The boy or girl who cannot go to college has a real chance to make good.

The speaker stressed the necessity of more careful training in the home. Parents cannot leave the welfare of their children entirely in the hands of the school. The child should be guided into the right vocation, not shoved into it arbitrarily. This guidance is the result of years and cannot be given in a few minutes by either parent or teacher. Without proper home training, the child cannot be expected to develop the right attitude in the two-fold career of living a life and making a living.

Mr. Little, president of the association, presided. Refreshments were served by the Hospitality Committee during the social hour following the main program. Many new members were enrolled.

TO ALTER STREET INTERSECTIONS

The Board of Selectmen, upon the advice of Town Engineer James Hinds has decided to make slight alterations to existing street layouts at Sheffield road and Church street, Fletcher street and Calumet road and Wildwood and Fletcher streets with a view to greater safety. The alterations consist of rounding off the corners of the streets for wider intersections. This has worked out well at the high school corner on Washington street at the Parkway and the Board believes it will be equally helpful at the West Side intersections named. Town Engineer Hinds has also recommended the rounding of the corner of Vine street at Church street and the Board is reported as favorably inclined toward such a move. With the opening of the new Co-operative Bank building and a great increase in rentals at Stetson Hall, Vine street, is being used to a much greater extent than formerly and the layout at the Church street end is not a particularly advantageous one.

BLACK HORSE TAVERN CHAPTER CHILDEN OF AMERICAN REVOLUTION

The organization meeting of the Black Horse Tavern Chapter of the Children of American Revolution was held on Monday afternoon of this week at the home of Mrs. R. M. Mauldin on Crescent road.

Mrs. Mary H. MacDowell, State Director of the C. A. R. gave the oath of office to the folowing officers:

President—Sue Mauldin
Secretary—Jean Phelps
Treasurer—Norris Chevalier

The organizing president, Mrs. Archibald Jordan announced the names of 20 children who have come into the new Chapter in Winchester. The charter has not been filed and Mrs. Jordan would be pleased to hear from any other Winchester children who are interested to join in the patriotic work of the Children of the American Revolution.

The short business meeting was held followed by refreshments.

ELKS' CHARITY BALL HELD LAST EVENING

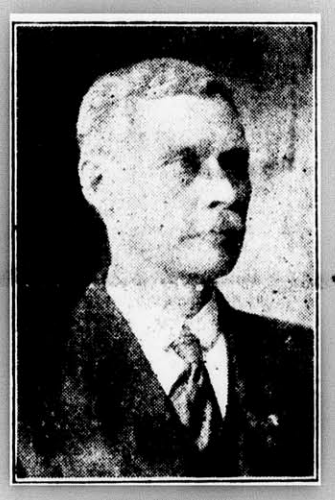
The usual big crowd of merrymakers thronged to the Town Hall last evening for the ninth annual Charity Ball of Winchester Lodge of Elks, since their inception the red letter events of the fall social season.

The National colors were prominently displayed upon the stage which was attractively decorated with palms and huge chrysanthemums by George F. Arnold of the Arnold Shop of the Winchester Conservatories.

Eight Past Exalted Rulers of the Lodge, John McNally, Fred D. Clement, George T. Davidson, Maurice Dinneen, Fred H. Scholl, Thomas F. Fallon, Ben F. Cullen and John F. Donaghey served as reception committee and the ushers for the evening, headed by Paul F. McCall, were Charles Feinberg, Norman Harrold, George Leckley and Edward Boyle.



JOHN McNALLY
First Exalted Ruler
Member of Reception Committee for Elks' Ball

Promptly at 8:15 o'clock the entertainment program commenced under the direction of "Buddy" Shepard with Harold Burnham at the piano.

The bill comprised the usual high class talent furnished by Mr. Shepard and included Ethel Breen, acrobatic and tap dancer; Graham and Graham in a clever revue of favorite song hits; William McDermott, tramp comedian, in monologue and parodies; Sandy Ackland, Scotch comedian, late of the Harry Lauder Company; and the versatile Gregg Sisters, musical entertainers. There was not a bad act on the bill and the Gregg Sisters did some doubling on violin and 'cello which was as good as it was unusual. Sandy Ackland's antics with his bag pipes were very funny and the other entertainers were equally enjoyed by the crowd.

Following the entertainment the hall was cleared by Custodian "Ed" Callahan and the dancers formed for the colorful grand march which is always a feature of the Elks' Ball. Exalted Ruler Charles A. Farrar of Winchester Lodge and Mrs. Farrar led the march, followed by the officers of the lodge and the members of the ball committee with their ladies.

Dancing was enjoyed to the syncopated strains of "Bobby" Morton and his Golden Pheasant Dance Orchestra and from the opening to the closing number there wasn't an idle moment.

Between the dance numbers the orchestra introduced the Reddy Sisters, a singing duo from Woburn, and Walter Doherty, Woburn's Morton Downey; who were enthusiastically received and forced to give encore selections. Refreshments were served at the rear of the hall by Callahan, local caterer.

The impressive eleven o'clock toast to the "absent brothers" was eloquently delivered by District Deputy William H. Earl of Massachusetts Central, P. E. R. of Newton Lodge, and an honored guest.

Exalted Ruler Charles A. Farrar was in general charge of arrangements for the ball with E. L. K Everett Hambley as chairman of the Ball Committee, other members of which were Charles Feinberg, Joseph Marrone, Frank Nagle, Rubin Levine, Howard Brownell, Amoroso Capone, George H. Lochman, John F. Donaghey, Fred D. Clement, Fred H. Scholl, Thomas F. Fallon, John McCarron, John McNally, George Leckley, Paul F. McCall, William Whelan, Fred Crotto, William Crotto, Dr. James H. O'Connor, Leo Finnegan, Arthur Harty, William Vayo, Joseph Mawn and Robert Sullivan.

Proceeds from the ball will as usual be devoted to the Elks' charitable work in Winchester.

TOWN TEAM AT WOBURN SUNDAY

Latest advices from the firing line are to the effect that the Winchester and Woburn Town Teams will play on Sunday afternoon at the high school athletic field in Woburn, commencing at 2:30. There has been so much ballyhoo concerning this game, and so much backing and filling that a definite statement is hard to make. Wednesday the game was to take place on Saturday. Yesterday morning it was off. Thursday afternoon it was announced for Sunday. As far as we know that is when the game will be played, and most fans will be glad to have it over with, if only to stop the many stories which have been circulated in an effort to steam up interest in the game.

WASHINGTON-HIGHLAND CHAPTER

The Washington-Highland Chapter of the Mothers' Association held their meeting Tuesday, Nov. 17 in the assembly hall of the George Washington School. The guest speaker of the afternoon was Mr. Robert Stone, Chairman of the Building Committee who gave a very instructive and interesting talk on the development of the new school program.

A social hour was enjoyed, refreshments were served by Mrs. Kenneth Caldwell, Mrs. Clinton Farnham and Mrs. Carroll Hilton.

COLLEGE CLUB STUDY GROUPS

Members of the Winchester College Club and others who are interested in the study groups proposed for the coming winter are urged to send in their registrations immediately, so that definite arrangements may be made. For application blanks write or telephone Mrs. Wm. E. Spaulding, 379 Main street, Win. 0025-W, to whom they should be returned.

THREE FIRES LAST SATURDAY

The Fire Department answered three alarms last Saturday, the first coming at 1:35 p. m. for a tree which was reported on fire by the police. At 2:45 p. m. a burning wood pile called the men to the rear of the home of Mr. John E. Page at 22 Everett avenue. The last run was at 5:06 o'clock for a chimney fire at Waterfield Hall, reported by Oscar Hedtler, automobile and radio supply dealer in the building.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Mrs. Helen Russell Claflin of North Conway, N. H. announces the engagement of her daughter, Helen Claflin Perry to Avard Longley Walker, Jr. of Winchester.

"Billy" Roop, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. L. Roop, entertained a group of his young friends at his home on Dartmouth street last Thursday. On Monday, Nov. 30, he and Rufus Clark are to give a "movie" show at the Roop residence from 4 until 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

WINCHESTER BOY SCORED FOR EXETER

Winchester "Johnnie" Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Murphy of Mystic avenue, had the distinction of scoring the first of Exeter's two touchdowns in the New Hampshire prep school's victorious football game against its great rival Andover at Brothers' Field, Andover, last Saturday afternoon.

Andover had scored first and was leading, 6 to 0, when Murphy, playing right end for Exeter, made a sensational catch of a 35-yard forward pass from quarterback Heyser at the Andover 4 yard line and went over for the touchdown. Later in the game the old Winchester High end just missed another aerial after a great try for the ball.

Murphy has played consistently good football on the Exeter rushline this fall after winning his letter last season. He is captain and star first sacker of the Exeter nine, and before matriculating at the New Hampshire school was a three letter man at Winchester High, playing football, baseball and captaining the basketball team. He is a member of the senior class at Exeter and is headed for Harvard.

MELROSE WON CLUB GAME FROM WINCHESTER

Melrose won its game in the afternoon division of the Boston Field Hockey Association from Winchester last Saturday afternoon on Manchester Field, 2—0. Beaulah Keily, slick working center forward, scored both the Melrose goals.

Winchester had a patched up lineup and while putting up a good fight against the visitors were seldom able to get into scoring position.

The summary:

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT NOTES

For some years, the Junior Red Cross activities of the public schools have given our boys and girls practical training in genuine service and in extending their outlook on the world. One of its chief features has been to develop understanding of children living in other countries than their own. It is customary each year to send simple gifts and sometimes portfolios to children of foreign lands. Usually letters are sent to our own boys and girls expressing the thanks of these children. One or two of the letters received are submitted below. Quietly, but we hope effectively, our boys and girls are taught to think kindly of boys and girls in other countries.

Soustiani, Sparta,
April 25, 1931

Dear Friends of Uppergrade School,

We received your gifts and by this letter wish to thank you for your kindness. We live in the south of Peloponessus, near the ancient and glorious Sparta. Our school is situated on a high spot and is surrounded by a large yard. We are 42 children in all. We have a Junior Red Cross group whose objective is philanthropic. Accept our thanks and brotherly greetings.

The Primary School

Chimarros, Greece,
May 20, 1931

Dear Friends:

You cannot imagine our joy when we received your beautiful presents. We have heard a great deal about your country, but your gifts made us know you better. Kindly accept the few gifts we send you, and excuse our not being able to send you any others, richer and more worthy of your own. But we are refugee children. Take them as a token of our love for you.

With love and thanks.

THE SAME OLD STORY

Winchester, Mass.
Nov. 16, 1931

To the Editor of the Star:

Referring to your editorial in last Friday's issue on the lack of uniformity in the closing of the local stores on Armistice Day.

It is regrettable and deplorable that one chain store should continue to unset the plans and purposes of all the other stores.

The local stores rely upon the Chamber of Commerce to obtain information and find the concensus of opinion as to closing all day or keeping open half a day on state or national holidays. Consequently, we made a tour of the center on Monday morning the 9th. The reply in most cases was "I will close all day if the other fellow will." Of the chain stores the reply was (Economy) "Sure, we will close if the A. & P. will." (First National) "We will close if the A. & P. will." (A. & P.) "We won't know until the Superintendent comes out this noon." We made a second tour and the local stores all agreed to close all day Wednesday. Tuesday morning we again called on the A. & P. and were informed that they would close all day. We therefore informed the other two chain stores of the decision. Tuesday afternoon we were told that the A. & P. would not close but would be open until 1 o'clock Armistice Day. We asked the manager of the local A. & P. store the reason for the change of the decision at that late hour, and he stated that the Superintendent had called him up and told him that all the chain stores in Metropolitan Boston were to be open half a day, and that therefore the Winchester stores must do the same. That statement was not in accordance with the facts and the Superintendent must have known or should have known differently, as we are informed from a reliable source that the chain stores in the following surrounding or nearby towns were closed all day: Arlington, Woburn, Malden, Lexington, Concord and others.

Apparently they did not make their decision to open until they found out that the local stores were to close, and too late for the local stores to notify their customers to the contrary.

We hope these chain stores will change their tactics and co-operate with the town in a little friendly spirit.

GRACE AND CHARM

By Frances Mandel

THE HAIR

Every girl longs for the loveliness which awakens romance. In this advanced era, no girl need be plain. Every girl can be radiantly charming.

Your hair. What is so captivating as alluringly beautiful hair?

The essentials for beautiful hair are general health, cleanliness and care of the scalp. Now we all are troubled, more or less, with some slight ailment, such as dryness, oiliness or lack of luster, all of which can be easily taken care of by some simple remedy if taken in time, before some serious trouble develops which may result in premature baldness.

At the first sign of such conditions, go to some beauty specialist who can tell you what your trouble may be and who can help it. Have treatments before it is too late;—for you do not want to lose woman's crowning glory,—the hair. I will have more to say about the hair in my next editorial.

Frances Mandel will answer questions on Grace and Charm if you will enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope to Frances Mandel, 1030 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass.

NEW CO-OPERATIVE BANK OPENED

Many Bank Men Among Visitors Last Saturday

The new Co-operative Bank building was opened last Saturday, Nov. 14, and it is estimated that between 1200 and 1500 people availed themselves of the opportunity afforded to inspect this notable addition to Winchester's fine business homes. Officers and members of the board of directors with the bank staff acted as guides, conducting visitors through the building and explaining the many superior features incorporated in the plant which are not at first glance apparent.

The banking rooms were attractively decorated with evergreens and there were many flowers sent with congratulatory messages from friends and business associates of the bank; including the Winchester Trust Company, Winchester Savings Bank, Anna M. Edlefson, Arlington Co-operative Bank, Warner M. Allen, John M. Tobin, Winchester Conservatories, Kelley & Hawes Company and Woburn Co-operative Bank. The Winchester National Bank's gift was a fine humidor of cigars.

Among the visitors were many prominent figures in Greater Boston banking circles, headed by Oreb M. Tucker, deputy commissioner in the Co-operative Bank Division of the State Bank Commission of Massachusetts. Others were Edwin R. Rooney, vice president of the First National Bank of Boston; James Nowell, vice president of Lee, Higginson Company; Robert E. Fay, vice president of the Exchange Trust Company; George S. F. Bartlett, assistant treasurer and manager of the Life Insurance Division of the Boston Five Cent Savings Bank; Lloyd Makepeace, president of the Malden Co-operative Bank; J. A. Fulton, president of the Melrose Co-operative Bank, F. W. Greyden, president, Remond E. Walsh, treasurer, Frank Maguire, attorney, Judge John G. Maguire, director, William Greyden, director and J. F. Brown, director, all of the Woburn Co-operative Bank; Frank Howell, treasurer of the Stoneham Co-operative Bank; W. R. Landers, treasurer of the Mattapan Co-operative Bank; Herman W. French, treasurer of the Randolph Co-operative Bank; Charles W. Gould, treasurer of the Provident Co-operative Bank of Chelsea; E. W. Barney, treasurer of the Lincoln Co-operative Bank of Lynn; George McCarthy, treasurer of the Merrimac Co-operative Bank of Lawrence; Clarence G. McDavitt, cashier, and Wallace F. Flanders, vice president of the Winchester National Bank; Ralph E. Joslin, president, G. Dwight Cabot, treasurer, and Helen Munroe, assistant treasurer, of the Winchester Trust Company; and Harry C. Sanborn, president. William E. Priest, treasurer, and Ralph W. Hatch, assistant treasurer of the Winchester Savings Bank.

It is also of interest that Hon. Lewis Parkhurst, John Lynch, E. H. Stone, George A. Fernald and John Challis, signers of the original petition for the Winchester Co-operative Bank charter were present.

One's first impression upon entering the new building last Saturday was that of spaciousness and a soft agreeable light. Every detail of design has contributed to this effect and the building materials were carefully chosen to the same end. Soft tones of buff and gray predominate with black effectively employed for contrast and added character.

Most attractive are the pilasters and main cornice of cast aluminum and the aluminum ceiling which serves a double purpose, having high acoustical properties and serving as an effective reflecting surface for the lighting system. Mention should be made of the unusual luminaires which were designed especially for the bank by the architect, Mr. Wait.

The counters have risers of French limestone with tops of Belgian black, and Italian grand antique marbles, aluminum and plate glass. The walls are of California stucco with English bathstone finish and a dado of the same materials employed in the construction of the counters. The floor in the main banking room is of silent, non-slippery zenitherm, the others being of type A Johns-Manville or Stedman Rubber tiles. The building is fireproof throughout, and the roof is insulated with sheet cork. Furniture is of enameled steel and aluminum.

Interest last Saturday seemed to center in the clubby directors' room with its long table and mantle of alberene stone, in the wholly feminine ladies' room with modern appointments and colorful upholstered cane furnishings and in the huge vault with its massive aluminum finished steel door.

Provision has been made for possible imprisonment in the vault which is equipped with a telephone and a device for providing fresh air and liquid food. The building is heated by an automatically controlled vapor system of the concealed radiator type, and the air in use in the building is conditioned by means of humidifiers. The actinic glass used in the front of the building to diffuse the sun's rays was especially manufactured for the bank, and other refinements of construction were made possible by new materials now available to the building trade.

Architect Edward R. Wait of this town, who has been warmly congratulated upon the artistic appearance and practicability of the building, particularly stressed this use of modern material in discussing the new bank. Mr. Wait, who was also architect for the Winchester Trust Company building and the Fire and Police Station, stated that he was especially desirous to make use of these modern materials and appliances not alone for their advantage to his clients but because he believes the new Co-operative Bank will set a standard for future fine buildings in Winchester.

CALUMET NOTES

Calumet didn't fare so well in its Mystic Valley League match with the Middlesex Club of Arlington at Calumet Monday evening.

The visitors split even in bowling, took three and lost one in billiards and pool, and garnered all three points for cards, giving them a total of 10 points out of 15 possible points.

Calumet's team 1 took the Middlesex team 1 into camp by 73 pins. "Doc" Priest was high roller with 365 on a corking single of 135. "Goldy" Goldsmith and "Newt" Purington each rolled 340 and "Newt's" 127 was second high single. Following is the summary:

Calumet (1) vs Middlesex (1)

| CALUMET (1) | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Goldsmith | 113 | 122 | 105 | 340 |
| E. Priest | 135 | 117 | 113 | 365 |
| N. Purington | 98 | 115 | 127 | 340 |
| R. Purrington | 100 | 103 | 117 | 320 |
| H. McGrath | 93 | 118 | 107 | 318 |
| | 539 | 575 | 569 | 1683 |
| MIDDLESEX (1) | | | | |
| F. Donnelly | 87 | 107 | 94 | 288 |
| T. Twitchell | 126 | 113 | 121 | 360 |
| P. Donnelly | 85 | 103 | 88 | 276 |
| P. L. Keating | 120 | 112 | 119 | 351 |
| H. Cook | 108 | 111 | 116 | 335 |
| | 526 | 546 | 538 | 1610 |

Calumet (2) vs Middlesex (2)

| MIDDLESEX (2) | | | | |

| Srapgue | 98 | 105 | 107 | 310 |
| Goodwin | 110 | 98 | 104 | 312 |
| | 507 | 514 | 545 | 1566 |
| CALUMET (2) | | | | |
| Pilkington | 89 | 104 | 113 | 306 |
| Hobb | 85 | 105 | 89 | 279 |
| Browning | 104 | 82 | 97 | 283 |
| Priest | 92 | 99 | 115 | 306 |
| Turcotte | 102 | 87 | 89 | 285 |
| | 470 | 477 | 503 | 1459 |

A goodly number of bowlers participated in the turkey roll last Saturday evening, and there will be a second session tomorrow night at the club. Those who rolled last Saturday can roll again tomorrow if they want to try to improve their scores, and of course those who didn't get into last Saturday's bowling ought not to fail to put in an appearance on the club alleys tomorrow. Two turkeys will be awarded, one to the bowler with the highest three consecutive strings, flat, and one to the highest three consecutive strings with handicap. Plenty of fun and a good chance to pick up a "bird" cheap.

Afternoon bridge for ladies next Tuesday. It really should be mentioned again that some wonderful prizes are being awarded at these parties which have been and still are very popular. Why not come down on Tuesday.

Tuesday afternoon's bowling for ladies resulted in the award for high single going to Mrs. Fitzgerald who had 112. The prize for high single with handicap went to Mrs. Browning who had 112. Mrs. Little had high two strings with 182 and Mrs. Cox had high two strings with handicap, rolling an even 200.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

At the last regular business meeting, plans were made for a charity whist to be held on Dec. 10, proceeds from which affair will be used by the Charitable Committee in their endeavors to co-operate with the other branches with the annual Christmas tree for the unfortunate little folks at the Home for Catholic Destitute Children. This Christmas tree party sponsored by the M. C. W. G. has become an annual affair at the Institution and is looked forward to by all the inmates there.

Next Sunday will be the concert Sunday, so-called, which the M. C. W. G. takes charge of at the Holy Ghost Hospital and upon which occasion a continuous, and most enjoyable and entertaining program is rendered for the patients. There is also a donation feature included in the program when all the branches make donations of canned fruit, preserves, vegetables etc., all of which are much appreciated by the patients and the Sisters in charge of the work at the hospital.

MISS AVERY'S SECOND LECTURE

Miss Avery began her second Current Events' lecture by speaking of the tribute recently paid to Mr. Dwight Morrow by the Mexican Ambassador. It was a most graceful and unusual compliment and Miss Avery felt that it was most fitting to speak of it on Armistice Day. For Armistice Day should stand for friendliness between the different nations and the Mexican Ambassador's remarks were a tribute to the friendliness of Mr. Morrow.

Speaking of the English elections Miss Avery said that they were an acknowledgment by England that she cannot restore her past. To balance her budget England has got to get rid of unemployment and get world trade. She knows now that her spending days are over and she realizes that she can raise her own food and has already started an agricultural crusade.

England has discovered also the potentialities of her coal mines and hopes to develop them much more extensively in the future with a view to the electrical possibilities in coal.

Until recently England was a high tariff nation but at present her tariff policy is much clouded. Her Indian conference is still going on but is not running very smoothly. Her problems are problems says Sir Ramsay McDonald that cannot be handled by England alone.

Speaking of Manchuria, Miss Avery said that the Manchurian trouble started with a squabble between Korea and China over water rights, a squabble that led to riots in which some Chinese were killed. The Manchurian railway was the centre of the disturbance and it was necessary to have it guarded by the Japanese to prevent the Chinese from blowing it up. Finally the Japanese applied to the League of Nations to settle the difficulty.

To understand intelligently the situation it is necessary to know something about the different mentalities of the nations involved. The Chinese are individualists to the nth degree. China is big, she has initiative, she has always been creative. The Chinese have a great sense of humor. They are born orators. The Japanese are the result of four racial strains; 64,000,000 live in one tenth the area of the United States. They are faced with a grim need of food and raw materials. Contrary to the Chinese they have little imagination and are not emotional, but they are very adaptive.

Manchuria governed China for 263 years. She has great agricultural and mineral resources. The Japanese and the Koreans have always been enemies. Japan has always had discipline, China never.

Japan worships the soldier. China only bears with him. The whole matter is a question most difficult of adjustment between peoples of such different psychological make up and it will probably be some time before it is satisfactorily settled.

Miss Avery's next lecture on Nov. 25 will be on "Italy."

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

A special midnight show on Friday evening, Nov. 20, will be given at the big Granada Theatre in Malden, the entire receipts of which will be turned over to the unemployment fund. The program for this big show, which is sponsored by the National Committee on Unemployment Relief, will consist of five acts of vaudeville and pictures. Tickets for this midnight show may be obtained at any of the Malden Theatre box-offices.

"The Spirit of Notre Dame," the season's greatest screen hit, with Lew Ayers as the star, will head the program that opens at the Granada on Saturday. "The Spirit of Notre Dame" is not only a picture of America's greatest college sport, and the most accurate and realistic gridiron story, but also a fine picture of youth and the will to do, maintaining a tempo that literally sweeps the spectator into the maelstrom of excitement which grips its characters. In addition to Lew Ayers, "The Spirit of Notre Dame," brings to the screen the famous "Four Horsemen," Frank Carideo and other national football heroes. J. Farrell MacDonald plays the part of the late Knute Rockne, famed coach of the powerful Notre Dame teams. Quite aside from its stirring football episodes "The Spirit of Notre Dame," has a story that grips the imagination and stirs the pulses. "My Sin," with Tallulah Bankhead as the star, will be the second feature on the program for Saturday. "My Sin" is a gripping emotional drama with the talented Miss Bankhead supported by a cast that includes Frederic March, Harry Davenport and Scott Kolk.

"Bad Girl" starring James Dunn and Sally Eilers, heads the anniversary program that ends its run at the Granada on Friday. "Bad Girl" is a film version of Vina Delmar's sensational novel. It has been one of the outstanding film hits of the year and a picture that has been attracting big crowds to the Granada all this week. Ann Harding in "Devotion" is the second feature on the current bill.

Moorish Castles

Where the Moors built castles and palaces you will detect signs that they were originally tent dwellers. The Moorish patio is a cozy representation of an oasis; the gurgling fountain in the Spanish courtyard to this very day still gratifies the desert dream of cool springs; the garden, represented by the contents of the flower pots, is a portable garden. The tent dweller packs up his home and all his luxuries so that he can load them on asses; that is why his home is made of textiles and his luxuries are of filigree. His tent is his castle; it is garnished with every pomp and splendor, but it is a pomp which a man can carry on his back; it is woven and embroidered and stitched with goat's or lamb's wool, and Moorish architecture has retained the delicate beauty and surface appeal of a woven fabric.—Manchester (England) Guardian.

ST. PAUL ISLAND: NEWS BUREAU OF THE BERING SEA

Round-the-world flyers, attempted non-stop Pacific flights, and the Lindbergh vacation tour have shifted the eyes of the aviation world toward the North Pacific Ocean and the Bering Sea. Many formerly obscure outposts of civilization, mentioned pricipally in government reports and pilot charts, have aspired to front page headlines.

One of these is St. Paul Island, in the Bering Sea, which has become a news relay point concerning weather conditions, progress of flights, and communications with possible rescue steamers. Mrs. Lindbergh "talked" with St. Paul Island, and the first news of the whereabouts of Don Moyle and Cecil Allen, transpacific flyers forced down recently on the Island of Tilgino, Siberia, was relayed from the Russian steamship "Buriat," via St. Paul.

St. Paul Island by another name would be somewhat more familiar, for it is one of the Pribilof group, more commonly known as the "Seal Islands" of the Bering Sea, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. As the largest of five rocky, barren islands lying 200 miles north of the Aleutian chain, St. Paul also is important as the center of the chief seal-breeding rookeries of the world.

Recovery of the Pribilof Islands' seal fishery is one of the most dramatic chapters in the whole story of conservation. When Pribilof, the Russian navigator, whose name the islands bear, landed on St. Paul Island in 1786 he found no human life, but millions of seals. He was followed by Russians and later by natives who slaughtered the big animals wholesale for their skins.

When the islands were taken over by the United States in 1868 the herds were estimated at 4,000,000 seals. But under the early years of American rule the helpless beasts diminished at an even more rapid pace than under the Russians, until only some 150,000 remained in 1911. Although the American Government placed restrictions on killing them on the Pribilof Islands, the loss was largely due to the killing of seal cows while they swam about in the water in the summer, perhaps seeking squid and fish at the nearest food source, a hundred miles south, or during the winter while in the open Pacific Ocean.

The death of a cow in the winter means the loss of a seal pup to be born the following summer, while a similar killing in the summer would perhaps be equally disastrous, for the new-born pup left at the rookery would die of starvation.

Only Surplus Males Killed

Laws and treaties now protect seals while at sea. Scientific propagation is showing its favorable effect upon the herds annually. Only surplus males are killed for their pelts, and the best furs are taken from seals under five years old. Since every male seal presides over a "harem" numbering from 40 to 70 females, it is essential to reduce the number of males in order to check fighting in the herd.

The fur seal herd in the various islands of the Pribilof group now numbers more than 1,000,000 individuals, most of which are concentrated on St. Paul and St. George Islands. In 1930 some 50,000 sealskins were shipped from the islands.

St. Paul Island itself pushes a number of volcanic peaks through the rolling plateau which covers most of its 30 square miles of area. Its western coast is high and rocky, and, like the other islands of the Seal group, nowhere does it possess a good harbor. Boats must anchor with a view of getting underway quickly if a storm should blow up. As all but vessels of the United States Government are forbidden to land on these islands the lack of a protected anchorage is not keenly felt.

The only settlement, known as "the village," comprises a number of small wooden houses, painted white with dark roofs, a church, and several large buildings for the government agent, all picturesquely grouped around a small cove, which has a wharf for vessels of shallow draft. The permanent population of the place is about 250 inhabitants, augmented in the summer by men from the Coast Guard vessels assigned to patrol the seal breeding grounds. The Navy Department maintains a radio station on St. Paul which is open to commercial traffic, and handles most of the through radio business of the section.

The residents of St. Paul welcomed the radio station a few years ago as a link with the outside world. Previous to that time the Pribilofs were among the most isolated bits of American territory. In the winter they were covered with ice and snow, and whipped by frigid Arctic gales, while during the summer months fogs envelop the whole area for days at a time.

The government also successfully maintains and propagates blue and white foxes on the Pribilofs. Unlike the fox farms on the Aleutian Islands, where the little animals are inclosed in chickenwire cages, the Pribilof packs are allowed to run wild. Most of the pelts of both the seals and foxes are auctioned off in the St. Louis fur market.

Use for Divining Rod

New hope for the rescue of avalanche victims and for the early recovery of bodies of the killed which often are not found until the winter's snows have melted has been found in the divining rod. A mountaineer of Traunstein, upper Austria, deeply moved by some recent avalanche tragedies, has been making a series of experiments. Objects likely to be carried by every skier, such as a watch, ring, coins, ski-knife and ski-footplates, were buried very deep in the snow, and a "dowser" set out with the divining rod to search for them. In each case the rod revealed the location of the metallic objects. It is believed that the new discovery will save scores of lives in the Austrian Alps every year.

TELEPHONE NUMBER 0029

The Star and local police headquarters have received several telephone queries as to whether tickets being sold by the Metropolitan Police in Winchester are for the Winchester Policeman's Ball. They are not, but for the party which the Metropolitan Police are running for the benefit of their organization. The local police have not as yet decided whether they will run a ball this year.

The committee on unemployment in Winchester is apparently having its troubles in getting in the cards which they sent throughout the town in an effort to learn just where asistance is necessary. The police are finding it difficult to collect the cards, and cards are coming in with facetious signatures and answers to the questions asked. Any one must indeed have a perverted sense of humor who makes light of an effort to learn where relief from suffering brought about by unemployment is needed. The local committee is making an honest effort to get authentic information on the unemployment situation here and those who are hindering their efforts will very likely be those who will criticise any inefficient action on the part of the community group.

ROTARY CLUB

The club met as usual on Nov. 19 with four absentees recorded.

As we shall not meet at home quarters Thanksgiving week, Fred most considerately served the holiday dinner at this session. We cannot dismiss the matter without saying that this dinner was provided in Fred's very best style—a standard of excellence.

After doing justice to Fred's efforts we were entertained by one of Irving Symmes famous travelogues. Irving has but recently returned from the 59th annual convention of the Fire Chiefs of the United States and Canada.

The convention met at Havana this year with between three and four hundred in attendance including Irvings motion picture camera. We understand from the speaker's remarks that due attention was paid to life's pleasures. And we are sure that Irving furnished a splendid entertainment for us and the pictures taken during the voyage and while in port enabled us to share in Irvings outing with much pleasure to ourselves. Irving closed his show with a motion picture of a battle to the death between a cobra and a mongoose. A thrill indeed.

This is the final announcement of the joint meeting next week at which we shall be guests of the Rotary Club of Lexington. There will be no meeting at our home quarters next week. Instead we shall go to Lexington on Monday, Nov. 23 and assemble at 12:15 p. m. at the Lexington Masonic Hall. All who can go should be at the Calumet Clubhouse at 11:45 a. m. sharp. Transportation will be provided for all. Nearly 25 members have already signified their intention of being present. We hope that more will do so, for the Lexington Club has worked hard to make this affair a success and has secured as guest speaker Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers. A real treat is in store for all who join next Monday's party. Remember 11:45 a. m. at the Calumet Club.

Notices of semi-annual dues have now been mailed to all members and many have already responded. We have heavy bills to pay at this time and members will confer a favor by giving this matter their early attention. Percentage of attendance Nov. 12—96.97 per cent.

COUNTRY CLUB NAMES BOWLER MANAGER

The directors of the Winchester Country Club have just signed their capable professional, Harry Bowler, to a contract whereby he becomes manager of the club with full supervision of both the course and club house as well as the golf shop. He assumes his new duties March 15 and will give up his work as golf instructor, the latter duties being taken over by his assistant for the past three years, William Winton. Mr. Bowler and his family will make their home in the club house after an extended vacation in St. Petersburg, Fla.

At no time since he has been with the Winchester Club, a stretch of 18 years, has Harry Bowler restricted his club services to the normal activities of a professional. He always had executive ability and for that reason he, years ago began taking the burden off the shoulders of different committees, either through advice based on experience or personal service in arranging and running tournaments.

The fact that he always was a hundred per cent worker in the interests of the club as a whole, rather than of his own specific interests as professional made head of the golf shop; the fact that he has proved time and time again that he knew how to do things, as well as what to do; the fact that in the years he has spent as a professional he has studied grasses and golf course architecture and has acquired a wide knowledge of the details of running a country club are the factors taken in account by the directors of the Winchester Country Club when they had their special meeting last Thursday night to vote on the matter of making Bowler manager of the entire property. It is significant that all 11 members were present and that when John Abbott, the club president put the motion the vote was unanimous.

The Winchester Club is getting a man who has acquired this sort of education through long service and close observation, as well as a lot of study on the side. The club is retaining as chief golf instructor, in Bill Winton, a man who in three years has gained their confidence. Winton has lived up to Bowler standards of being on the job. He might have made a name for himself as a competitive golfer had he gone in more for the tournament end, for he has an excellent game himself.

He is next door to a Carnoustie man, for the place from which he came to America 10 years ago, Monisieth County Angus, Scotland, is close by the town that is famed for the world renowned professional leaders it has turned out over the years. It was at the Barry Club, one of the courses used for the qualifying round of the British open this year, that Winton learned the art of club-making and got his early experiences as a player and instructor.

HIGH SCHOOL PLAYS FINAL FOOTBALL GAMES

Winchester High School will complete its 1931 football schedule on Thanksgiving Day, playing Woburn High on Manchester Field at 10 o'clock and previously meeting Saugus High at Saugus tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Both will be hard games for the locals and it is too bad that Winchester has to play a team like Saugus with the Woburn game only five days away. Saugus has one of its best teams this year, an outfit reported to be big, fast and capable. Winchester is not strong in the matter of replacements and it is quite likely that if Coach Linderman wishes to make a good showing in the big Woburn battle, he will have to gamble at Saugus. He will try to win, but he will try to save his regulars as much as possible for Woburn.

The Orange and Black has always been a tough team for Winchester to beat, and many a good local eleven has lost to an inferior club from the tanning city. On paper Woburn is stronger this year than Winchester, its record against teams played by both schools being the better one.

Coach Linderman's charges however are conceding the visitors nothing, and will wage a stubborn battle against Woburn. No club, with the exception of Wakefield, has succeeded in rushing the ball across the Red and Black goal line and Woburn will find a stubborn defensive rush line between it and victory on Turkey Day.

The locals will enter the battle weakened by the loss of "Tommy" Hannon, their best punter and passer, who is under the faculty scholastic ban. "Hokie" Procopio, last year's husky guard, has gotten rid of his scholastic deficiencies and is eligible to play, but is of course very short of work. Coach Linderman has been working little "Deck" Mobbs, gritty end, in the backfield in an effort to dig up a suitable replacement for the absent Hannon whose punting is sure to be missed.

SEEKS MEMBERS FOR LADIES' BASEBALL CLUB

During the off season the Boston Ladies' Baseball Club, organized during the season just past largely through the efforts of Mrs. K. B. Toye of Bonad road for the purpose of promoting greater interest on the part of ladies in baseball is to institute a campaign for increased membership.

Already 2000 ladies have enrolled in the club which has the endorsement of both the Red Sox and Braves' management as well as that of Mayor Curley and other prominent individuals in the athletic world.

Mrs. Toye was elected president of the club at an organization meeting at the Hotel Bradford recently and any woman interested in becoming a member should call her at Winchester 1895. The club hopes to be able to get a reduction in the admission price for women on other days than the regular Ladies' Days now sponsored by the Boston baseball clubs.

Oxen Lead Parade

The Abruzzi in Italy was a district almost unknown to tourists until recently. It is full of color and interest. Here you may see Italy simple and colorful as seldom elsewhere. At Loreto Aprutino on Whit Sunday two oxen lead a fine procession through the streets, carrying a child dressed in white laden with golden beads. There is another oxen procession at Scanno on Corpus Christi day, while at Villalago and Cucullo on the day of St. Dominic, a statue of the saint is carried in procession with snakes and vipers, collected by the famous snake charmers, twined around it. Scanno is well known for its costumes, and the dress of the natives at Pescocostanzo is extremely rich with embroidery and lace. Other fanciful costumes may be seen to advantage at Pettorano, Campodiglove and Introdacqua.

Roman History

Each of the triumvirs or rulers, Antony, Octavius and Lepidus, in the period after the death of Caesar, took steps to get rid of his political enemies—those considered to have been in the conspiracy against Caesar. They decreed a formal proscription. "Sitting with a list of chief citizens before them, each picked out the names of the victims he personally required, and each purchased the right to proscribe a kinsman of his colleagues by surrendering one of his own. The fatal memorial was headed with the names of a brother of Lepidus, an uncle of Antony and a cousin of Octavius." The great orator Cicero was a victim demanded and obtained by Antony. Such a proscription or massacre was customary during that period of civil war in Rome. Shakespeare in his play, "Julius Caesar," keeps close to the facts of history.

HANKOW: PRIZE PACKAGE OF THE CHINESE REVOLUTION

Hankow, present focal point of the Chinese revolution, is one of the world's greatest inland ports, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Lying about 600 miles up the Yangtze, Hankow is as important geographically to either of the warring factions as Chicago would be if a civil war were raging in the United States. Hankow has only one railroad but the rivers and streams of China form commercial arteries from which produce from nine provinces flows into the Hankow markets, while the port is equally important as a distributing point for foreign commerce destined to the Chinese interior.

Decorated Junks Resemble Gaudy Circus Wagons

Hankow occupies the north bank of the Yangtze where the Han pours its muddy torrent. On the opposite side of the Han lies Hanyang, and across the mile-wide Yangtze, Wuchang, the latter a venerable town which was flourishing when Hankow was a fishing hamlet. Both Hanyang and Wuchang now are a part of "Greater Hankow" with more than a million and a half inhabitants.

The Hankow river front is an amazing conglomeration of shipping. There are ungainly junks, but they move about the water in the hands of expert rivermen as easily as modern vessels in our busy eastern harbors. Some of them, displaying rotten hulks with gaping holes above the water line, cause the traveler to wonder how they stay afloat, while now and then a huge high-pooped craft adorned with brightly painted carvings and plates that make it look like a floating circus wagon, edges its way shoreward.

25,000 Native Boats Trade at Hankow

Small sampans dart here and there by the muscle-power of two perspiring coolies whose families, under matting-covered awnings fill the air along the shore with the singsong chatter of the Orient. It is estimated that 25,000 native boats ply in and out of Hankow and its sister cities. Meanwhile modern steamboats from lower Yangtze points come and go on schedule.

The walled city in the background also seethes with commercial activity to the tune of noises that strain the visitor's eardrums. Some of the narrow lanes are paved with flagstone while others are mere ruts. Nevertheless, they are the playgrounds of thousands of children and the busy streets of a city which has been called the "Hub of the Universe."

The children yell at play; the venders cry out their wares; coolies, bearing heavy burdens warn passersby to dodge their bulky loads; beggars groan and moan; and rickshaw boys, without regard to pedestrians, shout as they hurry their fares through a jumbled mass of humanity. The yells of carriers of wealthy Chinese, as they bear their dignified masters, can be heard above the din, and the traveler wonders if these men are not employed for the strength of their vocal cords.

Colorful Signs Adorn Shop Fronts

But this is not all. Along the sidelines, the merchants bicker in loud voices with prospective purchasers in front of their shops. The frenzied spirit of bargaining somewhat resembles miniature civil wars.

To the foreigner, the pedestrians in their loose-fitting clothing resemble rajama-clad citizens on parade, but the wearers are by no means ready to retire. Business in Hankow is almost a religion, and nearly every man seen on the street has to do with the enormous amount of commerce that flows through and past the port.

If a traveler knows the advertising code in Hankow, he can locate any type of business by reading the shapes and colors of the shop signs which project over the narrow thoroughfares. For instance gold platers use salmon-colored boards with green characters. Druggists' boards are gilded. Black gold, red and green are the predominating colors. On each sign is a motto and when a store changes hands, the sign is valued somewhat the same as, American "goodwill."

FINLAND TAKES A FINNISH NAME

Suomi, the new name of Finland, is not new to the Finns. It is pure Finnish. The name Finland is Swedish, acquired during the six centuries that the country was a possession of Sweden. The change in name is in line with the new Finnish nationalism.

Finland, which is nearly as large as the State of California, is pockmarked with thousands of lakes but is almost without mountains, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Eighth of Area Under Water

About one-eighth of the area within its borders is under water. There are many good roads, particularly in the southern portion of the country, and the rails of Finnish steel highways, if stretched across the United States, would join the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, with some mileage left over. However, the lakes, connected by canals, are the chief Finnish commercial arteries.

Although the southern coast of Finland is nearer the North Pole than the bleak southernmost tip of Greenland and about one-third of the country is north of the Arctic Circle, its population exceeds three and a half million. There also are numerous industries usually found in more temperate zones and even Petsamo, its northern port, which is nearly on the same latitude as Point Barrow, Alaska, is ice free. An arm of the Gulf Stream which skirts the shore of Norway tempers the Arctic blasts about Petsamo while the warm waters of the Gulf of Bothnia and prevailing southwest winds make southern Finland habitable for people accustomed to more southern climes.

Wealth in Timber

The majority of Finland's population outside the congested southern cities inhabit villages that dot the lake shores and river banks where they are visited regularly by fleets of small steamers. Almost three-fourths of the country is covered with timber which is the chief source of Finnish wealth, but here and there, even in the remote districts, are clearings where farming and dairying are carried on.

Yearly the dairy industry produces sufficient butter for Finland's needs and as high as 8000 tons have been exported. In markets of the United States may be found Finnish cheese, calf skins, cattle hides, furs, tallow and paper. Sixty-five million pounds of Finnish newsprint paper were imported in 1929. In Finland American visitors see quantities of American bacon, lard, oatmeal, dried fruit, tobacco, copper and brass manufactures and several hundred other familiar articles of domestic manufacture.

Swedish for Six Centuries

Finland became a republic in 1919. Previously the Finns had been frequently "under the thumb" of other races. They were harassed by other tribes in the Volga Basin and crossed the Gulf of Esthonia in the first century of the Christian era. In the 12th century the Swedes invaded the country. Later the Finns sent members to the Swedish Parliament.

Meanwhile the Russian Tsars fancied Finland and the country became a battlefield between the Tsars' troops and those of Sweden. Hardly a generation passed that there was not a war. The Russians finally acquired Finland by treaty in 1809. The Finns were granted almost complete autonomy but Russia reserved the right to dictate foreign policy and forbid the Finns to bear arms. At the close of the Russian revolution the unarmed Finns sought independence. German guns and ammunition were acquired and the promoters of independence defeated the Russians and Finnish-Russian sympathizers on the battlefield.

A Tonic for the Boiler

A BOILER with rusty sections does not do an efficient job of heating your home. That rust and scale should be flushed out now, or you will lose money by reason of the poor performance of the boiler this winter. We have a compound that does the job quickly—and we have one that seals leaks, too, in no time. Just telephone. We'll send the compounds and a man to use them. It will save you money by putting new pep into the boiler.

BOILER OR EXPLOSION INSURANCE

If your heating or hot water boiler should crack, or explode, have you insurance protection? A boiler, or explosion policy will take care of the loss from this hazard.

Have you an oil burner? There is an insurable hazard also involved with this type of heating device.

If in doubt about any kind of insurance, we would be glad to put you right.

THE GEOGRAPHY OF WILLS AND INHERITANCE

What becomes of a man's property when he dies?

The matter is very much a matter of geography, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquaters of the National Geographic Society, pointing out varying customs in different parts of the world in regard to wills and inheritance.

Wills have been written in America since the day of the first colonists says the bulleten, and, therefore, we are likely to assume thoughtlessly that will-making extends back into history and over the peoples pretty much as they are to-day; but among any particular people the practice of will-making has developed only when a rather complex stage of civilization has been reached.

Wills Once Prohibited in England

In England wills bequeathing land were entirely prohibited by law 400 years ago although they had existed before, and were later allowed. In France and in all the Mohammedan countries only a part of one's property can be willed. A Burmese cannot make a will; and in India will-making has come to be recognized only as a result of British influence and is not yet widely practiced.

Among our primitive ancestors there was no such thing as a will or even inheritance by a limited number of heirs, because there was nothing to inherit or to will. All property was community property. When a man died he simply ceased to use the common property pool, and without any formalities the surviving members of the group continued to make use of it.

State Had to Take a Hand

When private ownership of things and land came to be recognized, the governing unit—village, tribe or state found that it had to take some action when a man died, leaving property. If nothing were done, anyone who happened to be near or strong might seize the ownerless property, even though he were a total stranger to or even an enemy of its former owner. Tribal concepts of fair play came into operation, and it was recognized that the dead man's family should have first claim to his former belongings From this developed the customs and laws of inheritance which have taken vared and some cases, very complex forms in different parts of the world.

The privilege of making wills was granted by the state a long time after inheritance customs arose. It might be considered the final step in confirming the institution of private property. Not only was an individuil to have undisputed ownership and control of land and goods while he was alive, but he was to be permitted to decide who should enjoy them after his death; and to direct, if he wished, in great detail just how they should be utilized, in some cases for centurries to come.

Willing Power Greatest in England

If the privilege of making a will marks the power of the individual, then England is the world's stronghold of individualism; for in now country is the power to will so untrammeled and so nearly complete. By means of a properly drawn and executed will, an Englishman can disinherit wife and children, leaving all his property to a person wholly ounside his family.

This English law was adopted by the American Colonies and the United States; but in many of the States the old rules have been altered by legislation which provides that on the death of a marrid man certain shares shall go to the widow and to the children, and that only the balance can be willed away unrestrictedly. In France and the other Latin countries, where the legal systems are built on Roman law, the rights of widow and children have been protected for many centuries against the willing power of the husband and father.

Although varying limitations exist, the power to will all or some property is now recognized throughout Christendom and the Mohammedan countries, in China, Japan and certain other lands. This power granted to an owner to project his wisnes into the future, coupled with the unfortunate fact that he can know little of how society and its institutions will develop, has brought strange results in the case of many wills. One sympathetic maker of a will, living in the seventeenth century, and contemplating the unpleasant fate of captives taken in the Near East, left a trust fund, which among other things is supposed to be devoted to-day to the redemption of Turkish prisoners.

Will Makers Poor Prophets

A philanthropist in St. Louis in pioneer days left large real estate holdings in what is now the heart of that city, the income to be devoted to helping stranded travelers on the way to become "bona fide settlers in the West." In recent years the trustees have been unable to find beneficiaries meeting the will's description, and after much difficulty have prevailed on the courts to permit them to turn the income over to the local Travelers' Aid Society.

A classic case of poor prophesy is found in the will, dated 1801, of the founder of "Sailor's Sung Harbor" in New York City. He left a farm on Manhattan Island—now represented by acres of business buildings—as an endowment for a home for superannuated seamen from "sailing vessels." Steam came into use and soon there were practically no old men from sailing vessels to seek entrance to the home. Courts finally permitted the trustees managing the fund to take in seamen from steam vessels; but even so not enough sailors can be found on which to spend the golden stream that comes pouring in from the "Snug Harbor's" valuable properties

Some wills have imposed arbitrary and even frivolous conditions to bequests, but in many cases the courts have upheld them. One father left a legacy to his son but provided that the gift should be void if the son ever wore a mustache. Another father sought to keep his daughter's family small by leaving a large amount of money in trust and providing that $10,000 and increasing sums there after should be subtracted from the fund and given to charity at the birth of each child. Wills have set up funds for the benefit of parrots, horses goldfish and dogs. Recently, in California, a cat was left for life a handsome residence and a $15,000 fund for maintenance.

Trust funds exist in England to provide snuff and tobacco for certain hospitals; to distribute loaves of bread on certain anniversaries; and even to scatter coins from graves.

Slaves and Spoons, Automobiles and Airplanes

Wills throw light on changing customs and institutions. Mary Washington, mother of George Washington, quite matter-of-factly willed to her grandson "my negro man, Frederick, to him and his assigns forever; also eight silver tablespoons." Only since about 1960 automobiles have been left in wills; and in recent years bequests of airplanes have appeared.

The oldest known will, written on papyrus, was prepared about B. C. 2550 in Egypt. By its terms a priest left his property to a fellow priest. Both Greece and Rome had manuscript wills. In the seventh century wills in parts of Europe were written on bark. During Anglo-Saxon times in England wills were written in triplicate, the copies being consigned to three seperate custodians.

At one time oral wills with no special formalities were as valid as written ones in England, but it was found that fraud could creep in so easily that oral wills were permitted to be made only during the last sickness, and only as regards personal property. Soldiers and mariners, however, are given greater privileges as to oral wills. In general, in most countriec, wills, especially those disposing of real estate, must now be written, signed by the willmaker, and subscribed by two or more witnesses in the presence of the will-maker. The instruments are usually written or typed on ordinary paper; but wills written on almost any material will be valid. In one case a will was written on a door, which was removed from its hinges, taken to court, and duly probated.

In the majority of the States of the United States only ordinary wills are provided for—those signed by the willmakers and openly presented to the necessry witnesses for their signature. In nineteen States, however "holographic" wills are also recognize These are entirely in the handwriting of the will-maker and are signed by him, and need not be witnessed. In twelve States, in fact, it is not even necessary to date holographic wills. In one State, Louisiana, where the basic law is of French origin, provision it made for the most unusual will valid in the United States—the mystic or secret will. Such a will is not openly presented to witnesses but is sealed up by the maker, and then presented to a notary and seven witnesses, who all sign their names on the envelope.

The law that has grown up around the making, interretation, and enforcing of wills is extremely complex. In general, however, the courts seek merely to determine whether a will is lawful, and what the intention of the maker was; and then strive to put all lawful intentions into effect.

Always a Bright Spot in the Deepest Gloom

There is no situation in life so dark, so depressing, so apparently hopeless that it has not a single gleam of light somewhere, and it is this bright spot that should be the starting point for thought, not the mass of gloom that surrounds it. Who is there who cannot say he has not experienced quite a lot of sympathy and friendship in troubles? Somebody has shaken him by the hand, some one has said a kindly word to him, more than one pair of skilled hands have tended him in illness. Is that all worth nothing? There are, fortunately, very few people in this world who are really alone. There are a good many who are lonely, but that is not quite the same thing: even in their case the fault often lies with themselves.

Friendship, comradeship, help, and sympathy have to be earned, like everything else in life that is worth having: and they have to be earned by a willingness to give what we expect to receive.

But, in any case, what's the use of worrying? There is always another day with all its possibilities and its chances. There is always tomorrow. "Let us make haste to live," said a wise old Roman, "since every day to a wise man is a new life."

There is no need even to wait until tomorrow. You never know what the next hour may bring forth. Even the next minute may provide the way out that worry will never find.—London Tit-Bits.

SALVATION ARMY APPEAL

The Salvation Army appeal in Winchester is progressing favorably, and we are confident of being able to announce in the next number of the Star that the quota of $2000 has been exceeded. If your intentions thus far have exceeded your accomplishment, we hope you will arrange to send in your check to Treasurer Cabot of the Winchester Trust Company this week without fail, and help us to a triumphant finish. Winchester has never yet gone over quota, but we are out to break records this year.

Col. Joseph Atkinson, Commander of the Salvation Army forces in New England, recently made the following statement, which we quote as being especially pertinent just now:

"More than ever today we are confronted by the question, will those of us who are in any way able, share voluntarily with those who are suffering privation and want? The eyes of the world are on this country. Will we show the way out of the great economic and social confusion, or will the forces of order and reason give way to chaos? This question places a tremendous responsibility on you and me.

"Shall an organization which provided lodging for over 76,000 men during the past year, furnished over 156,000 meals, gave relief to 28,000 families, gave clothes to 1400 and cared for 6900 sick, be able to do that, and more, this year? The answer, of course, is Yes, for we dare not face the alternatives."

Colonel Atkinson also issued a statistical summary of the work of the Salvation Army in Greater Boston during the past year, which we publish herewith:

THANKSGIVING SERVICE

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Winchester, will hold its customary Thanksgiving service on Thursday morning, Nov. 26 at 10 o'clock. The public is cordially invited.

Alice Reynolds, director of Religious Education at the First Congregational Church, Gladys Folts and Doris McElwain were delegates to the Massachusetts Federation of Churches, and Massachusetts Council of Religious Education twin conference held at Worcester this week, Wednesday.

JUNIOR GUILD NOTES

The Junior Guild of the Infant Saviour held a bridge party, Tuesday evening at the Calumet Club. During the evening, a turkey was won by Miss Marie Anearn of Church street, and a linen set was won by Mrs. Mann Cox of Winchester. Refreshments were served by the Misses Rose Beausang, Lilliand and Mary Day, Rose Felt, Ruth Clancey, Madeleine Atkinson, Mary Hickey, Mrs. Grace Hayes and Lucia McKenzie. The Misses Anna McKenzie and Lillian Day sold candy.

The committee in charge included Miss Dorothy Day, chairman; Miss Rose Beausang, tickets; Miss Madeleine Atkinson, prizes; and the Misses Helen and Elizabeth McAuley, refreshments. Seventeen prizes were given. This party was the first social event of the Junior Guild to be held and was a very successful one.

OIL FROM JAWS OF SEA MONSTERS LUBRICATES DELICATE MACHINERY

Because the increasing numbers of aeronautical instruments, watches and other delicate mechanisms are causing a shortage in the supply of fish-jaw oil, a government agency has undertaken a survey of the sources of such lubricants. Oil from the jaws of porpoises and blackfish, which now is chiefly used to lubricate these mechanisms, has soared in price.

For two centuries porpoises have been taken in nets off Cape Hatteras, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Today they are also fished along the coast of Finmark, the northernmost province of Norway and along the Atlantic shore near Morehead, North Carolina.

Lookouts Signal Position of Schools

Porpoises winter off the South Atlantic coast. Schools may be seen almost daily, passing just outside the surf. The largest animals reach a length of seven feet and weigh about 300 pounds.

The porpoise fishermen are as expert as fishermen who literally live in the codfish fisheries off New England and Newfoundland. Lookouts are stationed on the beach above and below the point where the porpoise fishers await signals. When a school of porpoises is sighted, boats equipped with large seines are launched. The seines are joined, forming a semi-circular pen with one end secured to the beach. The netmen are able to watch the progress of a school of porpoises by the position of the lookout who walks along the beach abreast the school.

When the animals enter the pen, the offshore end of the net is rushed ashore. The porpoises lunge at the net and attempt to jump over and dive under the mesh, but fishermen are usually stationed in boats outside the pen to scare the surging animals toward the shore. Near the beach a smaller net is laid around the main portion of the school which is beached first. Then the remainder or the school is swept in by the larger net.

Harpooned by Whalers

Although jaw oil is an important product of porpoise fisheries, the animals also are valuable for their body oil, which is extracted from the blubber by boiling. In northern Norway the blubber is eaten by the fisherfolk who consider it superior to many other sea foods. The flesh not consumed is salted for exportation while the entrails and bones make good fertilizer. For many years the Indians along the Maine coast have supported themselves by capturing porpoises.

Porpoise meat also is consumed aboard whaling boats. Whalers capture porpoises by harpooning. The blubber not consumed is cut into longitudinal strips four to five inches wide then minced and placed in pots to boil. Each animal yields about two gallons of body oil. Porpoise jaw oil is produced by removing the animal's lower jaw and extracting the oil-containing blubber which is boiled gently. A single jaw contains about a half pint of jaw oil.

Blackfish jaw oil is of equal merit for lubrication. These fish, which widely range the Atlantic Ocean, are usually captured by harpooning. Along the New England coast large schools of blackfish that have ventured close to the shore for food have been rounded up and driven on the beach.

The largest catches of blackfish have been made on the west coast of Africa. Twenty to twenty-five of these monsters caught by a whaling fleet in a season are considered a good catch. They are from eight to twenty-two feet in length and weigh several hundred pounds.

Harpooned blackfish are hoisted aboard the whalers' deck and their blubber stripped and boiled like that of the porpoise. Blackfish produce from 35 to 40 gallons of body oil while jaw oil averages about two gallons per fish.

AMERICAN GOODS ARE POPULAR IN SOUTH AFRICA

Next to British products, the Union of South Africa prefers goods made in the United States, according to recent trade statistics. About one-half of the Union's imports are of British origin. The United States, source of about 17 per cent, leads all non-British countries.

Normally the Union of South Africa buys about $60,000,000 worth of American goods, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Corn Sirup, Pianos and Books

The shelves of many South African pantries reveal canned meat, fish, peaches, asparagus, baked beans, wheat flour, breakfast foods, baking powder, household ammonia, and bottles of sauces, relishes and ketchup, bearing familiar American trademarks. Nearly 6,000,000 pounds of American corn sirup and 21,000,000 pounds of Americaan sugar were imported in 1929.

The kitchen floors of some South African homes are covered with American-made linoleum, and tables with American oilcloth. American electri clight bulbs throw their beams upon American pianos, phonographs and clocks in South African living rooms while books and maps printed in New York, Boston and Chicago shops may be found in home libraries.

Nine-Tenths of Automobiles from U. S. and Canada

Stand on a busy corner of one of the Union's large cities, and American leather shoes, silk and cotton stockings, dresses made from cotton goods imported from America, automobiles, trucks, motorcycles, rubber heels and furs pass on parade. Nearly nine-tenths of all the automobiles in the Union were made in the United States and Canada. In a recent year a million and a half pairs of silk stockings and more than a million pairs of cotton stockings were sent to the British domain by American manufacturers.

In a South African office building, which may be under a roof of imported American material, one may hear the tapping of an American-made typewriter, and the clashing of gears of an American tabulating machine. Perhaps a portion of the office printed matter came from an imported American printing press. The ground floor of the building may accommodate a jewelry store where imported American jewelry may be on display, and a hardware store selling numerous articles that were "made in the U. S. A." One hundred and fifty-one thousand gallons of American turpentine were imported in one year. South African drug stores sell American dental creams, soap, cosmetics and cameras.

Farmers Use American Labor-Saving Devices

Some South African farmers use American incubators and brooders. They plow, cultivate, plant, spray, rake, shell corn, grind and crush and press feed with American machinery while American tractors are taking the place of many rural "dobbins." American windmills are changing South African rural panoramas.

In the list of American-made imports may be found toys for South African children, ammunition for South African hunters, athletic goods for South African sportsmen, kerosene for lighting purposes, large quantities of lubricating oil and grease for automobiles and machinery, sausage casings for her "hot dog" consumers and films for her "movie" fans.

City of Lucerne Rich in Historic Memories

Lucerne is a name to conjure with in Switzerland. Not to have seen it, not to have meandered over and through its picture-galleried bridges, not to have purchased souvenirs in its shops, which for fineness compare with any you may see in Paris and London, not to have used the city as a center for visits to the Rigi, to Tell's monument and chapel or seen its Glacier garden, a relic of a prehistoric age, is to have missed the very heart of your Swiss tour. Holbein, the younger was often there. Goethe declined to pass it by. Hugo has preserved memories of it with his pen. Wagner lived there for six years and here composed "Siegfried," and the "Twilight of the Gods." Tolstoi wrote a novel on the city while there, and who has not read Longfellow's "Golden Legend" and not wished to see the quaint pictures of the "Dance of Death" on the Muhlenbrucke? Do you wish to see the Axenstrasse? Then you must stay at Lucerne.—Boston Herald.

First Elephant Billed as "Natural Curiosity"

It may interest some folks to learn that the first elephant, the "celebrated Buffon," made its debut in this country in the spring of 1799.

On exhibition at the Essex institute, a museum at Salem, Mass., is the original poster announcing that "the greatest natural curiosity ever presented to the curious" will be on display at the Market house "from sunrise to sundown, every day in the week." The date on the poster is August 29, 1797.

The elephant was brought to this country from Bengal aboard the ship "America," commanded by Capt. Jacob Crowninshield, a famous Salem shipmaster. Landed at New York in April, 1797, it was sold by Captain Crowninshield for $10,000.

Though referred to in the announcement as a "mere colt," the elephant was four years old and weighed slightly more than 3,000 pounds.

MILK CHART FOR MONTH OF JULY, 1931

Published by the Winchester Board of Health

The bacteria count in this chart gives the number of bacteria found in one c. c. taken from the center of the sample after it had been well shaken. It should be remembered that another c. c. taken from the same sample might give a somewhat different count, but the difference would rarely, if ever, exceed 10 per cent.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS NOTES

Regular meeting of the Council will be held Monday, Nov. 23, 8 p. m. in Whites' Hall.

The unemployment problems present a condition that needs the co-operation of all organizations, to offset distress and suffering of those unfortunates who, through no fault of their own, are unemployed.

The Council has been invited by the Committee on Co-operation, appointed by President Hoover to co-operate with the local welfare organization in its work to aid the unemployed.

All members are urgently requested to be present at this meeting and lend all their strength and influence so that distress and unemployment be kept at a minimum.

A requiem mass for the repose of the souls of our departed Brothers will be held Monday, Nov. 23 at 7:30 a. m. in St. Mary's Church. All members and their friends are invited to attend the services.

WINCHESTER HARRIERS AGAIN HARVARD CHAMPIONS

Won Team Prize in B Division Last Saturday at Stadium

For the second consecutive year Winchester High School's cross country team won the championship for Class B high schools at the big interscholastic cross country meet, held under the auspices of Harvard University, at the Stadium preceeding the Harvard-Holy Cross game last Saturday.

More than 500 prep and high school boys competed in the three divisions of the meet and there was a large Class B field, Winchester being opposed by several out-of-state teams as well as the pick of the schoolboys in this district.

Coach "Micky" Muerling's boys won because they had superior team strength to offset better individual runners on other clubs. Capt. Frank Corby, running 6th, was the first local runner across the finish line and he was closely followed by "Al" Lynch, another Winchester harrier. Both boys ran steadily throughout the 2¼-mile course and finished about as they started.

Little "Dick" Pettingell, Winchester's next runner home, had to put on a sprint to pull up in 19th position and "Tommy" McPartlin came from nowhere to finish 23rd, sprinting the entire length of the stadium and passing a big field. "Patsy" Maffeo finished 28th and Roger Pettingell pulled up in 34th position. "Juddie" Cross after a bad fall early in the race, had to be content with 42nd, but showed plenty of grit in going through and is a much better runner than his position would indicate.

Winchester won handily, scoring 83 points to 96 for Norwich, Vt., Free Academy which was runner up. Beverly High with 121, Everett High with 177, Woburn High, 179; Cranston, R. I., High, 196; Weymouth High, 197; General Draper, 215; Wakefield High, 270; Northbridge, 272; and Concord, 303; finished in that order.

David Dellanger of Wakefield was the individual winner of the Class B championship, starting slowly, racing to the front at the half way mark and winning by a good margin from Knight Fairchild of Hope Street High, Providence. Small of Sutton, Macime of Norwich Free Academy and Schofield of Braintree finished ahead of Corby and Lynch of Winchester with Graffam of Beverly, "Johnnie" Davoren of Woburn, Jansen of Cranston, R. I., Broom of General Draper and Lunn of Beverly trailing. Dellanger, winner of the Wakefield interscholastic run a week ago, ran the 2¼ miles in 13 minutes and 41 seconds.

Winchester has this year enjoyed its best season in the history of cross country running at the local high school. Undefeated in five meets with representative high schools together with wins in the Wakefield five-cornered meet and the big Harvard Interscholastics constitute a record of which the Red and Black may well be proud.

Cross country running at Winchester High was introduced prior to 1912 as a conditioning stunt for basketball players; at least, there are no records available to indicate that there were cross country teams previous to that time.

In 1912, largely through the efforts of H. Wray Rohrman, a team was developed at high school, of which Rohrman was captain and "Phil" Wait Douglas Case and "Dick" Favor were some of the runners. The team competed and made a good showing in the Mystic Valley Interscholastic Cross Country meet, run in Winchester over a course starting at the high school and proceeding along Main and Grove streets to Fenwick road and back along the Parkway to Manchester Field, finishing at the end of the old straightaway along the western side of the playground.

Arlington with Gaylord Goldsmith, "Joe" Swinge and "Spin" Wunderlich, was the winner of that meet and from that time until this year Winchester has been trying for a victory over "Doc" McCarthy's boys.

"Doug" Case was Winchester's captain in 1913 and in 1914 "Johnnie" Caldwell led the team. In both seasons the local boys made good enough showings, but Arlington was always just a little bit too good for the Red and Black, and after 1915 cross country running joined the list of inactive sports at high school.

As Faculty Director of Athletics, Wendell D. Mansfield revived the sport, and in 1928, under Coach Meldon L. Wenner, Winchester put a team in the field. Four meets were staged with Somerville, Stoneham, Concord and Woburn, the locals winning only from the Tanning City team.

The next year Winchester looked up a lot, losing only to Stoneham and Arlington in six meets. In 1930 Coach Wenner, now at Belmont, had his best team, dropping one of six meets to Arlington and winning the Harvard Class B championship.

This year's team was captained by Frank Corby, a steady dependable runner, and managed by Charles Main. Included in the squad were Andrew and Albert Lynch, Richard and Roger Pettingell, Judson Cross, Patsy Maffeo, Roderick MacDonnell, Thomas McPartlin, Robert Paine, Albert Haskell, William Weldon, Fred Noble, Arthur Farrar, Douglas Edwards, John Donahue, Thomas Cassidy, Joseph Flannigan, Leonard Notemyer, William Murray and Thomas Farley.

Following are the seasons' records for the past three years:

INJURED IN CAR CRASH

A collision on Main street at Lawson road at 4:55 last Saturday afternoon, involving a Marmon sedan and a Chevrolet coupe, resulted in injuries to the Misses Alice and Minnie Joy of Lawson road who were riding in the sedan with Mr. and Mrs. William H. Belcher of Prospect street.

Mr. Belcher was driving north on Main street and was making a right turn into Lawson road when his machine was in collision with the Chevrolet which was driven by Leo J. Harrigan of 1 Canterbeing street, Billerica who was also going north and attempting to turn right into Lawson road.

The coupe forced the sedan onto the sidewalk and against a telegraph pole, both machines being badly damaged. Miss Minnie Joy sustained a broken collar bone and cuts about the body. Miss Alice Joy was cut on the head and face and badly shaken up. With Mrs. Belcher they were assisted to their home by passing motorists and treated by Dr. Milton J. Quinn. Mrs. Belcher was later taken to her home in the police car. Both the Marmon and Chevrolet had to be towed away.

WINCHESTER PRIEST PROMOTED

Rev. Fr. William J. Clarke, for the past few years assistant pastor of St. Mary's Parish, has been transferred by Cardinal O'Connell and promoted to pastor of a newly established parish in Brockton. His new charge includes Montello as well as a part of Brockton. Father Clarke's many friends in Winchester wish him success in his new field.

Mr. Jonas A. Faraway was elected Tyler of Winchester Lodge of Elks at a special election Tuesday night to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Andrew P. Harrold.

You Can't See the Good in a Bottle of Milk . . . . Quality Exists in Things Your eyes Cannot Detect

The quality in a bottle of Hood's Grade A Milk starts with the cow before she is a Grade A producer. All cows in the Hood Grade A herds are scientifically tested for Grade A health. Their food is properly balanced to keep them fit. Their quarters are kept clean, wholesome and sanitary. Milking utensils are sterilized, and modern in construction. Milk is immediately cooled after milking. Then after these precautions, the milk is pasteurized in modern plants as a finishing safeguard and protection. The good in a bottle of milk shows in the results you get from the regular use of

MELROSE HIGH GIRLS BEAT WINCHESTER, 4—1

Winchester High School girls' field hockey team closed its 1931 schedule last Friday afternoon, losing to Melrose High, 4—1.

Melrose scored first in the opening half from a penalty corner when Gilley, right inner, stopped the shot out and swiped the ball into the Winchester cage. Smith, Melrose right inner, made the second goal from scrimmage.

After the half Gilley scored again, a hard shot out of scrimmage; the final Melrose goal coming as the result of a local penalty. "Joe" Fowle, Winchester goaler, was penalized for dropping her stick to catch a hard driven ball and as a result she and the Melrose center forward, Millmore, bullied in front of the Winchester goal. Fowle succeeded in getting the ball on the bully but the Melrose girl prevented her from clearing and eventually poked the ball into the cage.

Between the halves of the first team game the Winchester seconds blanked the Melrose seconds, 5—0. The summary of the first team game follows:

For the first time in many years Winchester has failed to finish in the running for the Greater Boston Field Hockey championship. The locals, with almost an entirely green team, have won but a single game, tied two and dropped six contests.

Coach Centervall started the season with Capt. Barbara Shaw, fullback; and Lucy Fowle, change goaler; as her only available veterans. Considering this lack of experienced material the Winchester mentor has done as well as any one could ask, her eleven holding its opponents to a total of 14 goals in 10 games, not a bad defensive record.

Offensively the team has not been effective, the season's total of goals scored being only seven. This lack of offensive punch has prevented the locals from winning several games which stand on the records as ties.

Coach Centervall is especially proud of the record made by her second team which in nine games has dropped a single contest and has been scored upon but twice all season. The work of the seconds, most of whom are sophomores, promises well for Winchester another season, and barring accidents should result in a fine team two years hence.

Ann Orpin has served as manager of the varsity team and the captain has been Barbara Shaw, who has played consistently good hockey at left fullback. Others on the varsity squad include Agatha Shinnick, Isabel and Roberta Healey, Virginia Besse, Barbara Small, Edna Hanlon, Priscilla Chamberlin, Jeannette Colucci, Marjorie Dolben, Katherine Boutwell, Mildred Johnson, Grace Cutter, Regina Luongo, Elizabeth Sharon and Lucy Fowle.

LAUNCH STUDY TO EDUCATE CONSUMERS

Mrs. Howard J. Chidley, chairman of the living costs committee of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters launched the League's new study, a "Kit" on distribution, at a conference held at the College Club, Boston, Wednesday morning, Nov. 18. The speakers were Daniel Bloomfield, manager of the Retail Trade Board of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and Charles F. Adams, treasurer of the First National Stores, Inc.

The object of the study according to Mrs. Chidley, "is to acquaint women, who purchase nine-tenths of all retail goods, with the process that merchandise goes through on its way from the manufacturer to the consumer."

"The course will deal with the exploitation of the consumer, leading up to the discussion of the possible value of consumer's organizations."

Following the conference, Prof. Alfred Sheffield of Wellesley College led a discussion on methods of presentation, at a luncheon of the leaders who will have charge of this study in the local Leagues throughout the State.

Edward A. Quirbach, who died last week in Lowell, was the brother of Rev. Fr. Conrad J. Quirbach of St. Mary's Parish. Solemn high mass was celebrated in St. Margaret's Church, Lowell, on Saturday morning.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Leader Training Course

The fifth session of the course in "Principles of Scoutmastership" was held in room 3, Medford Building, at 7 p. m. on Wednesday, Nov. 18.

James J. Quinn, Superintendent of Schools, Winchester, spoke on the "Objectives of Education." Mr. Quinn is a member of the Executive Board of the Medford Council Boy Scouts, and keenly interested in the work of the Council.

Rodney Speirs, Field Executive of the Boston Council will speak on "Troop Management." Mr. Speirs has had a wide experience in Scouting, having served as a Scout leader in England, Australia, South Africa, and now in America. Scouters who were present at the second session of the course will remember Mr. Speirs fine presentation on "Outdoor Scouting" and are consequently looking forward with interest to Wednesday night's meeting.

Courts of Honor

Stoneham Court of Honor, last Wednesday of the month.

Winchester Court of Honor, Saturday, Dec. 5, Winchester Town Hall. This is a public Court of Honor. Parents and friends of the boys are invited.

Woburn-Wilmington Court of Honor, first meeting for reviews and awards, Tuesday, Dec. 15. Scouts of this district are urged to work on second and first class awards for this, the first meeting of the Court. The merit badge counsellor list will soon be published.

Troop Notes

Troop scribes are urged to send items of Troop doings to the Scout office for publication in the Scout column.

New Leaders

Increasingly are former Scouts returning to Scouting to serve as leaders and also there is an increasing tendency for Scouts to remain in Scouting until they are old enough to be commissioned as assistant Scoutmasters.

Recent Troop re-registrations have promoted Scouts to commissioned leaders in the following troops:

Troop 5, Medford—Ernest G. Smith, 45 Central avenue.

Troop 8, Medford—Carl Stevens, 175 Wyman street.

Troop 3, Stoneham—Sumner Thomson, 280 Green street.

Fifty per cent of the Scoutmasters now serving in the Troops of the Council have been Scouts.

Annual Meeting of the Council

The annual meeting of the Council is tentatively set for Jan. 12. This is the big event in the year for all Scouters in the Council. Plans for a bigger and more interesting meeting than last year are being formulated. It is expected that a member of the national staff will be present as speaker of the evening.

Important Events

District rallies in December and January.

Council rally in January.

Winchester public court of honor, Dec. 5.

Annual meeting of the Council, tentatively set for Jan. 12.

Council-wide public court of honor, tentatively set for Feb. 12.

Annual Scouters' roundup in Lowell, Feb. 6.

Winchester Council Boy Scouts

Last Saturday 22 Winchester Boy Scouts went on a supper hike to Camp Gleason, meeting at the Congregational Church at 2:30 p. m. and leaving camp about 6:30.

John Blaisdell and David Kenerson of Troop 1 went up in the morning, having their dinner at camp and when the group arrived in the afternoon and started getting ready for supper it was too much for John and "Dave", so they went down to the store, replenished their food supply and came back for supper. (Onions were 50 per cent of their food supply.)

Troop 6 was well represented having nine boys present. Troop 7 did well with three boys out as it is a new Troop started this fall with headquarters at the Baptist Church.

Leonard Millican, David Chamberlain, Troop 3, "Bob" Harkins, Powers, Drew and Haggerty of Troop 6 all passed their tracking tests also second class cooking.

The boys asked about another hike so one is planned for on Saturday, Nov. 28, same hour of meeting at same place with hike to Gleason.

Authorities Made Poor Guess, in This Instance

The hundredth anniversary of the death of Bolivar, the great liberator of South America from Spanish rule, uncovered a number of amusing yarns concerning this famous character.

The story goes that on one occasion Bolivar sent a messenger ahead to a small town where he and his party were to spend the night. In it the liberator directed the town authorities to have food and quarters ready for his men and horses and added that there should be for himself shelter, food, etc., etc., etc.

The town authorities promptly got everything ready except the three etc's, which troubled them considerably. "What," they asked, "did the great liberator mean?"

Finally one of them, aware of Bolivar's reputation with the ladies, decided he had solved the problem.

It happened, however, that he was wrong and three of the town's prettiest girls were sent home at the direction of the highly amused Bolivar.—Los Angeles Times.

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN

Edna May Oliver, the only woman from this section of the country to achieve stardom in pictures, comes to the Mystic Theatre in Malden on Saturday in her new triumph "Fanny Foley Herself." Miss Oliver is a native of Malden and will be remembered for her excellent work in "Cimarron" and "Laugh and Get Rich." In "Fanny Foley Herself" the star is cast as a vaudeville headliner who marries the son of a millionaire. The young man's father is furious when he hears of the marriage and disinherits his son. Fanny Foley, however, gets a thousand a week salary and is glad to support both her husband and the two children which are born. Through the years Fanny Foley keeps on working as a stage celebrity, supporting her husband and the children. The children, both girls, are sent to private schools and kept in ignorance of their mother's profession. Returning from a season abroad with their father the latter suddenly drops dead. Fanny Foley comes to get the girls and is forced to tell them how she has earned the money to support them. Because of their upbringing both of the girls are snobs and when they see their mother's comedy performance on the stage they imagine she is a low sort of character. Meanwhile, the grandfather of the girls wants to legally adopt them. Hurt by the selfish actions of her daughters, Fanny Foley permits them to go to their rich grandfather. Later, however, the girls get into a jam which only "Fanny Foley Herself" can extricate them. Helen Chandler, Hobart Bosworth and Rochelle Hudson heads the supporting cast.

Buck Jones in "Border Law," a rip-snorting Western, will be the second feature on the program that opens its run on Saturday. This picture is an ace Western drama with all of the thrills that make this type of entertainment so popular.

"Bad Company" with Helen Twelvetrees and Ricardo Cortez as the stars, will head the program that ends its run at the Mystic on Friday. "Bad Company" is a romantic drama with Miss Twelvetrees giving another of her brilliant portrayals. "Dancing Dynamite" with Richard Talmadge, is the second feature on the current bill.

UNIVERSITY THEATER

"Monkey Business" comes to the University Theater on Sunday next for four days. It is the third of the Marx Brothers comedies, the earlier ones being "The Cocoanuts" and "Animal Crackers." "Monkey Business" presents the brothers in a hilarious comedy that has to deal with stowaways and yeggmen aboard an ocean liner. The four brothers are stowaways and practically anybody is a yeggman. It all winds up when they come ashore and rescue Zeppo's girl friend from the clutches of bootleggers in an old barn.

"East of Borneo," the companion picture which was actually filmed in part in the Malay country, tells an exciting story of the events following the arrival of a courageous woman at the palace of a native rajah. Rose Hobart and Charles Bickford head the cast which includes George Renavent, Lupita Tovar, Noble Johnson and several hundred brown-skinned natives of the Far East.

Nancy Carroll has two leading men in her latest starring picture, "Personal Maid" which starts Thursday. They are Pat O'Brien, recently seen as the young reporter in "The Front Page" and Gene Raymond, a newcomer to pictures although well known on the New York stage. "Personal Maid" brings Miss Carroll in a much more vivacious role than any she has been seen in for some time. The story is the behind-the-scenes drama of a young girl from New York's East Side who enters the beau monde through the servants' entrance and comes out under a canopy, a gilded bride, wiser, but, perhaps, no happier. The picture was made from the best-seller novel by Grace Perkins, who is noted for putting actual conditions and character into her stories.

"The Road to Singapore," the companion feature starring William Powell, is a darkly glamorous story of love in the tomtom-haunted jungles of Ceylon. Mr. Powell's support in "The Road to Singapore" includes Doris Kenyon; Marion Marsh, the year's most brilliant screen discovery; Alison Skipworth and A. E. Anson. The story is by the brilliant English playwright, Roland Pertwee.

Whole World Enriched by Poet's "Golden Pen"

Omar Khayyam, Persian poet, was born about the middle of the Eleventh century at Nishapur, Khorassan, where he died about 1123. As an astronomer he was known for a revision of the Persian calendar, and occupied a position of importance at the court of Mahmud of Ghazni. It is as the author of a collection of quatrains, called the Rubaiyat, that Omar Khayyam is more popularly known. These poems—isolated, impulsive, unrestrained and characterized by rapid transitions from love minstrelsy to grave argument, and from a deadly fatalism to ribald tavern songs—are an interesting development of Persian mysticism. There is little doubt that Omar was not the author of all the poems which inspired his translator Fitzgerald's pen. Fitzgerald's translation was first published anonymously in 1859. "Rubai"; (or rubary) is the Persian word for quatrain or epigram, a stanza of four lines, the first, second and fourth lines rhyming. "Rubaiyat" means a collection of quatrains.

Three youths of Campello were arrested by a State Trooper and arraigned in the Plymouth District Court Monday for breaking into a summer cottage at Marshfield. They were held for the grand jury and were charged also with breaking into the summer home of Mr. Walter Balcke of Wilson street, who has a cottage at Marshfield. It is said they stole a pair of field glasses at the Balcke cottage.

Tuesday evening the police were called to investigate an alleged hit-and-run accident case on Swanton street at the Swanton street bridge. According to the story told the authorities two women had been knocked down by an automobile, the driver of which had failed to stop. The registration was secured and Sergeant O'Connell talked with the driver who denied hitting the women, claiming the the women had become alarmed at the approach of his car, which came through heavy train smoke on the railroad bridge, and in getting out of the way, one had knocked the other down. The women refused to press the case against the driver and the matter was dropped.

BIRTHDAY RECEIPTION TO MR. AND MRS. CYRUS DALLIN

On the afternoon of Tuesday, Nov. 24, the Massachusetts School of Art gave a reception to Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Dallin in the banquet hall of the school building in honor of their 70th birthday. Mr. Dallin's being on Sunday, Nov. 22 and Mrs. Dallin's on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 26.

Invitations had been extended to the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Dallin also to the alumni and students of the Massachusetts School of Art which Mr. Dallin has been connected for many years.

In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Newell of Manchester road, this town. Mr. Newell is principal of the school and also State Director of Art. Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Dallin, Mr. Wilder, dean of the school and Mrs. Wilder, Mr. T. Payson Smith, Commissioner of Education and Mr. Frank W. Wright, Deputy Commissioner of Education.

The decorations of the hall and tea tables were autumn leaves and chrysanthemums most artistically arranged.

The pourers at the tea tables were Miss E. G. Bartlett, Miss Anna Hathaway, Miss Ella Munsterburg, Miss Irma Cofren, members of the faculty.

The students of the school acted as ushers and assisted at the tea tables.

The committee in charge of arrangements were Mrs. Mary Rugg, chairman; Miss Rachel Whittier and Miss E. B. Whittit.

At 4:15 o'clock beautiful and lifelike tableaux were shown of different epochs in Mr. Dallin's life and a brief history read of each.

Numerous floral offerings were received from friends and the alumni of the school. As almost everyone ever connected with the school were present to honor Mr. and Mrs. Dallin the affair became a vast reunion which was greatly enjoyed.

Replicas of Mr. Dallin's most famous sculptures were on exhibition in the school gallery, notably statues of Lincoln, John Brown, The Peace Council, The Appeal to the Great Spirit, The Covered Wagon, and many others, also medals and bas reliefs.

GAS EMPLOYEES' ASSOCIATION MEETING

The regular meeting of the Arlington Gas Employees' Association was held in the auditorium of the Gas Company building on Broadway, Arlington, Tuesday evening, Nov. 24.

A very excellent dinner was served, which was followed by a business meeting. The attendance prize was won by Royce A. Highley. The usual drawing on turkeys was held and turkeys were won by Helen Haley, Harriet Holt, Wilmah Cardinal, John Greeley, Harold Leland and Thomas Moran.

A spelling bee was next on the program. It aroused much interest among the members and caused some deep thought on the part of some of the participants. First prize, a turkey, was won by Eileen Collins. Two second prizes were given; a necklace and bracelet to Gertrude Savage, and a cigarette case to Maurice Hatch. A cribbage tournament was also held and this was won by Albert Peirce, the prize being a turkey.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Frotten were guests of honor Monday evening at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Miss Margaret McGurn on Garfield avenue. Mr. Frotten is a well known Winchester young man who has been living in Woburn following his marriage to Miss Mary Quail of that city.

CALUMET NOTES

Another of the popular Ladies' Afternoon Bowling parties was held Tuesday at the club, the prize for high single going to Mrs. Lincoln with 112. The prize for high single with handicap went to Mrs. Cox who had 102. Mrs. Fitzgerald's 168 took the prize for high two strings flat, and Mrs. McGrath's 197 was the prize winning two strings with handicap.

The December calendar promises an interesting and pleasing month for Calumeters and their ladies, the high lights of course being the Golf Night on Saturday Dec. 5, and the big New Year's Party, Thursday evening, Dec. 31.

All golfers, near golfers and would-be golfers will want to sit in next Saturday when Francis Ouimet, one of the country's best players; Harry Bowler, popular Winchester pro; Perley Chase, one of Winchester's ranking stars; and Linde Fowler, sports writer of the Boston Transcript. None of these need any introduction to followers of the ancient and royal pastime. Don't miss their message.

Even with the New Year's Party more than a month away, Calumeters are talking about it and making plans to attend. After the Hallowe'en Party it is not likely that any one will miss this official welcome to 1932, and Steward Fred Scholl would appreciate your reservations right away. It's going to be absolutely necessary for the committee to know the exact number of those who will be present, so don't delay, send in your acceptance now. Mrs. Harold Bostwick is in charge of arrangements and promises to eclipse her success on Hallowe'en.

Ladies' Bowling Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 1, and Monday evening, Dec. 7. Calumet meets Kernwood at home in a Mystic Valley League match.

Mrs. Baker is in charge of the Ladies' afternoon bridge on Tuesday, Dec. 8. The regular Saturday night luncheon will be served at the club Saturday, Dec. 12. Ladies' afternoon bowling Tuesday, Dec. 15, and another of the popular Dinner Bridges is scheduled for Friday evening Dec. 18, at 6:30. Ladies' afternoon bowling, Tuesday, Dec. 29.

WINCHESTER CONTRACTOR AWARDED STATE SEWER CONTRACT

George M. Bryne of Winchester, contractor, has been awarded the State contract for laying 3629 feet of main sewer in the towns of Braintree and Weymouth. Twenty-three hundred feet of the job crosses Fore River in two places and calls for 42 inch and 30 inch cast iron pipe to be laid from 15 to 20 feet below the river bottom. The remaining 1320 feet of concrete sewer follows the shore line and is above water. The contract price is $100,951, and Mr. Bryne believes the job will take eight months to complete.

Meanwhile Mr. Bryne has another contract at the estate of Sumner Pingree in Hamilton. There the local contractor is to build an artificial pond and dam, calling for 25,000 cubic yard of excavation.

WINS IN ESSAY CONTEST

Frank W. Harkins of Eaton street was the winner of a United States Army Pack Carrier in the "Nobles' Round Table Club" essay contest. The club broadcasts every Wednesday evening over Station WEEI at 5:30, and the subject was "Scout Hiking."

Frank is to receive his Eagle Scout badge at the December Court of Honor and is a "Cum Laude" member of the freshman class of Winchester High School.

WINCHESTER'S NEEDY REMEMBERED AT THANKSGIVING

More than 150 Thanksgiving baskets were distributed during Wednesday by members of Winchester Lodge of Elks, acting for the various organizations and churches of the town.

The store on Main street formerly occupied by Piccolo Brothers was utilized as a center of operations, and there the good things were apportioned and placed in baskets for delivery by truck and private automobiles.

With the exception of a few, taken by the Girl Scouts, Red Cross and churches, the Elks took care of the long-carefully compiled list of names, and Chairman George H. Lochman of the committee in charge of distribution stated that there were no families of which his group knew who were not remembered.

In addition to furnishing delivery for the baskets the Elks also furnished turkeys, fruit and vegetables. In this connection Fred H. Scholl of the committee wishes to express his personal thanks to Room 8, Grade 3, of the Wyman School for contributions, and also to Daniel Roop, Jackie Metler and Bonney.

Assisting Messrs. Lochman and Scholl at the headquarters during the day were Mrs. Bowen Tufts, Miss Jeanne Tufts, Miss Nellie Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. MacMillan, Mrs. Fred Scholl, Mrs. Ben Hill, Mrs. Waldo Bond, Mrs. George Dutting, Charles Feinberg, Fred Scholl, Jr., John F. Donaghey, Paul McCall, Edward Kelley, John McNally and Nils Swanson.

MRS. JOHANNA WELSH

Mrs. Johanna Welsh (nee Lawton) 80 years of age, long a resident of this town passed away Tuesday afternoon at the home of her son, George B. Welsh in Lexington. Mrs. Welsh was the widow of George Welsh who operated a truck farm on Pond street for 60 years. She was born in Newcastle, N. B., the daughter of Dennis and Ellen Lawton (nee Dacey) and came to Winchester in her teens. She married George Welsh at Watertown and lived there until after the birth of three children, then came to Winchester and settled on Pond street where she resided until the death of her husband, a well-known market gardener.

She is survived by Mrs. Joseph Broderick (Elizabeth) of Winnipeg, Manitoba who was well known in Winchester as a graduate of Winchester High School and Lowell Normal School; George B. Welsh of Lexington and Francis H. of Somerville. There are 11 grandchildren.

The funeral was held from the home of her son, George B. Welsh, 3 Sunnyknoll avenue, North Lexington, at 8:15 a. m. Friday with a requiem mass at St. Bridget's Church in Lexington at 9 o'clock.

The pall bearers were Albert and Henry Lawton, Burton Caldwell (nephews), Harold and Francis Welsh (grandsons), and Charles Callahan.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

Dec. 10 is the date of the charity whist under the direction of the charitable committee, to be held at the home of the Regent, Mrs. M. C. Ambrose, 42 Vine street. Proceeds will be used by the committee in connection with their work at the Home for Destitute Children.

---

Frequenters of the center got a fine view of the giant Navy dirigible, Akron, as it sailed over town Monday afternoon.

MRS. MARY E. HARRINGTON

Mrs. Mary E. Harrington, mother of Mrs. Winnifred A. Thornton of 1 Indian Hill road and a former widely known resident of East Boston, died at 1 o'clock Monday morning, Nov. 21, in the Winchester Hospital, following a two weeks' illness.

Mrs. Thornton made her home at 10 Sunset road, in Watertown. She was the daughter of Thomas and Harriet (Evans) Woodhead and was born 70 years ago in East Boston, receiving her education in the Boston public schools.

For about 50 years she made her home in East Boston where she was widely known and universally esteemed. She was a practical nurse and was active in that capacity both in East Boston and in Watertown where she also enjoyed a wide circle of friends.

Besides her daughter, Mrs. Thornton, she leaves a daughter, Mrs. Harriet E. Putnam of Allston, a foster son, Harry W. Schwartz of New London, Conn.; four sisters, Mrs. Thomas Orpen, Miss Emma Woodhead, and Mrs. William Hodgdon, all of Somerville, and Mrs. Amelia Whyte of Plainville; and three grandchildren.

Family funeral services were held at the Thornton home Tuesday evening with the Rev. Dwight W. Hadley, rector of the Church of the Epiphany officiating. Rev. W. D. Roberts, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church in East Boston officiated at the services which were held there on Wednesday afternoon and which were followed by interment in Woodlawn Cemetery, Everett.

WOBURN ROOTERS VISITED WINCHESTER

Some time between 11:30 Wednesday night and 8 o'clock Thursday morning Woburn sympathizers visited Manchester Field and smeared the goal posts with the Woburn colors Orange and Black, ripping up the posts holding the guard ropes for good measure and strewing boards from the bleacher seats about the field. This little pleasantry was doubtless a reprisal for the job which Winchester rooters did on the Woburn goal posts a year ago, and now that everything is even-Stephen it is to be hoped that this form of rowdyism will be dispensed with. It reflects small credit upon the two communities.

The huge crowd at the game was very orderly and well handled by a police squadron comprising Patrolmen James E. Farrell, Charles J. Harrold, Joseph J. Derro, John Boyle, Clarence E. Dunbury, Archie O'Connell and John Dolan, under Sergt. Edward W. O'Connell. The parking places around the field were jammed with cars and the Parkway was lined from above Washington street nearly to Llyod street.

WAS MOTHER OF MRS. CLIFTON HALL

Mrs. Lucy W. Carter, widow of Capt. James W. Carter, died Wednesday night, Nov. 18, at the Brunswick Me., hospital after an illness of two months. Mrs. Carter was born in Philippsburg, Sept. 26, 1846, the daughter of the late Capt. Abner Johnson and Lorraine Wallace Johnson. After her marriage to Captain Carter, she lived the greater part of her active life in Portland. She was the mother of seven children, all living; Angie P. Cates of Los Angeles, Calif.; Harriet E. Short of New York City; Albert Q. Carter of Jefferson, Me.; Bessie M. Washburn of Holden, Mass.; Lucy D. MacLeod of Milwaukee; Lottie I. Warren of Concord; and Elizabeth S. Hall of Winchester. There are two brothers living; Almon L. Johnson of Portland and Abner C. Johnson of Bath, as well as numerous grandchildren and great grandchildren. Recent years Mrs. Carter spent her winters in Winchester and her summers at South Freeport, Me., all her long life having a large circle of relatives and friends in Cumberland and Sagadahoc Counties.

Services were held Saturday afternoon, Nov. 21, in Brunswick, Me. Interment was in Forest City Cemetery, Portland, Me.

PATRICK GUERIN

Patrick Guerin, a well known resident of Winchester, died Monday, Nov. 23, in the Winchester Hospital after a two weeks' illness.

Mr. Guerin was a native of Ireland, but in his youth came to this country and before coming to Winchester made his home in Woburn where he had many friends. He has been for some years retired and made his home in Winchester with his daughter, Mrs. Katherine Morse of 179 Washington street, who survives him with another daughter, Mrs. Susie Mansfield of Nashua, N. H., and four brothers, Henry V. of Lynn, Francis L. of West Newton, Michael A. of Dearborn, Mich., and Patrick G. Guerin of New York City.

The funeral was held from the Morse residence Wednesday morning with a requiem high mass in St. Mary's Church. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

ROBERT T. MURRAY

Robert T. Murray, 13 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Murray (Frances O'Loughlin) of 25 Elm street, passed away Monday evening at his home after a brief illness with pneumonia.

Robert was born in Woburn, his father having been city clerk there at one time. Since coming to Winchester he had made many friends among the boys and girls of the town and was popular among his classmates at St. Mary's School.

The funeral was held Wednesday morning from the late residence with high mass of requiem celebrated in St. Mary's Church. Burial was in Calvary Cemetery.

A CONTRACT

Nov. 23, 1931

To the Editor of the Star:

In order that all contributors to the improvements which are to be made on the shores of Horn Pond Brook may see that overhead, engineering and supervising charges have been reduced to a minimum, I will be greatly obliged if you will print the following memorandum concerning these items.

Lewis Parkhurst

Nov. 20, 1931

Memorandum—of Verbal Agreement between Lewis Parkhurst and James J. Fitzgerald Company—Concerning work to be done around Horn Pond Brook in Winchester, on land purchased by the town of Mr. Sylvester.

Description of the land and the method of handling the work may be found in the Winchester Star of Nov. 13 and 20, 1931.

The Company will purchase new tools to be used on the job and when the work is finished these tools will be sold, the net cost being charged to the expense of the job.

The Company will secure a good working foreman who shall be on the job constantly, and paid at the rate of $4 per day.

The Company will select all the men and teams necessary to work to good advantage and may decide how long each particular man may be kept on the job.

The Company will pay a man with two horses $8 per day, to be hired only when needed.

The Company will take out insurance to cover its liability, and Mr. Parkhurst will take out insurance to cover his liability.

The Company will make out a payroll each Saturday night and send a certified copy to Mr. Parkhurst, who will send a check to the Company to cover this payroll so that the men will be paid each Tuesday for work to the previous Saturday night.

For doing this the Company will be paid five per cent of whatever is expended on the job.

SIGNED BY THE PARTIES IN INTEREST

TEACHERS' CLUB TO PRESENT MINSTRELS

There is much interest being manifest in the minstrel show which is to be staged in the Town Hall on the evening of Thursday, Dec. 10, at 8 o'clock. A hustling committee of pedagogues, headed by Otis Leary, has worked hard on the details of the show and has arranged an entertainment bill which will be hard to surpass.

Imagine Clifford Cunningham, Kenneth McLeod, David Downer, Alfred Muerling, Margaret Andrews, Marcia Fuller, Margaret Leydon and Lenore Rich as end men; thing of Robert Hamilton, Clifford Cunningham, Kenneth McLeod and David Downer singing in quartet, also a vocal combination comprising Ruth Beman, Lois Gibson, Alice Crossley and Marion Hanlon; and last but not least see in your mind's eye a dancing group of 10 ponies, including Elizabeth Hurlin, Ruth Emery, Mary Cullen, Florence Hatch, Margaret Genszler, Marjorie Davidson, Marjorie Chapman, Marion Twombley, Helen Murphy and Mary McCarron. These are only a few of the show's features. There will be fun and surprises galore with dancing after the show.

BAPTIST BOWLING LEAGUE

The First Baptist Church started off on the right foot this year bowling two teams from Wakefield in the Main street alleys in Winchester, Nov. 23.

Team No. 1 took all four points from Wakefield team No. 2, while team No. 2 lost three points to Wakefield team No. 1. Paul Eaton rolled the highest single also the highest total. The scores:

HITCHBORN ON ALL MAINE TEAM

"Eddie" Hitchborn, ex-Winchester High all around athlete, has been chosen as right end on the all scholastic football team for Maine. Long "Eddie" is now representing Belfast High, and the Augusta-Kennebec Journal has the following to say about the former Winchester boy:

"Hitchborn is truly an answer to a coach's prayer. Standing over six feet and weighing close to 190, this boy has the strength of an ox and the speed of a Paddock. His ability to nab passes is nearly enough to win him a berth. He is high scorer for his team."

(Ed. note—Evidently "Hitch" would have been some help to Winchester this fall.)

WINCHESTER UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF COMMITTEE MEETING

A full meeting of the committee was held in Winchester Town Hall Monday evening. Extraordinary interest was manifested.

The organization consists of the leading Town officials, Presidents of each bank, pastors representing all churches, the presidents of all the social and welfare organizations of the town, and one additional member of each of the foregoing. This makes a committee of more than 100 members.

A complete survey of the town has been made. Up to date 284 persons have applied for work. More applications are coming in.

Clothing is being assembled in liberal quantities. Its distribution is already under way. Distribution hours 2 to 5 p. m. on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays only. Much more clothing is needed, particularly overcoats, sweaters and other warm clothing. Children's shoes are in great demand. If donors can attach known sizes to garments and shoes, it will aid the committee.

At least one-third of the applicants for work must have new jobs created for them. Money must be raised for this purpose.

Four hundred persons will on Tuesday next begin a canvass of each house in the town, asking that all employed persons contribute for the benefit of the unemployed. Payments are requested on the basis of one payment each month for six months.

The Finance Committee, consisting of the Presidents and four associates, representing the four banks, are of the opinion that $48,000 will be required to care for one-third the number of applicants for work. This is $8000 per month for six months. This is the goal of the Committee as it represents the minimum amount that will be required to care for one out of each 30 families of Winchester residents, selected from one out of ten families who have applied for work or aid or both.

WINCHESTER WOMAN HONORED

Mrs. Myra E. Segitz of Sheffield West was the honor guest at a dinner dance given by the Alumni of the Massachusetts State School of Art, at the Twentieth Century Club, Saturday evening. Mrs. Segitz was a member of the first class of the Art School when it was founded in 1873, and is the only member of her class able to attend the meetings. Among the other Winchester people who attended the annual meeting were Mrs. Virgil Ghirardini of Foxcroft road in the class of 1907, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Newell of Manchester road. Mr. Newell, the principal of the school and also the State Director of Art, spoke on, "What the Alumni Means to the School."

TEMPORARY CHURCH NOW UNDER CONSTRUCTION FOR IMMACULATE CONCEPTION PARISH

Work was begun on Tuesday upon the construction of a temporary church for the new Immaculate Conception Parish embracing a part of Winchester and Woburn.

The new church will be located on Sheridan circle south at the corner of Watson place upon land which the Catholic diocese has owned for many years. It will be of steel frame, wood construction, 75 feet long, 45 feet in width, with a seating capacity of 450. The T. J. Quinn Mfg. Co. of Wakefield is directing the work and the estimated cost of the building is $10,000.

NEW LIBRARY DEDICATION

Dedication exercises of the new Winchester Public Library Building will be held at 3 p. m. on Saturday, Dec. 5. In the evening there will be a public inspection of the building.

One Out of Ten Families

The bread winners in one out of each ten families in Winchester are out of work. Most of them have never before asked for help. The labor scarcity of last winter used up their savings. Of course a few are neither competent or industrious; but the great majority are self-respecting and anxious for nothing but the opportunity for steady work.

Some two hundred eighty-four persons have applied for jobs. Others will apply. Perhaps two-thirds of them can be helped through Town work now going on or special jobs provided by citizens, or by their own efforts. We estimate that about one-third must be helped by creating new jobs. Money must be raised to employ this third.

The Town departments will build new gravel sidewalks and improve old ones. They will do important park grading and other work of permanent value to the Town, if money is provided to do it.

Under the law non-citizens cannot be employed on public work if citizens are available; but the Committee can employ non-citizens and give their services to the Town.

MONEY IS THEREFORE THE KEY TO THE WHOLE PROBLEM

Money earned will buy food and clothing, and pay rent.

We must raise a minimum of $8000 per month for six successive months, total $48,000, to care for one-third the number of applicants.

Must we not share with the least fortunate? EVERYONE who is employed or has a living income is asked to contribute something each month for the next six months.

Every house in the town is to be canvassed for help. Two representatives will call upon you next week, asking for monthly pledges. Please be prepared to aid them to the limit of your ability.

ROTARY CLUB

Six absentees were recorded at the meeting of Nov. 23.

The above attendance record is one of the best we ever had for a meeting held out of town. Perhaps the mild spring-like weather had something to do with this. Certainly the unusual attractions of the meeting itself caused a large percentage of our membership to attend.

The Rotary Club of Lexington acted as host to the Concord and Winchester Clubs, and approximately 100 Rotarians gathered at the Masonic Apartments in Lexington in joint meeting.

Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers was guest speaker on this occasion. She brought to us delightful reminiscences of various officials whom she has met in the course of her life of political service and discussed briefly some of the outstanding problems which confront the coming session of Congress. We gather from Mrs. Rogers remarks that our Representatives at Washington are more than ever anxious to be guided by reasonable demands from their constituents and that public good rather than political expediency will have the right of way with our legislators, when they convene.

The Rotary Club of Winchester wishes to extend hearty thanks to the Rotary Club of Lexington for the splendid dinner and entertainment which featured this joint session. The prospect of greeting these men again in Woburn on Dec. 8 brings much pleasure to our members.

Our next meeting will be held regularly at home quarters on Dec. 3. We are reminded that whereas President "Chuch" has held his present office since July 1, the Club has not yet favored him with a 100 per cent meeting. Let us determine to do this on Dec. 3.

Percentage of Attendance for Nov. 19—87.87 per cent.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

A meeting of the Winchester Chapter Guild of the Infant Saviour was held Tuesday, Nov. 24 at Fortnightly Hall. Tea was served by Mrs. G. Murphy, Mrs. C. McDonald, Mrs. N. Moffett, Mrs. A. Carr, chairmen.

THE MAN FROM TORONTO

The Man from Toronto, a clever comedy by Douglas Murray, was presented Friday evening, Nov. 20 at the Unitarian Church before a large audience keenly appreciative of the humorous situations constantly arising in the play.

Clare C. Reynolds, as the young widow Mrs. Calthorpe, was wholly delightful, interpreting her lines in a whimsical, fun-loving fashion. She was quite equal to either the role of mistress or that of the parlor maid Polly Perkins. Theodore R. Godwin made an admirable man from Toronto, Fergus Wimbush, compelled by a tiresome will to seek out and marry the widow Mrs. Calthorpe in order to become heir to a large fortune. In the part of guardian, trustee, uncle by marriage and legal adviser to the widow, Charles R. Carter had opportunity to be gruff and severe, gentle and sentimental as occasion demanded. He added greatly to the humor and clever development of the play.

John Gruver, filling in at the last minute for George R. Dunham, did a clever piece of acting as Mrs. Calthorpe's cousin, Robert Gilmour, constantly playing the buffer for her in her escapades. Doris G. McLeod was a competent maid, quite equal to the different situations into which she fell. Dorothy Carr and Jean Merrill were mother and daughter to the life, the former's photograph causing much of the play's complication. The two sisters of Fergus Wimbush were portayed by Alma Nutter and Caroline Drisko. They nicely revealed the difference between Ruth and Ada Wimbush, one so austere and inquisitive, the other so young and modern.

Mr. Frank E. Fowle deserves great praise for his direction of the play. To Mrs. Kenneth F. McLeod, chairman of Dramatics for the Ladies' Friendly Society which sponsored the play goes tremendous credit for her splendid management of the play, the cast and the innumerable details of presentation.

NO MORE TAX SUMMONSES

Tax Collector Nathaniel M. Nichols announced this week that the former summonse for unpaid taxes has been eliminated by State enactment, and that in the future only a demand will be sent. Demands will add 35c to the original tax bill.

JEANNE PHELPS IN NEW HAMPSHIRE MAGAZINE

Little Jeanne Phelps, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Phelps of Grassmere avenue, had the following story printed about her summer activities in the New Hampshire Troubadour, a monthly publication issued by the New Hampshire State Development Commission, Concord, N. H.

"Jeanne Phelps, 13, who lives with her mother and grandmother on a farm near New Boston every summer, takes care of two horses and her own flock of hens. She waters, feeds, and cleans the horses, and handles her chickens like a young business woman. She had 190 hens this past summer. Not many girls have more real enjoyment. Jeanne would like to live on the farm all the time. Possibly if you have children who do not know what to do with themselves, or cannot keep out of mischief, a farm stocked with animals of their very own may be the solution of your problem."

WINCHESTER GIRLS HONORED AT B. U. SARGENT SCHOOL

The Misses Mary Cutter of Winchester and Helen Bidwell, formerly of this town, were among those presented athletic awards at Boston University's Sargent School of Physical Education last Friday, awards being for meritorious participation in sports at the school's summer and fall camps.

The ex-Winchester High girls received the highest number of awards, Miss Cutter being awarded two gold medals and letters while Miss Bidwell received a gold medal and letters. The Misses Cutter and Bidwell were winners of tennis doubles at camp this summer, and in amateur circles Miss Cutter won doubles in the Massachusetts State girls' tournament last season. Miss Bidwell was the State winner in singles and mixed doubles last year.

MOORE—SMITH

Mr. and Mrs. F. Patterson Smith of 89 Cambridge street announce the marriage of their daughter, Cornelia Mary and Dr. William J. Moore in New York City, Nov. 23.

Mrs. Moore is a graduate of the Museum School of Fine Arts, Boston and attended Massachusetts State College.

Dr. Moore is the son of Mr. and Mrs. I. Porter Moore of Macon, Ga. and is taking his bride to Roberta, Ga. where he will resume his practice after spending Thanksgiving at the home of the bride's parents.

WESTERN MISSIONARY SOCIETY

The Ladies' Western Missionary Society of the First Congregational Church will meet on Thursday, Dec. 3 from 10 to 4. Board meeting at 11. Box luncheon at 12:15. A hot dish and coffee will be served.

The speaker at the afternoon meeting will be a representative of Woman's Seamans' Friend Society.

Merrill Tucker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tucker and formerly of this town, is now connected with Woods' Travel service in Boston. It will be remembered that he was with Temple Tours, Inc., from 1925 until this company went into bankruptcy and closed its doors last month. During this time Mr. Tucker has traveled extensively, including two summers in Europe.

ROYAL ARCH CHAPTER ENTERTAINS

Wrestling Enjoyed

Winchester Royal Arch Chapter was host on Friday to a large number of members and guests on the occasion of the regular November meeting. Ex. Harry N. Squires, Jr., High Priest, presided and after a short business session, during which Samuel S. McNeilly was installed as First Veil by Ex. Kingman P. Cass, the gathering adjourned to the social hall where a series of wrestling bouts by the Viking Club of Woburn had been arranged under the direction of Gustav O. Hakanson.

George E. Smith acted as announcer and referee, with George F. Arnold as timekeeper. The first bout went ten minutes to a draw between "Dick" Caldwell of Winchester and John Neiman of Woburn in the 140 pound class. The boys were evenly matched and neither had the advantage. Then followed another ten minute match between Harold Anderson of Winchester and Albert Norden of Burlington. Announced as 125 pounders, the contestants treated the audience to some very fast going. One or the other went flying in the air in breathless succession, but at the end of ten minutes neither could be announced the winner and this contest was also declared a draw. Anderson had Norden on the mat several times but the latter was always able to wriggle loose before a fall was declared.

The final match of the evening was slated for 30 minutes and as George had announced for the benefit of the fans that it would take no less than five falls to win, the wrestlers got into action at once. Henry Stemquist of Woburn, New England Amateur Lightweight champion a year ago was pitted against Fred Anderson of Winchester, coach of the Viking Club, and following the first fall in ten minutes, credited to Anderson, three falls ensued in rapid succession, the score then standing three to one for Anderson. The exhibtion was a delight to the audience, to whom Coach Anderson had previously explained many of the usual holds, Referee Smith also commenting from time to time on tactics of the participants for the benefit of those present. As the match wore on, however, one of the contestants protested various rulings of the referee, and apparently getting no satisfaction, broke loose with a flying tackle on George, followed by his opponent, all three falling in a grand melee. Excitement reigned among the fans, several springing to the assistance of George who emerged minus various portions of his attire, to the intense glee of the spectators, and declared the match ended. The stunt was well planned and thoroughly enjoyed.

MISS WHITLEY ENGAGED

Rev. and Mrs. John E. Whitley announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Elizabeth Whitley to Harold Tirrell Gerry of Cambridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Gerry of 36 Hawthorne street, Cambridge. Miss Whitley is a graduate of Radcliffe and took her master's degree from Columbia University. Mr. Gerry received his degree from Massachusetts Institute of Technology and has completed his studies for his Ph.D. He is now research assistant in the department of physical chemistry.

Positive Proof of FORD ECONOMY

City of Detroit purchases 137 new Ford cars
Hundreds now in use prove low cost of operation

21 radio-equipped Ford scout cars were traded in on this purchase. They had been operated day and night for two years in heavy traffic and all kinds of weather.

Their individual records ranged from 78,434 miles to 143,723 miles with a grand total of 2,283,097 miles. The operating cost of the 21 cars was 2.284 cents a mile — less than 2 1/3 cents. This cost included all fuel, oil, tires, repairs and every other item except depreciation and insurance.

Of 577 Ford cars in Detroit City service, the 300 in the Police Department traveled a total of 6,591,937 miles during the past fiscal year, at an average cost of 2.9 cents a mile.

Many claims have been made on operating costs, but here in the carefully kept motor car records of the City of Detroit is positive proof of Ford economy.

In the paragraphs above, it is seen that 21 Ford scout cars averaged less than 2 1/3 cents a mile and 300 Ford cars in all branches of Detroit police work averaged 2.9 cents a mile!

Day and night, twenty-four hours a day, these Ford cars are in operation. Few branches of transportation demand such grueling service. The records show that low fuel and oil consumption is but one of the Ford's many economies. Ford materials, simplicity of design and accuracy in manufacturing provide unusual strength, stamina and freedom from replacements and repairs.

The individual car buyer as well as the purchasing department of a city or a business cannot afford to ignore the proved economy of the Ford car.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

A very enthusiastic meeting of the local union was held at the home of Mrs. George Arnold on Friday, Nov. 20. Several bags were made for the sailors' department of which Mrs. Arnold is director. Mrs. Leonard Waters spoke of the all day County executive meeting which she had attended in Woburn and plans presented were discussed. In view of the fact that the wet element is trying to repeal the 18th amendment by resubmission to the States, the following resolution was adopted:

"Whereas, prohibition has been of far reaching social and economic good to the people of the Nation in general: Be it Resolved, that we oppose repeal of the 18th amendment by resubmission to the states until a substitute is found warranted to conserve the social and economic gains of prohibition.

"Be it further resolved, that a copy of this resolution be sent to our Congressman and to the chairman of the State Republican and Democratic committees.

MASS. S. P. C. A. AUXILIARY NOTES

The support which is being given to the newly formed Winchester Auxiliary to the Massachusetts S. P. C. A. was evident on last Friday afternoon when an interested audience met in the parlor of the First Congregational Church to listen to an address by Mrs. Edith Washburn Clarke President of the Boston Auxiliary.

In a convincing manner she explained why such an organization is needed in our town, and pointed out various matters to which the Winchester group should direct their efforts.

Encouraging news was brought of an auxiliary recently organized in Taunton, and also of the new Animal shelter in Springfield, which is nearly completed and will be dedicated on the third of December.

The new anti-steel trap law, which recently went into effect in Massachusetts was discussed by the speaker and the difficulties to be dealt with in securing its enforcement.

Plans are now being made for the horses' Christmas, an annual event with the S. P. C. A. Truck loads of bags of feed are distributed in stables and barns where it is known that there is need of this special treat.

The speaker said that although the number of horses in the state is so much smaller than before the days of the automobile, the records show that of the cases of cruelty handled by the Society in the past three months, 50 per cent are for cruelty to horses, a proportion which holds true throughout the year.

In the period of question and discussion which followed Mrs. Clarke's talk, Mrs. Elizabeth Worthen told of conditions in Turkey where the law forbids the killing of any animal. This means that a sick or injured animal is left to die a slow and often horrible death.

She described how a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was started in Constantinople, and has grown until its work has spread throughout the Turkish Empire, and its founder was recently decorated by the Sultan for her valuable and courageous service.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Richard S. Taylor. Several new members were enrolled.

HIGH SCHOOL DRAMATIC SOCIETY TO PRESENT "OUTWARD BOUND"

On Friday evening, Dec. 4, the Dramatic Soicety of the Winchester High School will present "Outward Bound." The scene throughout the play is laid on board a ship outward bound—but where? Gradually it is revealed that all the passengers (with the exception of two) are dead. What happens after this terrifying revelation is made clear to them is beautifully brought out in the play itself.

Persons represented in the play are:

| | |
|---|---|
| Scrubby | William Seaver |
| Ann | Harriette Jackson |
| Henry | William Sawyer |
| Mr. Prior | Stanley Osgood |
| Mrs. Cliveden Banks | Marguerite Bartlett |
| Rev. William Duke | Albert Cutter |
| Mrs. Midget | Harriette Cooper |
| Mr. Lingley | Kenneth Campbell |
| Rev. Frank Thomson | Iva Hakanson |

The performance which is to be held in the high school assembly hall will start at 8:15.

Troop 1, the youngest Girl Scout Troop, held a most successful food sale Saturday, Nov. 14. The proceeds were $33. Captain McElwain was assisted by a very efficient troop committee composed of Mrs. John West, Mrs. Horace Butler, Mrs. Robert Armstrong, Mrs. C. Harold Smith and Mrs. William Martin.

NEEDLEWORK GUILD OF AMERICA

Winchester is fortunate to be numbered among the 665 communities where a branch of the Needlework Guild has been established. These branches are scattered throughout 40 different states, and in the year 1930 there were 1,819,000 new garments and household articles distributed. Winchester's share toward this grand total was nearly 600, and the articles covered many fields of usefulness. Among them were 31 blankets, 30 pairs bloomers, seven women's dresses, 21 winter caps, 14 sweaters, 73 night garments, 138 pairs stockings, 69 pairs gloves and mittens, 66 towels, 78 under-garments and six napkins. All articles collected by the directors are distributed through local charitable organizations.

This year's annual meeting was held at the Methodist Church on Wednesday, Nov. 18 at 2 p. m. with the 20 directors and some of the contributing members in attendance. A cordial welcome was given the speaker, Miss Hilda M. Torrop, Superintendent of the Winchester Hospital. She commended the work of the Guild, and then gave delightful glimpses into the life and work of the student nurses, during their three year's training. She showed the high ideals and standards always held as a goal to be attained in the lives of those dedicated to service. In closing she made an appeal that friends of the hospital remember to share some of their pleasures and privileges with the nurses in training. Tickets to theatre, lecture or concert bring untold pleasure, and real inspiration to the girls whose time is so devotedly given to routine work and the alleviation of suffering, during years when amusement and pleasure make especial appeal.

The simplicity of organization is one of the strongest points in favor of the Needlework Guild—the gift of two new garments constitutes membership and there is but one meeting annually.

This year unusual generosity was shown, and again the welfare workers have the joy of distributing where there is greatest need.

The Executives will continue in office: Mrs. Harry E. Sanborn, president; Mrs. Eugene Wilde and Mrs. Louis Barta, vice-presidents; Mrs. Roberts, secretary and Mrs. George Fitch, treasurer, appointed in place of Mrs. Wentworth who had been a generous and devoted member until the time of her death last summer.

MR. AND MRS. HARGROVE CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

Last Sunday, from early morning until late in the evening, was a memorable occasion, in the lives of two of Winchester's well known residents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hargrove, of 898 Main street.

All day they were called upon to receive relatives and friends who took advantage of the occasion in order to extend best wishes for "Many Happy Returns of the Day." Flowers, cards, letters, gifts and telegrams of congratulation were received, all through the day and from 7 p. m. until 11:30 p. m. a formal reception, attended by over 100 relatives and friends, took place.

Mr. and Mrs. Hargrove, reminiscent of their wedding in St. Bernard's Church, Concord, 50 years ago, received in a bower of beautiful golden Chrysanthemums and roses.

Following the reception a fine program of entertainment was offered with the following guests contributing their services: Mrs. Harry McCaffrey of Somerville, Miss Mabel M. Coty, Mrs. Mollie L. Maguire, Mrs. Nellie Flanagan, Mr. James A. Cullen, Mr. Wm. E. McDonald, Jr., all of Winchester and Mr. Joseph Kenney of Woburn. A feature of the evening was an original poem, "The Story of 50 Years," dedicated to the happy couple and written and read by Mrs. Elizabeth C. McDonald.

Supper was served by a caterer, and guests were present from Winchester, Woburn, Stoneham, Wakefield, Concord, Lexington, Randolph, Somerville, Roslindale and Lincoln.

WINCHESTER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

A meeting of the officers and directors of the Chamber of Commerce was held Nov. 20 at their office 5 Common street.

The problem of getting the chain stores to close on holidays as is done in other towns and cities, was discussed and the opinion was unanimous that our town should be treated on an equal with other places.

Under the head of Public Welfare, it was voted to send letters to the Water and Sewer Board and to the Board of Selectmen regarding the work to be done on the water shed, thereby furnishing employment to some of the unemployed. In relation to removing more of the hardwood trees, an official of the State Department of Forestry has offered to mark the trees that he thinks should be removed for the benefit of our water supply. This wood is readily sold at $8 per cord on the lot.

The preservation of our west side hills for residential purposes, is considered of great importance by the Chamber.

The parking of automobiles in our centre is a matter for careful consideration. It is pleasing to note the progress being made on Railroad avenue leading to the pond.

The great work of improvement that has been done and still is being done by Mr. Parkhurst, is very much appreciated.

George H. Lochman,
President

WINCHESTER WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Republican Club will be held Wednesday, Dec. 2 at 2:30 p. m. at Association Hall.

The speaker of the afternoon will be Mrs. J. Hasbrouck LeFevre whose subject is "Current Events at Home and Abroad." This subject should be especially interesting and educational also. The soloist of the afternoon will be Mrs. Henry A. Bridge, violinist.

Following the meeting tea will be served by the social committee.

Miss Ruth Gray, a student at Kendall Hall, Pride's Crossing, and daughter of Mr. Everett Gray of Highland avenue, spent the Thanksgiving holidays in Winchester.

ALICE E. CATE'S "THOSE P. S.'S"

The many Winchester friends of Mrs. Alice E. Cate of Belmont will be gratified to know of the favorable comments which have been made on her book, "Those P. S.'s," a travel romance in the form of letters. Mr. John Clair Minot, the literary editor of the Boston Herald, in reviewing the book, refers to it as "unique in its conception and execution," and that it "is more than a sublimated guidebook and more than a conventional love story and the author has accomplished a difficult task with real distinction."

The New Bedford Standard, in a recent Sunday issue, devoted a page and a half to the author and her recent works, of which "Those P. S.'s" has just been published, and a romance based upon the career of Henry Hudson is in press. In commenting on "Those P. S.'s" the writer refers to the "serene philosophy" of the author and to the "gay and philosophical characters." The travel part of the book is thus characterized, "highway and byways of England seen through the eyes of a buoyant traveler with a pronounced literary background are painted in delectable pictures."

The Boston Evening Transcript in a review of the book says:

"To those who may never be given the luxury of a trip to England or France this story by Mrs. Cate will prove a delightful substitute. For those who have either already been there or contemplate going it will be a most enjoyable reminder of things already seen or that should not be missed."

A good for a Christmas present or to give to a friend who has been, or contemplates going, to Europe.

WINCHESTER WON FROM SAUGUS

Third Quarter Touchdown Enough to Decide Issue

Winchester High, after a week's layoff following the heart breaking Maynard game, came back to hand a big Saugus team a 6 to 0 licking last Saturday afternoon at Saugus. The locals outplayed the opposition more than the score would indicate.

Saugus had enjoyed one of its best seasons previous to the Winchester game and the Saugus coach made no bones about considering Coach Linderman's charges easy picking. Before the teams squared away the Saugus boys went through a very snappy drill which included some corking punting and they were very confident of the issue as the elevens took the field.

The whistle had hardly blown when things looked very dubious for the local cause. Winchester received and ran the ball back to its 26 yard line. The referee, however, ruled that Winchester had been guilty of clipping on the play and the 25 yard penalty returned the ball to the local's 1 yard marker.

Saugus had high hopes of blocking Lynch's kick, but "Johnnie" got the ball away nicely, being accorded some fine protection. This marked the only time Saugus was near enough to Winchester's goal line to be in real scoring position, and in this instance Winchester had possession of the ball.

On the other hand Coach Linderman's charges were soon knocking at a score. The quarter wasn't far along when Winchester came into possession of the ball at midfield. After rushing to a first down Lynch tossed off a 25 yard pass to Tofuri who ran 10 yards to the Saugus 5 yard marker before being knocked outside.

Lynch and Knowlton crashed the line to the 2 yard line and one the next play Tofuri found a hole in the Saugus frontier and went across the goal line. He was hit hard by the Saugus secondary and fumbled, the ball being recovered by Saugus just on the field of play.

The home club kicked out of danger, but just before the half time Winchester threatened again. Taking the ball just inside midfield the locals rushed to the Saugus six yard line where its attack flivvered and the ball was taken by Saugus on downs.

After the half Winchester made its touchdown. Receiving a punt at the Saugus 40 the local attack quickly gained momentum and swept down the field. Lynch finally getting away for a 15 yard jaunt to a first down at the 15 yard line.

Lynch plunged twice to take the ball to another first down inside the five yard stripe and on the next play "Piggy" Knowlton swept over for the touchdown on a pretty reverse.

The teams lined up and Knowlton plunged through center for the extra point, but the referee ruled that he had blown his whistle before the little battering ram crossed the line and despite Winchester's protest refused to allow the goal.

This was but one of the instances when the officiating was open to question and most of the time Winchester was apparently playing not only Saugus but those in charge of the game. Coach Linerman's charges were penalized in the neighborhood of 150 yards during the afternoon, and any who have seen the team play this season will question these figures, especially in view of the fact that Saugus was only called for two incomplete forwards in sequence. It is hardly possible for that much difference between two schoolboy teams.

As the game wore along Tofuri was sent to the sidelines for arguing with the referee and Tremberth went into the game. Little "Deck" Mobbs replaced Mills at halfback and did a corking job in the matter of intercepting Saugus passes. Procopio played the whole game at tackle and showed ability to break through the Saugus forwards, but was weak on his tackling, due to his long layoff. Knowlton played well in the local backfield and Lynch did a good job of punting in place of Hannon who is under the faculty ban.

MISS GEORGIANNA HOLTON

Miss Georgianna Holton, formerly of Winchester, died Sunday, Nov. 22, in Cleveland, Ohio. She left Winchester about 35 years ago and had been making her home with her brother, Edward C. Holton, at Olmstead Falls, near Cleveland.

Miss Holton was born Dec. 19, 1852, in Boston. Her parents, Samuel and Tryphene (Clapp) Holton, removed to Winchester when she was a child and she was educated in the Winchester schools, later becoming well known in the town as a music teacher. The Holton homestead was on Washington street opposite the Nathaniel Richardson house and Miss Holton's father, a Boston merchant, was one of the large land holders in that section of the town.

Besides the brother, with whom she made her home, Miss Holton is survived by a sister, Mrs. Amanda Lundberg of Boulder Junction, Wis.

Largely attended funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon in the Kelley & Hawes Chapel with the Rev. John E. Whitley, pastor of the Second Congregational Church officiating. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

Daily Reminders, Weekly Pads and Calendar Pads are at the Star Office.

Bugle and Drum Corps

The first meeting of the Bugle and Drum Corps for this season was held Monday evening, Nov. 23 at the Unitarian Church Parish Hall from 6:45 to 8. Seventy Girl Scouts reported and were formed into two corps. Instruction periods were conducted under the able leadership of Mr. Chester Whiting, drillmaster, Mr. Quimby, drum instructor, Mr. Frederick Whitehouse, bugle instructor, with Scout Anita Wilson acting as drum major. This was a most enthusiastic meeting and a winter of beneficial and enjoyable work seems in store for these Scouts. This branch of Scouting appeals greatly to the girls and affords a splendid opportunity for each one to learn to play an instrument, acquire good posture and develop coordination. The activities of the corps brings scouting before the public in a pleasant and enjoyable manner and opens up to the Scouts themselves many opportunities for community service.

The Seahorse

The tiny seahorse gallops along over the coral of the warm tropical sea safely incased in a bony armor. Municipal aquariums throughout the country have specimens of this interesting little fish, which must be kept in salt water similar to that of its sea home. It is so called because of its startling resemblance to our equine friend. It, too, feeds on grass, of marine character, and disports itself as lively as any colt of the pastureland.

Roosevelt's Gift

It was frequently said of President Roosevelt that he had a photographic mind. At a glance he could take in the contents of an entire page of a book.

STAR PICKS ALL MIDDLESEX LEAGUE TEAMS

Thanksgiving Day marked the close of the Middlesex League football schedule, and as a consequence open season for picking "all" teams including players around the circuit. The Star has for some years past chosen All Mystic Valley League teams, but Winchester's withdrawal from that group and entrance into the Middlesex League focussed our attention upon the latter organization.

We have found the choice of an all Middlesex team rather more difficult than the selection of an all Mystic eleven. The first named league embraces smaller schools and its teams have boasted fewer outstanding stars as a consequence. Boys like Flaherty of Winchester, Aldrich and Pounder of Belmont and Kendra of Maynard were easy to pick, but in general Middlesex games have been so closely contested that the stars engaged have found it difficult to shine and as a consequence have not been so easy to spot from the sidelines.

We, of course, have had to pick our teams from what the boys have shown against Winchester, which lays our selections open to the objection that on that particular day any player may have been playing way over his head or been distinctly off his game. But "all" teams mean little or nothing at best so we're offering ours for the hammers of the anvil chorus.

Our ends are Avery of Stoneham and Higgs of Belmont. Neither had an apparent weakness on defense and both were capable pass receivers. Avery being particularly adept at the overhead game as well as being the confident, cocky type with plenty of color. Frigard of Maynard and Mobbs of Winchester are a stride behind in all around excellence, though little Mobbs had no peer as a wrecker of interference and given a bit more poundage, would have been "up there."

Aldrich of Belmont was the best of the tackles to show against Winchester and is our first choice for one of these important positions on our first team. Offensively this boy had a fierce charge and little ground was gained through him all season. Fish, our other first team tackle, played guard and was just about the whole line for his Concord team. The biggest lineman in the league, he was a great defensive player and we believe would be fully as effective at tackle as at guard. He belongs on our first team yet we think Bukarz of Maynard and Flaherty of Winchester are superior as guards to the big boy.

Elliott of Belmont and the half-pint Tranfaglia of Winchester were right behind the leaders in all around class and the latter's defensive play for a boy of his inches was something to wonder at.

Our first team guards were easy to pick. Both Captain Flaherty of Winchester and Bukarz of Maynard were outstanding linemen, and if we had to name the best all around rushline performer on the circuit, we'd name the former. He was literally in every play and little ground was gained inside or outside his position. Bukarz also did everything well and was the sturdy type who could take it. Loomis of Belmont was a fine guard and Clark, Stoneham's all around lineman, gets the nod for the other second team post. Winchester players thought a lot of Clark's ability.

We think no one will question our choice of center. Lentini of Winchester was never outplayed throughout the season, and against Belmont and Maynard was good enough to remind local fans of Frank Merry, Winchester's great center of other years. While perhaps not the best passer in the league, Lentini's great defensive strength gives him an edge over the remaining pivot men. Barnes of Lexington was a good, all around center on the not-too-strong Lexington team being particularly good on defense.

Pounder, Belmont's brilliant quarterback was out in front of the remaining signal barker's of the circuit. The best running back we saw he was also a good punter and a fine passer. Megin of Concord was another all around, effective performer, able to run, kick and pass as well as run his club.

Our first string half backs are Kendra of Maynard and Knowlton of Winchester. Here again we had an easy choice for both were outstanding throughout the season. Kendra pulled the Winchester game out of the fire for Maynard with his all around brilliance, giving as good an exhibition of running, kicking and passing as we saw all season. Knowlton was perhaps most brilliant on defense. No back tackled harder or more effectively, yet the Winchester boy could also kick, pass and run and was perhaps Winchester's surest ground gainer, a hard runner off the tackles.

Tofuri, Winchester's scrappy quarterback, and O'Leary, Maynard's shifty running back, are our second team halfbacks and both were good enough through the season to work in any company. Tofuri is a natural halfback, a dodging, twisting, fighting fool who asks no quarter. O'Leary was the best combination of running back and pass receiver we noticed and his work against Winchester was outstanding.

Fullback was a hard position to pick as both Chase of Stoneham and Captain Dwyer of Belmont were good performers. Chase is chosen for our first team berth because of his greater all around ability. He not only ran well with the ball and backed up a line effectively, but in addition did Stoneham's kicking and passing, doing well in both assignments. Dwyer was a better line plunger in our opinion and perhaps a better blocker.

As utility lineman on our first team we chose Murphy, Belmont's strong guard and the margin between him and our starting linemen is slight. No coach would worry about injury with that boy on the bench. A rugged, capable individual was Mr. Murphy. The same goes for Readel of Lexington, our first team utility back. This boy, on a stronger team, would have been a whiz. He passed and ran with the best and was Lexington's only real offensive threat.

Ward of Lexington drew the utility lineman's berth on our second team and impressed us as a good all around workman. Ford of Belmont, ranked with the best backs on the circuit and his insertion in the lineup would weaken no team we can think of.

Knowing we have missed some good boys in our selections we hereby offer them our apologies, just in case they happen to take the teams seriously, which isn't likely.

MIDDLESEX VS. MEDFORD

On Saturday at Fulton Field, Medford at 2 p. m. the Middlesex Chapter Order of DeMolay is scheduled to meet the crack Medford DeMolay team.

"Doc" Gordon, well-known coach of Stoneham High is giving utmost care in the coaching of the Middlesex lads and will have a mighty field of veterans comprising a group of well-known local boys to support him. As a sure starter we have Fred Richardson, former Stoneham High boy and present varsity fullback at Bowdoin. Four Stoneham boys who will prove valuable contributions are "Bob" Johnson, J. Brigham, Willard Decker, and Paul Fredrickson, all hefty linemen and capable of big things. Another great Stoneham player is none other than Herrant Adzigian, captain of the Stoneham undefeated eleven in 1930, chosen as all-scholastic back in Boston papers, and is now starring at Lawrence Academy.

Reading contributes an impressive group: "Frannie" Bowers, captain of Reading High eleven this past season, "Jerrie" Richards, smart quarterback for the past few years, "Larry" Guicker, high-stepping back, "Shrimp" Pierpoint, ironman lineman, playing all positions, "Herb" Fowler, giant tackle of three years' experience, "Don" Sias, former captain of Reading High and H. Berhoe, all-scholastic end and now keeping company with Winchester's fighting demon, "Don" Emery at Wilbraham Academy. Winchester's sole contribution is Bruce Colpas former player of the successful 1931 season and runner-up for the Mystic Valley League title.

"Bob" Abbott of this town, now coach of Tufts Junior Varsity will umpire the game, "Art" Lenter, Captain of Medford High will act as linesman and Harry Spellman, manager of the well-drilled Reading Town Team will referee.

WINCHESTER SAFETY COMMITTEE

The members of the Winchester Safety Committee have been very active since the appointment of the committee and have been very successful in carrying out a most constructive program in co-operation with the Selectmen and the heads of our street department.

They have interested themselves at all times in every situation that might present a danger hazard and have, through the committee chairman, Selectman Vincent P. Clarke, managed to reach the proper authorities in order to obviate the danger.

The committee has had excellent co-operation from the Board of Selectmen, the Police and Fire Department, the Street and Highway Department. All the members of the committee are especially pleased at the improvement that has been brought about at the junction of Washington street and the Parkway, and at the corner of Washington and Mt. Vernon streets in front of the new Baptist Church.

Many private individuals, also, have co-operated with the committee in the matter of trimming hedges and bushes at the corners of their lots and to them the Safety Committee is very grateful.

The committee is grateful, too, to those residents of Winchester who have telephoned suggestions that have helped the committee in its work and deliberations.

For the next meeting on Wednesday evening the following sub-committees, which have been studying their various problems for the past month, will submit reports: Messrs. James J. Quinn, Chief Rogers and James J. Fitzgerald on conditions at Symmes corner; Messrs. Robert Guild George Barbaro and Chief DeCourcy to study conditions at junction of Main, Water and Swanton streets; and Messrs. Barbaro and Fitzgerald and Secretary Elizabeth C. McDonald to study conditions in the region of Swanton and Holland streets with a view to suggesting play spaces for the smaller children.

The committee will welcome suggestions for improving its work, the same to be sent to Chairman Vincent P. Clarke or Secretary Elizabeth C. McDonald.

Misplaced Credit

The honey bee has been greatly admired for the cleverness with which it constructs six-sided cells for the storage of honey. Darwin spoke of the arrangement as "inimitable" for strength and economy of space. But the truth is that no bee ever thought of a hexagon. The cells are built as cylinders, which, crowded together when soft, cannot do otherwise than assume a regular six-sided form, in obedience to mathematical law.

PAYING FOR THE TOWN'S SUPPORT

To the Editor of the Star:

Mr. Sherborn's letter of Nov. 3 was called to my attention by a boy in the street this week; not by an attorney. I was away the week-end it appeared in the Star and think my folks put the paper out of sight sooner than usual, as I found the new Star tucked away with those much older. They know epistles of this nature are like red flags shaken at a he-turkey and because of my age, they try to avoid disturbing me.

However, I did read this uncalled-for knock and noted also from whence it came indirectly. According to the town report, I said that a certain company paid $34.80 (see page 6, 1930 town report) and I really hope they are all paying something more indirectly, to our beautiful town's support. No one is so dumb in this age of education, that they don't know that if a corporation makes money they pay taxes to the State, but oh! it must be small compared to us country birds who cannot afford a string of attorneys and accountants to direct us. If anybody wants to know how much taxes this company referred to pays, just ask "Yours Truly," he knows!

I have no quarrel with the chain stores, I have one for a tenant and their rent check is usually the first out of more than 50 to reach my office every month. What I don't like is the idea of our local stores carrying us along without interest charges when we have no money, and being glad to get principle in small amounts while the dear chain life savers get all the cash. I trade in chain stores myself when I feel like it, nevertheless, I believe we would be much better off in many ways without a single chain in this great country.

We have several brands of chain stores in Winchester. Tell us, Mr. Sherborn, what they have done for Winchester? Although they have fine men in their employ and some of them pay rent, (I mean the companies themselves). They do nothing but pay rent and store their cash over night in town and draw it out the next day, and I don't believe the chain stores average $100 a year in taxes to town and state.

We have all sizes and nearly all kinds by the way. "Cheque" me up and see how near right my estimate is.

I don't know much about juggling sugar or stock market or returns of chain stores, but I do know my Winchester. "So long."

WINCHESTER AND WOBURN BATTLE TO SCORELESS TIE

Stubborn Defense Spoils Scoring Threats of Both Teams

Before a huge holiday crowd, which must have numbered more than 5000, Winchester and Woburn High Schools battled to a scoreless tie yesterday morning on Manchester Field. Both teams had chances to score, but neither could offset the stubborn goal line defense hurled in its path by the opposition. In the second quarter Winchester rushed the Orange off its feet, but its great march up the field faltered and failed on Woburn's 3-yard line where two line thrusts broke harmlessly against the bulky Altavesta.

Twice in the closing minutes of the game, Woburn crashed along to within striking distance of the Winchester goal, but each time that stubborn Black line turned back the dashing Orange backs.

Woburn had the rushing edge, rolling up 10 first downs to 5 for Winchester. Six of these first downs came after the half and 5 of the six were made during the closing minutes of the game when Winchester battled gamely to stem the Orange tide.

The Orange backs, Foley, Sheerin and Erwin ran hard and fast and were given some fine rush line holes by the Woburn forwards. Neither team got anywhere through the air though what advantage there was in this department was with the visitors.

For Winchester, Captain Flaherty, Lentini, Knowlton, Tofuri and Mills played great ball, but the local's outstanding player was "Buck" Daley, whose guard play was brilliant. Lynch did some fine punting under pressure.

Woburn kicked off and Knowlton ran the ball back 20 yards to Winchester's 35-yard line. On a sleeper play a long pass from Mills to DiAppela was just barely spoiled by Backman. Winchester lost five yards on the play for offside and Knowlton was held at the line.

Lynch kicked to Foley at Woburn's 40-yard line. On the very first play the Orange narrowly missed a score when the flashy Foley broke through the right side of Winchester's line and passed every one but Tofuri. "Patsy" missed the Woburn flash, but slowed him up and he was nailed down from behind by Mills and Knowlton at Winchester's 30. Foley and Sheerin picked up four yards, but on third down a Sheerin pass was intercepted by Knowlton who went outside at his own 25.

Knowlton was held at end and then tossed off a long pass which Tofuri dropped out alone almost at midfield. Lynch kicked but Woburn was offside and on his second kick Foley was downed on his 37-yard line.

Sheerin, McDonald and Sheerin again ground off a first down at Woburn's 48-yard stripe. DiAppela was hurt on the play and was replaced at end by Mobbs.

McDonald got only a yard at center and Foley quick kicked to Tofuri at Winchester's 37. Mills got two yards at center and Tofuri broke through for a first down at the 47.

Aylward, however, broke through and smeared Knowlton and Backman stopped Lynch at end. Lynch kicked to Foley who ran the ball to his own 48-yard line. Foley got two yards and Sheerin, three; but Woburn lost 15 yards for failing to come to a full stop on its shift and Sheerin kicked outside at Winchester's 31-yard stripe. Mills and Tofuri got only three yards at the tackles and to start the second quarter. Lynch kicked to Foley who fumbled, the ball being recovered by Flaherty at Woburn's 40.

Knowlton hit tackle for six yards and Mills cut back beautifully for a first down at the 30-yard line. Knowlton failed to gain, but Tofuri and Mills made it first down again, and after a lateral had lost a yard, Tofuri and Knowlton crashed to the Woburn 10 for another first down.

On a cut back, Mills reeled off five yards and Knowlton added two. Two bucks by Mills of Tofuri failed to move Altavesta and Woburn took the ball on downs at its 3-yard line.

Foley kicked to Tofuri at Woburn's 30, but two plays were piled up and a ten yard pass from Tofuri to Mobbs was nullified by a 5-yard penalty, Woburn taking the ball at its 27-yard line.

Foley hit the line for seven yards and Symmes went in for Randlett at tackle. Sheerin and Foley crashed along for a brace of first downs, taking the ball to Winchester's 48 as the half ended.

Procopio replaced Symmes and DiAppela, Mobbs as the second half got under way with Foley kicking to Knowlton who was downed on his 39-yard line. Tofuri got only a yard at tackle and Knowlton pulled the Harvard quick kick to Foley at Woburn's 47. Sheerin broke through to first down at Winchester's 43, but Winchester braced sharply and Sheerin had to kick to Mills who fumbled at his 20 yard line.

Tofuri scooped up the ball and ran 15 yards to his 35-yard line. Winchester couldn't get going and Lynch kicked to Foley at Woburn's 35. Foley got three yards but Knowlton came up very fast to drop Sheerin with a spectacular tackle and Sheerin kicked to Winchester's 47 yard line. Tofuri got only a yard but Knowlton on a pretty cut back raced to a first down on Woburn's 40. Knowlton added a yard, but Woburn recovered a Winchester fumble and took the ball on its 48 yard stripe.

Lentini and the irrepressible Daley stopped Foley and Sheerin short and Sheerin kicked to Tofuri at Winchester's 20-yard line as the quarter ended.

Aylward stopped an end sweep and Lynch kicked to Woburn's 43-yard line.

Here Woburn lost five yards for offside, but a pass from Foley to Lombard got nine yards and Sheerin made it first down after Daley stopped Foley.

Erwin went in for Foley and Sheerin and Erwin made it first down on Winchester's 25-yard line. Sheerin ran off Winchester's left end for five and Erwin added four yards at his own right tackle. Sheerin made first down on Winchester's 15-yard line.

Erwin and Sheerin picked up six yards through the right side of Winchester's line and McKee went in for the half-pint Tranfaglia. A pass failed to click and Sheerin was stopped by Flaherty and Lentini just short of a first down on Winchester's 5-yard line.

Lynch kicked to Erwin at Winchester's 36-yard line and Woburn started again. Sheerin hit center for three yards and passed to Lombard for 6½ more. Erwin made it first down at Winchester's 25-yard line.

Here the Tanners nearly won the game on a pass out to the left from Sheerin to Lombard who had gotten outside Mills and was all alone with another Orange player for interference. Mills desperately flicked the ball as it passed over his head and Lombard couldn't hold the wobbling leather, a life-saving muff.

Sheerin and Erwin ground out nine yards, but Erwin failed to make first down and Winchester took the ball at its 16-yard line. Knowlton and Tofuri bucked out short gains and Lynch kicked to Erwin at Winchester's 43-yard line.

Sheerin lost five on a fumble and picked up three yards at tackle before passing to Lombard for about a foot short of the first down which the Orange quarter made as the game ended.

REAL ESTATE NOTES

Mrs. Helen I. Fessenden, manager of Rush & Hamlin's local office, 47 Church street, reports the following activities:

An interesting corner property, located at 17 Norwood street, was this week conveyed from Crawford Goldthwait of Swan road to Elbridge Wyman of Chesterford road. The house is a modern seven room colonial, built by George Whithorne. It has two tiled-baths with showers, hot water heat, oil burner and a two-car garage. There is 11,650 feet of enclosed land beautifully treed and shrubbed. Mr. Wyman buys for a home.

Mr. Henry O. Lowell of Wellesley has under agreement of sale his newly finished Pennsylvia colonial house located at 17 Stowell road. This is the tenth house Mr. Powell has built on his Symmes corner development, all having been sold shortly after completion to an exceptionally desirable class of young people. These transactions were made through the local office of Rush & Hamlin.

WINCHESTER LOST TO WOBURN 13 TO 6

Offside Nullified Locals' Second Touchdown

The much discussed and written about football game between the Woburn and Winchester Town Teams took place last Sunday afternoon before a huge crowd in the Woburn High School stadium, the Tanners scoring 13 points in the first quarter to win the game, 13 to 6.

The victors enjoyed no great advantage over the locals, cashing in on two breaks of the game to roll up their 13 points. A fumble and a blocked punt led to Winchester's undoing, but to the credit of the Tanners it should be said that they were able to take advantage of their opportunities to tally.

As expected, the game was fiercely contested and rough enough to please the most rabid. On the whole it was cleanly played and well handled by Referee "Steve" Colucci, who kept the battling proclivities of the players within bounds.

Winchester was outrushed by Woburn, Desmond, Murray and McGonigle giving the Tanners a distinct backfield edge in the matter of yardage from scrimmage. Carroll and "Sam" Horn were worked to death in the local backfield and it seemed as if Chefalo and Flaherty could have been used more to advantage.

Carroll did some fine passing, getting off heaves that travelled 50 yards, but the local ends weren't able to cover and when Woburn was looking for the aerial game its defense was just too good.

The game wasn't far along when Winchester fumbled deep in its own territory and Connolly recovered on Winchester's 20 yard line. McGonigle, hard running back, split the Winchester line for 8 yards, but two more thrusts at the local frontier gained nothing and on fourth down Desmond faded back and tossed off a pass to McDonald for the touchdown. The try for goal failed.

Desmond did well to get the pass away as he slipped after getting the ball from center and the Winchester line was through on him fast. The Winchester boys slowed up as they got to Desmond and the momentary pause was all the speedy "Eddie" needed.

Winchester received and its running game failed to click. Carroll kicking from his 25 yard line. Woburn blocked the kick and Foley recovered on Winchesters 15 yard line. On this occasion the Tanners didn't try the local line but took to the air. Desmond's pass to McGonigle going for the score. Desmond place kicked the goal.

Starting the second quarter Martin recovered a Winchester fumble and the Tanners rushed to a first down on the Winchester 10 yard line. Fifteen yards for illegal use of hands slowed up the Orange and Desmond tried to pass. Carroll intercepted for Winchester and with the stands in an uproar ran 80 yards for a touchdown. The ball was brought back however when the officials ruled Winchester had been offside on Desmond's pass play, and the locals chance for a tie went haywire.

Winchester took the ball on downs and Carroll got away for a 20 yard run from kick formation, but the half was nearly up and the locals took to the air in a desperate attempt to score.

The attempt was unsuccessful, but following half time Winchester crashed through on a sweet individual effort by "Jimma" Flaherty.

An exchange of punts gave "Five Yards" the ball on his 20 yard line and the slippery halfback turned and twisted his way through the entire Woburs team, running 80 yards for a touchdown. The locals lost their extra point when they were ruled offside on the play after touchdown.

This ended things for the afternoon. McDonald of Woburn attempted a field goal from Winchester's 20 yard line late in the game but the boot fell short. The locals tried to score through the air in the closing minutes of the battle, but Carroll's long heaves were either batted down by the Woburn secondaries or too distant for the Winchester ends to cover.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

On Monday, Nov. 23, the third meeting of the season was held in the Town Hall at 2:30 p. m. The afternoon was in charge of the Dramatics Committee, and under the direction of Mrs. Lillian A. R. Whitman, chairman, a very pretty little comedy called "Love-in-a-Mist" was staged.

Each part was well taken and the Fortnightly is to be congratulated upon having so many fine actresses among its members.

Carolyn D. Gilpatric as Diana Wynne, the maid who believed in telling little white lies to smooth over difficult situations, was charming. Mabel H. Gage and Muriel N. Trout, cast as men, gave very creditable performances and Martha W. Kelley as the maiden Aunt was delightful.

Others in the cast were Thelma C. Pitman as Sidney Rose Wynne, the less vivacious but equally charming sister of Diana and Amy D. Orpin and Dorothy M. Wills as servants.

The stage settings were in charge of Mrs. Margaret P. Bates.

The meeting Dec. 7 will be in charge of the Literature Group. The subject will be "Two Years in the West Indies" by Lafcadio Hern.

Notice was given that the Town Disbursement Committee would like donations of clothing, particularly children's clothing. The room in the rear of the Town Hall is open all day and things may be left there at any time.

The committee would also like the Fortnightly to take charge of the room one day a week, on Thursday, giving out clothing to the needy, etc. All cases are previously investigated. Those who care to help in this good cause will kindly give their names to the president or vice-president.

Notice of the next Club Institute comes Dec. 3 at the Y. W. C. A. All members are invited.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Course in Principles of Scoutmastership

The sixth session of the course in "Principles of Scoutmastership" will be held in Room 3, Medford Building, Wednesday, Dec. 2. Philip Emerson, Deputy Commissioner in the Lynn Council will be the speaker on the subject of "Education for Character," and "Character Values of Scouting."

Camp Kenoza Short Term Camps

Because the Council has provided better facilities for short term camps at Kenoza, the camp is more popular this year than was the case last year. Troops are applying for the privilege of using Camp Kenoza for the purpose of conducting short term camps under troop leadership. The Scout Leader's cottage has been fixed up with bunks, eating utensils, and for a small fee firewood is supplied.

Court of Honor

Burlington-Woburn Court—Dec. 15, and on the third Tuesday of each month thereafter.

Medford Board of Review for Second Class and First Class Rank, the second Wednesday of the month at the Scout office.

Stoneham Court—Wednesday, Dec. 2.

Winchester Public Court of Honor, Winchester Town Hall, Saturday, Dec. 5. Parents and friends of the boys invited to attend.

Council Public Court of Honor

Plans for the Council-wide Public Court of Honor to be held in February, are progressing. Scouts throughout the Council are reminded that badges earned in December, January and February will be publicly awarded at this Public Court of Honor. The several Courts of Honor of the Council will combine to make this Council-wide Public Court a big event in the Scout year. Scouts who were present at last year's Public Court of Honor will remember the splendid program of that event. Scouts are urged to start now to prepare for this Court.

Troop News

If Troop scribes will send items of Troop doings to the Scout office not later than Wednesday, they will appear in local publications sometime during the week received. Troops are urged to send in stories of Troop events.

Winchester District Hike

Scouts of this district will go on a hike Saturday, Nov. 28, leaving the First Congregational Church at 2:30 p. m. The hike will be to Camp Gleason, where tracking, cooking, and other outdoor Scout tests will be given.

Winchester District Court of Honor

The Winchester District will have a Public Court of Honor on Saturday, Dec. 5 at 7:45 p. m. in the Winchester Town Hall.

The program of the Court is as follows:

1. Inspection.
2. Fire Lighting (bow and drill). Time limit three minutes, the boy getting fire is less than 30 seconds will have one point added to his total score for each two seconds short of that time.
3. Horse Signaling. Flags, buzzers or blinkers may be used. If more than one buzzer or blinker is used, separate score will count for them.
4. Chair and Handkerchief Game. (Team of 10 boys from each troop.)
5. Fire Lighting (flint and steel).
6. Bandaging Contest. Not more than two teams from each Troop. Team to consist of one victim and four workers. (a) Ankle. (b) Figure 8. (c) Spiral reverse on forearm. (d) Head. Best work to count. Time limit five minutes.
7. Semaphore signaling.
8. Awards.
9. Closing exercises.

The parents and friends of the boys are invited to attend the Public Court of Honor.

UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICE

A large and representative congregation assembled last Sunday evening for the Union Thanksgiving Service of the Protestant Churches of Winchester held in the First Baptist Church. The clergy and choir entered the sanctuary in an impressive processional. Rev. John E. Whitley led in the responsive reading. The congregation stood to receive the President's proclamation while it was read by the Rev. J. West Thompson.

Miss Wilhelmina Johannsen, soprano, sang Handel's "How Beautiful Upon the Mountains" with great feeling and the choir rendered a thanksgiving anthem. The hearty singing of the congregation was a marked feature of the service.

Rev. George H. Reed led in thoughtful devotions and Rev. Dwight W. Hadley preached an inspiring sermon appropriate to the festival. Dr. Howard J. Chidley made a special plea for a generous offering and Rev. Benjamin P. Browne pronounced the benediction. The occasion was felt to be of great profit to the community spirit.

DREAM PICTURES OF HOLY LAND

Dream Pictures of the Holy Land will feature an unusual lecture at the First Baptist Church on Sunday evening by a recent traveller in Palestine, Dr A. T. Kempton of Cambridge. Of the 150 art slides to be shown on the screen, nearly all were taken by Dr. Kempton himself with a view to portraying the haunting beauty of some of the historic places dear to the heart of the world.

This lecture has been arranged in part by the church school of the First Baptist Church as a feature in religious education. Parents are invited to bring children who desire to know more about "The Homeland of the Master." The special soloist of the evening will be Miss Corrinne Paine of Brookline.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE AT CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

The Thanksgiving service held at First Church of Christ, Scientist, was well attended.

The service opened with the singing of Hymn 86, "Make Channels for the Streams of Love."

The First Reader then read the Thanksgiving Proclamation written by the Governor of the State, and a Scriptural selection, taken from Psalms.

The congregation was then requested to join in a few moments of silent devotion, followed by the audible repetition of the Lord's Prayer with its spiritual interpretation as given in the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy.

Hymn 195, "Shepherd, Show Me how to go, O'er the Hillside Steep" followed.

The subject of the Lesson-sermon was "Thanksgiving," the Golden Text being from I Thessalonians 5:18 "In every thing give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you."

One of the Scriptural passages contained in the Lesson-Sermon was from the 35th Psalm, "I will give thee thanks in the great congregation: I will praise thee among much people . . . Let them shout for joy, and be glad, that favour my righteous cause: yea, let them say continually, Let the Lord be magnified, which hath pleasure in the prosperity of his servant. And my tongue shall speak of thy righteousness and of thy praise all the day long."

One of the correlative passages from the Christian Science textbook was as follows, from page 3: "Are we really grateful for the good already received? Then we shall avail ourselves of the blessings we have, and thus be fitted to receive more. Gratitude is much more than a verbal expression of thanks. Action expresses more gratitude than speech."

Brief testimonies expressing gratitude for fruits and healing, progress and regeneration as the result of the application of Christian Science were given by members of the congregation.

The closing hymn was 264, "O God whose presence glows in all, within, around us and above," after which the First Reader read the Scientific statement of being from the Christian Science textbook and the correlative Scripture according to I John 3:1-3. The benediction from 2 Corinthians concluded the service.

SALVATION ARMY APPEAL GOES OVER THE TOP!

The Salvation Army appeal in Winchester has gone "over the top" in splendid fashion, with a total of $2215.75 in the bank to date. It is with a great deal of satisfaction and pleasure that we realize how splendidly Winchester has rallied to our aid is this most critical year for any charitable organization.

Perhaps it should be explained that, while Winchester has exceeded quota, the Army is still $50,000 short of its $150,000 goal for the maintenance of its 24 institutions and departments in Greater Boston, of which the Winchester appeal form a part. This $150,000 moreover, represents the irreducible minimum necessary to support those institutions under normal conditions. This year the Army faces abnormal conditions—conditions, in fact, which will strain its resources to the very limit. For this year the great "white collar" class, the mechanics, and the laborers, from whom the largest proportion of this maintenance fund has come, are, as a result of depression and its consequent unemployment, themselves in need.

The Army is bound by duty and loyalty to assume these new obligations. But—its support must largely come from new sources. For perhaps the first time, the larger bulk of this maintenance fund must come from people of the wealthier classes—those with sufficient means to have weathered recent financial and industrial squalls and still have the wherewithal to give. To so give is little short of their patriotic duty, for it seems unnecessary to emphasize that this year, at least, no institution performing work similar to that of the Army must be allowed to languish for lack of financial support.

Winchester, in exceeding its quota so generously, has gone far to convince us that such support will be forthcoming; and joy in the hearts of many another helpless family, or poor invalid, or friendless city child, shall be its very great reward.

Our very special thanks are due to our able chairman, Harris S. Richardson, Treasurer G. Dwight Cabot, and others who tied in with us on the committee for the Winchester appeal.

WINCHESTER GIRL LEADS WHEATON FROSH

Miss Mabel Thompkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Thompkins of Glengarry, has been recently elected president of the freshman class at Wheaton College, adding to previous honors won at Norton since the beginning of the college year.

Miss Thompkins has been playing regularly at center halfback on the varsity hockey team, despite the fact that it is unusual for a first year girl to make the college team, and was also the winner of the freshman tennis championship.

At Winchester High Miss Thompkins won letters in field hockey, basketball and tennis besides graduating with highest scholastic honors and taking an active part in undergraduate affairs. She has made an auspicious start in college toward equalling her high school record.

Saturday morning the police were notified that an automobile had been abandoned on Sheffield West. Officer W. Cassidy investigated and found that the car had been damaged. The machine was registered to a Winchester man who informed Sergeant Noonan that it had been taken from the yard of his home during the night previous.

PALS IN SURPRISE SOCCER WIN

"Danny" O'Donnell's Winchester Pals sprung the surprise of the season Saturday on Loring avenue when they defeated St. Anthony's of Cambridge in a Bay State Juvenile soccer game.

The visiting team has been wading right through all opposition so far this season and this is the first game it has lost. The Pals now have a firm hold on second place in the league with St. Anthony's leading and too far out in front to be overtaken at this stage of the game. The Winchester team which only started soccer last year has come along rapidly under the coaching of the old Tanner's player, "Danny" O'Donnell.

The summary:

Winchester Pals—McCarron, goal; T. McAulay and Carroll, backs; J. McAulay, Kelley and McFetters, halfbacks; Gurney, Moran, Morrow, Doherty and Cayone, forwards.

St. Anthony's—Simmons, goal; Souza and White, backs; Roche, Reiss and Rodrigies, halfbacks; Garges, Simmonds, Carmara, J. Silva and T. Silva, forwards.

Score—Winchester Pals 1, Goal Morrow. Referee—Richie. Linesmen—Moran and White.

Miss Eleanor Boyd of this town was chairman of the committee in charge of refreshments for the cabaret held last Saturday in the Boston University School of Education, at which all members of the faculty and student body were guests.

William E. Cobb, treasurer of the Eliot Savings Bank of Boston, attended the meeting of the Boston group of Savings Bank Treasurers which was held at the Boston City Club on Monday evening of this week.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE

By virtue and in pursuance of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage given by Albert Barber to Louis Levin, dated March 23, A. D. 1931, and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 5515, Page 294, of which mortgage the subscriber is the owner and holder, for breach of the condition in said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at public auction on Lot 3 of the premises hereinafter described, on Saturday, December 5, A. D. 1931, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by the said mortgage, and therein described substantially as follows:

"The land in Winchester, Massachusetts, being shown and designated as lot one on Westland Avenue, and lot three on Oneida Road, on a plan entitled 'Plan of Lots, Winchester, Mass.' dated April 26, 1926, drawn by Parker Holbrook, Engineer, which plan is recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book of Plans 377, Plan 27, to which plan reference is hereby made for a further and more particular description of the granted premises. This conveyance includes all stoves, ranges, furnaces, radiators, plumbing goods, gas and electric fixtures, shades, screens, pipes, boilers, tanks, screen doors, awnings, storm doors and storm windows which are now or may hereafter be on or wrought into or affixed to said premises and each of thereof, and the grantor covenants that nothing above named or referred to has been or shall be purchased upon a contract of conditional sale. Being the same premises conveyed to me by the Vail Bros.-Mauker Corporation by deed of even delivery and to be recorded herewith."

The premises will be sold subject to all unpaid taxes, outstanding tax titles, municipal liens and assessments, if any there are. One thousand dollars in cash will be required to be paid by the purchaser at the time and place of sale; other terms will be announced at the sale.

Louis Levin, Owner and Holder of said Mortgage, 24 School St., Boston, Mass., Room 518. n13-3t

CHORAL SOCIETY NOTES

The regular weekly rehearsal of the Winchester Choral Society was held Tuesday evening at the Calumet Club with several new singers reporting. Already the program for the first concert to be given during January is beginning to take definite form and promises to be as interesting and worth while as its predecessors.

The officers and directors of the Society are at a loss to understand a rumor which has been circulated that the organization is not in a healthy condition and is soon to disband.

Such a rumor is wholly without foundation and President George W. Stidstone wishes through the Star to state emphatically that the chorus is to go through with its concert program as usual.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

A Franklin sedan driven by Haynes B. Foster of 86 Lowden avenue, Somerville, and an Essex sedan, operated by Leo Antrasian of 68 Unity avenue, Belmont, were in collision at 3:30 Sunday afternoon at the istersection of Washington and Cross streets and Kenwin road. The Franklin was crossing Washington street from Cross street to enter Kenwin road. Both machines were damaged but were able to leave under their own power.

John Luongo of 26 Hill street notified the police that as he was turning his Ford sedan around on Main street near Russell's Farm Tuesday morning shortly after midnight his car was in collision with a Willys-Knight sedan, driven by Edward Cox of 185 Main street, rear, Woburn. Luongo reported that his car was badly damaged but that no one was injured.

Mr. Edwin H. Rogers, chief engineer of the Park Division of the Metropolitan District Commission, was out Wednesday viewing the upper Mystic Lake in consideration of its being dredged. At present this large and previously attractive body of water is filled with sewage and sediment to such an extent that it is impossible to even paddle a canoe over portions of it, and at times of low water is filled with large islands of muck.

DEDICATION EXERCISES OF THE NEW WINCHESTER PUBLIC LIBRARY

The dedication exercises of the new Library Building will be held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock on Dec. 5, in the new building, with the public inspection following from 7 until 9 o'clock during the evening.

The exercises are open to the public although a limited number of seats will be reserved for benefactors of the library, out of town guests, clergymen, and some of the town officers.

A program in keeping with the occasion has been arranged, two authorities on matters pertaining to libraries having been secured as guest speakers. The presiding officer will be Mr. Edgar J. Rich, member of the Library Building Committee and trustee of the Library and the program will be as follows:

DISTRICT DEPUTY VISITED WINCHESTER LODGE OF ELKS

Tuesday evening marked the official visitation to Winchester Lodge, No. 1445, B. P. O. E., of the District Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler of Massachusetts Central, William E. Earle, P. E. R. of Newton Lodge. He was accompanied by his Grand Esquire, Oswald J. McCourt, and by a distinguished suite.

There was a large attendance at the meeting which was presided over by Exalted Ruler Charles A. Farrar. Supper was served by the Board of Stewards under the direction of Paul F. McCall. Fred Strachan and his Elks' Orchestra furnished music.

In addition to District Deputy Earle, two past district deputies, H. Wesley Curtis, P.E.R. of Arlington Lodge, and John F. McGann, P.E.R. of Somerville Lodge, were among the speakers. Others were the father of Winchester Lodge, P.E.R. John McNally; Dr. Fred Lowell, E.R. of Newton Lodge; Fred Tarpey, E.R. of Marlboro Lodge, William Conroy, E.R. of Cambridge Lodge; Frank McGrath, P.E.R. of Woburn Lodge; and George Abbott, treasurer of Wakefield Lodge.

The impressive Elks' 11 o'clock toast to the absent brothers was made by Frank C. Goodwin, P.E.R. of Melrose Lodge.

ELKS TO SPONSOR POLICEMAN'S NIGHT

Winchester Lodge of Elks expects one of the largest gatherings in its history on Tuesday evening, Jan. 19, when it will sponsor a Policeman's Night and along lines similar to those of the Fireman's night which proved so successful a year ago.

Fred H. Scholl, P.E.R., is heading the committee in charge of arrangements and has sent invitations to Police Chiefs, officers and patrolmen throughout Greater Boston, including members of the Metropolitan and State Police as well as the State Constabulary.

Prominent speakers have been secured and an unusually fine entertainment program will be offered. Luncheon will be served by the Board of Stewards under the direction of Paul F. McCall.

Assisting Chairman Scholl are Selectman Harry W. Stevens and Patrolman James P. Donaghey, committee on speakers; P.E.R. Thomas F. Fallon and Sergt. John H. Noonan, entertainment; and Chief William H. Rogers; P.E.R. Fred D. Clement and P.E.R. John F. Donaghey, reception. Arrangements are being made to welcome about 200 of "the finest."

FATHER LYNCH, NEW PRIEST AT ST. MARY'S

Rev. Fr. James F. Lynch came to St. Mary's Parish last week from St. Raphael's Church, West Medford, to replace Rev. Fr. William J. Clarke who has been made pastor of a newly established parish in Montello-Brockton. Father Lynch was for five years assistant at St. Raphael's and served as administrator of the parish, following the death of Rev. Fr. Charles F. Glennon. Previously he was assistant at St. Michael's in Lowell and was Chaplain of Bishop Delaney Assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus.

Winchester friends of Mrs. John Harrold, wife of Lieut. John A. Harrold of the Police Department, will regret to learn that she sustained a broken right leg in a fall at her home yesterday. She was taken to the Winchester Hospital and treated by Dr. Milton J. Quinn. X-ray pictures were taken to determine the exact extent of her injuries.

EPIPHANY BAZAAR WELL ATTENDED

The annual Christmas bazaar of the Epiphany Church held on Wednesday in the parish house was unusually successful. Commencing with the luncheon-bridge served at noon to nearly 300 ladies under the direction of Mrs. F. W. Aseltine and members of the Church Service League, the parish house was a very busy place. Tables had been set up in various rooms, decorated in Christmas style, and these were well-patronized through the supper period and well into the evening. Mrs. Sharon's baked bean supper drew another large crowd from 5:30 to 7.

Mrs. Donald Heath and Mrs. Ralph Garner had charge of the home-cooked food sale, Mrs. Avery the candy, and Mrs. Taber sold a tempting array of winter preserves. Mrs. T. I. Freeburn's flower shop was placed at the entrance to the social hall and Deaconess Lane and Mrs. William Smith presided respectively over the white elephant and bridge tables in the lounge.

Moving pictures, so popular with the children of the parish, were displayed at 3:30 and 4:30 under Mrs. Wightman's direction, with Mrs. Hopkins and her assistants serving lemonade just outside, while Mrs. Fitts conducted a first-class shooting-gallery for the youngsters in an adjoining room. A toy shop, arranged by Mrs. Moulton, Mrs. Marcus May's Christmas wrapping table and Mrs. Alton Jackson's artistically arranged antique shop all came in for praise and the village store conducted by Mrs. Sharon and Mrs. Joyce did a thriving business.

To Mrs. Bowen Tufts as general chairman of the entire bazaar and Mrs. Lyman E. Snow, who supervised the luncheon ticket sale go a great deal of credit for a very successful affair in every way.

T. B. CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE

The sale of T. B. Christmas Seals is now in progress and will be continued until Dec. 25.

This sale coming at the ending of the old year, after months of appeals from all quarters for help, has left most pocket books pretty well depleted. We hope, however, the far corners of these pocket books will yield a sum, however, small, for the work which is of so much importance to our town.

Every cured, arrested or prevented care of T. B. is a protection to you and your family and for this protection you are giving your support.

Every cent of the 50 per cent we are alloted from the sum raised in Winchester is spent for the people in this town.

Do not hesitate to send a sum however, small. We have many dimes and quarters returned in our mail sale and they are a fine expression of the desire to aid in the work which these contributors must feel is really worth while.

If you have not received a letter with enclosed Christmas Seals and wish to do so please notify our committee at 16 Norwood street, tel. Win. 0809-M. Extra seals are on sale at "Esther's," 17 Thompson street.

We take this opportunity to thank all who so generously contributed to our work last year and to wish them each and every one a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

The Winchester Tuberculosis Committee
Mary W. Carpenter, Chairman

BUILDING DEPARTMENT

The Building Commissioner has issued permits for alterations and the erection of buildings on the property owned by the following, for the week ending Thursday, Dec. 3:

Ersilia N. Sylvester, Winchester—repair and alter to present dwelling at 75 Washington street.

Dunbar Carpenter of this town was one of those recently awarded varsity football letters at Groton.

WINCHESTER WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Republican Club was held Wednesday, Dec. 2, at 2:30 p. m. at Association Hall. There was a short business meeting during which Mrs. Scales, our membership chairman, reported five new members. Mrs. Henry A. Bridge, violinist, a graduate of Boston University College of Music, rendered a delightful group of violin solos accompanied by Mrs. Manning at the piano.

The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. J. Hasbrouck LeFevre whose subject was "Current Events at Home and Abroad." She is a member of the Republican State Committee and a member of the Professional Women's Club of Boston. She told us that in the House of Representatives they have elected a Republican speaker but that the chairman of every committee will be a Democrat. President Hoover advocated 60 measures before his election and 55 have already been put through the House. The Senate will be Republican and almost the first time in history there will be a woman Senator, Mrs. Hattie Caraway of Arkansas has been nominated and will be elected.

Senator Borah is the voice heard throughout the world. He is known in all lands. The French Premier, M. Laval, visited the United States to see if the United States would stand back of France if she cancelled Germany's war debt. France has formed almost a circle of states between herself and Germany and has loaned them great sums of money. Germany will accept the loss of Alsace Lorraine but over this strip of 18 miles she is disturbed. Senator Borah said that the United States will not do anything until the Treaty of Versailles is guaranteed. France demands war debts be paid her first before Germany pays England and the United States private loans which amount to about four billion dollars. Germany wants a two year moratorium and England and the United States are determined Germany shall pay interest on loans to them as well as war debts to France.

England is getting her country together to build a tariff wall about herself for protection. The dominions are planning to help Great Britain by having no tariff on goods sent to her but other countries must pay. The second Indian round table discussion has not been a success. Gandhi wants complete freedom for India but England thinks they are not ready for it. There is a great difference in caste; one caste is not recognized by another caste. The Mohammedans are the great thinking force of India and they do not believe as the Hindus. In a national house the Mohammedans would be a minority because there are so many more Indians.

The trouble in Manchuria until a few years ago was unknown except by Japan. Japan was given permission to build a railroad in Manchuria and China agreed not to build one anywhere near it. but China has done so. Japan was gathering the soy bean, which provides food and fuel. To ship it before it would freeze when China burned the railroad bridge. Manchuria is a very rich and valuable country. The League of Nations has been trying to settle the dispute and Ambassador Dawes has done a great deal to help by his advice. The United States plays a great part in keeping the peace of the world and the trouble will probably be over very soon.

After another pleasing group of violin solos by Mrs. Bridges, Mrs. Snyder, our president, closed the meeting, giving best wishes for the coming holidays and New Year. At the close of the meeting tea was served by the social committee.

EARLY CHRISTMAS SEALS RETURNS BEING MADE

Have you made returns on your Christmas Seals? Thousands of letters were sent out and it is hoped that we will have 95 per cent returns by Christmas.

The Seal Sale money goes to a worthy cause. Tuberculosis takes the greatest toll of lives of any disease and the tragic part is that it is our young people who are most susceptible—those between 16 and 30.

No one class of people is immune from this disease. It attacks rich and poor alike—picking out the malnourished, the under-weight, the overtired, and the careless. Give to help the unfortunates.

If you are yourself unable to contribute, do your bit by keeping up your condition. Don't neglect a cold. Watch out for that continual tired feeling. Get weighed regularly.

If you can't be a contributing asset to your community, at least keep yourself from being a receiving liability!

Buy your Christmas Seals locally so as to continue the work against tuberculosis in your own community.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES

List of Contagious Diseases reported to the Board of Health for week ending Thursday, Dec. 3:

| | Cases |
|---|---|
| Chicken Pox | 1 |
| Diphtheria | 1 |
| Dog Bite | 1 |
| Tuberculosis | 1 |

Maurice Dinneen, Agent

The Fire Department was called at 7:51 Wednesday morning by an alarm from Box 31 for a fire on the roof of a coal shed at the coal yard of Parker & Lane Company on Cross street. The damage was slight. At 11:29 a. m. the department answered a call for trouble with an overheated furnace at the home of Mr. Frank Black on Everell road.

ROTARY CLUB

Three absentees were recorded at the meeting of Dec. 3.

Our club enthusiasts evidently consider that ten days is a long interval between meetings, this thought having been suggested by our good initial attendance mark. We await confirmation of the above by the days absentees.

The new song sheets were given a thorough try-out today and proved their worth. We feel adequately rewarded for the long delay in producing this collection of songs. This includes "Pat."

Our guest speaker at this meeting was Capt. James A. Cotting, late of the A. E. F. who served on the Italo-Austrian frontier. Captain Cotting offered one of the most thrilling talks ever given before the club and warmly praised the Italian army to which he was attached. He brought out a fact which is not generally appreciated here in America. This is to the effect that the Italian armies in the fall of 1918 were much nearer to Berlin than ever were any other allied forces. The Captain was confident that had the war lasted but a few weeks longer, the Italians would surely have entered Berlin. Also the speaker confirmed an opinion which has long prevailed in this country to the effect that the chief blame for the out-break of the World War must be charged to the military element in Germany and Austria, rather than to the German and Austrian people as a whole.

Our next meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 8 at Woburn. The regular Thursday meeting will be omitted during that week and attendance will be credited as of the Tuesday meeting. Please be at the Y. M. C. A. building, 553 Main street, Woburn at 12:15 p. m. Tuesday, Dec. 8. If those who wish transportation will be at the conner of Main and Church streets, Winchester, just before noon, cars will be on hand to care for them. Past District Governor Bruce McCullough will address this meeting and clubs from five or six neighboring towns will be in attendance. Don't miss this great treat.

THANK YOU!

I want to express my heartfelt thanks to all those who so kindly and cheerfully helped with the Thanksgiving baskets, either with their individual efforts or the contribution of funds.

We would mention particularly the schools with their very generous supply of food of all kinds; the Congregational S. S. for a bountiful supply of food as well as for their splendid check; the Unitarian Church for their good sized check. Also three pupils of the Wyman School who sent in a contribution of money. The thought was greatly appreciated. Too, we want to thank the several individuals who sent in checks for the purpose. We must not forget the local Police Association, who contributed 100 loaves of bread.

To the six young ladies who walked from their homes to the Town Hall with their arms loaded with bundles of vegetables and food and then had to carry them all home again because they were told there was no place ready to receive them, we express our regrets, and ask them not to be discouraged but to try again next year.

The local Lodge of Elks expended in addition to all contributions, the sum of $157.95 for chickens and turkeys and attended to the distribution of 119 baskets in addition to 20 more given out by the Girl Scouts, the Red Cross and those known to have been given out by churches.

G. H. Lochman,
Chairman Welfare Committee of the Elks, and Chairman of the Food Committee for the Civic Welfare Committee.

LIONS' CLUB NOTES

Winchester Lions got the low-down on big league baseball at their meeting this week when Horace Ford, star infielder of the Cincinnati Reds, was guest of the club. After his remarks "Horace" good naturedly answered many questions and his first hand information on baseball happenings and problems was much enjoyed. He is proprietor of an ice cream shop in Winchester and is proving as popular a merchant as he is a ball player.

President Roger presided at the meeting which followed Fred's luncheon and at which plans were discussed for the big party of Dec. 15 when District Governor Youngberg will be guest of honor. This party will be held at the Calumet Club in the evening and will be a red letter affair with visiting delegations from Lions' Clubs throughout this district. There will be music by an orchestra and an entertainment program.

CHRISTMAS SALE OF REED AND RATTAN FURNITURE

Those who have wracked their brains for just the right present for an exacting relative or friend will find the solution of their problem in the big Christmas sale of high grade reed and rattan furniture which the well known firm of Jordan-Wakefield Company is conducting at the salesrooms opposite the public library in Wakefield.

Never in its history has this business house marked its products at such low prices. Only quality merchandise is offered and many of the prices are those not usually found in sales. You will be delighted with the assortment and your friends will compliment you on your choice of gift.

The annual fall sports banquet of the Winchester High School will be held on Saturday evening in the gymnasium.

DR. GEORGE W. HUNTLEY, M.D.

"THE CHINA SITUATION"

Lecture to be Given Here by Dr. Huntley

With the Manchurian situation growing daily more acute, there is timeliness in the announcement of a Sunday evening stereopticon lecture on present day China, to be given by George M. Huntley, M.D. (for 20 years a physician in China) at the First Baptist Church at 7 o'clock.

Dr. Huntley, recently returned from China, is now Professor of Missions in Boston University and in Andover-Newton Seminary. With his own camera, he took many unusual views of China and will inliustrate his lecture with nearly 100 slides thrown on the screen. An English doctor, after the type of Grenfell, Dr. Huntley tells a fascinating story with an individual charm. Those interested in China will want to hear his thrilling address, "Through China With a Camera." Strangers and visitors are cordially welcome.

ST. MARY'S THESPIANS IN "NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH"

Annual Dramatic Presentation Attracts Large Audience

St. Mary's Dramatic Circle presented "Nothing But the Truth," a three act comedy by James Montgomery, for its annual dramatic entertainment last evening in the Town Hall. The usual large audience was present and gave evidence of the gratest pleasure in the work of the well chosen cast who were again under the direction of Miss Ann Matilda Gurney, teacher of expression in St. Mary's Parochial Schools. A previous presentation for the school children was given last Saturday afternoon.

Last evening's performance was in keeping with the high standard set by St. Mary's actors in the past, the cast showing careful drilling and complete familiarity with their respective roles. The play proved a splendid vehicle for the young actors, abounding in witty lines and unusual situations which held the complete interest of the audience from the opening to the closing curtain.

Briefly, the plot centers about the difficulties in which one Robert Bennett found himself enmeshed as the result of his $10,000 wager with E. M. Ralston that he (Bennett) can confine himself strictly to the truth for a brief 24 hours. Bennett wins the wager, but not until he has become involved in all sorts of complications while Ralston and his wife are contemplating divorce.

All the parts were well played, but special mention should be made of the work of those old favorites Thomas Travers and Roy McGrath as the wagering friends, Bennett and Ralston. Miss Genevieve O'Connell played opposite Mr. Travers as Gwendolyn Ralston with skill and much charm, while Miss Helen Doherty was excellent as Mrs. Ralston.

An especially fine bit of character work was done by a new comer to St. Mary's stage, James A. Donlon, who was capital as Bishop Doran while the remaining characters were in the capable hands of the Misses Mary and Beatrice DeLaurier, Miss Florence Fisher, Miss Mary McGurn, William Callahan and Martin Flaherty.

Ushers for the evening included Edmond A. Dunne, Francis R. Nowell, James A. Halligan, William J. O'Connell, Harry J. Boyle and Walter M. Drohan. Dancing was enjoyed after the show, music being furnished by Joyce's Orchestra.

Following is the cast and scene synopsis:

| | |
|---|---|
| Robert Bennett | Thomas J. Travers |
| E. M. Ralston | Roy E. McGrath |
| Dick Donnelly | William J. Callahan |
| Clarence Van Dusen | Martin E. Flaherty |
| Bishop Doran | James A. Donlon |
| Gwendolyn Ralston | Genevieve E. O'Connell |
| Mrs. E. M. Ralston | Helen A. Doherty |
| Ethel Clark | Florence N. Fisher |

VETERAN TEACHER HONORED ON 70TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Anna T. O'Sullivan, dean of Winchester's school teachers, who is to retire in June after 45 years of continuous service, was tendered a surprise party on Tuesday by her associates on the staff at the Wadleigh School in honor of her 70th birthday.

Shortly before noon Mrs. O'Sullivan was invited by Miss Mary Barr and Miss M. J. Davis to luncheon out-of-town, and returning to school, found the door of her room tightly closed.

Unsuspecting, Mrs. O'Sullivan entered to find the entire teaching staff assembled about her desk on which reposed a handsome birthday cake, gay with candles and a vase of four dozen beautiful rosebuds. A birthday card autographed by all the teachers was attached.

For once the veteran teacher was overcome, and she was unable to hide her emotion as Miss Frances Hayward of the English department read an original poem in her honor written by Miss Barr. The teachers were not permitted to have Mrs. O'Sullivan to themselves for long, the children, with whom she is a great favorite, clamoring for admission.

Many of the youngsters brought gifts and in the midst of the merry-making a representative of the eighth grade of the school arrived with its gift, a handsome Japanese Garden centerpiece.

It was a gala day for Mrs. O'Sullivan and one which she will long remember. She has been one of the most popular teachers ever to teach in Winchester, and no one can think of the Wadleigh School without recalling her close connection with it. She it was in 1900 who turned the key in the lock to open the then new building, and she is looking forward to locking the school for the last time when she retires in June. Through the years she has maintained her sunny outlook on life and her sympathy with youth and its problems. Beloved by all, the following poem indicates the esteem in which she is held by her associates:

Who sits at her desk, on this natal day,
On the job ever, come what may,
Prodding and coaxing, now stern, now gay,
Why Annie T. O'Sullivan.

Who makes us laugh when we least expect,
Drags from us a grin, you'd not suspect,
Till many a frown is completely wrecked?
Yes Annie T. O'Sullivan.

Who with kindly wit and quizzical eyes,
Daily binds us to her by affection's ties,
With a bond so strong it time defies?
Who but Annie T. O'Sullivan.

To whom right now are we wishing true,
Full measure of health and happiness, too,
Some leisure now, new things to do?
Our own Annie T. O'Sullivan.

HIGH SCHOOL COACH TAKES BRIDE IN NEW YORK

There is much Winchester interest in the marriage which took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Bristol in Warsaw, N. Y. last Saturday evening when their daughter, Miss Carolin Louise Bristol, became the bride of Ronald Wilson Lindemann, physical director and coach of boy's athletic teams at the Winchester High School.

Rev. Dr. Roy Constantine of the Warsaw Congregational Church performed the wedding ceremony, the bride being attended by her sister, Mrs. Lawrence Graham of East Aurora, N. Y. J. Randloph Grymes of Staten Island, N. Y. was Mr. Lindemann's best man. A reception for about 65 relatives and friends was held after the ceremony.

Mr. Lindemann and his bride are making their home in Arlington at 230 Massachusetts avenue. The bride is a graduate of Warsaw High School and of Sweet Briar College in Virginia, class of 1928. Mr. Lindemann, who is the son of Mrs. Hugo Lindemann, graduated from Staten Island Academy and from Springfield College in 1929. He assumed his duties at Winchester High School this fall and previously coached at the high school in Warsaw, N. Y.

Mrs. Archibald Campbell Jordan of this town addressed the members of the Committee of Safety Chapter, D. A. R. of Winchester at a meeting held Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Hattie H. Wagner of Dorchester.

MIDDLESEX LEAGUE BASKET-BALL SCHEDULE

The schedule for the first basketball season of the new Middlesex County Interscholastic League was announced this week by Sanford B. Comery, principal of Belmont High, who is secretary and treasuerr of the circuit. There will be six high schools in the court circuit, the same number of schools as made up the football group this fall, but there will be two different schools in the league's basketball group. This is due to the fact that the Concord and Maynard Highs do not support basketball.

Reading High, which intends to come into the Middlesex League as a full-fledged member the coming year will play basketball this winter, even though it did not engage in league competition in football, because of lack of material. The other gap will be filled by Wakefield High, which has been allowed into the Middlesex group for basketball only, while in football and baseball it plays in the Mystic Valley League. Stoneham High won the old league title last winter, while in 1929 and 1930 Wakefield High landed the league crown. Wade L. Grindle, principal of the Winchester High School is president of the present league and the season will get under way on Jan. 6 and will continue through Feb. 19.

The schedule:

Jan.
6 Lexington at Belmont
6 Winchester at Stoneham (afternoon)
8 Winchester at Belmont (afternoon)
8 Reading at Stoneham
13 Winchester at Wakefield
13 Reading at Lexington (afternoon)

INJURED AS AUTOS CRASH ON CAMBRIDGE STREET

Mrs. John H. Lane of 119 Pond street was painfully injured shortly before 6:30 Tuesday evening when a Ford roadster, in which she was riding with her husband, was in collision on Cambridge street at Everett avenue with an Essex coach owned by Mrs. Fannie Crowell of Westland avenue and driven by her son, George.

According to the police the Lane car was headed north on Cambridge street and the other machine was going south and attempting to make a sharp turn into Everett avenue.

Mrs. Lane was cut on the right leg and bruised about the body. She was taken for treatment to the office of Dr. Clarence E. Ordway by her husband and Special Officer Walter Lord. The Essex was badly damaged and was towed to Conlon's Garage. The Ford, aside from a broken steering gear, was only slightly damaged.

MR. CRAUGHWELL BESPEAKS COMMUNITY AID FOR UNEMPLOYED

To the Editor of the Star:

I desire to graps this opportunity to most heartily thank the Winchester unemployment relief committee, Mr. Parkhurst and others for the humanitarian work that they are endeavoring to accomplish in order that some of our unfortunate fellow townsmen shall not be deprived of fuel, food and clothing. I believe it is absolutely necessary for the folks who are able to fall in behind the committee and make the proposition a huge success.

I assure you, Mr. Editor, that your humble servant certainly was grieved when I learned that some of the permanent town employees refused to contribute to assist the men and women who made it possible for the tightwads to receive permanent employment and two weeks' vacation; or in other words, the tight wads who refused to assist their fellow townsmen receive compensation for work that is not rendered to the town namely, 22 days a year, two weeks vacation and ten holidays! Come on now, you tight wads and assist in this humanitarian movement, and do not be pointed out as slackers! And remember, never hit a cripple with his own crutch!

I certainly trust that there shall be a reply to this communication in the next issue of the Star.

Very truly yours,
Patrick H. Craughwell

EMBLEM CLUB NOTES

A delegation of local Emblem Club members, headed by Mrs. Mary B. Fitzgerald, president, attended the visitation night of the Natick Emblem Club Tuesday evening. Mrs. Bernard McHugh, Supreme President and her suite, were present and the meeting was both interesting and of value to all who attended. The next visitation takes place on Monday evening, Dec. 14, at Newton, and the officers of the Newton Club are desirous of knowing how many to expect from Winchester. It is thought that a good sized delegation will make the trip from the local club and those who plan to go should notify the president at once.

Mrs. John Shine, supreme press correspondent, has been put in charge of the new Emblem Club magazine, the official publication of the order, and is eager to secure subscribers. A more detailed announcement concerning th magazine will be made at a later date.

A large attendance is expected at the whist which President Mary Fitzgerald is giving at her home on Oak street this evening for the aid of the local club. At the next meeting, Dec. 9, Mrs. Mary McHugh, chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements, will report upon the Club's Christmas party, and every one should make an especial effort to be present.

Mrs. Emily Scholl, big sister of the Emblem Club, will be glad to receive donations of clothing or money for the club's welfare work.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF COMMITTEE NOTES

The Water and Sewer Board passed a vote on Monday to enter immediately upon the work of clearing the North Reservoir. Fifteen hundred dollars was appropriated for this purpose. The majority of the Board had been in some doubt as to the wisdom of applying the fund made available for this purpose but decided yesterday to resolve that doubt in favor of the unemployment situation. This decision will be applauded by citizens everywhere as essentially sound. The amount to be expended will be equivalent to furnishing employment which will care for approximately three and one-half families for a six months' period. As a practical matter a larger number of men will be employed for a shorter time.

Mr. Hinds as chairman of the unemployment division has 21 men at work this morning. It is expected this crew will be enlarged before the week is out. Mr. Hinds' supervision will give to the crews the benefit of expert direction. Mr. Parker Holbrook is also very active in supporting the general movement.

The remarkable Town Hall meeting held Monday evening will be reported at length elsewhere in these columns. The meeting had the war time flavor of service and personal sacrifice. Nearly 500 citizens were present.

Investigation of the possibilities of wood cutting on private property is in process. Mr. James J. Fitzgerald is chairman of the fuel section. He is working out the possibilities of wood cutting, the proceeds to be exchanged for coal. Wood costs more than coal, having in mind its fuel value, but is necessary for fireplaces. The proceeds will purchase much more fuel value in the form of coal, and ranges are adapted to coal and not wood, hence the possible value in a successful exchange.

The Finance Committee has made funds available to pay the working crews which are being organized with the prospective proceeds of the town-wide canvass for subscriptions, thus no time is being lost.

Treasurer Frank E. Crawford is maintaining canvass report headquarters at the Winchester National Bank. His day telephone is Win. 1320. His evening telephone is Win. 1600. Reports from nearly 400 canvassers will be sent to these numbers.

Vice Chairman Davidson is actively planning the layout of park work which can most advantageously employ a substantial number of men.

As the bulletins have stated, the key to the unemployment situation in Winchester this winter is in the subscriptions to the fund. It is the great desire of the committee that there shall be a 100 per cent subscription list, even though in many cases the monthly sum paid in will be small. The total must aggregate at least $8000 per month to execute the program. Even this sum will give work to but one-third the number who have applied. It is hoped that the remaining two-thirds can have their own efforts successfully supplemented by the efforts of the committee.

WINCHESTER POLICE NOMINATE

At a meeting of the Winchester Police Association, held in the guard room of the station Wednesday afternoon, the following nominations were made for officers of the association for the ensuing year:

President, Charles J. Harrold.
Vice-President, John H. Boyle.
Treasurer, Henry P. Dempsey.
Secretary, John J. Dolan.
Executive Committee, Daniel P. Kelley, Chief William H. Rowell, Lieut. John Harrold.

The election will take place at Headquarters Wednesday, Dec. 16.

Among the Winchester boys who are seeing something of the world is "Bob" Livingstone, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Livingstone of Sanborn street, who has been cruising in Southern waters on a big freighter and who was scheduled to make port in South America Monday.

GIVEN STUDENT'S PERMIT TO FLY

Leonard D. Draper, Jr., 350 Highland avenue has been given a student's permit by the aeronautics branch, Commerce Department, it was announced today.

This is the first step toward rating as a flier and permits Draper to take controls while with a licensed instructor. Draper's next step will to be licensed as a private pilot. For these classes annual physical examinations are required, made more rigid to eliminate from aviation those whose physical condition increases accident hazards even when they otherwise show skill and proficiency. In the higher limited commercial and transport grades, under the new ruling, the physical checkup must be made every six months.

The officially designated physicians of the department now are gathering important data on the relation of physical condition to the accident ratio and judging all new entrants accordingly.

D. A. R. NOTES

Fifteen members of the Committee of Safety Chapter of the D. A. R. attended the monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Hattie J. Wagner, in Dorchester on Monday, Nov. 30. Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock and the co-hostesses with Mrs. Wagner were Mrs. Furlong and Miss Howard. After luncheon, the business of the meeting took place. Papers for the admission of four new members were circulated for signatures, and reports from the committees on Ellis Island, War Relief and the Student Loan fund were read.

Any who do not believe that the Winchester Fire Department is composed of all around men ought to visit the boiler room of the Central Station and watch members of the force repairing and renewing toys left there to be distributed among poor children. Firemen Ray Hanscom and J. Edward Noonan were plying the saw and sandpaper when we dropped in on Tuesday.

WOMEN'S LEAGUE OF THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

A meeting of unusual interest was held by the women of the First Baptist Church on Thursday of this week. Because of the holiday season a meeting combining the programs of the Women's League and the Missionary meeting was held. Members met at 10 o'clock in the morning to sew for Missions. At noon a most delicious luncheon was served with Mrs. Charles Burnham as hostess. Directly following the luncheon, Miss Flora Ernst, reecntly home from Burma told of her work and experiences there. The regular business meeting of the League followed, opened by a most impressive worship service led by Mrs. William Budgell. Altogether it was a day of unusual interest and enthusiasm.

CALUMET NOTES

The club will be the mecca for golfing enthusiasts tomorrow evening when Francis Ouimet, Harry Bowler, Perley Chase and Linde Fowler will be guests of honor at Calumet's golf night. It hardly seems necessary to identify this quartette to local golfers, so we will merely warn you not to miss the message they will bring to us on Saturday. Steward Fred Scholl will serve an old fashioned bean supper at 6:30 for 50c and after the golfing talk has subsided Messrs. Ouimet, Bowler, Chase and Fowler are going to settle a private grudge on the club alleys. This may turn out to be the feature of the party so don' go home early.

Monday evening, Calumet entertains Kernwood of Malden in a Mystic Valley League match and the local team hopes to strike a winning stride against the Malden boys. On Monday, Calumet lost its match to the Medford Club at Medford, points being divided as follows:

| | Med. Won | Cal. Lost |
|---|---|---|
| Bowling | 5 | 3 |
| Cards | 1 | 2 |
| Pool and Billiards | 3 | 1 |
| Total | 9 | 6 |

The Calumet card team, comprising E. O. Engstrom, Arthur S. Kelley, Charles S. Barry and C. Harold Smith seems to be the only consistently winning combination at present, but the other club teams promise to get started soon.

Another of the ladies' afternoon bridge parties at the club on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and don't forget to get in your reservations for the big New Year's party as soon as possible.

All troops met in the Town Hall, Wednesday, Nov. 25 for their Thanksgiving and Community service meeting. After packing 15 baskets with all kinds of Thanksgiving goodies, including chickens in each basket, provided by the Council and Advisory Committee members, the Scouts providing the other foodstuffs, a short court of awards was held with Mrs. George Stidstone, chairman, presiding, assisted by Mrs. Phelps. Badges earned by the Scouts during the summer and early fall were presented. Mrs. George Clapp, Girl Scout Needlework Guild representative, spoke briefly on how the Scouts could assist in making some little child happy by making a dress, a wrapper, a bonnet or some other necessary wearing apparel and at the same time earn her dressmaker or needlewoman badge.

Captain McElwain read a paper on Thanksgiving, taps were sung and a happy group trotted off to deliver their baskets and give cheer to those not as well off as they.

The Girl Scout captains, lieutenants, and Commissioner held their December meeting at Captain Newman's house Tuesday, Nov. 1. A delightful luncheon was served. Captain Newman, Captain MacElwain and Lieutenant Murray acting as hostesses. After the luncheon a business meeting was held. Mrs. Howard, chairman of troop committees and Mrs. Mann, chairman of registration were present to talk about their different duties with the captains.

The full list of captains to date are:
Miss Doris MacElwain Troop 1.
Mrs. Marshall Symmes Troop 2.
Miss Eugenia Parker Troop 3.
Mrs. Leon Hughes Troop 4.
Miss Margaret Newman Troop 5.
Mrs. Einar Bratt Troop 6.
Mrs. John Carruthers Troop 7.
Miss Margaret Newman Acting captain of Troop 8.

Lieutenants
Mrs. Herbert Miller Troop 1, acting.
Mrs. Clifton Campbell Troop 2 acting.
Mrs. Charles Howe Troop 3.
Mrs. James Murray Troop 5.
Brown Owl Pack 1 Mrs. William Davis.
Tawny Owl Miss Constance Lane.
Brown Owl, Pack 2 Mrs. Gilbert Tasker.
Tawny Owl Mrs. Ralph Macklin.

The freshman high school Scouts, Troop 5, are rehearsing a play written for their special benefit by Mrs. Lura Watkins, "Buried Treasure." Mary Elizabeth Hall is general chairman; Nancy Hall, chairman of tickets; Dorothy Glidden, chairman of a gift table; Betty Blake, chairman of candy. The performance is to be given in Fortnightly Hall, Saturday, Dec. 12 afternoon at 2:30 for children; evening at 8:15 for adults. Mrs. Watkins' plays are always cleverly written around a definite plot, always amusing and entertaining.

If anyone knowing of a captain's uniform not in use, and obtainable, will get in touch with Capt. Doris MacElwain, secretary of the officers' association, we will be grateful.

WINCHESTER SALES NOTICE

Walter Channing Inc., reports the sale of the Cape Cod house located at 6 Lantern lane to Mr. Russell D. Greene of Boston who purchases for a home. This is a new house containing six rooms, bath, lavatory and garage. It is one of the six recently built in this picturesque community known as "Lantern Lane." These houses nestle behind a white picket fence with an attractive gateway leading to curving flagstone walks, which are shaded by gnarled old apple trees. The beauty of "Lantern Lane" is further enhanced during the summer months by the effect of the white houses as they show up against the green background of the surrounding foliage. Much credit is due the builders of "Lantern Lane," the I. G. W. Trust, Loring P. Gleason Trustee, for the addition they have made to Winchester's fine homes. In consideration of and as a part of the same transaction Walter Channing Inc., report the transfer of the two family house owned by Mr. Russell D. Greene located at 33 Clarendon road, Belmont to the I. G. W. Trust Co.

Miss Lora B. Winn of 18 Elmwood avenue reported to the police that her Studebaker sedan was in collision Wednesday afternoon on the Everett Parkway with a truck, owned by Joseph Corking of 116 Jefferson avenue, Everett, and driven by Murdock Muise of 568 Second street, that city. No one was injured.

METROPOLITAN IMPROVEMENTS

New Parkways Affecting Winchester Planned

Extension of the system of boulevards, highways, traffic circles and grade separations is included in a $6,000,000 construction program recommended to the Legislature Wednesday by the State Department of Public Works and the Metropolitan Planning Division. The improvement in the Metropolitan area calls for a three-year building program.

Included in the recommendations are several projects affecting Winchester. Among the projects are the following of interest:

A parkway beginning on Fellsway East north of Pond street and extending westerly across the northern portion of the Middlesex Fells to Lexington street, Woburn, west of Parker street.

A parkway beginning at the southerly end of the Fresh Pond parkway in Cambridge extending south to Soldiers Field road, Boston, including a bridge over the Charles River at Gerry's landing.

Extension of Memorial Drive, Cambridge, at Mt. Auburn street to a point opposite Sparks street and west along the Charles River to Gerry's landing.

A parkway at Cambridge street, Winchester, near Everett avenue south to Mystic Valley Parkway.

A parkway at High street and Mystiv Valley Parkway, Medford, southeast along the Mystic River to the Mystic Valley Parkway near Auburn street, Medford, with a bridge connecting the new parkway with Alewife Brook Parkway, Somerville.

A parkway or boulevard beginning at Lynn Fells Parkway and the Newburyport turnpike, Saugus, northeast to Walnut street, Saugus.

THE SILVER BALL

Yesterday Daddy Sunshine received a large silver ball. Attached to it with a pretty red ribbon was a letter. In the envelope was a brief note from J. J. Delaney, a man whose poems many of the Sunshiners have read in this column. The note stated that the silver ball was from Thelma Ball of 16 Park avenue, Winchester, a little girl who is trying to spread sunshine every chance she has. In addition was a poem, written by Mr. Delaney, and dedicated to Thelma. Daddy Sunshine is publishing this poem today, and maybe some of the members will be glad to paste it in their sunshine scrap books.

The poem follows:

Thelma Ball

Thelma Ball, 13 years old,
In Winchester resides,
Found the way not that of gold
Where happiness abides.
That way is to have in mind
The practice old and true,
"Think of others and you'll find
That they will think of you."
Thelma saved a silver ball,
(Or tinfoil you may say)
Rich in thought though it is small—
Real values are that way.

To Everett went the glistening sphere,
Her Daddy took it there,
It did not stop it came from here
To Daddy Sunshine's care.

Now it is a vital part
Of tinfoil others saved
To cheer each kiddie's little heart
Misfortune has enslaved.

Though young Thelma understands—
Amid life's varied sides,
Kindly thought and helping hands
Is where true joy abides.

IN AN ECONOMIC CRISIS

Study of Thrift Both Timely and Effective

Training children to save—not that they may hoard their money but that they may "spend wisely"—is one of the outstanding points made by Mrs. Beth MacDonald Johnson in an article in the December number of "Child Welfare," The National Parent-Teacher Magazine. Mrs. Johnson's article, timely both in preparation for a thrift program which parent-teacher associations undertake in January, and because of the economic crisis, tells in some detail how parents, teachers, and bankers can aid in training boys and girls—from the first grade through high school—in good thrift habits.

Supt. of Streets Parker Holbrook reported that last week the Highway Department employed 177 men, of which 47 were regular members of the department and the remainder part time men.

A Girl Scout, on an errand at the STAR Office last week, happened to have with her several new merit badges which she displayed with that pride which one feels in a reward fairly earned. She had many more upon her uniform, and we examined them closely. All stood for proficiency in worthwhile accomplishments; sewing, cooking, laundering, first aid, health. There were many more. In addition to the pleasure which goes with membership, Scouts learn much of real practical value which will make them better and happier citizens of the community in which they make their homes. Is your daughter a Scout? She is missing something if she is not!

Last year the STAR advocated Winchester's resignation from the Mystic Valley athletic league and the formation of a new circuit in which the local high school would compete with schools of more nearly its size and strength. The local authorities had for some time been contemplating such a step and last winter the Middlesex League, comprising Belmont, Concord, Lexington, Maynard, Stoneham and Winchester was formed. This League has just completed its first football season with Belmont and Maynard in a tie for the championship and Concord and Winchester tied for second honors. The real value of any league lies in the closeness of the competition it affords. Our contention last year was that the ideal League is one in which all the teams have an equal chance for the title. There probably will never be a truly ideal league, but the Middlesex League is for Winchester a closer approach to the ideal than the Mystic Valley League would prove as years go by. Four of the six teams in the new group had a chance for the championship and any team had a chance to knock off any other team. Commercially the new circuit may not be as good as the old, but from the sporting angle it has worked out well.

Winchester's unemployment relief committee is tackling its job with a zeal which promises results and of course every one wants to help. While we are considering how we can assist those out of employment it would be well not to lose entire sight of those who are earning the funds the town is asking them to share with their less fortunate brothers. Local merchants are contributing to unemployment relief just as they have contributed in past instances to other worthy causes. Few months go by in which they are not asked to assist financially some worthwhile project. The STAR knows that their response to these requests is generous and bespeaks for the local shop keepers in return their fair share of Winchester householders' and organizations' business. The holiday season is at hand. Every one is being asked to spend, not foolishly to be sure, but to spend; to create a healthier business atmosphere and to bring about as soon as possible a feeling of confidence for the future. Why not spend your money as far as possible in Winchester this Christmas season? Next week's STAR will include a special supplement featuring the holiday advertising of Winchester merchants. In it you will find opportunities to purchase everything you need for Christmas; to spend wisely! Shop in Winchester this year and help the Winchester merchants help the town!

Chairman George T. Davidson of the Park Board stated yesterday that a crew of men would soon be put at work on Leonard Field to grade the playground and make it more adaptable for such sports as football and baseball. It is not unlikely that this field will have to be used for high school sports in the event of the town's deciding to remedy the deplorable condition of Manchester Field. The Finance Committee had an expert in town yesterday examining the latter playground and probably will arrive at some decision within a few days. We personally believe Mr. Davidson's plan to plow and resurface the field is the really practical solution of the difficultty, and the sooner this is done the better. The layout of the field should be altered so that the dirt section of the baseball diamond will not extend into the football gridiron. This latter change the Park Board wished to make last spring along with some much needed grading on the diamond, but funds were denied by the Finance Committee. The turf is now entirely off the gridiron and the hockey court is also very bad. We don't of course know what the expert said about the playground but we believe the Finance Committee can easily convince themselves by walking slowly around the field that something should be done at once.

THE NEW INTEREST OF BOYS IN POTS AND PANS

Among the latest innovations in junior high school courses are home economics classes for boys. The day may not be far away when such courses will be expected in junior high schools just as classes in English and geography are required today.

Already home economics classes for boys are popular in Tulsa, Denver and other progressive cities.

In an article on "The Boy in Home Economics" in the December issue of "Child Welfare," Miss Helen Redford of Denver explains how the first of these classes came to be started, and how their popularity has increased . . . What with giving girls lessons in how to put a Ford engine together, maybe it's just as well! But why shouldn't boys as well as girls know something about the cost of feeding and clothing a family; something of the care of children and the choosing of a well-balanced meal?

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

The police were notified last evening by Miss Helen McDermott of 59 Main street, Woburn, that as she was waiting for a buss on Church street she accepted a ride in an automobile with a man whom she believed she knew. When in the machine she discovered the man was a stranger, and instead of heading toward Woburn he drove to the Middlesex Fells. Miss McDermott became alarmed and as soon as oportunity presented itself leaped from the car on Border road, leaving behind her bag containing clothes, jewelery and money in excess of $20. She was unhurt and at once notified the police who got in touch with the Metropolitan authorities. In her excitement Miss Mcdermott neglected to get the number of the automobile and her description of the man driving the machine is all the police have on which to work.

Five high school students, Sheldon Hamilton, Roger Thwing, Dexter Mobbs, Robert Smith and Thomas Hammond returned to town shortly before midnight Monday after an automobile trip to Annapolis, Md., where they visited Hamilton's cousin, Wellington Stevens, son of Selectman and Mrs. Harry W. Stevens of the Parkway. Leaving Annapolis the quintette went to Baltimore and Washington, visiting the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in the latter city. They covered 1200 miles in the Hamilton Ford and stoutly maintain they had no "flats."

The three alarms of fire which came in yesterday were for burning grass, on Highland avenue, Chester street and Westland avenue. None of the fires was serious though so many reported the Westland avenue blaze that Box 572 was pulled in sending all the apparatus to the scene.

Late winter models in Rumba Crepe, felt and velvet. Miss Ekman (Bailey's.)

Miss Esther Puffer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley G. Puffer of Harrison street, is at the Lawrence Memorial Hospital in Medford undergoing treatment for a serious throat affliction. Her name was for a time on the danger list but her condition is now reported as somewhat improved.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Kennedy spent Thanksgiving in Winchester with Mrs. Kennedy's mother, Mrs. James Skillings of Rangeley. They left town Monday for Wiscasset, Me., where they will make their home this winter.

Marriage intentions have been filed with the town clerk by Antonio Lopre of 67 Butman street, East Boston, and Concetta Bottofuoso of 12 Florence street.

The Selectmen have retained Mr. Richard Derby, architect, to submit plans for remodelling the Town Hall for the use of the various Town Departments after the final removal of the Library to its new home.

Roger "Sandy" Newell, Winchester's blonde flyer, was in Winchester to spend the Thanksgiving holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Newell of Main street. "Sandy" is at New Hampton and is expected to fill "Jim" Haley's shoes as a winning dash man for the Prep.

Miss Evelyn Anderson of the Winchester Trust Company's clerical staff, who underwent a serious operation at the Winchester Hospital several weeks ago is expected to return to her duties on Monday.

Miss Thelma Trott of the Girl Scout National Headquarters Staff was in Winchester to spend the holiday week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Trott of Mystic avenue.

Mr. W. D. Sullivan of this town, managing editor of the Boston Globe, has been named by Mayor James M. Curley to be a member of the Boston Committee on Unemployment.

Mary Gallagher of 5 Vernon street, Woburn, reported to the police Sunday that while her Cadillac automobile was parked in front of the Country Club Saturday night a tire and rim was stolen from the machine.

A Buick sedan, stolen Tuesday from in front of the residence of Mr. Irving E. Jennings at 62 Oxford street, was recovered Wednesday night by the police of Station 15 in Charlestown. The machine was taken by a gang of young men, and was found by the authorities abandoned.

Get your Five Year or Standard Diary at the Star office.

Mrs. Allen M. Brand and her daughter, Carol, of Norwich, Conn. were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Murphy of Marion street, over the holiday week-end.

Mr. Richard Parkhurst of Grove street, son of Hon. and Mrs. Lewis Parkhurst of Oak Knoll, played a prominent part in the settlement of the recent dock strike in Boson. Mr. Parkhurst as secretary of the Boston Port Authority was greatly concerned with the shipping tie-up and spent much time in conference with the striking longshoremen. His influence and advice is highly praised by those in a position to know the ins and outs of the labor difficulty and is believed to be one of the chief factors in the successful settlement of the strike.

Mrs. Leslie D. Pushee of Harrison street is visiting her sister at St. Helena Island, S. C., and will remain in the South until just before Christmas.

Miss Ethel Drinkwater of this town has accepted a position as office manager for Mr. William N. Beggs, attorney, in the White Building, Winchester.

The C. Howard Bartletts, who have been away from Winchester for several years are again occupying their apartment in the Winchester Chambers at 3 Lewis road.

Francis Felt, of Oxford street, a member of the Brown Freshman eleven had as a guest this past week-end Malcolm Ball a star player on the Brown varsity team.

Miss Irene E. Murphy, now teaching in Yonkers, N. Y., motored to Winchester to spend Thanksgiving with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Murphy of Marion street.

Mr. Harold C. Hatch, son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Hatch of 45 Forest street, a senior at Tufts College, is on the committee in charge of the Fall Sports Dance, to be given Dec. 5, as a member of the Tower Cross, the honorary society of the senior class. Mr. Hatch has been active in baseball all four years. He is a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and last year was vice president of the Ivy, the honorary society of the junior class. This year he is the vice president of the Tower Cross, and a member of the Alpha Kappa Pi fraternity.

Patrolman James P. Donaghey of the Police Department, who has been seriously ill at his home on Washington street for the past three weeks, returned to duty Monday.

Joseph Sibby of 1037 Main street has a candidate for the title of meanest thief. Mr. Sibby succeeded in shooting two wild geese and last Saturday night left them hanging on a trellis at his home about 7 o'clock. When he went to get them at 8:30 they were gone. He reported the matter to the police.

It is reported that it will be necessary to draw upon the reserve fund of the town for additional funds for the School Department and the Board of Health. It is also necessary to acquire two or more additional trucks because the town fleet is inadequate to make use of the additional men who are being put to work on town jobs.

STRAND ATTRACTIONS

Brightly, audacious, romantically dramatic and cleverly and generously humorous is the feature attraction that will open at the Strand Theatre Malden, on Saturday. "Platinum Blonde" produced by Columbia Pictures, is the film that stands up under this barrage of virtues, with one of its dominant virtues being the performance of Robert Williams, who did so nobly in "Rebound" and "Devotion" and tops these with his biggest in "Platinum Blonde." The management of the Strand takes great pleasure in announcing something different in the way of entertainment in "Platinum Blonde." It is different, it is clean, and above all it is entertainment that is entertainment. What a choice sense of humor Robert Williams has. Every movement and every bit of dialogue he utters contributes to what may easily be considered one of the season's perfect screen characterizations. The charming and beautiful Loretta Young and the glamorous Jean Harlow are the two young ladies who get Williams into and out of complications in a story of how a delightfully independent person—a genuine "free soul"—gets caught in a gilded cage and is pretty nearly smothered.

In addition to the "Platinum Blonde" the Strand will present "The Cisco Kid" which will be a treat to the lovers of romance and adventure. "The Cisco Kid" presents a stirring tale of the old Southwest, cleverly plotted, gorgeously executed and revealing some of the finest work that its leading players, Warner Baxter, Edmund Lowe have yet contributed to the screen. Lowe plays the part of a cavalry sergeant, who is always just one jump behind the notorious and reckless border bandit, Warner Baxter.

"PALMY DAYS" AT THE UNIVERSITY THEATRE

"Eddie" Cantor's memorable entry into the motion picture firmament by making "Whoopee" has been eclipsed in "Palmy Days" the famous comic's second screen vehicle which will be presented at the University Theatre on Sunday and continue for four days. "Eddie" appears as the unwilling assistant to a gang of crooked fortune tellers and spiritualists, planning to wreck a bakery by installing "Eddie" as an efficiency expert. It is a comic strip kind of yarn moving blithely from the phoney mystic's holy of holies to the splendor of a futuristic bakery—one of those Rube Goldberg bakeries, "manned" by an imposing assemblage of Hollywood's most decorative femininity—to the Ziegfeldian opulence of a swimming pool scene, with prize bathing beauties competing with equally proud swans for attention to a moonlight garden party with young love cooing among the lilac bushes, and on and on. Sharing the comedy honors with "Eddie" is the elongated Charlotte Greenwood.

Mary Astor, Robert Ames and Edward Everett Horton are featured in "Smart Woman," the companion feature.

"The Mad Genius" starring John Barrymore and featuring Marian Marsh and Donald Cook, starts Thursday. Mr. Barrymore considers the role of Tsarakov, the mad genius of the Russian Imperial Ballet, the most weirdly dramatic role of his entire career, Tsarakov, embittered because of a physical blemish which prevents his personally becoming the embodiment of the dance, kidnaps a homeless lad, pours into him all the fanatical ambition thwarted in himself—dominates him body and soul— and finally banishes the dancing girl whom Fedor loves. Tsarakov's ruthless selfishness finally alienates the lad who has become the world's greatest dancer. Then follow scenes of tremendous power which lead the melodrama to its inevitable end.

In "New Adventures of Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" the companion feature, William Haines is cast in a type of role that is new to him, the role of J. Rufus Wallingford, well-loved, happy-go-lucky fiction character invented by George Randolf Chester for the stories which ran so successfully in Cosmopolitan Magazine.

A CHRISTMAS HINT

Plan the Use of Time

Dr. Margaret Justin, in the fourth article in the series appearing each month in "Child Welfare," devotes the December topic to "Planning the Use of Time." Dr. Justin's series is one of three study courses which are proving so popular with readers.

Dr. Ada Hart Arlitt of the University of Cincinnati directs a course "Concerning Older Children" and Mrs. Grace E. Crum of Winters, Cal., conducts a study of the preschool child.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

It is not too early to start your mailing of Christmas packages and cards. You will help immensely if you will tie all your Winchester cards in one bundle.

Miss Mabel Tompkins, daughter of George G. Tompkins, 10 Glengarry, has been elected President of the Freshman Class of Wheaton College. Miss Tompkins, sister of the prominent senior, Ruth Tompkins, won the freshman tennis tournament and played on her class hockey team. At the Winchester High School, Mabel Tompkins won a cum laude pin for high scholarship and was well known for her athletic and business skill. The announcement of officers was made in the form of a throng welcoming heroes. The distinguished officers drove in a car to the library steps, where they were presented to the cheering city, that is, to the whole college body, by the officers of their sister class, the juniors.

The junior class won the interclass field hockey championship of the Winchester High School, winning the playoff with the seniors last week. The class of 1933 also won the title last year as sophomores. L. Beaton, M. Bond, M. Fahey, M. Foley, D. Goodnough, Capt. M. Laidlaw, R. Morrow, G. Mouradian, D. Noble, D. Nowell, M. Orcut, C. Shea and C. Titelah comprised the junior team and were awarded their numerals.

The long awaited field hockey game between the high school varsity and second elevens took place Tuesday afternoon on Manchester Field, the varsity winning 3—0. The varsity third team won from the senior class by a one-sided score.

MANCHURIA TRANSFORMED BY RAILWAYS

Railways, immigration, raw materials—these are the chief factors that stand out in the story of modern Manchuria and that put that country's name again and again into the world's headlines, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Railways have built a trickle of immigrating Chinese into a mighty human flood, continues the bulletin, and at the same time have developed an empty region into a rich producing area for minerals and agricultural products. It is not strange, therefore, that when things happen in Manchuria to draw the eyes of the world, railways are usually found to be deeply involved.

Road Plays Part in Clash

Two years ago Northern Manchuria threatened to unsettle the whole diplomatic situation of the Far East because of a dispute between China and Russia over the Chinese Eastern Railway, which runs east and west through that region. In the recent clash between Japanese and Chinese troops it is the South Manchuria Railway that has played the major role. The Japanese explain their fire on Chinese troops as the defense of a railway bridge which was about to be blown up. But whatever specific incident may have been responsible for the clash, the railway can not escape being in the forefront. It is as guards of the railway zone that Japanese troops were present in the Mukden area, and it is over the railway that Japanese supplies, munitions, and reinforcements must move.

The South Manchuria Railway is one of the two physical elements of primary importance in Japanese influence in Manchuria. Ranking with this 760 miles of rail through the heart of lower Manchuria is the Japanese Leased Territory of Kwantung, forming the southern tip of the country and containing the excellent modern harbor of Dairen and the one-time naval stronghold, Port Arthur.

First Development by Russia

Russia built the South Manchuria Railway at the turn of the century, completing it in 1903. This Russian road was not of standard gauge. After the Russo-Japanese War, when victorious Japan took over Russia's position and holdings in Manchuria, the railway was changed to standard width and its road-bed, structures, and equipment greatly improved. It is now Asia's finest railway and even runs a crack train of American Pullmans drawn by one of the latest types of American locomotives. Excellent hotels, owned by the railway company, are to be found at even moderate size towns. The company also operates coal mines.

This mammoth enterprise is a joint stock company, the shares of which are owned by Japanese citizens and the Japanese government, with the latter in control. The Railway Zone is recognized to be under Japanese dominion and Japan has the right, which she exercises, to maintain troops in the zone to guard it. The main railway extends from Dairen north to Changchun, a distance of approximately 400 miles. The Japanese system also includes about 150 miles of rail from the Korean border to Mukden, and a number of branch lines, bringing the total mileage close to 700.

Millions of Chinese Immigrants

Before the Chinese Eastern and South Manchuria railways were built Manchuria had only a sparse population engaged chiefly in stock raising. No mines of any consequence were being operated and few plows had touched the vast tillable areas of the land. The greater part of the development has come since the end of the Russo-Japanese War. In the 24 years since Dairen was opened as a free port the trade of Manchuria has expanded more than 16 times. Sixty-six per cent of the foreign commerce now passes through Dairen. Nearly a million Koreans have gone into Manchuria as immigrants, and uncounted millions of Chinese. In recent years the population has been swelled by more than a million Chinese annually. The total population is now close to 30 million.

The great majority of Manchuria's inhabitants are farmers. As one rides north on the South Manchuria Railway he sees unbroken fields of soy beans, millet and kaoliang, the latter a grain sorghum which grows tall like Indian corn. More than 220 million bushels of soy beans are now harvested annually. A procession of great ocean freighters from Dairen takes the beans, bean-cake and oil to all continents. It is one of the world's major agricultural exportations. From Manchurian also go millions of bushels of millet and kaoliang and nearly four million tons of coal, as well as timber, skins and numerous other commodities.

Colony Idea Failed

Japan hoped that Manchuria might solve the problem of a home for her surplus population, and efforts were made to plant colonies there after the Russo-Japanese War. But the plans did not work out. The Japanese, used to intensive cultivation amid and near their mountains, and to a reasonably temperate climate, did not take kindly to the extensive cultivation necessary on the wide Manchurian plains, nor could they live comfortably in Manchuria's extremes of heat and cold. Moreover, it was impossible for even peasant Japanese to compete with Chinese immigrants because of the low living standards of the latter.

Japan's statesmen and industrial leaders set themselves to make of Manchuria a granary and source of other raw materials for their empire. In this they have succeeded extremely well. Beans, bean products, and cereals from Manchuria play an important part in feeding Japan and Korea; bean cake by the millions of tons goes to fertilize Japanese fields; and other products of Manchurian fields, forests and mines pour into Japanese factories. No less important is the other side of the picture. By building up Manchuria and releasing in it millions of yen in salaries and wages, Japan has made it into a great consuming market for Japanese goods. Japan's investment stake in Manchuria including improvements in its leased territory, investments of the railway company, and those of individuals now exceeds a billion dollars.

FAMOUS COIN ADDED TO GEOGRAPHIC COLLECTION

Presentation has been made to the National Geographic Society of a silver shekel, the kind of coin referred to in the New Testament mention of the "30 pieces of silver" which Judas Iscariot accepted for betraying Christ.

The coin just brought to this country and presented to the museum of the National Geographic Society, is the gift of F. Vester, in behalf of the American Colony at Jerusalem. It was found with others in a clay urn by a workman excavating for the foundation of a new building in Palestine.

The shekel not only is of keen historic interest to numismatists, but is probably the best known token of ancient currency because of its frequent mention in both the Old and New Testaments. As far back as Exodus a shekel of that period is referred to; the price of 30 shekels elsewhere is stated as the "blood money" paid for the accidental killing of a servant. In addition to being identified as the coin for which the high priests covenanted for delivering to them the person of Jesus, St. Matthew also mentions it as the temple tax.

Before the period of our Civil War counterfeiters reaped a harvest in London by selling counterfeit shekels alleging that each was one of the "30 pieces of silver" for which Christ was betrayed. These are easily detected because the cup and the inscription are different from those on the genuine coins in common use among the Jews in the time of Christ, which were first coined by Simon Maccabaeus nearly a century and a half before His birth.

Bears Biblical Symbols

Upon the genuine "shekel of Israel" appears a sacred vessel, possibly a pot of manna, ornamented with jewels, and above it a Hebrew date. On the reverse is "Jerusalem the Holy," and a flower device, thought to be a representation of the budding of Aaron's rod. In size it is slightly smaller than our quarter dollar, considerably thicker, and the edge is not milled.

The "American Colony" at Jerusalem is a community established just 50 years ago by Haratio Spafford, a Chicago lawyer, and his wife, and it now carries on extensive industrial and altruistic activities. Its membership, drawn from 10 different nationalities, has broadened its original work of teaching non-sectarian Christianity to include maintenance of an orphanage, an industrial school, a children's health center, various arts and crafts, and charitable activities.

DEDICATION EXERCISES OF THE NEW WINCHESTER PUBLIC LIBRARY

Invocation by Rev. Howard J. Chidley, D.D.

Address by Clarence E. Sherman, Librarian, Providence, R. I. Public Library.

Benediction by Rev. Nathaniel J. Merritt.

Mr. Clarence E. Sherman, who delivers the principal address, is Librarian of the Providence Public Library. Graduating from Trinity College in 1914 with a degree of B.S., he then studied for librarianship at the New York City Library. He has been Assistant Librarian at the Amherst College Library, Librarian of the Lynn Public Library, and since 1923 has been Assistant Librarian, Associate Librarian, and Librarian of the Providence Public Library. He has been active in various library associations, serving as chairman of several committees of the American Library Association, and at the present time, is lecturer on Library Architecture at the School of Library Science, Simmons College.

Dr. Frank Pierce Hill, the last speaker on the program, is one of the foremost library authorities in the country. He is a graduate of Dartmouth College in 1876, and received from his Alma Mater in 1906, the honorary degree or Doctor of Literature. He has devoted his life to library work. His first service was at Lowell, and later he started the first free public library in New Jersey at Paterson. Later he inaugurated the Salem Public Library. He was Librarian of the Brooklyn, N. Y. Library from 1901 until this year. He is now Librarian Consultant of that library and makes his home at 71 Church street, Winchester.

Doctor Pierce was at one time president of the American Library Association and during the war, chairman of the War Finance Committee of that association which raised over $1,700,000 to erect library buildings at Army camps and to provide reading matter for soldiers and sailors.

THE NEW PUBLIC LIBRARY

The citizens of Winchester will find their new library one of the most attractive and best equipped in New England.

The library is built of Townsend, Mass. granite. Its architecture has the suggestion of modern treatment, following the contour of the land, and using its beautiful trees as an appropriate setting, and depends on proportion and mass to convey a harmonious and impressive effect.

NEW WINCHESTER PUBLIC LIBRARY

The main floor includes a large reading room, with indirect lighting, restful to the eyes; a magazine room for youthful readers, apart from the main reading room; several smaller rooms containing books on special subjects, including American History, new books, both fiction and non-fiction; and books on Education; and special rooms for the Library staff, so that they may work under the most efficient conditions. The seating arrangements throughout the building have been made after considerable study, and are attractive and extremely comfortable.

A room which is an innovation in Libraries is the art gallery, in which will be hung paintings by painters who are or have been associated with Winchester. The gallery is so designed that it can also be used for other picture exihibitions as well as exhibitions along various other artistic lines, and to emphasize current happenings.

The gallery is equipped with ingeniously contrived shutters which can be so fitted over the windows as to make an unbroken wall-space for the larger exhibitions of paintings, with ample light coming from overhead. It is also equipped with chairs and a platform for use in connection with lectures, and space provided for a stereopticon or a motion picture machine.

The Library is fortunate in having two artists of note, Mr. W. H. W. Bicknell and Mr. Hermann Dudley Murphy, willing to act as an advisory committee in connection with the use of the art room.

Upstairs are additional rooms adapted for special purposes, such as rooms for holding trustees' meetings and rooms for housing photographs and the Library's collection of art books, town reports, valuable files of newspapers, genealogical books, old time furniture, relics, etc., and there is a balcony containing a valuable collection of musical books.

Great care has been taken to secure nearly perfect ventilation and to make

The art gallery has provided a particularly good location for the beautiful stained-glass windows presented by the Tyler family in memory of Joseph Howe Tyler, for many years a library trustee.

Every floor in the building is of fireproof flooring made of steel beams with the light weight but fireproof Tucker concrete planks.

There should be unusual freedom from noise and dust. Each room is

There is a separate young people's room on the lower floor of the building in which they can select books for home use, and which is also a charming reading room. It has modern equipment, including reading tables with inclined surfaces, chairs of different sizes to suit different ages, chairs which will appeal to parents, as being not only comfortable but conducive to good posture and carriage in their children. The entrance and exfitted with its separate automatic heating control, and the rubber flooring extends not only over the reading rooms, but into the stack rooms themselves. The heating is both direct and indirect, with a fan system of ventilation, the air being drawn through an oil-filter screen to remove all dust before it is sent through the building.

A noteworthy improvement in the book cases is having the bottom shelf slant from the horizontal in such a way as to make the book titles easily readable.

It is hoped that a large number of townspeople will visit the Library on its opening day.

UNITARIAN YOUNG PEOPLE IN ANNUAL PLAY

The Metcalf Union of the Unitarian Church presented the two act comedy, "Sally Lunn" last Friday evening in Metcalf Hall. It was the Union's annual Thanksgiving vacation play and the big audience included many boys and girls home from school or college for the holidays. Dancing was enjoyed after the play, music being furnished by an orchestra.

Included in the cast were Virginia Smith, Marjorie Kidder, Margaret Kenerson, Marjorie Dutch, Robert Godfrey, Henry LeRoyer and Allan Wood.

The Misses Helen and Florence MacKinnon, formerly of this town and now attending the Salem Normal School, spent the Thanksgiving holidays with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. MacKinnon, at Montreal.

UNEMPLOYMENT DRIVE IN FULL SWING

More than 400 highly enthusiastic members of the 200 teams now engaged in solving Winchester's unemployment problem were present at Monday night's meeting of the Town's Unemployment Committee in the Winchester Town Hall. Not since the World War relief measures were enacted, has such a representative gathering turned out for a community campaign, which augurs well for the success of the six-month drive to aid the town's unemployed.

Frederic S. Snyder, chairman of the General Committee, outlined in detail the plan of campaign which is to be pursued by the various town, civic and social organizations. He further stated that the recent canvass of the town by the local police, who called on 3000 people twice, resulted in approximately 300 requests for employment of any nature. This group included skilled as well as unskilled labor. It was also stated that one family in every ten throughout the town is in dire need of assistance to tide them across the forthcoming winter months, and of this number, one-third need work immediately.

The immediate aim of the committee is to establish employment for 100 of the town's most needy cases. However, this is only the first objective, and it is hoped that eventually every man on the unemployed list will be given work of some sort.

A tremendous ovation was given by those present when Mr. Snyder announced that the STAR had started the ball rolling by returning the check which it received for the large amount of printing which was necessary to launch the drive, and which will be required until the ultimate goal is reached.

Daily reports on the progress being made in the drive for pledges and contributions must be filed with Treasurer Frank Crawford of the General Committee, either at the Town Hall Headquarters, telephone Winchester 0793-M or at the Winchester National Bank, telephone Winchester 1320. In the evening Mr. Crawford may be reached at Winchester 1600. Present plans call for the raising of $8000 for six consecutive months. An idea of how much money is needed to carry out this plan may be gathered from the following figures: Five dollars a month for six successive months will create work to support one family for one week, while $25 will create work to support one family for two months. Correspondingly, $750 a month for six months will create work to provide for 10 families for a period of six months.

An investigating committee has been hard at work for three weeks, now, investigating each and every case and the most needy of these will be aided first. With the entire committee and sub-committees now off to a flying start in their quest of funds to aid the town's unemployed, all that remains is for a fine, co-operative spirit on the part of each and every person in town, to make the drive an overwhelming success, a duty which rests upon the shoulders of every employed person, even at a sacrifice.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

National Director of Education Coming

The annual meeting of the Council is one of the big events of the year for all Scouters in the Council. The Council is happy to announce that Ray O. Wyland, director of Education of the National Council, Boy Scouts of America, will be the speaker. Mr. Wyland is one of the ablest speakers on the national staff. The annual meeting will be held Monday, Jan. 12. The place will be announced later.

Winchester Public Court of Honor

On Saturday, Dec. 5, the Winchester District will hold a public court of honor at 7:45 p. m. in the Winchester Town Hall. The program of the court includes many interesting events. The Scouts of the Winchester District have been preparing for this court of honor for the past several weeks. The program is as follows:

1. Inspection.
2. Fire lighting. (Bow and drill). Time limit is three minutes, the boy getting fire in less than 30 seconds will have one point added to his team score for each two seconds short of that time.
3. Morse signaling. Flags, buzzers, or blinkers may be used. If more than one buzzer or blinker is used, separate score will count for them.
4. Chair and handkerchief game. (Team of 10 boys from each troop.)
5. Fire lighting. (Flint and steel.)
6. Bandaging contest. Not more than two teams from each troop. Team to consist of one victim and four workers. 1, ankle; 2, figure; 3, spiral reverse on forearm; 4, head. Best work to count. Time limit five minutes.
7. Semaphore signaling.
8. Closing exercises.

New Leaders

The Council is happy to note the increase in number of Scouts who are advancing to the rank of assistant Scoutmaster. Leader training is one of the goals of Scouting. Apparently the work of the Council is producing results along these lines. Scouts who have just been commissioned as assistant Scoutmasters are:

Troop 6, Medford—Alva E. Norwood, 55 Suffolk street.

District and Council Rally Program Announced

Scout Commissioner Wm. F. Moats has announced the Council plans for rallies during the present Scout season. This program includes District rallies to be held in December, followed by a Council rally to be held in January. According to the plans, these district rallies will be held as follows:

Medford East—Troops 2, 4, 5, 13 and 16, Medford, Tuesday, Dec. 15 at the Headquarters of Troop 2, Medford.

Medford South—Troops 3, 6, 7, 17 and 18, Medford, at Headquarters of Troop 3, Medford, Friday, Dec. 18.

Medford West—Troops 8, 9, 19, Medford, Wednesday, Dec. 16, at Headquarters of Troop 8.

Burlington-Woburn—Troops 1, Burlington, 1, 2, 3, 4, Woburn, at the Woburn Y. M. C. A. Tuesday, Dec. 15.

Winchester District—Troops 1, 3, 5, 6 and 7, Winchester. Date to be announced later.

In these district rallies there will be in addition to opening and closing exercises, an inspection of troops and inter-patrol competition. The events to be contested are patrol potato relay race, flint and steel fire lighting, patrol knot tying relay, fire by friction (bow method). The winning patrols in each district for each event will compete for the council championships at the council rally to be held in January.

The Council rally in January will include in addition to opening and closing exercises, an inspection of troops and three important activities. These are:

1. Patrol by troop projects, in which each troop is expected to have at least one exhibition of work accomplished by the boys.
2. Troop demonstrations, in which each troop is expected to demonstrate some phase of the Scout program in which they have taken a particular interest.
3. Inter-patrol council championships in which district winners will compete for the championship of the Council.

WINCHESTER BOY SCOUTS TO HOLD PUBLIC COURT OF HONOR

On Saturday, Dec. 5 at 7:45 p. m. the Scouts of the Winchester District will hold a public court of honor in the Winchester Town Hall. Parents and friends of the boys are invited to attend. That the Scouts of Winchester have been working hard these past few weeks to make this court a memorable event is plainly evident from the list of awards to be granted Saturday evening.

The Scouts of Troop 1, Francis E. Smith, Scoutmaster, will be awarded the following Scout badges:

George C. Dutton—Merit badge in firemanship.
David Emerson—Bronze palm.
Judson Cross—Bronze palm.

Fourteen Scouts from the three local Troops went on a hike last Saturday to Camp Gleason. Cooking and other outdoor tests were passed.

MISS AVERY'S THIRD LECTURE

Miss Avery opened her lecture on Nov. 25 by speaking of Thanksgiving, its meaning in the beginning and its evolution down to the present time.

Discussing Italy Miss Avery said that whether we believe in Fascism or not there is no doubt that it does answer Italy's present need.

It has its vices but Miss Avery said she was going to stress only its virtues as those are what she went to Italy to find out about. Italy has a great desire for international co-operation and that is the desire that is underlying Grandi's visit to the United States.

Italy has a population of 42,000,000 and these 42,000,000 live in less than one-tenth the area of the United States.

In addition to this she has an enormous birthrate and this makes the problem even greater. Italy has contended that the boundaries fixed since the war are not fair and should be changed. She is a great exponent of disarmament and the lessening of debts.

The Italian laborer is very international minded. Italy has done a great work for mothers and also in developing recreational advantages for the people. Fascism believes that individual happiness doesn't matter, the question of supreme importance is the welfare of the state.

Miss Avery told her audience of her difficulties in securing an interview with Mussolini, who is much more inaccessible than he used to be and then went into detail about the interview itself and her impressions of the man.

The next lecture will be on "Our Political Problems" on Dec. 9.

FATHERS' AND SONS' NIGHT AT EPISCOPAL MEN'S CLUB

Robinson Abbott, expert in football scouting and member of the faculty of Tufts Engineering School will be guest of Epiphany Men's Club in the Episcopal Parish House, Monday evening, Dec. 7, on the occasion of Fathers' and Sons' night. Professor Abbott is perhaps best known as the veteran coach of the Tufts junior varsity eleven. He has scouted opposing teams for "Eddie" Casey and Arthur Sampson, former Tufts coaches, now with Harvard and for the present coach, "Lou" Manley. He is well versed in the so called "systems" and knows football from the player's standpoint, having been a member of the Tufts eleven under "Doc" Whalen woich won from Harvard and held Princeton to a 3—0 victory on successive Saturdays.

He will first use a blackboard to illustrate some of the outstanding plays and will then through "slow movie' films will diagnose the outstanding features of last year's Harvard-Yale contest, loaned through the courtesy of William J. Bingham, graduate manager of Harvard athletics.

Dinner will be served at 6:30 and with the football talk promising to be of intense interest, the committee has sent out word to club members to bring their sons and other guests. The speakers will be introduced at 8, with a social half hour after the dinner.

CORINNE'S LOVELY NEW HOME IN READING SQUARE FACING THE COMMON

Corinne wishes to announce she has taken over the historical Smith Colonial Mansion, built in 1795, and now serving her famous luncheons, club sandwiches and dinners. Having three large dining rooms, a room with booths, a directors' room; also a charming reception room with an adjoining room for private parties or bridge parties. Inspection invited. A special Xmas dinner will be served at $2 and New Year's Eve a $2.50 Dinner. Corinne prepares all foods, same as she did for years at Famous Tox-A-Way Inn, Wakefield, N. H. Reservations for special parties or for the Holidays may be made by telephoning Reading 1514. Special Sunday: Fried Chicken or Roast Turkey Dinner $1.50. Mixed Grill $1.25, or Sirloin Beef Roast $1.

TWO CARS STOLEN LAST FRIDAY

Two cars were reported stolen in Winchester last Friday afternoon, both being subsequently recovered.

At 4:55 John Luongo of Hill street reported to the police that his Ford sedan had been stolen from in front of Brophy's Store on Cross street. Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy and Patrolman John Boyle recovered the machine in a field on Cross street where it had been abandoned.

A Ford roadster, the property of Cecil Porter of 9 Lebanon street, was stolen at 6 o'clock from in front of the Frank Murphy Chevrolet agency on upper Main street. The machine was seen going south on Main street at 5:45, and later in the evening it was returned to the place from which it was taken.

WINCHESTER HIGH HAD GOOD FOOTBALL SEASON

Team Won Only Three Games But Was Hard Group to Lick

With the Woburn game on Thanksgiving Day Winchester High Concluded its 1931 football season with a record of three wins, three losses and three tie games, finishing in a tie with Concord for third place in the newly formed Middlesex League standing. Despite the fact that Winchester has played a somewhat easier schedule this year than formerly and has won fewer games than any local team in some time, its record is nevertheless one to be proud of.

Winchester faced its current schedule with a new coaching system and a real dearth of veteran material. To make a bad matter worse several boys on whom the school had been depending became for one reason or another unavailable. The loss of such players as "Eddie" Hitchborn, "Bill" Hickey, "Bob" Bernnard, "Bob" Welburn and "Hokie" Procopio was staggering in view of the meager material and made those in the know wonder whether the locals would win a single game of their schedule.

The new coach, Ronald Linderman, an old Springfield halfback, went quietly to work and though frankly far from delighted with his prospects, never permitted his squad to think for a moment that Winchester wouldn't have a good football team. It had just that:—a good team, if not a winning combination.

Strange as it may seem the high spots of this year's campaign were the three scoreless ties which Winchester played with Arlington, Belmont and Woburn. Winchester money was mighty scarce before those particular games, and about all the wise ones were rating the opposition in each case about two touchdowns better than Winchester. Wakefield's score would surely have been less had Knowlton played the entire game, and later in the fall we believe Winchester would have won from Stoneham. The locals lost to the league leading Maynard team by a single point, the visitors' tieing touchdown coming in the last 11 seconds of play. Winchester was outclassed only by Wakefield and its goal line defense in the Belmont game became the talk of the league.

Winchester started the season with but four letter players, and of this quartet only Capt. "Joe" Flaherty could be considered a real veteran. "Hal" Knowlton, "Patsy" Tofuri and "Indian" DiApella were the other veterans and all have been important cogs in this year's campaign.

The loss of last year's captain and all Mystic Valley center, "Don" Emery, was expected to wreck havoc with Winchesters line, but a husky scrappy sophomore from Woburn, "Tintine" Lentini, stepped into the breach and proved a worthy successor to such stars as Emery, "Nutsy" Amico and Frank Melly.

Winchester's line has been its chief claim to fame this year and Lentini and Flaherty have been the bulwarks of the forward wall. In this writer's opinion Captain Flaherty has been the outstanding lineman in the Middlesex League, a great man on both offense and defense, as well as a fine leader.

With Flaherty and Lentini on the line have been "Buck" DaLey, hero of the Woburn game, the great little "Charlie Muggs" Tranfaglia, McKee, Royce Randlett, Smith, Ciruso and Bill Bottger, responsible for Winchester's score against Maynard, and "Hoss" Symmes. "Deck" Mobbs, one of the best wingmen on the Middlesex circuit, Frannie" Dolan and DiAppela, played the important end positions and Procopio ironed out his scholastic deficiencies in time to see service as a tackle against Saugus and Woburn.

Behind the line Winchester's stars for the season were "Piggy" Knowlton and "Patsy" Tofuri. Knowlton was one of the best in the league, a deadly tackler and a good running back. Tofuri wasn't far behind him. The new backs, "Tommy" Hannon, "Willie" Mills and "Johnnie" Lynch, rounded out a good backfield and at times Hannon did some of the finest punting we have seen a Winchester boy do for years. Lynch's kicking and passing in the Woburn game was splendid, and Mills also did a great all around job against the Orange. Tarquine, Tremberth, McGaragle and Barksdale were the substitutes. Manager "Doc" Murray and Assistant Manager "Ned" Bernnard handled their jobs well.

While a major portion of credit for the team's success rightfully belongs to Coach Linderman, he was fortunate to have the assistance of "Jake" Turner, former Harvard center and guard, as line coach. Big "Jake" did a great job with the local forwards and teamed with Coach Linderman nicely. The two made a fine combination and were very popular with the boys.

Following is the season's record:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Winchester | 0 | Stoneham | 12 |
| Winchester | 7 | Concord | 7 |
| Winchester | 0 | Arlington | 0 |
| Winchester | 0 | Lexington | 0 |
| Winchester | 6 | Wakefield | 27 |
| Winchester | 0 | Belmont | 0 |
| Winchester | 6 | Maynard | 7 |
| Winchester | 6 | Saugus | 0 |
| Winchester | 0 | Woburn | 0 |
| Winchester | 31 | Opponents | 53 |

CHRISTMAS BAZAAR AT UNITARIAN CHURCH

At the annual Christmas Bazaar of the Ladies' Friendly Society in the Unitarian Church to be held Tuesday, Dec. 8 at 11 a. m., a great variety of articles suitable for Christmas gifts will be on sale. Mrs. Arthur Pitman, chairman, and her committee cordially invite every one to visit the Bazaar, to purchase food, candy, handkerchiefs, flowers, dolls, household necessities, assorted gifts and Christmas wrappings, and to enjoy the 75 cent luncheon served from 12 until 1 o'clock. A Punch and Judy Show, presented by a professional, will furnish real entertainment for the children at 4 p. m. in Metcalf Hall, with tickets 15 cents each.

Among the college girls at home for the Thanksgiving holidays were Miss Loretta Carleton of Wellesley College, the Misses Ruth and Mabel Tompkins and Miss Alice Friend of Wheaton and Miss Deborah Gilbert of Smith College.

Mary Cutter of Winchester was honored at Boston University's Sargent School of Physical Education with the award of baseball numerals before a special gathering of 300 students at the school which preceded the Thanksgiving recess. The award was made by Miss Alba Salvi, president of the Student Athletic Association. Satisfactory participation in sports at the school's spring and fall summer camp sessions in Peterboro, N. H., was the basis of the award.

A CHILD'S SAVAGE DESIRE FOR TRUTH

Well Known Educator Reveals Youthful Tendencies

In the December issue of "Child Welfare," the only official magazine of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, Dr. Hughes Mearns of New York University writes on "The Creative in Education."

Dr. Mearns discusses the creative abilities of children and the best ways of developing them and of allowing them to find normal expression. He discusses "The intense and almost savage desire of very young children to tell the truth," a desire which parents sometimes unwittingly suppress. "Youth has anguessed gifts," says Dr. Mearns. "To find them is the new quest of education. For it is from this starting place that creative education begins, building up from something already fine to something finer."

THE DEDICATION OF WINCHESTER NEW PUBLIC LIBRARY

Winchester's new public library was dedicated with appropriate exercises last Saturday afternoon, Dec. 5, in the presence of several hundred citizens and invited guests. The main reading room and the delivery room were combined into a temporary auditorium. In the evening from 7 to 9 more than 600 visited the new building and inspected it throughout under the guidance of members of the Building Committee and Trustees and a group of high school seniors who, both in the afternoon and evening, served as ushers under the direction of the Secretary of the Board of Library Trustees, Mr. Francis E. Smith. The boys who ushered were John Bottger, Leonard Chandler, Joseph Flaherty, Howard Cranwell, Bernard Gaffney, John Johnson, Sterling MacDonald, John Murphy, Peter Occhinto, Frederick Philbrick, Lawrence Tobey, William Sullivan and Frederick Yeo.

At the afternoon exercises Mr. Edgar J. Rich, a member of the Building Committee and of the Board of Library Trustees, presided.

In introducing the Chairman of the Building Committee and the Chairman of the Board of Library Trustees, Mr. Rich said:

"The town has been fortunate in having for the Chairman of the Building Committee a trained business man who is also a lover of books, a writer of books, and a maker of books, Mr. Ralph T. Hale.

"I shall at the same time introduce the citizen who will receive the building in behalf of the town. It is exceedingly appropriate that the man who will perform this agreeable duty should be one who has served the town as a library trustee longer than any other citizen, since 1859, and whose interest in a new building antedates the time of service of any of his colleagues, Mr. George H. Eustis, Chairman of the Board of Library Trustees."

SCHOOL OF MISSIONS AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

A most successful session of the "School of Missions" closed on last Wednesday evening when the concluding lectures of the course were given. Mrs. Huntley of Newton and Mrs. Curtis of Brookline won the admiration of those attending the school by their thoughtful and inspiring method of presenting their subjects: "India on the March," and "The Challenge of Change."

At the close of the lecture on Wednesday evening, a short Christmas Missionary Play was presented by Mrs. William Budgell, Miss Elizabeth Baldwin, Mrs. Charles Burnham, Mrs. Norman Mitchell, Miss Anne Purdy, and Mr. Leonard Waters. The play closed with a solo beautifully rendered by Mrs. Benjamin Browne.

Mr. Michael Queenin, well known Winchester taxi man who was painfully injured in a fall from his roof last week, is reported as recovering nicely.

PROGRESS AT HORN POND BROOK

Dec. 8, 1931

To the Editor of the Star:

In order that those who have so generously contributed to the improvements going on along Horn Pond Brook may know how the work is proceeding, I will be very much obliged if you will print the following.

Report of Progress

|---|---|
| Number of Contributors | 26 |
| Number of Men | 21 |
| Number of Women | 5 |
| Total Amount Contributed to date | $874.59 |
| Largest Contribution | 100.00 |
| Smallest Contribution | 3.00 |
| Average Contribution per person | 25.94 |

This will be the third week that we have worked with nine men and a working foreman. These men are all residents of Winchester. Four are citizens and five are non-citizens. All are married men and in their homes are 54 men, women and children. We have worked a pair of horses and a scraper when we could so to advantage. The section of the stream on which we have been working is about 4000 feet long and by Saturday night we shall have completed 850 feet.

I have been asked if I shall publish the names of contributors and the amounts given. When the work is completed—unless there is serious objection by some one—I will make a list of those who have contributed but not the individual amounts subscribed. Any amount from $1 up will be most welcome—$3.59 will provide one day's work. I have made no canvass for funds for this work and shall make none for I do not wish to interfere in the slightest degree with the work of the General Committee of th town, in which I am most interested and of which I heartily approve.

In a preliminary talk with Mr. Snyder, Chairman of the General Committee, I told him I had started in this work before the plans of the General Committee had been fully formulated, and we agreed that I had better proceed.

The work will go on as long as funds are available under the personal direction of Mr. James J. Fitzgerald, who has authority to decide on the number of men who can work to advantage and will decide who of those out of work it is best to hire. Any application for work should be made to him.

Lewis Parkhurst, Agent

MRS. BERNICE A. McNEILL

Mrs. Bernice A. McNeill, wife of Chester W. McNeill of 39 Grove street died suddenly Tuesday morning, Dec. 8, at her home, of an acute heart attack. Her death who wholly unexpected and came as a severe shock to her family and friends.

Mrs. McNeill was the daughter of Frank W. and Chloe E. (Jackson) Kendall, and was born 40 years ago in Fitchburg. When a child her parents moved to Somerville, and in that city she was educated and made her home until three years ago when she came to Winchester.

She was active in the work of the Eastern Star, was Past Matron of Fraternal Chapter of West Somerville and a Massachusetts State Grand Officer of the Order in 1925. She was one of those chiefly responsible for the formation of the 1924 Matrons' and Patrons' Association of Massachusetts, and was a member of the Somerville Woman's Club.

She was married at Fitchburg in 1909 to Chester W. McNeill who survives her with a daughter, Miss Doris A. McNeill, and a son, Clifton W. McNeill, both of Winchester. A brother, Clifton W. Kendall of Newtonville, also survives.

Funeral services were held this Friday afternoon in the Wilson Undertaking Parlors on College avenue in West Somerville. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Franklin H. I. Peterson, pastor of the Highland Congregational Church, of which the deceased had been a member. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

EXCAVATION PERMIT GRANTED

The Building Commissioner has issued a permit to Dorothy M. Childs for excavation only on lot at 29 Madison avenue west, for week ending Dec. 10.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASE

Seven cases of whooping cough were reported to the Board of Health for week ending Thursday, Dec. 10.

The Star learns that a strong independent basketball team is being organized to represent Winchester this season. "Harpy" and "Nicky" Fitzgerald, "Joe" Mathews, Francis Tansey and "Willie" McNeil are only a few of the ex-high school stars interested.

WAS FORMER RESIDENT

Charles Hitchcock Tyler, senior member of the Boston Law firm of Tyler, Eames, Wright and Hooper, who died suddenly at his Beverly home on Monday, was a former resident of Winchester.

Born in Cambridge, Oct. 11, 1863, son of Joseph How and Abbie (Hitchcock) Tyler, he was graduated from Harvard in 1886 and from Boston University Law School in 1889, serving for several years as instructor in real estate law at the last named.

In 1907 he formed a partnership with Owen D. Young which continued until 1913 when Mr. Young became identified with the General Electric Company. Mr. Tyler retained interest in his law firm until forced to retire by ill health in 1928.

He maintained a kennel at his Beverly home, Willowbrook Farm, his dogs being widely known and prize winners all over the country. He was treasurer of the American Distemper Committee, a member of the Union Club, Boston Athletic Association, Eastern Yacht Club, Brookline Country Club, the Essex Club and the Monserat Club of Beverly.

A noted collector of antiques, Mr. Tyler's collection of furniture, china and silver was said to be the finest in private hands.

The Tyler home in Winchester was at the corner of Herrick and Main streets and was later purchased by Thomas W. Lawson. Mr. Tyler and his mother gave the handsome stained glass windows recently moved from the old to the new library as a memorial to their father and husband.

WINCHESTER JOINS NATIONAL CURLERS

At a meeting held at the clubhouse Monday evening the Winchester Country Club voted to join the Grand National Curling Club of America which will give local teams the right to participate in the national matches held under the auspices of that organization.

Forty-two enthusiasts signed up for membership in the local curling organization, W. D. Eaton, H. V. Farnsworth, E. Y. Neill, R. F. Guild and K. T. Young being elected skips of the Winchester teams. E. B. Badger was elected president of the curling division of the Winchester Country Club with Charles P. LeRoyer as secretary and treasurer. Four lanes will be available at the club this winter instead of three, and there will be regular club matches on Saturdays and Sundays, with the annual match and elimination play-off for the club trophy, as well as inter-club matches.

Local interest in curling has mounted rapidly since Bowen Tufts introduced the game to Winchester four years ago, and the Star has "Bob" Guild's word for the statement that the current season is to be the best ever.

OLD WOBURN IN PICTURES

1800 to 1900

Last May the Woburn Librarian exhibited a number of lantern slides of Woburn showing the changes of the last hundred years, and invited the old residents who attended to furnish the comment. This fall he was unexpectedly called on to tell the story himself—which required the addition of many new pictures—before an assembly of the Junior High School. So much desire has been expressed by grown-ups to see these same pictures that, with the support of the Woburn Local History Committee, an outgrowth of the activities of the Tercentenary Year, it has been arranged to give the whole story with the additional pictures as a "benefit" for the work of Woburn Relief Committee in Times Hall next Monday evening.

The story starts with Woburn as a farming community about 1800, tells of the Canal sponsored by the Baldwin family, the Railroad witnessed in his boyhood by Leonard Thompson, the struggle for a new Grammar School started by Parson Bennett, the erection of High School and Lyceum Hall and the founding of banks in the 1850s, together with the activities of J. B. Winn and John Cummings, Jr., whose life extended practically to the close of the century.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Mr. Charles H. Symmes of Main street is undergoing two operations in a Boston hospital and is not expected to return to his home until the first of the year.

Little "Jimmy" Nowell, son of Fireman and Mrs. J. L. Nowell is at the Children's Hospital undergoing treatment for a hip affliction.

Mrs. John A. Harrold of Myrtle street, who is at the Winchester Hospital as the result of a broken leg sustained in a fall at her home last week Thursday, is reported as getting along nicely.

The Fire Department was called shortly after 2 o'clock Tuesday to put out a grass fire at the rear of the residence of former Selectman Jonas A. Laraway at 310 Main street.

Members of the Winchester Choral Society are engaged in a campaign to secure associate members for the organization. A handsome prize has been donated for the contest and will be presented to that one securing the most associate members.

"Maury" Tompkins, ex-high school and Tilton Academy athlete, stated that the town will have a real hockey team on the ice this winter. Several former prep school and college stars have been lined up and as soon as conditions warrant the boys will start regular practice sessions.

Mrs. Patrick McGowan of Clark street who underwent an operation at the Winchester Hospital last week is reported as improving nicely.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Winchester Scouts Hold Public Court of Honor

Despite the many other activities which were taking place in Winchester on Saturday last, a splendid turn out of Scouts and a better than usual gathering of parents and friends enjoyed the Public Court of Honor of the Winchester Boy Scouts, held in the Winchester Town Hall.

The program, which was in charge of Field Executive Edward R. Grosvenor, opened with a parade and review of the Scouts of Winchester, and the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

These opening exercises were followed by inspection, which was won by Troop 3, with a score of 7 points; second, Troop 1, 5 points; and third, Troop 6, 3 points.

Next came the competitive games and Scouting contests which were judged by R. K. Miller, Jr., Dwight B. Hill, James E. Millican.

The first event in this series was the lighting of fire by the Bow Method, which was won by Robert Millican, Troop 3—time 22 3/5 sec.; second, Richard Philbrick, Troop 1—time 46 3/5 sec.; and third, Paul Wentworth, Troop 3—time 56 sec. Troop scores in this event were Troop 3, 13 points; Troop 1, 5 points.

Morse Signaling, the next event was won by a team composed of John Blaisdell, and David Kennerson of Troop 1, while Robert Millican, and Albert Grosvenor of Troop 3 were second. Troop points in this event were Troop 1, 7 points; Troop 3, 5 points.

As usual, the chair and handkerchief game furnished plenty of amusement for spectators as well as for the boys engaged in the contest. In the first game Troop 6 was successful in competition with Troop 1, then Troop 3 played Troop 6. In this second match Troop 3 won, so the final score for this event was Troop 3, 7 points; Troop 6, 5 points; and Troop 1, 3 points.

In the Flint and Steel Fire Lighting, Robert Millican of Troop 3 took first place, making fire in 5 2/5 sec. Paul Wentworth of Troop 3 was second, and Albert Grosvenor of Troop 3 was third. Troop 3 scored 15 points on this event.

Bandaging was the next event, and in this, first and second places were taken by Troop 3, while Troop 1 scored third place. The scores in this event were Troop 3, 12 points; Troop 1, 3 points; Troop 6, 1 point.

In Semaphore signaling, the last of the competitive events, Troop 6 scored 12 points; Troop 1, 3 points; with no third place.

At the close of the competitive events came the award of badges earned since the last Court. Chairman John Campbell of the Winchester District Committee, made the presentations. The awards were made as published in last week's Star. Sargent Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight B. Hill of 20 Fletcher street, received the coveted Eagle award. Scout Hill actually earned his Eagle, or completed the work for the Eagle at Camp Kenoza this summer, but was officially awarded the Eagle badge at this court of honor.

The points for badges earned were as follows: Troop 3, 319 points; Troop 6, 161 points; Troop 1, 105 points. These added to the points won in the competitive events gives the following final scores for the whole program: Troop 3, 418 points; Troop 6, 182 points; Troop 1, 131 points.

On concluding the awards Mr. Campbell made a few remarks in which he pointed out that Scouting in Winchester was slowly, but nevertheless definitely growing. He announced that R. K. Miller, Jr. had been appointed District Commissioner, succeeding Dwight B. Hill. Mr. Miller served as Winchester's representative on the Camp committee of the Council during this first year of Winchester's participation in Camp Kenoza, and it is largely through his efattendance record equal to the average for the whole Council, a noteworthy record for the first year.

Scout Executive, Harry T. French, was next introduced. Mr. French spoke for a few minutes on two Council projects that are now attracting the attention of Scouts and Scouters throughout the Council, namely the Council name contest, and the District rally program. Due to the fact that the Medford Council, like many Councils throughout the country, has grown from a Council covering but one municipality to a Council serving five communities, the present name, Medford Council, is inadequate and misleading. Consequently the Scouts of the Council are now engaged in a contest to select a name which will adequately fit the situation. Each Patrol has had an opportunity to submit a name to the judges, the contest having been announced in October and to close on Dec. 15. Attractive prizes have been offered to the winning Patrol.

District rallies are to be held in December and early in January, to be followed by a Council rally in late January. Winners in the District competitions will comnete for Council championships at the Council rally. The Winchester District rally will be held on Monday, Jan. 11.

Troop 6, Winchester Reports

At the last meeting of the Troop, the meeting was opened with the salute to the flag. After the opening exercises, Fitld Executive Edward R. Grosevnor discussed with the Troop the results of the public court of honor, held Dec. 5.

This was followed by a competition on the points of the compass. The first patrol finished first. In the inter-patrol points contest, patrol 3 is at present in the lead.

The meeting closed with the Scout oath and law.

Scout John A. Plummer.
Troop 6 Reporter

TEACHERS PRESENT MINSTRELS

Evening of Fun and Melody Attracts Large Audience

Members of the Winchester Teachers' Club laid aside books and pointers last evening to present their first minstrel show to an enthusiastic audience in the town hall. From first to last the bill was a fine one, work of both soloists and chorus being excellent. It was hard to believe that the fast stepping "ponies" of the ballet were in reality efficient schoolmarms, minus their workaday dignity. The ensemble presented an attractive appearance, the girls in white with black sailor pants and the men in white shirts and black trousers. The "ponies" wore alternating black and white sailor pants and the end men striped dress suits in black and white. The background was an all over black and white checkboard.

Assisting the teachers as soloists were two of Winchester's favorite vocalists, Kenneth McLeod, whose end song, "My Song" got the show away to a good start, and Clifford Cunningham who gave a splendid rendition of the favorite "Good Night Sweetheart." David Downer displayed a clear high tenor in the song, "Roll on Mississippi" and with Robert Hamilton and Messrs. Cunningham and McLeod put on a quartette number "By the Old Mill Stream at Twilight" that brought forth enthusiastic applause. Mr. Hamilton singing the solo. Singing with the teachers in the chorus were Richard Breen, T. Parker Clarke, Robert Hamilton and Kenneth Pratt.

All the numbers were well done. The girl's quartette, Ruth Beeman, Alice Crossley, Lois Gibson and Marion Hanlon, got a big hand with their specialty, "Sleep Kentuckey Babe" and Miss Crossley's solo, "Trees" was popular. End songs by Leonor Rich and Margaret Leydon were well done as were those of Marcia Fuller and Margaret Andrews. Mary Barr's topical song had plenty of local color with hits at local celebrities in and out of school circles.

The high light of the evening was the singing of the radio hit, "Sweet and Lovely" by end man Alfred "Mickey" Muerling, popular coach of cross country and producer of the first undefeated team at Winchester High. The applause which followed his effort leads us to believe that many of his boys were in the audience. His clowning on the piano with his bunch of carrots got a big and deserved laugh.

The "Specialty by an Unknown" turned out to be a clever impromptu song by one of the coaches of the production, C. O. Bayrd, who entered the hall as a new janitor and indulged in some snappy cross fire dialogue with the interlocutor. R. B. McKenna who shared the coaching duties with Mr. Bayrd was excellent in the last named important role.

The work of the ballet added much to the show, good judges of dancing praising the teachers' stepping highly. Miss Elizabeth Clark's piano accompaniments aided both soloists and chorus greatly. The finale was very effective with the entire company paying tribute to Miss America, played by Miss Patricia Smith. Dancing followed the show.

A previous performance of the show was given Wednesday afternoon for the school children who crowded the hall and waxed enthusiastic over the efforts of their teachers in the realm of footlights and charcoal.

Following is the summary of the show:

WINCHESTER UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF

In the future all clothing which is sent for distribution by the Relief Committee should be left at the Library.

Mrs. J. F. Dwinell, who has this branch of relief work in charge, states the most urgent need is for children's underwear. Also there is a real need for knitted mittens. Any women who would be willing to assist in knitting mittens should communicate with Mrs. Dwinell at Win. 1318 or at Winchester Umemployment Relief Committee rooms at the Town Hall.

With our Best Wishes!

TOWN TEAM TO DANCE

The annual football dance of the Winchester Town Team will be held on the evening of Friday, Dec. 18, in Waterfield Hall with dancing from 8 until midnight. "Billy" Norton's Golden Pheasant Orchestra has been secured to furnish the music and refreshments will be served. Maynard MacDonnell is heading the committee in charge of arrangements.

WAS SISTER OF MRS. CHARLES E. KEATING

Miss Gertrude A. Lynch, who died Sunday, Dec. 5 at her home on Reed street in Woburn, was the sister of Mrs. Charles E. Keating of Stone avenue.

Miss Lynch was widely known in Woburn and served for many years as assistant organist of St. Charles Church. Her funeral took place Monday morning with solemn requiem high mass celebrated in St. Charles Church by Father Quill, assisted by Father Toomey and Father McDermott. Father Hawko and Fr. John J. McCarthy were seated in the sanctuary. Soloists were Miss Lila Breslin, Mrs. Helen Studley and John Halliday. Interment was in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden, where the committal prayers were read by Father Heaney, pastor of St. Charles Church.

Besides Mrs. Keating the deceased is survived by three sisters, Miss Jennie Lynch, Miss Mary Lynch and Mrs. Edward F. Doherty, all of Woburn, and by one brother, John H. Lynch, also of Woburn.

LIONS' CLUB NOTES

Next Monday's meeting at the Calumet Club promises to be especially interesting. The club's guest on that occasion will be P. D. Bowler who installed the driven well water supply system in Woburn. Mr. Bowler will be accompanied by his Winchester representative, Donald Rockwell, and will illustrate his talk with two reels of motion pictures. The directors of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce will be the guests of the club at the meeting which will commence at 12:15.

ODD FELLOWS' NOTES

Monday evening's meeting is to be followed by a bridge and whist in Association Building. Rehearsals have started for the all star minstrel show which the Odd Fellows are to stage on New Year's Eve with dancing after the show until 1 o'clock. A hustling committee is working on plans for an Odd Fellows' Veterans night at Association Hall on Jan. 18.

Martin C. Flaherty, who died last Saturday at his home on Fairmount street in Woburn, was the brother of Driver John J. Flaherty of the Winchester Fire Department. The deceased had made his home in Woburn for 30 years and had a wide circle of friends there as well as in this town.

MEETING OF THE WINCHESTER CIRCLE OF THE FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE

A meeting of the Winchester Circle of the Florence Crittenton League of Compassion will be held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 p. m. at the residence of Mrs. Frederick N. Stevens, 31 Swan road. Rev. David M. Beach of the Congregational Payson Park Church of Belmont will speak on "The Laws of Science." Mr. Beach is one of the younger preachers of Greater Boston especially popular in his addresses to young people. He is also a director of the League. Mrs. Everett O. Fisk of Brookline, always proves interesting. Some of the older generation in Winchester remember her career in the Winchester High School when as Louise Holman she was Valedictorian of her class.

A pleasing musical program is promised with Florence Mansfield of Melrose the soprano soloist and Glennys Pollard Thompson, the violinist. Glennys Thompson is well known here in her town, most often heard among the parishioners of the Crawford Memorial Church, where her husband, the Rev. J. West Thompson is the pastor. Tea will be served.

The treasurer wishes members to show tickets at the door. All members who have not received their membership tickets can procure them at this meeting from Mrs. Siedhof.

ENGLISH COUNTRY DANCING CLASS

The class in English Country Dancing which meets Monday evenings in the First Congregational Church under the auspices of the College Club, has proved to be most enjoyable. On Monday, Nov. 30, the local class entertained a similar one from Lincoln and Weston. The teacher for that evening was Mrs. Conant, who is now one of the directors of the English Folk Dancing Society of Boston. She studied at Oxford under Cecil Sharp who rediscovered the English Folk Dances and made a thorough study of them and their music.

The Christmas meeting of the English Folk Dancing Society is at Cedar Hill on Dec. 18.

HISTORY WORK AT MYSTIC SCHOOL

An assembly, based upon history work, was given by the sixth grades of the Mystic School on Friday, Dec. 4. We gave a stereopticon lecture on early Egyptian and Greek civilization. The slides used were made by the pupils. The pictures showing the life, customs and architecture of these early peoples were drawn upon etched glass and shown by the stereopticon lantern. Paragraphs, explaining the slides were given by various pupils. Each one of us had a part in the program, either through making a slide or through explaining one. The lantern was managed by Robert Gardner and Harold Parish.

CALUMET NOTES

That loud cheer you probably heard on Monday evening was a Calumet war whoop, given in honor of the fact that the club team broke into the win column in its Mystic Valley League match with Kernwood of Malden at Calumet.

The local boys had promised to avenge several straight defeats on Monday and were as good as their word.

Calumet opened up by halving the bowling, the first team losing by 24 pins while the seconds mopped up the Kernwood boys 1510 to 1352. Day of Kernwood had the high three string of 370 on 124, but Hildreth of Calumet team 2 was surely hitting them, getting a three string 350 and the night's high single of 126. Following are the summaries:

Calumet Team 1 vs Kernwood Team 1

| KERNWOOD TEAM 1 | | | | |

Calumet struck a winning stride in the pool and billiards, taking three of the four points from the visitors. As usual the local card team came through with all three points of its match. The summary:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Bowling | 1 | |
| Pool and Billiards | 1 | |
| Cards | 1 | |
| Total | 3 | |

The entertainment committee is surely offering some real attractions this season. Golfers are still talking about the big golfing nite on Saturday, and now along comes the announcement that Willie Hoppe and Welker Cochrane, two of the world's greatest billiard luminaries, will be at the club Monday evening for an exhibition match.

No billiard enthusiast will think for a minute of missing this attraction and those who know little of this great game should not fail to see these cue wizards at work. The balls do everything but say "uncle" when Willie and Welker start stroking and both champions have fine personalities which make them welcome everywhere. A special table will be set up in the club hall to enable everyone to see. Come and bring your friends. A treat is in store for you.

Everyone is asking about the next dinner bridge so we asked Fred about it, and learned that it is to be held at the club on Friday evening, Dec. 18, with Mrs. Kingman P. Cass in charge. These parties are deservedly popular, and if you haven't attended one plan to "sit in" Dec. 18. Dinner at 6:30 p. m.

The big golf nite, held at the club last Saturday proved one of the finest parties Calumet has enjoyed in a long time. The golfers, near golfers and would-be golfers were out in force and enjoyed a delicious ham and bean supper with apple pie, served by Steward Fred Scholl.

After dinner the distinguished guests were introduced, and these proved to be none other than Francis Ouimet, Woodland's favorite son; Harry Bowler, newly appointed manager of the Winchester Country Club; and A. Linde Fowler and George Carens of the Transcript Sports' Staff. Carens, who is the Transcript football writer, filled in for Perley Chase of Winchester who was unable to be present.

Naturally this quartette had much of interest to say and they surely had an attentive audience. Ouimet's first-hand information of matches and championship tournaments was absorbing, and he paid a fine tribute to Jesse Sweetser for the latter's great display of nerve in winning the British amateur while a sick man.

Linde Fowler told of the Walker Cup matches and got a big laugh when he recounted the manner in which he "borrowed" Ouimet's moving picture camera when entering England, only to face the necessity of paying a stiff duty to take the thing into the country. Harry Bowler and George Carens also spoke most interestingly and the latter's stories were very, very funny.

After the speaking the golfing quartette repaired to the alleys where Ouimet's team took Fowler's aggregation into camp. The latter made up for his bowling defeat by giving a sparkling demonstration on the billiard tables, assisted by "Bobby" Reynolds.

SUCCESS!!!!

The Unemployment Fund Campaign

Up to Tuesday morning the nearly 400 person have covered at least 75 per cent of the town. The pledges up to completion of the records Tuesday morning showing $30,000 in sight out of the $48,000 required. This is a little more than 60 per cent with 40 per cent still to go. A very considerable area and a very considerable number of the teams are yet to be heard from. The 40 captains are functioning admirably. Everybody is keenly interested. No similar unanimity of action and no parallel of intensity of interest has manifested itself in any public action undertaken since the height of the World War community campaigns. As the actual campaign is but one week old the results thus far achieved are truly remarkable.

As the chairman remarked at the meeting which marked the assembly of the teams, it was evident that the historical record of achievement marked by the statement that "the people had a mind to work" is being energetically illustrated in the Unemployment Relief Funds Campaign.

"The widow's mite" has appeared in a new form. One subscription which an elderly woman practically without income insisted upon making is 10 cents per month. Another highly interested subscriber said he knew this woman and she could not afford to give even 10 cents and as his family was receiving an income of $15 a week he could better afford to take over her subscription for the first month at least, and did so. This seems to be illustrative of the spirit of givers and workers alike.

Whether or not we go over the top depends upon the last 25 per cent of effort, and that depends less upon the large givers than on the full cooperation of everyone in the town who can give something each month for the next six months.

The Winchester Hospital staff, of which Doctor Ordway is chief of staff, and which comprises substantially all the physicians and surgeons in Winchester, meets in conference on Monday next to determine upon a plan for systematic care of the unemployed who are unable to employ the services of physicians or surgeons upon the ordinary basis. This is a splendid program and will without doubt be whipped into an efficiently planned method for making the skilled services of the doctors available upon some rotational basis by which each of the doctors will share in the work and by which the residents of the town who are without income may not be deprived of medical or surgical services, merely because they are out of employment and unable to pay for it. The heartfelt appreciation of the people of Winchester and especially the recipients of their skilled aid will be a partial reward for the execution of this fine public service.

Clothing is being delivered in sufficient quantities to give excellent assistance to adults, but there is a woeful deficiency of suits and knickers for boys, warm dresses for girls, shoes and stockings for all ages of children. It is evident that children's clothing is normally used up more completely in a family with a variety of children; —therefore the necessity of accumulating a variety and quantity of children's clothing. On Wednesday morning the Clothing Department of the Unemployment Relief Work was moved to the vacated library. The enlarged space will make possible the better handling and care of the material and better service given to the applicants for aid. A large committee of ladies, with some men assisting, are as busy as bees in carrying out the transfer from the basement of the Town Hall to the first floor of the old library at the other end of the building. Clothing will be called for whenever requested. Call Relief Headquarters, Win. 0793-M at any time between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m.

More day jobs are wanted; work for both men and women, upon houses or grounds, in the cellar, in the attic, anywhere that the work of competent men and women can be used. Create new work wherever possible, work which you would not otherwise do.

MR. CRAUGHWELL EXPLAINS

To the Editor of the Star:

Some folks believed after they had scrutinized my article that was published in the Star last week that I had made an error. I cheerfully subscribe to their views but they did not inform me what kind of an error I was guilty of making. The error is as follows: I asserted that the town employees received compensation for 10 holidays. That is an error! They receive compensation for 11 holidays, and your correspondent is one of the men who is on the receiving end. I assure you, Mr. Editor, I am very grateful. I asserted that some of the town employees did not contribute to the unemployment fund. I did not mention town laborers. I shall let the reader of these few words decide what is the difference between a town employee and a town laborer, and please remember I did not refer to the men who had their wages reduced because I believe they have made a sacrifice. I did, however, refer to the men whose wages were not reduced and have not contributed to the fund. Hence, in my opinion, they have not made a sacrifice.

I certainly trust that the above few words are a clear explanation of an apparently muddled misunderstanding, and as far as I am concerned the controversy comes to an end. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the above space.

Very truly yours,
Patrick H. Craughwell

ROTARY CLUB

On Tuesday, Dec. 8 the Club was entertained at Woburn by the Rotary Club of that city. The Rotary Clubs of Arlington, Lexington, Reading, Stoneham and Wakefield were also guests on this occasion, which is to say that the meeting was the largest that this locality has seen in a long time. Twenty-three Winchester Rotarians attended and it is estimated that the total attendance was in excess of 200. The great assembly hall of the Woburn "Y" was filled to capacity and gaily bedecked with Rotary banners and national emblems.

A feature of the meeting was the excellent singing. Each Club was given an opportunity to render its favorite song, which was done with gusto. Some of these songs were so good that the entire gathering joined spontaneously in the singing.

We were favored with the presence of several distinguished guests, including Past District Governor Bert Comins, Past District Governor Bruce McCullough, and District Governor, "Jerry" Wood.

The principal speaker of the day was Past District Governor, Bruce McCullough. Bruce is the only American member on the important committee on International Relations of Rotary International. He has traveled extensively in Europe during the last summer and autumn and is therefore in an excellent position to bring to us the viewpoint of various European peoples with respect to the present political and economic ferment. In common with many other Rotarians of broad vision, Bruce observes that the influence of this organization, while unobtrusive is nevertheless powerful in promoting sympathetic understanding between the worlds' nations great and small. Rotary Clubs in foreign lands as a rule are organized along different lines from those in this country. Trade and professional classifications are not so rigidly observed as with us. This condition is necessitated by certain class and social distinctions which are inherent in these peoples. It has however, been the steadfast policy in organizing overseas Rotary Clubs to gather into the fold individuals of unquestioned social standing, broad education and splendid ability, who having been inculated with the Rotarian viewpoint are mighty factors in smoothing the rough places which are deterrent to international good will. As an illustration of what this means Bruce cited conditions along the Franco-German frontier as observed by him. It is understood that a line of the mightiest fortifications which modern military engineering can conceive, is being built along this frontier. As to the reaction of French and German civilians to this, Past Governor Bruce stated that in his visits to various Rotary Clubs in this district he was impressed by the eager desire of these Rotarians to cultivate amicable relations with each other, with evident and profound appreciation of the dire catastrophe into which they would be plunged by another war. Can we doubt that this turn in the minds of men constitutes a mighty force against military terrorism.

Bruce brought to us many forceful ideas which cannot be discussed here. We will simply say that his address compelled the attention of all present, and that we are all Rotarians for having listened to it.

Our next meeting will fall on Thursday, Dec. 17 at home quarters. There were 14 absentees at this meeting, whom we hope will make special effort to cancel delinquencies.

Percentage of Attendance, Dec. 1—90.90 per cent.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The monthly meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the home of Mrs. Frank Rowe, 30 Vine street on Friday, Dec. 18 at 2:30. Members and friends are requested to bring or send donations for the Christmas box which will be sent to our state department of foreign mission and relief work. Jellies, fresh fruit or small cans, cocoa, malted milk, candy, anything suitable for sick or elderly people will be appreciated. The children will meet on the same afternoon at 3:30 in the classroom of the Baptist Church. Children from 7 to 14 years of age are urged to attend this class which is being taught by Miss Margaret Winn.

Modern Youth and Drink

Youth today questions tradition. There is every reason why young people should do so, for there are not lacking indications that there is plenty of room for improvement in our institutions. This attitude on the part of youth has led to some encouraging results. The growing international outlook of the younger people has in many cases come about from this overhauling of tradition. It would seem that youth, being doubtful about tradition, would certainly be skeptical concerning liquor, youth that questions war, nationalism and almost every other time-honored institution sometimes nods approval to liquor. Yet there is no more empty tradition in the whole world today than that of liquor. Drinking is essentially traditional. Young people at times say that drinking is up to date and modern. Undoubtedly this idea results from the presistent assertions of the wets that young people are drinking as never before and that all this has followed the adoption of the 18th amendment. Yet the fact remains that liquor is not up-to-date or modern, but exists almost entirely because of tradition. Actually, in our high-speed civilization liquor is thoroughly out of date.

The results of its use assuredly do not make one more attractive to others. Liquor does not further well-being. Total abstinence does, and so gives more happiness to the individual and to the community. Liquor is of the past, total abstinence of the future. Alcohol as a beverage has no place among forward-looking people.

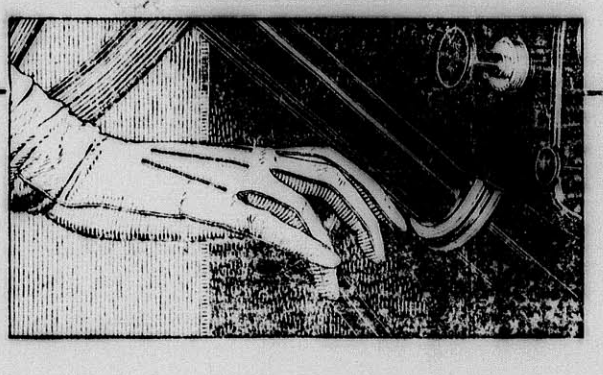
The first and only low-priced car with

Syncro-Mesh Shift and Free Wheeling



ONE of the biggest driving thrills in modern motoring is now available at one of the lowest prices in the automobile market. Syncro-Mesh is combined with Free Wheeling in the new Chevrolet Six!

This is the first time that these two outstanding inventions have been brought together in a low-priced automobile. Syncro-Mesh is the most advanced type of transmission ever developed. Free Wheeling is that new sensation which adds so much to the zest of driving. The two make a matchless combination! They bring about an entirely new kind of driving ease and car control, far beyond anything you have ever enjoyed. They give you quick, quiet shifting and complete mastery of the car under all driving conditions. They enable you to do things in driving that are impossible without both these features.

If you prefer to drive in "standard" gear, Syncro-Mesh enables you to shift back and forth with uncanny speed, silence and precision. This is particularly desirable when descending steep hills or traveling slippery streets. For it enables you to use the engine as a brake, instantly, without slowing down the car.

Then, suppose you want Free Wheeling. Simply press a button on the dash. Thereafter, and until you pull the button out again, you Free Wheel. You coast along with a delightful gliding sensation. And you shift with never-to-be-forgotten ease.

The Free Wheeling mechanism of the new Chevrolet Six is a highly simplified type. Instead of a complicated mechanism with many moving parts, it is a simple, sturdy unit, with only three moving parts.

Then, along with Syncro-Mesh and Free Wheeling, Chevrolet offers you 60-horsepower six cylinder performance, higher speed, faster acceleration, greater smoothness, smarter Fisher bodies, matchless economy, and a first cost that is among the lowest in the market. Certainly it's the great American value for 1932.

The new Chevrolet Six combines the advantages of two inventions . . . Syncro-Mesh and Free Wheeling . . . to assure quick, quiet, easy gear-shifting and positive control of the car under every driving condition

COUNT RUMFORD'S GARDEN

"Visitors to Munich have probably had praised to them the unique and beautiful park known as the Englischer Garden, but few recall who made it. It owes its creation to an American adventurer, Benjamin Thompson, born at Woburn, Mass. in 1753. During the War for Independence he joined the British, served them in various offices, was sent to Munich, where the Elector created him a Count. Because of political enemies, he went to Paris and started a new career as a scientist and therein gained distinction and died in 1814. Count Rumford, as he was known, left to Harvard the funds for its Rumford professorship and large funds to other learned societies. It is worth remembering this when in his garden."

Foreigners in London

Thirty-four per cent of London's foreign population are Russian, 10 per cent Italians, 8 per cent German and 7 per cent French.

Miss Dorothy Day of Ridgefield road, vice-president of the Marycliffe Academy Alumnae, is a member of the committee in charge of the supper dance to be held at the Kenmore Hotel, on Dec. 28. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Alma M. Boudreau, chairman; Mrs. Frank P. Scully, president; Mme. Alexis Araapoff, Miss Laura Townsend, Miss Marie Mercier, Mrs. Winslow Tower and Miss Dorothy Burns.

UNITARIAN CHURCH BAZAAR HAS GOOD ATTENDANCE

Mrs. Arthur Pitman deserves much credit for her efficient work as chairman of the annual Christmas bazaar held Tuesday, Dec. 8 at the Unitarian Church. She and her sub-chairman, Mrs. John A. Maddocks, were very successful in planning and executing the various features of the bazaar.

The fine luncheon served at 12 o'clock was under the supervision of Mrs. C. P. Nutting, while Mrs. C. S. Jacobs served tea in the ladies' parlor in the afternoon. The Punch and Judy show for the small children was planned by Mrs. Kenneth F. McLeod, entertainment chairman.

At the 11 tables attractively arranged and decorated in the Christmas manner, the chairmen presiding were:

Food—Mrs. Fred E. Ritchie.
Candy—Mrs. Fred A. Preston.
Flowers—Mrs. Wayne E Davis.
Gifts—Mrs Charles E. Young.
Handkerchiefs—Mrs. George W. Apsey.
Dolls—Mrs. Daniel Kelley.
Household—Mrs H. A. Gale.
Parcel Post—Miss M. Alice Mason.
White Elephant—Mrs. Herbert E. Stone.
Grabs—Miss Alice Eaton.
Christmas Wrappings—Mrs. J. R. Livingstone.

Mrs. Pitman and all her assistants are most grateful to those members and friends of the Ladies' Friendly Society who attended the bazaar and gave their generous support in the interests of the Society.

GIRL SCOUTS

Winchester Council of Girl Scouts met at the home of Mrs. Preston F. Corey, Wednesday morning. The Council voted to join the Needlework Guild of America and Mrs. Theodore Dissell was appointed chairman, assisted by Mrs. Reginald Bradlee.

The Mounted Troop will donate vegetables for the Society Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, to use for the Christmas party of the horses of Greater Boston.

"The Buried Treasure" will be found Saturday, Dec. 12 in Fortnightly Hall, at 3:30 for children and in the evening for adults, at 8:15. Troop 5 is busy rehearsing the play and making gifts for the sale. Miss Nancy Hall is chairman of tickets. The cast is made up of Scouts Maragret Plumer, Martha Hill, Janet Spencer, Gladys Moulton, Nancy Jackson and Philippa Kelley.

Mrs. Gilbert Tapley has been appointed by the Metropolitan Division Commissioner, Mrs. Curtis Waterman, to represent the division on the State Brownie Leaders' Board.

HAINAN: CHINA'S LARGEST ISLAND DOMAIN

The focus of recent Chinese news has shifted across Hainan Strait to Hainan Island where disturbances have been confined to northern towns.

Hainan Island, lying about 15 miles off Luichow Peninsula of Kwangtung Province, the southernmost tip of China, is the largest of the Republic's insular possessions, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

New Rubber Region

Sever the panhandle from West Virginia and shrink the State to an area about 52 square miles larger than Rhode Island, and you will have an almost identical map of Hainan. It is largely mountainous, its rugged ranges rising from 5000 to 6000 feet. Unlike the bare mountains of Kwangtung Province, those of Hainan are covered with thick forests of mahogany, rosewood, red and white cedar and other valuable woods.

No railroads are on the island, there are very few miles of carriage roads, and the coastal zone is the only portion of its area that has been developed. Yet Hainan manages to support more than 3,000,000 people. The tropical climate affords year-round crops.

Rice fields cover a vast area of the island's agricultural lands. Rubber and sugar plantations, comparatively newcomers to the island, are showing promise, and the old established cattle, horse, bullock and pig raising industries continue a large factor in the island trade. Fruit growing has never been an outstanding industry, but a small orchard area is highly productive. Coconuts are grown.

Chinese for 2000 Years

Kiungchow, capital and largest city, lies on the west bank of the Ta-Kiang, one of the Hainan's two rivers. It is 12 miles from the sea. Like many Chinese cities, it has an outport on open water. Hoihow, on Hainan Strait, at the mouth of the Ta-Kiang serves the capital in that capacity.

Aboot two thirds of the "Hainanites" are Chinese. The remainder are a strange mixture of Asiatics. The Shengli (aborigines) who inhabit the inland valleys are related to the Siamese and Indo-Chinese. They are mostly hunters and fishers. The Shuli (civilized savages) are descendants of Chinese refugees who fled to the island many centuries ago.

Hainan has been a part of China for more than 2000 years but was unimportant until it was incorporated with the mainland in the 13th century. For a time it was a penal colony, but an inadequate one, for inmates found escape easy.

Foreign vessels had plied the West River to Canton and other southern China ports for more than three centuries when the port of Kiungchow was opened to world trade in 1858 by the terms of the Treaty of Tientsin. For 15 years, piracy retarded shipping in Hainan waters, but today it is one of the chief Chinese ports south of Hong Kong.

A QUERY FROM THE CARPENTERS

To the Editor of the Star:

It is not often that the carpenters of Winchester ask for any space in your paper, or in any way seek for publicity. We feel that our job is to say little and saw wood. But the conditions that now confronts us we feel merit something being said that our fellow citizens and taxpayers might know how well we are being treated.

At the town meeting last March, upwards of $350,000 was voted for the construction and alteration of school buildings, and it was included in motion passed at the town meeting that taxpayers of Winchester as far as possible be employed in the construction of those buildings, but alas our School Building Committee are not getting much results in having Winchester taxpayers employed, and this at a time when other work is very slack and the Community Committee on Unemployment reports more carpenters out of employment than are employed on the two school projects, nor at any time since the work started have we had more than one third of working force of these jobs carpenters who live or pay taxes in the town.

Compare this if you will with the work of the committee who had charge of the building of our library. There, almost every sub-contract as well as the general contract had a Winchester taxpayer interested and as far as our trade was concerned more than 85 per cent of the work was done by Winchester men.

The membership of the Winchester unit of our Brotherhood feel that, our town committees should be as efficient as like committees of other towns in this vicinity, and the writer can cite one instance quite recently where a member of a School Building Committee walked onto a job with five or six members of his community who were out of work and Mr. Out-of-Town Contractor was told to send his non-taxpayers home and put the taxpayers to work at once and it was done. Now, we do not ask for anything as drastic as this but feel that we are entitled to a 50-50 break.

Winchester carpenters paid $2500 in taxes this year and expect to pay more next year, for what? To support citizens of other cities and towns while 200 of our fellow townspeople are going from door to door asking for the pledging of funds for the relief of the unemployed.

Observant Small Boy Noted Significant Fact

"Fear of death and the hereafter," writes a Pasadena reader, "always reminds me of the little boy who was taken to the dentist by his mother. The office was well filled when they arrived and they had to wait as, one by one, those who had arrived before them, went into the dental room.

It happened that this particular office is so arranged that patients do not return to the reception room, but leave the premises through another door which opens directly into the corridor.

When it came Johnny's turn, he stubbornly refused to go in.

"But why not?" demanded the puzzled mother. "Your tooth still aches, doesn't it? You want the ache stopped, don't you?"

"Yes," muttered Johnny, starting to cry, "but nobody that went in there has ever come out again."

CHINA'S GRAND CANAL, THE WORLD'S LONGEST ARTIFICIAL WATERWAY

Hardest hit by the combined disasters of flood and typhoon was the Grand Canal district of China, particularly in the neighborhood of Yangchow, a few miles down the Yangtze River from Nanking, the Chinese capital. Wind-driven flood waters hammered 15 large openings in the canal banks. Thousands of square miles of territory were inundated, 7,000,000 people were made homeless, and 200,000 are reported to have lost their lives.

The Grand Canal, or Yun ho, rambles for almost a thousand miles through the coastal plain of China, and is the longest artificial waterway in the world, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. From Hangchow to Tientsin it traverses a distance almost equal to three Erie Canals, one of America's longest waterways. In its way the Grand Canal of China is as great a monument to human industry as the Great Wall, although at first sight the Canal does not seem as spectacular.

More than 500 years before the birth of Christ, Chinese engineers were erecting dikes and digging ditches in the vicinity of Yangchow, and gradually through the centuries this great artery of trade and travel was extended north and south until it provided a safe inland waterway for half of China's seaboard.

For many centuries the Grand Canal was the only means of inland communication between North and South China, and, while no one took care of the few rocky highways of the country, thousands of laborers were always at work repairing the dikes and sluices of the canal, diverting lakes and rivers to feed it water, and detouring other streams to prevent it from getting too much.

As the canal runs above the level of the land in some sections it is evident that a break in the ancient walls would pour water, drawn from choked streams miles away, into the lowlands.

Home and Highway Combined

The Grand Canal is not only an avenue of trade. It also provides parking space for thousands of houseboats, which in places are moored so closely together that their inhabitants must have been crushed and drowned when the flood and typhoon swept down upon them. Auto jams at American county seats on Saturday nights have had their counterparts along China's Grand Canal waterfronts for two centuries and a half.

Formerly both banks of the canal were lined with stone, but the more substantial walls were destroyed by the Taiping rebels—although remnants of the original banks can be seen in places. The most scenic features of the Grand Canal are its picturesque boats and beautifully arched bridges. Many of the latter leap the waterway in a single stone span, while others are of several arches, their antiquated shape, and balustrades adorned with stone lions, monkeys and elephants, making them favorite subjects for the pens and brushes of artists.

In the low hills of Shantung the course of the canal follows a region so undulating that although locks are numerous, at several places dams have been constructed across it to remedy the difference in level of its bed. When a junk is about to cross a dam it is first unloaded, the sluice gate is opened, and the junk is then pulled over the dam by a rope worked on a drum.

The Whim of a Queen

Chinese tradition says the first section of the canal was dug at the order of a king of the Shui dynasty in order to satisfy a whim of his queen, who wanted to make a trip south by water without getting sea-sick. Later it became a channel of tribute, more than 1,000,000 pounds of rice being shipped north to the Peiping (Peking) Government by southern provinces as "protection."

Rice tribute boats were privileged craft on the Grand Canal. They could demand and obtain the right of way when other junks and sampans were tied into traffic knots for weeks. They were free of the petty tyranny of the lock keepers, who demanded a private rake-off from every passing boat.

Even at their speediest, however, boats on the Grand Canal move very slowly indeed. Most of the motive power is human muscle, thousands of coolies toiling like horses to move the big boats along. As the canal makes use of many lakes and wide rivers on route the sails of larger craft give them an advantage over those poled or rowed, particularly on long hauls.

In recent years the Grand Canal has fallen into neglect. Many of the locks are in ruins and long sections are silted up from flood overflows. Railroad lines parallel almost the entire route of the canal, but several efforts have been made to restore it as a cheap secondary means of transportation. Many fine examples of early Chinese engineering ability, such as the great viaduct north of the Yangtze River, which carried the canal over sunken country on top of stone arches 20 feet high, need only ordinary attention to be kept in usable condition.

WHEN IT TOOK A HUNDRED "BRICKS" TO TELL A STORY

A new library of the Northeastern University at Mukden, second largest library in China, is soon to open with an American official at its head.

China is the birthplace of printing, but libraries were established in that country, the Near East and Egypt, many centuries before the printed page found its way to the library shelf, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Kish Library Had 40 Rooms

Books in the library at Nippur, Babylonia, and other libraries which date farther back in history than 4000 years ago, were clay tablets. Sometimes it took a hundred "bricks" to tell a story.

Recently an expedition was excavating the ruins of the Babylonian city of Kish, near Baghdad. Leaders of the expedition were about to suspend work.

A member of the searching party picked up a brick and on it marked an arrow. Blindfolding himself, he turned around many times and threw the brick over his head. Digging was begun where the arrow pointed and in a few hours a "nest" of tablets was unearthed. The library had 40 rooms.

Swamp Grass Was Ancient Paper

Tablets were the popular book material until papyrus was pressed into service. Use of marsh grass as paper was developed by the Greeks and in Roman times there were many varieties. When the Goths invaded Greece they found the Greeks absorbed in building libraries. When the Gothic chiefs found their soldiers about to burn the collections of scrolls, they ordered them to leave the volumes to the Greeks, for hands accustomed to smooth papyrus would be "too feeble" to handle instruments of war. It was a portion of a great Greek library at Alexandria that was destroyed when Julius Caesar set fire to the shipping in the harbor. To make up the loss, Mark Antony sent the contents of the huge library of Pergamum in Asia Minor to Cleopatra.

Libraries were valued highly before the Christian era. Persians took many volumes of the library of Rameses II, established more than 3300 years ago, when they invaded north Africa.

Library of Wooden Blocks

King Matthias Corvinus of Hungary established a library in the 15th century but its collection of more than 50,000 manuscripts, probably the largest and finest of its kind ever made in Europe, was scattered to the four corners of Europe when the Turks rifled the rich halls it occupied in the castle of Buda.

For centuries the Arabs have favored libraries of loose-leaf volumes. Their books, consisting largely of works on theology, jurisprudence, and philology, are usually in mosques just as the libraries before the Christian era were often located in temples.

In Tibet writings were printed from blocks written by hand. Buddhist scriptures in Siam were written with brass or iron styles upon palm leaves and each leaf wrapped in yellow cloth or silk.

World's Largest Libraries

From the clay tablet collections, libraries have developed into treasuries of printed pages. The Bibliotheque Nationale at Paris with more than 5,000,000 books, 100,000 manuscripts, 1,000,000 prints, and 500,000 maps is the world's largest library. The British Museum contains the second largest collection while the Library of Congress at Washington, with more than 4,000,000 volumes, ranks third.

America's first libraries were private collections of outstanding colonial leaders. In the early part of the 18th century parish libraries for church literature were developing. Benjamin Franklin opened the first subscription library in Philadelphia just 200 years ago. Interest in libraries so developed in the last century that philantropists recognized their need. From 1881 to 1917 one American donor gave more than $43,000,000 for library buildings.

An early college library was established at Harvard in 1638. The first public library is accredited to Roman times, but the first tax-supported public library was opened in Salisbury, Conn., in 1803. Since then there have been established in the United States nearly 6500 public, society and school libraries of more than 3000 volumes. On their shelves are more than 150,000,000 books.

Ginkgo Fruit

The fruit of the Ginkgo looks like a drupe superficially, but is very much more like a cone than a drupe in actual structure. The order to which the Ginkgo belongs is one of three orders of Gymnosperms, or plants with naked seeds, the most important of which is the order of cone-bearing trees, or conifers. The Ginkgo is closely allied to the conifers and is called a deciduous conifer, or cone-bearing tree, which drops its leaves yearly.

Would Go Unnoticed

If the world were to end in a blaze of glory the people would be too busy praying to notice the spectacle.—Toledo Blade.

"BANANALAND" WILL HAVE A NEW PORT

Guatemala is planning a new port on the Pacific to help handle its coffee and banana trade. The plans call for a modern port city with a deep-sea pier that will accommodate large vessels—a novelty in Guatemala shipping.

Guatemala, most thickly populated and second largest of the Central American Republics, is one of the bananalands of Central America, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Fever Region Now a Garden Spot

The Guatemala bananaland lies along the northern fringe of the Republic. The region was once a swampy lowland, saturated with yellow fever and other tropical diseases, continues the bulletin. "Less than half a century ago, one chronicler points out, "natives would have risked taking a mild dose of poison rather than sojourn for a season in the region." Today the plantations, flecked with spotlessly clean villages, form one of the garden spots of the Tropics.

While sugar, lumber, hides and bananas and many other tropical fruits are produced in Guatemala, coffee is the leading product of the Republic. More than 90,000,000 pounds are produced annually. The Motagua River Valley in central Guatemala is one of the richest in the Western Hemisphere. Though many square miles are blanketed with almost impenetrable jungle growth, vast plantations and farms, some of which seem nearly perpendicular to the river bed, cover wide areas. The valley also is rich in history, for here and there tall palm trees, interlaced with flowering vines, hedge in shafts of stone 20 to 30 feet high. They were built by the early Mayas. One wonders how a primitive people transported 20-ton blocks of stone to these spots from distant mountains.

America Completes Railroad

Although a land of the Tropics, Guatemala's climate ranges from that of the Torrid Zone to the north Temperate. Arriving by steamer on either coast, travelers feel the blistering rays of the sun that "slows up" the Guatemalans in the lowlands. A few thousand feet up in the mountains, however, a Tennessean would feel quite at home, while among the mountain peaks that stretch 14,000 feet skyward, the air has the tang of the climate of southern Canada.

Guatemala has but one port on the Caribbean—Puerto Barrios, which was born of a desire to have a port nearer eastern markets. The railroad, which has its eastern terminus at this port, spans the Republic from coast to coast. It is a part of a 700-mile railway system. The steel highway to link Puerto Barrios was begun a few decades ago. Plantation owners along its right of way, once isolated, visualized a great improvement over the use of burrows in transporting their products to seaport. But when money and credit ran low, railroad workers deserted their jobs and the road was left about half finished. An American completed the job in 1929.

Capital a Bit of Old Spain

Guatemala City, situated in the mountainous backbone of the Republic, is the largest city in the country. Strolling through its narrow streets, the traveler might easily imagine himself in a city of old Spain with its vari-colored houses, deep-seated, barred windows, and bright patios. Yet modern shops stocked with the latest types of foreign merchandise, good hotels, motion pictures featuring Hollywood "movie" stars, and automobiles mingling with the slow-moving native carriages and wagons, lend a touch of the twentieth century.

Guatemala has been a toy in the "hands" of earthquakes. "Shakes" are so common that they are almost unnoticed by the natives until they crumple buildings. Twice the capital was leveled by the shivering earth. The last time that happened was the year of the Boston Tea Party.

Quezaltenango, also a mountain town, is the so-called Indian capital of Guatemala. Of the Republic's 2,400,000 inhabitants, about one-half are Indians while about one-tenth are Europeans and North Americans. Quezaltenango also is the center of Guatemalan Indian art. Natives spend much of their time weaving blankets and cloth, embroidering and making colorful pottery.

ALL ROADS LEAD TO THANKSGIVING DINNER TABLE

Thanksgiving Day, observed with more or less regularity since the first Pilgrim harvest in 1621, is an American holiday distinguished by religious services, football, family reunions and feasting. President Lincoln set aside the last Thursday in November as a day of national thanksgiving in 1864, and since that time each President has followed Lincoln's choice of date.

Thanksgiving Day may mean that only the United States and its possessions halt work on November's last Thursday, but the American Thanksgiving dinner table today draws upon the far places of the earth, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "Near-by forests and garden patches provided enough for the first Thanksgiving, but the descendants of the Pilgrim Fathers go much farther afield.

Gastronomic Trip Around the World

The holiday feast of the present age is the fulfilment of many miracles of transportation by land, water and air; and of preservation by devices which keep food palatable with artificial heat and cold, moisture and dryness.

The ideal Thanksgiving feast could begin with appetizers — clam juice from Maryland or New England, olives from Spain, pickles from Michigan, anchovies from France, caviare from Soviet Russia, and fancy biscuits from England.

The first course might include grapefruit from Florida, oysters from Chesapeake Bay, pepper sauce from Louisiana, horse-radish from Pennsylvania, and tomato soup from New Jersey gardens. On the sidelines, ever ready throughout the meal, are salt from New York State, pepper from Singapore, Straits Settlements, and sugar from Cuba.

Turkey Almost Universal

In the stellar role we would certainly find roast turkey, which despite connotations of the Near East in its name, is a native North American bird. Now domesticated in nearly every State our piece de resistance is likely to be the least traveled part of the meal. Texas, however, raises many more turkeys than its great population can consume, and perhaps the one on our epicure's dinner table has traveled thousands of miles in a refrigerator car from the Lone Star State.

The turkey dressing may be made up of bread from Kansas wheat, cloves from Zanzibar, sage from Oklahoma, onions from Colorado, chestnuts from Virginia, and allspice from the West Indies. Other supporting roles during the turkey course include: cranberries from New Jersey or Cape Cod; tomatoes from Maryland; white potatoes from Maine; sweet potatoes from North Carolina; turnips and carrots from Delaware or Ohio; rice from China or Arkansas; butter from Wisconsin or New York State; and rolls from Minneapolis flour and middle western wheat, covered with caraway seeds from Asia Minor. Perhaps there is a second meat—a baked Virginia ham, covered with melted sugar from Cuba and Zanzibar cloves.

Next comes the salad, and, if one may hazard a guess at the contents of a salad, it contains New Jersey lettuce, Italian olive oil, Pennsylvania eggs, Virginia vinegar, English mustard, Hawaiian pineapple, Sicilian cherries, Mexican peppers, California oranges and Honduran bananas.

Dessert the Most Traveled

In the dessert course is found the most traveled group of all. The traditional pumpkin pie draws its principal ingredient from the vines of Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri and New England, but the rest of it must come from more distant parts. There is cinnamon from Ceylon, ginger from Jamaica, nutmeg from the Dutch East Indies, and in the crust we find lard from Nebraska or Iowa hogs. If mince pie offers a competing attraction there will be citron from Persia or Florida, currants from Greece, raisins from Turkey and apples from Oregon or the Shenandoah Valley, Va. Serve the mince pie a la mode, and the ice cream adds to our list of visitors, Wisconsin, or Washington State, or New York State cream, Ecuadorean or Madagascar vanilla, or Mexican chocolate.

The nut bowl is a common rendezvous for tidbits from many nations. Among those likely to be present are: Brazil, France, Italy, Rumania, China, Spain, Morocco and the West Indies. California adds almonde; Georgia and Florida, pecans; Virginia and North Carolina peanuts; and Vermont and New Hampshire, the American black walnut.

GRACE AND CHARM

By Frances Mandel

THE HAIR

To keep the hair alive, brush it thoroughly night and morning, also massage your head with the finger-tips. This simple method will keep the blood in circulation and thus keep the scalp in a healthy condition.

Cleaning the hair is a necessity, therefore shampoo as often as necessary. Use medium warm water and apply the shampoo to your scalp,—massage well,—rinse the hair and apply again, rinse the hair several times so as to make sure that the scalp is free of soap, before drying.

First rinse the hair with warm water and on the next rinse, use cool water, ending up with cold water which helps to close the pores and prevent catching cold.

Then dry your hair well and carefully brush out all the snarls. Your hair will then be clean and lustrous, ready to wave or put up.

Frances Mandel will answer questions on Grace and Charm if you will enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope to Frances Mandel, 1030 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass.

DISABLED VETERAN SOUGHT SHELTER

Shortly before 9 o'clock last Friday evening Police Headquarters received the first of many telephone calls from householders particularly in the Symmes Corner section of the town, reporting a man seeking shelter for the night.

Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy and Patrolman Joseph J. Derro rounded up the man on Everell road and took him to the station. His clothing was soaking wet from exposure to the heavy storm.

After questioning him, Lieut. John Harrold communicated with the Veterans' Hospital at Bedford and learned that the man had escaped from that institution. The police dried his clothing and held the man safely until the arrival of the authorities from Bedford.

PLAN TO LINK LOCAL POLICE DEPARTMENT WITH RADIO CHAIN

Police Chief William H. Rogers announced this week that his department is working on a plan to equip its cars with radio as a means of making its patrol work more effective.

Tentative plans call for the linking of Winchester with Police Departments of Arlington, Belmont and Lexington in a hook-up with Arlington's newly licensed sending Station WAPD.

Chief Archie Bullock of Arlington and Chief Rogers have been in conference and the latter has agreed to go into th local chain. Police Chiefs generally are enthusiastic about the possibilities of radio equipped police cars, and Chief Bullock, with an eye to the future, has had a station installed in the Arlington Headquarters which has been licensed and issued a wave length by the Radio Commission.

The departments linked with Arlington in the chain will be locked into its Station WAPD as a means of preventing those in the radio equipped cars from tuning in on jazz concerts and wrestling bouts. The Arlington Department is the first in Massachusetts, aside from the State Police, to be radio equipped.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

A Ford coupe was stolen last Saturday from in front of the home of Mr. Louis Chevalier on Lakeview road. The Medford Police recovered the machine Sunday in that city and it was returned by the local authorities to its owner.

A resident of Sheffield road called Headquarters Monday morning at 12:27, stating that a man was attempting to enter the house. Sergt. Edward W. O'Connell and Patrolman Archie T. O'Connell were dispatched to the scene and found that a bedroom window had been forced up slightly. Evidently the intruder had been frightened away for a thorough search of the neighborhood failed to locate him.

William A. Grady, a member of the freshman class, in the School of Engineering, at Northeastern University, who formerly attended Winchester High was on the Dean's list for the second period, just announced by Dean Harold W. Melvin at Northeastern University.

ARRESTED AFTER GIRL LEAPED FROM MACHINE

Two arrests were made Sunday by the Metropolitan Police who had been busy for two days trying to locate a man who had picked up Miss Helen McDermott of 259 Main street, Woburn, last Friday evening in Winchester and had driven with her to the Middlesex Fells where the young woman escaped by leaping from his car.

The man accosted Miss McDermott on Church street as she was waiting for the buss and offered her a ride to Woburn. She accepted, thinking that the man was known to her.

Once in the machine she discovered that he was a stranger, and when he drove into the Fells Miss McDermott leaped from the car, leaving behind her pocketbook, $27, some clothing and her hat.

She was discovered on Border road by Norman Harrold of this town, who was returning home from Medford and taken to Police Headquarters where she told her story to Mr. Harrold's father, Lieut. John A. Harrold, who at once communicated with the Metropolitan Police.

Miss McDermott was unable to give the number of the machine in which she had been riding, but furnished the police with a description of the man, and also told them that he had mentioned the burning of a house in Wilmington.

This latter statement gave the authorities a clew and on Sunday the Metropolitan Police arrested Victor Carnes, owner of a house in Wilmington which had recently burned.

Carnes denied any connection with Friday evening's affair and later Sunday afternoon Sergt. William A. Kinery and Special Officer Harry Jackson of the M. D. C. took into custody Carnes' brother, Fred H. Carnes, 27, of 97 Broadway, Everett, who was charged with assault and battery and with robbery, a similar charge having been previously lodged against Victor.

Both men appeared before Judge Davis in the Malden District Court Monday morning, at which time Victor was able to convince the court of his innocence, the case against him being dismissed. His brother, Fred, was found guilty as charged and fined $50 on the assault and battery charge being sentenced to two months in the House of Correction with sentence suspended on the charge of robbery. He appealed and his case was continued until Thursday for final disposition.

TWO ACCIDENTS OVER WEEK-END

Two motor accidents were reported to the police over the past week-end. Saturday afternoon at 3:35 a Dodge truck, driven by Pasquale Luongo of 15 Florence street was in collision at Harvard and Florence streets with a Ford sedan, driven by William J. Carroll of 93 Harvard street. Luongo was going north on Florence street while the Carroll car on Harvard street was traveling east. Both machines were damaged and Carroll was unable to state definitely whether his wife and children, who were with him in the sedan, had sustained any injury.

Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock a Pontiac sedan, driven by George Barbaro of 410 Washington street, was in collision at the corner of Main and Richardson streets with a Ford sedan registered to John McHugh of 51 Clark street and driven by Joaquim H Gonsalves of Woburn. Barbaro told the police that his car was turning right from Richardson street onto Main street when it was struck in the rear by the Ford.

FORTY YEARS IN WINCHESTER

"Joe" Laraway's Reminiscences of 40 Years in Winchester Written Labor Day 1931

Forty-one years ago yesterday, at 8 a. m., I came to Massachusetts not knowing a soul here; got a job at the rate of $10 for 54 hours in Cambridge with S. C. Higgins, and at 7 a. m. the next morning, Saturday, Sept. 6, 1890, went to work.—From the country to a large city—I was never out of a job two days since, and we have had many "repressions" since then.

I came to Winchester in February, 1891, and worked as a journeyman in two shops until June 7, 1896, when I opened a plumbing shop in Winchester, the best town in Massachusetts, with what money I had saved plus the $100 I landed with.—I didn't swim or land in a boat.

Up to 10 or 12 years ago, the bulk of our mechanical work was done by reliable master mechanics who paid their help fair wages for their conscientious efforts, and material bills; some exceptions, but the majority were financially responsible.

Today a Master Carpenter must pay a man $10 per day, furnish the job, brains, capital, compensation insurance and guarantee the work done. To my knowledge they charge $12 per day, wait on the mechanic like a mother on a two months old baby—if he needs a lock, they get it; a board or anything else the same. Does the Master who is responsible make any profit? How can he, and yet, the majority of the carpenter work, except the large jobs, is done by journeymen who work directly for the owner for the same $10, and many times less, with no responsibilities, per day. If he wants a board, some nails, etc., he

When He Jumped From Pratt's Frying Pan into the Fire

In those days I had some of the best mechanics I ever employed who got $15 for 54 hours per week. I remember especially two men, one from Charlestown and the other from Everett, paying carefare both ways each day, happy and contented, and doing a wonderful day's work from 7 a. m. to 5 p. m. I also remember in 1902, '03 or '04 a wonderful plumber, now in business in Scituate, who came from Dorchester every day, by cars and train for $18 per week, the same long six days, perfectly satisfied, never growling about the rate of pay, and so forth, as many do now.

They all got their pay Saturday night and I had some left. I might go on with many other cases and say it was a pleasure to do business then. Eighteen dollars looked good and you could get the best men working for that amount. Later, the dear, trouble making Union came along with an eight-hour-day and the same pay. Shortly after that came more money and more arguments but we got along fine. Wages gradually rose to a rate which was fair and everyone was still happy. The men came to work in the street cars as that was before the days of Fords and Packards.

goes off and gets them at a cost of more than two cents a minute to his employer. If he falls off a ladder or is hurt in any way, the dear owner has to settle for compensation. Whereas, any responsible Master carries Liability Insurance, relieving the owner of all liability. Where does the "direct to you" save the owner anything.

It's the same story in all mechanical lines. Isn't the advise of a real experienced Master Mechanic worth its cost to anyone?

In our business it has been the custom as long as I can remember, to charge for labor 50 per cent more than was paid the journeyman. Car any fair-minded business man see where a decent profit can be made on that basis? Everyone knows that very few men are employed in any one plumbing shop in a small city or town. Out of that 50 per cent a Master Plumber must furnish a shop equipped with tools and stock, an office with telephone and bookkeeper to answer same and make out bills, pay compensation insurance on all, from bookkeeper to manager, liability insurance on automobiles which convey men to their jobs quickly, besides gasoline and the wear and tear. Can

J. A. LARAWAY'S SHOP, 1902

Then came the Great War when our Government took the cream of our country (three from my shop volunteering the same day to give their services to their Country) for what? Patriotism? Here is where all our troubles started. These loyal, patriotic souls fought for Democracy with no financial reward to gain, while the others, "call them what you please," were left in their homes and given unheard of wages, for which many of them did not do a real day's work in a week. All to fatten some favored contractor's income and buy automobiles, theater tickets, music boxes and what not. Wages were going up all the time, until a period has come when you can't find a mechanic satisfied even at $10 or $12 for a short day in a still shorter week. Now, back to my subject.

you figure much profit on that? Of course, I am talking about a firm that gives service such as I have given for 35 years.

When you want a plumber, as a rule you want him quickly; as fixing a leak, a broken furnace grate, or a leaky safety valve isn't like building a set of steps, repairing a floor, painting a house, or hardly any other line of work. It's all right to telephone hubby's wife in those cases—their phone is cheaper than a real office one, too. In the plumbing business, however, if wife is bathing the baby, out playing bridge, or gossiping over the back fence, and doesn't answer the phone, even though the dear customer would like to employ the cellar or back yard plumber (for they always need a little work and are so polite and accommodating when you can get them) they must resort to some one else.

I know all about it for in the course of a year we get many hurry up orders in our up-to-date 35-year-old office when urgent telephone calls had failed to connect a pet plumber with a leak. I sometimes wonder why they don't ask us to go out and find their pet instead of taking a chance with the only firm in Winchester that ever kept a real up to date plumbing shop in the town for 35, or even 10 years. Also paying help and plumbing bills promptly—believe it or not—ask any of the wholesalers, whether friend or foe, who has been the preferred customer in Winchester for the last 35 years, who bought the best grade of goods specified or not, and who paid for them most prompt.

J. A. LARAWAY IN 1888

Now then, I have worked at this old business since Feb. 29, 1888—a long time—I have had a wonderful experience (not only in plumbing and heating) which is appreciated by some customers. I still have a few who have employed my firm all this time! Many have gone where we all must go and I miss them.

Looking back with pride I recall serving by first year in business or first job, until they passed on, such people as:

There were many more than that. Space will not permit me to mention them. They were business men, not shoppers. When they needed a plumber they called Laraway, that ended it; and when they get the bill they paid it—no growling about depression or stock market, the pet excuses for these days.

We have served a few for 35 years exclusively, and they are still coming around with orders haven't gone to Sears, Roebuck; or Tom, Dick and the D. yet.

There must be a few more—three and one-half decades—I am writing from memory, not records. Last but not forgotten are those who have been good customers from time to time, and some for a long time, but there is a difference between "all of the time" and "some of the time." They never will be forgotten, for their contribution towards my past success, and success is the right word when one can say they have done business 35 years and always have met their obligations at all times, even though one hasn't accumulated much of this world's goods in the business. Their orders do not come, their names are faded from our old books, their checks go elsewhere, and I hope they are appreciated by the new receivers as by the "old reliable" and I'll bet a new hat they have never received the service they did from my shop. I won't mention these names—"enough said." I won't even say come back as no doubt their support is needed where they are more than I need it. I think Edson could please them, "no doubt better than I had" and I'll keep out of the picture. A new broom sweeps clean and he was born and brought up here.

Some may say, why has my business volume dropped off? There are many reasons, the greatest of these being lack of appreciation by customers for the best service ever rendered in my line of work. I was at the beck and call of any real customer night or day for many years. If we couldn't suit a customer I politely told him I was through trying. Very few that quit employing me were ever asked "why" or coaxed to come back. I never was a beggar.

One poor fish told a friend of mine, who was working for another contractor, that the reason "Joe" Laraway didn't do his job was that during the winter before a man of his had cut the coupling off his garden hose, and six months after I wouldn't believe he did it or bawl him out after he had sworn he hadn't used the hose. I always believe a man is telling the truth until I catch him lying.

I lost an architect's work, that meant a lot of business to me, for 45 cents. I thought it was my due and I got it. As he went out he said, "You know there are other plumbers, Mr. Laraway," and I snapped back, "When you find one more fair than I have been, send me his picture!" I never got the picture nor any more work—"nor did I ask for it."

Another good customer shook me for 75 cents. I wouldn't replace a stove grate, without charge, which a careless coachman burned out, nor would I squeal on the coachman.

I could go on for pages and give just such excuses. Had I begged or used diplomacy, so called, many would have come back no doubt. I had no salve to give.

I won't mention "sore heads" or school houses, or any political differences. I said something about appreciation, well a great many people, especially those born in the last 25 or 35 years have no sympathy or feeling for a mechanic. They just put us down as men whom they are glad to see come and glad to see go, and whom they pay when they feel so inclined. Well, how is this for appreciation?—Several years ago we were doing a man's work steadily. I was called late in the evening, one cold night as his boiler had broken. Alone, I did what I could, telegraphed to New York for a part to come by express, helped to get gas heaters and electric heater as there was sickness in the house. When the section came we worked nearly all night until we got a fire in the heater. A year or so later this man built a fine home and we were asked to figure the plumbing and heating. My price was $4777.77 while another Winchester contractor who had spent more of his time in the past 15 or 20 years than any other unpaid official in doing for our town, was $5000, so it seemed that my price was right and my reputation also, for I had done more fine plumbing since 1895 than any other firm, and yet—this ungrateful family used an out of town contractor, who was only $265.77 under my honest bid.

Can you imagine what I said when they called me to repair an old range for a tenant? Well, if you know me, you do! I have never taken the crumbs yet and when I do I'll be in the poorhouse. Yet, I suppose, the younger generation would smile and tinker the range—I hope so—but not for me, oh no! I have no "salve or molasses." Just good prompt service. If you like it, it's here, has been for 35 years, and will continue to be as long as I live and I trust, then some.

My son, Edson, has been with us some time and he recently passed the Plumber's State Examination. While he hasn't had as much practical experience as I have (and I hope he never will have) he will have the benefit of my knowledge for some time to come. He believes that giving good work and fair prices is the only way to succeed. He has a pleasant, genial disposition and personality, which, had I possessed, my so called competitors and their help would be walking around town today as they did 20 years ago, instead of riding in automobiles. Edson is now president of the Old Reliable Laraway Company and I hope it won't be long before he will be the whole show. He will inherit, no doubt, some very good advantages from a firm of 35 years of honest dealings. But that genial disposition—ah, no, I have no genial disposition to spare!

The J. A. Laraway Company
Edson S. Laraway, Pres.
J. A. Laraway, Treas.

When Herndon and Pangborn set out around the world, VEEDOL was the oil they chose. They wanted no failure due to poor lubrication.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Patrolman James P. Donaghey had to leave his beat on Swanton street Wednesday to pull a youngster out of the Aberjona River, the boy having ventured onto thin ice. The quick work of Officer Donaghey prevented any serious consequences which might have followed the youngster's rash act.

Mrs. Sarah J. Nagle, who died Tuesday at her home in West Concord was the mother of Mrs. Willard T. Carleton of Church street. Mrs. Nagle, the wife of former Selectman James Nagle of Concord was 84 years of age and had celebrated her 60th wedding anniversary in June.

Miss Sally Bean, 48, of 130 Byers street, Springfield, well known to Winchester housewives through her Edison cooking demonstrations at the town hall, died last night in the Boston City Hospital as the result of being struck by an automobile on Huntington avenue in the Back Bay.

MASSACRE IN CHINA ADDS TO RARITY OF BOOKS IN WASHINGTON

The slaughter of thousands of Chinese and Tibetans in Dangar, in Western China, reported in news dispatches, brings about a strange result in a Washington, D. C. library, where it has probably enhanced in value beyond all previously estimated prices, a set of Tibetan classics, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Dangar lies close to Choni, in western Kansu Province, near the Tibetan border, continues the bulletin, and the great Buddhist Monastery at Choni and all its valuable contents were burned by the same Moslem army which massacred the inhabitants of Dangar. In this monastery were housed the thousands of wooden blocks, 500 years old, from which the best sets of the Tibetan classics were once printed.

Tibetan Classics Brought from Monastery

Two years ago Dr. Joseph F. Rock, now leading a National Geographic Society expedition on the China-Tibetan border, 400 miles south of the rebellion area, was in Choni, and obtained for the Library of Congress a complete set of the Choni-printed classics in 317 volumes. These priceless books are now on the Library's shelves in Washington.

Details of the Moslem rebellion in Kansu which have just reached the headquarters of the National Geographic Society through provincial papers published in China, indicate that the massacre at Dangar was only an incident in the troubles that have scourged western Kansu since last October. In the region, 150 miles wide between Dangar and Choni and in most of the surrounding towns and villages, according to these published reports, there has been destruction by massacre, pillage, and fire. Thousands of square miles of the once fertile countryside have been laid waste. Tens of thousands of people, in addition to those slaughtered, have died and are dying of starvation, and the frantic populace are said to be practicing cannibalism.

Raiders Led by Youth

The chief force of Moslem raiders, according to provincial correspondents, consists of 25,000 cavalrymen mounted on the best horses of the province, and led by an 18-year-old general, Ma Changying (called affectionately by his followers, Ka Siling, "Little General"). These hard-riding troopers have been known to dash, 10,000 strong, 110 miles in 47 hours over mountain ranges ten to twelve thousand feet high to avenge the defeat of some of their stragglers. In one such raid, across the Tibetan border, all the inhabitants of more than 100 villages, from infants to old men and women, are said to have been massacred.

The region which has been the center of the Moslem massacres lies about 800 miles west and slightly south of Peiping (Peking) on the upper reaches of the Hwang-Ho or Yellow River near where the stream crosses from its Tibetan source into China. A little to the northwest is the Koko Nor, great sale lake of northeastern Tibet. The region on the Chinese side is a land of deep valleys carved in the soft loess soil. In happier days the valley lands and the terraced hills produced much wheat and many vegetables, and supported numerous villages. The people are largely of Tibetan blood.

During his stay of several years ago at Choni, Dr. Rock, through the friendliness of the Prince of Choni, was enabled closely to observe the ceremonies of Lamaism. His descriptions have been published in the National Geographic Magazine. He took hundreds of photographs, with detailed notes for color, of the monastery buildings, the library, the elaborate images and costumes, and of the ceremonial dances. It thus happens that this unique monastery, now in ashes in remote Western China, still lives pictorially in the archives of the National Geographic Society in Washington.

PORTS OF THE "BANANA COAST" OF HONDURAS

Uprisings in northern Honduras have brought into the day's news the names of four tiny tropical ports along the so-called "Banana Coast" of the third largest Central American Republic.

Puerto Cortes, Tela, Ceiba, and Trujillo may have an unfamiliar ring to the ears of the average American, but their roadsteads are regular calling places for snow-white tropical fruit steamers which bring back, among other things, 35 per cent of Uncle Sam's total import of the nutritious banana, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Through these little palm-shaded villages 22,667,000 bunches of bananas poured in 1929, giving Honduras world leadership in production of the fruit.

Land of Always After-Dinner

Between steamers, however, life along the "Banana Coast" is idyllically simple, and the entire region is still the tropical paradise that O. Henry called "the land of always after-dinner." Natives know the regular boats by their whistles, and the only other excitement is the arrival and departure of fruit trains on the spur lines which penetrate, for a short distance, the enveloping jungles.

Most important of the four is Puerto Cortes, the terminus of the railroad which runs inland to Portrerillos, and there connects with a highway to the Honduran capital, Tegucigalpa, high on the mountain tableland. Puerto Cortes has a splendid natural harbor, which in the swashbuckling days of buccaneers was a haven for pirates and smugglers from all parts of the Spanish Main. Here Richard Harding Davis obtained material for some of his "soldier of fortune" yarns, and here, also, was the last headquarters of the old Louisiana Lottery after it was driven out of the United States.

Tela, 25 miles east of Puerto Cortes, and the terminus of the privately owned railway to Progresso, for possession of which forces fought south of the city, is more up-to-date than its sister cities along the coast. Those who are connected with the banana business in town have modern homes, electric light, and telephones. A wireless station keeps the town in touch with the outside world. During normal times five ships loaded with bananas leave Tela every week.

Dates from Conquistadores

Ceiba is a settlement of reinforced concrete houses and corrugated iron sheds. Much of the city was burned to the ground in 1914, and when the town was rebuilt it was decided that concrete would replace the frame dwellings characteristic of the "Banana Coast." A long steel and concrete pier extends from the waterfront a considerable distance into the blue waters of the Caribbean. Its port is an open roadstead and in case of a "norther" steamers must proceed to sea to ride the storm out.

Trujillo can trace its history back to the days of the Spanish Conquistadores. It was established by Hernando Cortez in 1522 and was a flourishing, fortified town 100 years before Hendrik Hudson sailed up New York Bay. A private fruit railroad connects it with the interior. This section of the "Banana Coast" has been sold over and over again by promoters of various kinds of exploitation schemes, most of which have never materialized. Trujillo Bay is some seven miles in width and affords safe anchorage against the prevailing winds.

In addition to bananas this part of Honduras also produces sugar, cacao, coconuts, and mahogany. Vast mineral resources in the interior await the extension of railway lines and highways.

Good Omen

It is considered among New England sword-fishermen an exceedingly good omen to haul in a "skillagelee." Perhaps this is because the billfish, as it is more widely known, is even more belligerent than the swordfish and can be landed only at great risk, and also because the species is rarely found in New England waters. It usually prefers a southern habitat, but occasionally one travels with a school of swordfish as far north as Georges bank. Billfishes range from 6 to 20 feet in length, and in weight from 100 to 1,000 pounds.

Kit Carson's Mark

A tree carved with the words "Kit Carson 1846" was recently discovered by a United States forest service trail crew near Mud lakes in the Eldorado National forest of California. Six inches of new wood had grown round the original blaze. Another tree also carved by the famous frontiersman in 1846 is still standing in what is now known as Kit Carson pass in the Eldorado National forest.

The Scallop

The scallop shell, always one of the children's favorites at the beach, has appealed to man's artistic sense for centuries, for the scallop design appears in the coat of arms of many proud and ancient families. Unlike their relatives, the clams and oysters, scallops swim around freely by spasmodically opening and closing their two shells.

THE DEDICATION OF WINCHESTER NEW PUBLIC LIBRARY

In his remarks Mr. Hale referred to the fact that when the Town Hall was opened in 1888 and the Public Library installed therein, the historian of the library, in recounting its wanderings during the previous 30 years, remarked that the library had now moved, it was to be hoped, for the last time. Mr. Hale went on to say that it is the custom in Winchester to carry on much of the town's business by special committees. "Our new library is the result of the efforts of a succession of such committees. The first committee which was appointed in 1925, consisted of the Rev. George Hale Reed, Chairman; Mrs. Helen B. H. Emerson, Mr. William Adriance, Mr. Edgar J. Rich and Mr. Henry S. Chapman. That committee looked into the possibility of there being need of a new library building and reported that the need existed. In 1926 another committee was appointed which after various changes finally consisted of Mr. Edgar J. Rich, Mr. William Lewis Parsons, Mrs. Emerson and Mr. James Nowell. This committee, in conjunction with the planning board, recommended that the town acquire the land not already owned by the town between Mt. Vernon street and the Mystic Valley Parkway, along Washington street. The carrying out of this recommendation was a great step in advance.

"In 1927 another committee was appointed which was continued through 1928 to look into the cost and make recommendations in regard to a new building. This committee consisted of Messrs. Rich, Nowell, Jones and Hale, with Mrs. Emerson who, however, having moved away from town, did not take part in the work of the committee. Other matters claimed the town's immediate attention during these years and the Special Library Committee stood aside for these other things. In 1929 the Library Plan Committee was appointed, consisting of Messrs. Rich, Jones, Nowell, Woods and Hale with explicit instructions to bring in plans and estimates for a new public library building. The Library Plan Committee made its report at the beginning of 1930 and presented plans and estimates together with a model of the proposed building for the consideration of the Representative Town Meeting of that year, and by a vote of 169 to 3 the Town Meeting appropriated the sum of $175,000 to build and equip the new building, at the same time transforming the Library Plan Committee into the Library Building Committee. Your Library Building Committee, now, after some 20 months, offers this building as its report of progress under this vote. After dealing with a few minor matters of equipment which it has seemed wise to leave for the actual operation of the library before completing, your committee, I am happy to say, expects that when all the bills are paid there will still be a little of the $175,000 left unspent.

"The committee earnestly hopes that the people of Winchester will look with a kindly eye on the building, though it has no reasonable expectation that the building will appeal to all alike. In fact, I heard a while ago that there is in some Middle Western State a state insane asylum in which are dwelling happily the members of a building committee who attempted to build a public building to please everybody."

Mr. Hale made due acknowledgment of the obligation of the Building Committee to the committee's architectural advisor Prof. William Emerson, head of the Department of Architecture of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, whose counsel, both in regard to the building and the selection of architects was, in the early important stages a valuable general guide to the committee's decisions. To the architects associated in the actual planning and construction of the building, Mr. Robert Coit, formerly of Winchester and himself for many years a Trustee of the Winchester Public Library, and the firm of Kilham, Hopkins & Greeley whose senior partner, Mr. Walter H. Kilham was the member of the firm most concerned in the building of the library, and to Mr. Alfred Abbond the heating and ventilating engineer, Mr Hale expressed the lively personal sense of appreciation felt by the committee towards these gentlemen, not only on account of their professional skill but also because of the congenial association which the committee all enjoyed with them.

It was particularly interesting Mr. Hale said, to note the number of Winchester's own citizens who had a responsible part in the construction of the building. The general contract was awarded to Mr. Frederic C. Alexander, already the builder of so many other important buildings in Winchester.

"Mr. Alexander's constant attention to every detail" said Mr. Hale, " went far beyond even the most exacting interpretation of a commercial arrangement. In fact, in this respect the town has been most fortunate in the spirit of loyalty and public interest, beyond the considerations of a mere business transaction, demonstrated by the Winchester men whose work and materials have gone into the erection and equipment of the new Library.

"Many of the sub-contracts let by the general contractor were carried out by Winchester men. The excavating, grading, and the lawn which suddenly appeared one morning in September, were the work of Mr. Thomas Quigley. The pre-cast concrete planks which form the basis of the floors and on which the concrete was poured were not only furnished but also invented by the Chairman of our School Committee, Mr. Edward A. Tucker. The sand and gravel were furnished by Mr. Flynn; the white sand-lime brick used throughout as backing for the granite exterior came from the Winchester Brick Company; the plumbing contractor was Mr. George T. Davidson; the interior woodwork was furnished by Mr. James F. Day. So far as possible under the different contracts Winchester citizens were employed on the job. For example, in the foundations and other work of that kind and in the carpentry work all of the men concerned were our own people.

"In addition to the general contract, the Committee made a number of separate contracts which various other citizens of Winchester had their parts in fulfilling. The heating and ventilating contract, for example, was made with our fellow-townsman, Mr. George E. Soar Company. The electrical contract was with James Wilkinson & Company, both of the partners in which live in Winchester. The furniture in the main reading room, the delivery room, and the special libraries was furnished by Francis H. Bacon & Co., with our fellow townsman, Mr. John N. Wills, as the principal designer. The furniture for the librarian's office and staff rooms and for the young people's library was furnished by W. B. Badger Company, through our fellow-townsman, Mr. Willard C. Bradley. The rubber door mats were furnished by Frederick N. Kerr & Co. and the beautiful table tops on the reading room and delivery room furniture by the Palmer Parker Lumber Company."

After describing the building as to its material, arrangement and equipment, Mr. Hale paid tribute to his associates on the Building Committee, saying that no one could serve on a committee with Mr. Rich without being impressed with his fine enthusiasm and broad vision, particularly in connection with the creation of the art gallery and the American History Library, both of which were ideas long cherished by Mr. Rich; with the sound judgment of Mr. Nowell, the constructive ideas of Mr. Woods and the energy and conscientious attention to every detail of the very hard working secretary of the committee, Mr. Jones. "If it had not been for Mr. Jones," added Mr. Hale, "it is difficult to see how the library could have been built at all."

In turning over the key of the new building to the Chairman of the Board of Trustees, Mr. George H. Eustis, Mr. Hale said, "We have arrived at the end of a long journey. During a considerable part of that journey the guiding hand, Mr. Eustis, has been yours and now into your hand as we start out on our new adventure I have the pleasure and the honor of delivering this key as a token that Winchester's new Public Library is ready at last to open its doors for all its citizens to use and enjoy, with the confident feeling that the more they use it the more they will enjoy it."

In accepting the building on behalf of the Town Mr. Eustis said: "It gives me great pleasure to receive from the Building Committee by its Chairman the key to this beautiful edifice, the title thus passing to the Town, represented by the Trustees of the Library.

"During the quarter of a century of my official connection with the library, and over twice that period, during which I have enjoyed its welcome, the ideal has always been, by officials and patrons alike, of a real home with physical and financial resources to enable it to take its proper place as a valuable asset to the Town.

"This building, in a civic center, will become, as years go by, more and more appreciated by all. The painstaking, thoughtful care given by the committee, architect and builders cannot be too highly praised."

Before introducing the principal speaker of the afternoon, Mr. Sherman, Mr. Rich referred to the fact that interest in a new library building extended back for a period of perhaps 40 years, and that for many years Mr. Lewis Parkhurst, always foremost in any movement for the betterment of Winchester, became interested in securing a new building and offered to give to the town the lot of land adjoining the high school building. Mr. Rich also emphasized the great assistance which had come from the Misses E. Kathleen Jones and E. Louise Jones of the State Commission on Public Libraries, in advice and counsel in reference to the new building and its administration.

In introducing Mr. Sherman, Mr. Rich said: "We have been very fortunate in our principal speaker, who will tell us the functions of a modern public library. Mr. Sherman has made library work a career, and has at an early age attained high distinction in his profession. After graduating from college he studied for librarianship at the New York State Library. Then he became assistant librarian at the Amherst College Library—then librarian at the Lynn Public Library, from which he went to the Providence Public Library, the second largest public library in New England, of which he is now the directing head.

Dr. Sherman's Subject was "The Changing Public Library"

"The American public library is coming of age," he said. "For, as a so-called philosopher has sagely expressed it, a score of years brings man to majority; five score his institutions to maturity. If this be accepted as true, then in the passing of these respective periods of years, both man and any instrument which he creates to do his work show forth, as those terminal points are reached, certain traits and trends so indelibly impressed by the formative experience of the past, that their respective destinies, though not rigidly fixed, are at least clearly defined.

"In 1933, the American public library, may if it chooses, celebrate the 100th anniversary of its origin. It was in the month of April 1833, that another attractive New England town—Peterborough, N. H., gave birth to a great communal idea, the idea that a common collection of books, a library by all, of all, and for all the people of the community should and could be maintained free to all on the same terms. The date of the event being but 15 years earlier than the establishment of the Association whose library in 1859 became the Winchester Public Library, identifies the two libraries so closely with the same period of history that much of what I shall say about changing conditions social, industrial, or bibliothecal may have more than a remote application to the town and the public library under whose auspices we are meeting today.

"This by-product of the American conception of democracy—the free public library—like the federal constitution adopted by our colonial fathers, quickly projected itself to distant points, both at home and abroad. Today, we are told that not a single city or town in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts lacks a public library. In but one important city in our entire country is there no library free to all its citizenry. And even across the Atlantic to England, Scotland, Denmark, Norway and other countries did the germ spread. Now, the free public library is a well known institution, playing a useful part in the enrichment of community life, in helping to push back the frontiers of intellectual indifference and ignorance. And during the passage of these 100 years or less, the public library as a social institution has, in evolving from its infancy, developed certain characteristics, certain activities, certain community responsibilities, which have endured while other experimental tendencies have appeared and later disappeared. So it is at this time possible to view the American public library in terms of an early adulthood, not unchanging, of course, but with qualities and abilities better established and more clearly understood than ever before in its history.

"Yes, nearly 100 years separate us from the inception of the free public library and what a century it has been! The United States then a nation hardly in adolescence, its western boundary stopping at the mid-riff of the continent, with such great areas as California, Texas and much of the Rocky Mountain region possessed by Mexico. A nation with a population of only 13,000,000, a population which had not yet received its great influx of non-English speaking peoples from Central and Southern Europe. A people just emerging from the handicraft stage to elementary industrialism. A country still with simple means of power production, transportation and communication, the horseless carriage and the flying machine only the dreams of 'crank' minds.

"The family, the home and the church were the centers of social life. The standards of ethical conduct were not yet freed from the direct influence of the Pilgrim and Puritan moral code.

"Education was closely associated with the 3 R's. Few boys and girls had the advantage of an academy or high school education, and still fewer went to college.

"The newspaper was usually a weekly with attention limited almost entirely to local and national issues. George Washington's warning against entangling alliances overseas was still fresh in the minds of all editors and most newspaper readers.

"As for books, domestic production was extremely barren. Except for the writings of the early theologians, a few diarists and poets, American authorship offered the reading public little more than Irving and Cooper. By drawing upon the resources of England, better fare was possible, including among others the works of Scott, Defoe, Bunyan, Swift, Addison, Steele, Richardson, Goldsmith, Keats, Wordsworth, Shelley and Coleridge.

"A hard-working people living rather close to the soil, with leisure opportunities limited to a few wealthy property owners, life was, as we would regard it, rather simple and elemental. Without the distractions of a great variety of recreational opportunities, such as are ours today, reading was a favorite year-round activity and the privileges of a free public library were naturally received with open arms and used with satisfaction and pleasure.

"As we turn the page of this historical comparison and come suddenly upon our own time, what a transformation do we find! Not only has our territorial expansion crossed the continent, but it has taken us to colonial possessions. Our population, multiplied ten times, is a mixture of all nations and races. In many a New England city more than 20 different languages are spoken today. Gone is the handicraft stage in our economic development. Completely mechanized, thoroughly organized and merged is our modern industrial structure. At our command are the most highly developed and equipped means of transportation and communication that marine, locomotive, automotive, and aviation genius can devise.

"The home, while possessing conveniences and comforts undreamed of a century ago, so far as its essential influence upon the individual is concerned is a mere shell of its former self. Apartment and tenement life build up little resistance to the lure of external attractions—the motor car is owned by 20 per cent of our national population, and the appeal of the moving picture theatres bringing out of the home each week, more than 90,000,000 men, women and children.

"Moral standards have changed. Freedom and frankness are the order of the day in speech, in the daily paper, in narrative fiction and the drama. How much the emancipation of woman has had to do with this, hardly becomes a member of my sex to discuss.

"Education is no longer a precious experience. It is a commonly expected and casually accepted privilege. Almost everybody goes to high school and only 'nobodies,' to use a social register expression, avoid entering college.

"As to the printed page, a mountain of print is pushed up above the typographical landscape annually. Millions of copies of daily papers and millions of copies of magazines and trade journals are turned off by the presses. No longer is our current literature provincial, at least in scope, though it may often appear provincial in editorial viewpoint. The political problems and the commercial perplexities of the entire world are our consideration within a few hours after they are the news of the day in their own countries.

"As for books, more than 8000 different titles are published each year in these United States, and in addition to these books, our bookstores, our libraries and our book reviewing publications give much consideration and not a little space to the publications, both in the original and in translated editions, of the literatures of almost the entire world.

"Today, with more leisure (even before the depression) than any other age has known, but with more distractions and amusements in sports, games, the motor car, clubs and the like—outlets for recreation far more spectacular and less taxing upon the mental equipment than reading—the question might naturally be asked, has reading held its own in the face of such changes? Has this old fashioned custom survived?

"The answer is 'Yes,' most emphatically 'Yes,' and the reasons are three in number. First, the continued extension of free public education. Second, the diversity of appeal in the great variety of subjects about which writers now write and publishers now publish. And third, the development of the free public library. As time is limited, I shall confine my attention to the third factor.

"For the first few decades following its birth, the American public library developed along very conservative lines. Still influenced by the museum standards of librarianship in which the preservation of literature was a dominating force, its progress was more in the direction of testing and establishing principles and practices, of organizing the library as a collection of books. Hence, problems of classification and cataloguing were most prominent. But the organizing of a national professional association of librarians in 1876, the American Library Association, gave a great impetus to what might be called the 'new freedom' in public library administration. The study of more liberal borrowing privileges and charging systems that would help to promote book lending; the development of a library architecture in which book use would be given quite as much if not more attention than book storage; access to the shelves by the reading public; separating a function like reference service from the confusion of the circulation area in order to give better service; further departmentalization to include a place for children, service for engineers, mechanics and other technical workers, a department for artists and musicians, facilities for business men; extension in cities so as to bring library service via branch libraries to the various neighborhoods, and in rural areas, by traveling automobile libraries; and finally and quite as important as the rest, the conception of the task of a librarian as a professional responsibility, requiring an educational background and a technical preparation worthy of carefully organized training courses, and, for larger libraries and more responsible positions, even post graduate study in a library school.

"And so today, the American public library has through the democratic basis upon which it is founded, through the spirit of its service, through the conception of its function as a workshop rather than a 'monument of vanished minds,' a public utility rather than a local luxury, won a place in the community life of the nation. Today, there need be no fear of book hunger while the public libraries of the nation have ready for the use of the people more than 150,000,000 books. And no more emphatic testimony as to the value of the public libraries of America is required than a mental picture of the 19,000,000 reader's cards in use and the 336,000,000 books drawn by these readers for reading or study at home, annually.

"That legislative bodies with control over the town or city's purse strings believe that the public library is a valuable civic asset is supported by the appropriations made from public funds which for the country as a whole, exceed $52,000,000 annually. The total public library bill of the United States, including receipts from gifts and other sources amounts to more than $70,000,000 yearly. But lest you be startled into joining the group of those who view all big expenditures with alarm, may I call your attention to our national expenditures for past and future wars, for the suppression of crime, and other items of nation-wide expense which so completely over-shadow the public library item as to place it in the class with the national ice cream or chewing gum bill.

"So much for the past and the present. As we look about us in this handsome structure, the new home of an old and well-established institution, our thoughts not unnaturally turn toward the future. We know what the public library has been and is, but what interests us more is, what is it going to be? Perhaps we should follow the advice of an old lady I once met, in the pages of a book, who refused to listen to a sermon, read a book, or engage in a discussion of the subject of the future life. 'If you do too much speculating and anticipating, you may dull the real joy of the experience,' she declared.

"But even at this risk, let us consider for a moment some of the future guiding principles and activities of public libraries, at least some that are possible.

"First, is the position of the printed page as an instrument for acquiring information, as a direct aid to the process of learning, and as a pleasurable recreation provider assured? More than 10 years ago, Mr. Thomas A. Edison said that the book would soon be replaced by the moving picture. Others have predicted that the radio, 'piped to one's house or office,' would do all that the printed newspaper, magazine, or book can do and at less effort for the individual. But these and every other substitute advanced thus far, have certain disadvantages which will continue to keep the printed page in a secure place. The book, for example, possesses a 'time advantage' over the radio program, a 'time and place advantage' over the moving picture. It offers the opportunity for re-viewing the difficult seticon or the pleasure giving portion. Furthermore, the book, in the educational process cannot be bluffed or bamboozled. The process of listening to radio words or looking at motion pictures, though informing and valuable as supplementary experience, is seldom educating. It cannot take the place of the process of serious reading, of analysis and of quiet reflection.

"And this leads to what may be considered the public library's most important function in future years. America has recently made a great discovery. We have been told and are coming to believe that education is a life-long experience, not a compartmented period in preparing for life. Educators and psychologists are stating that education should not terminate with school or even college days. In short, education goes on and on with the truly educated. And strange as it may seem, adults can learn without great difficulty and the experience is not at all juvenile or undignified.

"School and college develop within us certain mental training skills, stuff in a few principles, a varied assortment of formulae, dates, and other impedimenta. And then we step out, educated with minds equipped, as we evaluate them, to help us to take the place in life which our ambitions have set up for us. As for learning anything except how to make more money, play better golf or bridge, education has no longer any purpose unless we have children on whom to inflict it.

"But the really, truly educated man and woman continues learning as long as they live. Taking an excursion along some pathway in art, science, philosophy or literature, an intellectual voyage of discovery, broadening one's perspective, keeping one's mind like a sound body, in a rich, healthy glow. As Robert Louis Stevenson so well expressed it, 'The world is so full of a number of things, I am sure we should all be as happy as kings.' Utilizing our intellectual royal prerogatives, we should become monarches of all that we can wisely survey, learning while living.

"This educational continuation experience is possible through the excellent extension courses offered by many of our universities. And there are other classroom opportunities for those of the great out-of-school population with an urge for learning. But the American public library, is adequately and wisely stocked with books, and if 'staffed' with competent guides to reading can reach many adults who are never to be tempted to enter a classroom. By the preparation of reading and study courses, and by providing the readers with the books included therein, the public library may indeed merit the title of 'The People's College,' a term carelessly tossed at it not infrequently in past years. For after all, self education is a very natural form of learning. In fact, it is the most ancient of all forms. (Who taught the first teacher?) So, for those who are appealed to by the convenience and informality of broadening their knowledge and understanding of the world in which they live through systematic reading—reading with a purpose,—the public library has much to offer.

"I believe that the public library of the next few decades will also develop to a far greater degree than it has so far, its great information and research possibilities. Although some of the larger library systems are organized to meet the demands of industry, the scholar, the student and the unattached individual with an intellectual curiosity, all public libraries, have a long way to go before they are prepared as they should be, both as to printed aids and as to a competent personnel. In order to promote these more significant activities, as I regard them, it may become necessary to take account of stock and to reduce the emhasis on certain existing functions. This can be done with little loss in the service value of the library by modifying the circulation of narrative fiction. While I should not like to decrease the library's usefulness as an agency for wholesome recreational reading, too much of this reading even in our most carefully administered public libraries is of a trivial nature. Fewer and better novels with more money for more copies of the worth while books in travel, history, biography, science and the rest, is a more hopeful course to take, in my opinion.

"It is not easy to introduce this policy. The public library has not been entirely free from the influence of the Machine Age. Quantity of activity, or 'production' as it might be called, as reflected in circulation statistics, has been used as a measuring stick of success by trustees, librarians and appropriating bodies. It will require a stout heart to face the interrogations which smaller circulation statistics will cause if emphasis on fiction be lessened.

"One or two other qualities that I hope to see characterizing future public library management: It would appear that although in earlier days of public library history, the readers considered it a great privilege to be able to draw books for home reading, constantly liberalizing the borrowing privileges has helped to develop a softening of moral responsibility. The public library in most cities and towns today devotes the time of many assistants and funds which should be used for more constructive purposes to the task of getting books back from readers to whom they have been charged. This failure on the part of the reading public to accept their obvious responsibility in a plan which depends for its success upon the principle of co-operation is giving the public librarians of America not a little worry. The loss of books from the shelves and the mutilation of print in our libraries are also perplexing problems. It is not beyond the limits of possibility that the next decade may show a tendency to tighten up, a slight withdrawal of some of the freedom with which the resources of our public libraries are now used. To penalize the many for the acts of a few is always a regretful step to take. But when the few become too active, there is but one way of preserving the fundamental principle upon which public parks, public playgrounds and public libraries are established,—the equal opportunity to use public property,—and that way is in the direction of reorganizing on a basis which is in tune with the time and the moral fibre of those who are served by our public institutions.

"But enough of the drab side. The first century of public library progress in America has established several principles which justify the action and commend the wisdom of those Peterborough pioneers. In the first place, there is a great need in every community, of a repository and service station where printed matter on both sides of all matters of common interest is obtainable. Especially is this true in these days when there are so many efforts, organized and unorganized, to stifle the other fellow's point of view, when so many so-called personal convictions are really symbols of intolerance. Furthermore, in a democracy where the strength of the government depends to no small degree upon the intelligence of the electorate, it is most essential that printed matter relating to political and social problems be available in a non-partisan institution, under whose protection the statements of both sides of an issue may be found and read far from the madding crowd of haranguing orators.

"Thus, has the American public library changed and thus does it bid fair to continue to change. For like the school, the university or any other social force, so long as society changes, its institutions must also change, or a trophy is the penalty. That community life has been enriched because of the public library during the past two or three generations, is, I believe, not difficult to prove. I have tried to present some testimony in its behalf during the course of my remarks. In an age like the present, when life is a racing, roaring experience, there is especial need of a book house by the side of the road, where the tired mind and the weary soul may find sanctuary before the altar of the printed book. The healing influence of reading, if it serves no greater purpose than to endow some of us with a perspective, a vision of the whither of contemporary life, will be worth much to mankind.

"And so as this beautiful building is dedicated to its noble cause, to the further development of the career of usefulness which the Winchester Public Library has been pursuing these many years, may all who pass its doors read, at least in imagination, engraved in golden letters above the entrance, not 'Stop, Look and Listen,' the slogan of a heetic world, reluctant to pause, but rather a message of hope, a message of encouragement, a message of infinite possibilities, "Come. Read. Think Decide."

"As a Librarian's benediction, I would close with these words:

"May this library ever be endowed with the holy trinity of public library blessings: A Board of Trustees of broad, tolerant views, with vision to see the library's real mission and with courage to cling to it; a Librarian and Staff of assured technical ability as organizers, of books, equipped with a knowledge of what lies within the covers of many books, but more important still, who find satisfaction and joy in serving as guides, philosophers and friends of readers; and last but not least, a great and growing reading public, to whom books are practical aids and for whom reading is high adventure.

"Strengthened and supported by these allies, may this library become the veritable hub of your little universe, the cross roads for the passing and the meeting of all, men, women and children who turn to the book for recreation, for information, for education and for inspiration."

Mr. Rich, after expressing appreciation for the inspiring address of Mr. Sherman, said, in part:

"It is the purpose of the Trustees to make this Library the intellectual community centre. It must serve all the citizens those whose opportunities for education have been limited, and those, more fortunate ones, who are already familiar with the world's great literature. A library is not a mere collection of books it is an institution for the propagation of learning.

"Of course the Trustees do not propose to dictate what you shall read. So far as our means go you shall have all good books at your service. But there is one thing we hope to accomplish, and that is to give to the citizens an opportunity to become acquainted, or to renew acquaintance, with the great authors of the 18th and 19th centuries. We propose to do this by the display of the work of an author and of collateral reading in connection with it. We have a felling, for example, that the great writers of fiction of the 19th century are being neglected by the present generation, and we hope to place before you the opportunity of comprehensive reading of such great novelists as Scott, Dickens, Thackeray, Trollope, Thomas Hardy, and other great writers of that period. We may start with Dickens, and offer collateral reading, such as lives and criticisms. We hope to have a qualified speaker who will give informal talks, and perhaps readings from his works. Our small auditorium offers an excellent opportunity for display and for lectures. I want to read you a paragraph from an address made by Mr. C. F. D. Belden shortly before his sad death.

"'Literature may be a term vague and unknown to many of us, but there in serried rows it stands, and somehow, some day we hope to make its acquaintance. Why do we postpone that happy time; why prefer the newest and most sensational novel. I do not propose to answer this question, but to ask you to make a fresh endeavor, to promise yourself with the advent of this new library to turn once in a while to the old books. Read at least one old book to four new ones. Soon you will find if you are honest in your opinions, that the old books are the best. At the year's end I hope you will read three old books to two new ones. Eventually, you will attain even better results.'

"We want also to direct the attention of the young especially to American history, and we have provided a special library for that purpose. During the coming year the bicentennial of the birth of George Washington—we hope to offer opportunities for the study of the life of one whom Edward Everett once described as 'The greatest of good men and the best of great men.'

"In the Art Gallery," Mr. Rich said, "we hope to make a collection of paintings and etchings by artists who live or have lived in Winchester. We already have a nucleus in the gifts of works of Edmund H. Garrett, H. Dudley Murphy, Foxcroft Cole, W. H. W. Bicknell, and Mrs. Eva D. Cowdery.

"Some of these have been donated by Charles H. Tyler, Mrs. Edmund H. Garrett, Mr. Lewis Parkhurst, Mr. W. E. Schraft, and by the artists, Mrs. Cowdery, Mr. Murphy, and Mr. Bicknell.

"I want particularly to call your attention to the beautiful stained glass windows in the art room. Many years ago these were given to the library by Mrs. Joseph H. Tyler, Mr. Charles H. Tyler, and other members of the family, as a memorial to Mr. Joseph H. Tyler, who for many years was a trustee of the library and deeply interested in it. You will also note in the collection of pictures a beautiful painting by Foxcroft Cole donated by Mr. Charles H. Tyler in memory of his mother.

"We hope to increase the number of these paintings through the generosity of our citizens.

"Really, the Magnum Opus which we have in mind as an addition to our display of art are mural paintings, one over the fireplace in the reading room, and the other on the large space opposite the door in the delivery room. There formerly lived, in Winchester one of America's foremost American mural painters, Mr. Ettore Cesar. We have found that a proper painting over the fireplace will cost about $2000 and a painting for the large space in the delivery room would of coruse cost much more. We do not expect to get these at once, especially in these times when money must be expended for more pressing purposes. But I am quite sure that some of you will provide in your wills for these great additions to our art.

"We have been most fortunate in our art advisers, Mr. H. Dudley Murphy and Mr. W. H. W. Bicknell have offered to act as our art advisers, and to them we are already indebted for much. Mr. Bicknell is so well known to all our citizens, it is only necessary to recall the fact that he is one of America's foremost etchers. Mr. Murphy stands in the front rank of American painters. In a book just published, 'The History and ideals of American Art' by Prof. Neuhaus of the University of California, is this statement about Mr. Murphy's art:

"'His finely composed tonal landscapes and delicate coloring suggest Whistler's best qualities.'"

In introducing the last speaker, the presiding officer said: "It is with peculiar pleasure that I introduce the next speaker, our fellow-townsman, Dr. Frank Pierce Hill. Dr. Hill was for many years the Librarian of one of the great public libraries of the country, the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Public Library. He rather modestly failed to give me a sketch of his career, and therefore I have had to go to other sources. Born in Concord, N. H., he graduated from Dartmouth College, which in 1906, gave him the honorary degree of Doctor of Literature. His first important library work was as librarian of the Lowell Public Library. Later he started the first free library in the State of New Jersey, at Paterson; later was librarian at Salem, Mass., and at Newark, N. J., and has been librarian at Brooklyn, N. Y. since 1901, and is now librarian consultant of that library, but prefers to perform his duties from our town of Winchester. Is it too much to say that Brooklyn comes to Winchester for light and leading in public library matters?

"Dr. Hill has been president of the American Library Association. During the war he was Chairman of a committee of that Association, which spent $1,700,000 for building and equipping libraries for our soldiers at home and abroad.

"When I asked Dr. Hill for something about his career, he wrote me this note: 'Forget the past and stress the joy of living in Winchester. That's glory enough for anybody.' Our fellow-townsman, Dr. Hill."

Dr. Hill congratulated the town on having the new library and especially on having paid for the library and not had it as a gift from anyone. He said that in addition to being a beautiful building it had everything in arrangement and equipment that the most exacting member of the library profession could desire.

He made four important suggestions to the citizens of Winchester. 1. That the Trustees have a special appropriation of $500 to establish a collection of books to be taken out on payment of a small sum per day or per week, a collection that once started would be self-perpetuating; all the books would be duplicated in the free collection and ultimately be transferred to the latter. 2. That an endowment fund of $50,000 be established, the income from which would supplement the annual appropriation. 3. That the Trustees be given the sum of $5000 to replace many of the dilapidated books now in the library; and 4, that the Town appropriate $1.25 per person annually for the library, which would give about $16,000 for its appropriation.

In, introducing Father Merritt, Mr. Rich said: "We are privileged to have the exercises close by the benediction by our much loved fellow townsman, Father Merritt."

"May God make the light of His Countenance to shine upon us. May He illumine our minds and quicken our comprehension that we may perceive the truth, goodness and beauty of the Creator reflected in all that we see and learn in His visible universe.

"May He guide our steps in the way of righteousness and the paths of peace; and may He finally bring us to the possession of Himself in a blissful eternity.

The Blessing

V.—Our help is in the name of the Lord.
R.—Who hath made heaven and earth.

Let Us Pray

"O God, by whose word all things are sanctified, pour forth thy blessing upon this new library, and grant that whosoever shall use it with thanksgiving, according to Thy law and will, may receive from Thee, through the invocation of Thy Holy Name, health of body and peace of soul, through Christ Our Lord. Amen."

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN

Charles Farrell in "Heartbreak," and "East of Borneo," starring Rose Hobart and Charles Bickford, will make up the double bill that opens at the Mystic Theater in Malden on Saturday. "Heartbreak" presents Charles Farrell as an American attache at the Austrian Embassy. He falls in love with an Austrian countess, a role played by Madge Evans. The romance is interrupted by America's entry into the war. Farrell's rival for the hand of Miss Evans is an Austrian aviator, played by Paul Cavanaugh. When America enters the conflict, Farrell joins the American air-force. In combat he shoots down the brother of the girl he loves and is so horrified that he deserts. How he is again re-united with his sweetheart is told in absorbing fashion and affords Mr. Farrell the best role he has had in a long time.

"East of Borneo" has been called the most exciting picture ever filmed and concerns an Oriental rajah, an American woman and her former husband. The latter, embittered, has chosen to bury himself in the Malay jungles where he is the only white man, and where he acts as the personal physician to the rajah of the district. His wife follows him to this tropical outpost and the exciting events begin. Many scenes were actually taken in the wild jungle country of the Malay Peninsula. Thus the authenticity of the scenes is unquestioned, and the picture as a whole constitutes a valuable record of life and customs in that far-off land.

"The Road to Reno," with a great cast that includes Lilyan Tashman, Charles (Buddy) Rogers, Peggy Shannon, William Boyd and Skeets Gallagher, heads the program that ends its run at the Mystic on Friday. "Convicted" with Aileen Pringle, Jameson Thomas and Dorothy Christie as the stars, is the second feature on the current bill.

GRANADA THEATRE, MALDEN

"Way Back Home," the much-heralded starring vehicle for Seth Parker of radio broadcast fame, and his supporting cast of mixed radio and movie celebrities, comes into the big Granada Theater in Malden on Saturday, for a run of seven days. Seth Parker's Sunday night broadcasts have made him the biggest favorite on the NBC net-work. His quaint philosophy and singing are looked forward to by millions each week. Mr. Parker's wife also appears in the picture portraying the same character she does in the weekly broadcasts. Raymond Hunter, the bass soloist, plays the part of Capt'n Bangs. Lizzie and Cyrus also play their respective roles. However, "Way Back Home" is not a musical play, rather it is old-fashioned melodrama with a kick. The well known movie personalities who appear are Frank Albertson, Bette Davis, Stanley Fields, Dorothy Peterson and Frankie Darro. "Way Back Home" is fine entertainment and the kind of picture that appeals to young and old alike.

"Mother's Millions" with James Hall, May Robson, Lawrence Grey and Frances Dade, will be the second attraction on the Granada bill for Saturday. "Mother's Millions" deals briefly with the trials and tribulations of the son and daughter of the richest woman in the world. May Robson, grand old trouper, plays the mother. May Robson is considered the greatest actress in the history of the stage and her work in "Mother's Millions" is of the highest order.

"The Sin of Madelon Claudet," with Helen Hayes and Louis Stone as the stars, tops the program that ends its run at the Granada on Friday. Helen Hayes is the favorite of the New York stage and this is her first screen appearance. As Madelon Claudet, the young woman who dares everything for the sake of her child, Miss Hayes gives a performance that touches the heart and few will be able to watch her work and not be moved to tears. "Touchdown," starring Richard Arlen is the second feature on the current bill.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

Greta Garbo is starred in "Susan Lenox, Her Fall and Rise" which will open Sunday for four days at the University Theatre. This is Garbo's fourth talking picture and is regarded as the most colorful and dramatic of her sound efforts. It is of unusual interest because it marks the first appearance opposite her of Clark Gable, sensational romantic find of the season, who is said to be next in line for stardom in his own name. The story was adapted from the David Graham Phillips novel that first appeared serially in International Magazine, later becoming a best-seller in book form. It also scored a tremendous hit on the stage some ten years ago.

A tender and intriguing love story is presented in "The Beloved Bachelor," the companion feature in which Paul Lukas appears as the featured lead. Based upon a play by Edward H. Peple, this talkie places the handsome and highly effective Lukas in a role such as his many admirers would have ordered for him, had they a choice in the matter.

"The Spirit of Notre Dame," which starts Thursday, is dedicated to the memory of the late Knute Rockne, coach of all the famous players who appear in the picture. Lew Ayres, as halfback on the Notre Dame team, is seen in the most active role of his screen career. The entire production is filled with the spirit of football, and the sportsmanship that builds championship teams, and the cast comprises some of the greatest players in the history developed by the late Coach Knute Rockne at Notre Dame. These include Frank Carideo, twice all-American quarterback, "The Four Horsemen," "Moon" Mullins, John Law, Adam Walsh, Al Howard, "Art" McMannon "Bucky" O'Connor, and many other noted players.

A father who is afraid to reveal his identity to his own son is the keynote of "Skyline" the companion feature. Thomas Meighan, always an outstanding favorite in silent pictures and fresh from his triumphs in the recent talkie, "Young Sinners," portrays the featured role. The romantic characterizations are enacted by Hardie Albright and Maureen O'Sullivan.

MILK CHART FOR MONTH OF AUGUST, 1931

Published by the Winchester Board of Health

The bacteria count in this chart gives the number of bacteria found in one c. c. taken from the center of the sample after it had been well shaken. It should be remembered that another c. c. taken from the same sample might give a somewhat different count, but the difference would rarely, if ever, exceed 10 per cent.

THE DEBT ETERNAL

Editorial by Dr. John Finley, New York Times, Sunday, August 9, 1931

There is one debt for which no moratorium can with safety be declared. It is the one to which the Minister of Education in England, H. A. L. Fisher, referred in the midst of the World War, "the eternal debt of maturity to childhood and youth"—education. After health and physical safety it is the first obligation of the State. Not only should the schools now be kept going at their best, but children and youth who are normally drawn into industry at a younger age should be encouraged to continue their schooling rather than seek employment in competition with older persons, who cannot so readily adapt themselves to changed conditions. This may often mean parental sacrifice, but it is the best investment that can be made when it is at all possible.

Though it was one of the darkest periods of the war, England made plans for extending public education. The very act was in itself a significant expression of confidence in the victorious outcome of the struggle. And in no way can determination to make the best of this black period be manifested more impressively and more helpfully than in seeing that children are prepared for their fullest development and their most useful living. It is a period when there must be adjustment to new conditions in industry, commerce and the professions. Vocational guidance will be especially called for in facing the new conditions confronting this generation entering upon the work of the world. Another year in school should find its hundreds of thousands of youth not only better equipped in general but more specifically and effectively introduced to occupations where their service will be in demand.

This should be the principal benefit of their postponed entry into their vocations. But there is the incidental good to which the President's Emergency Committee calls special attention. It urges as one of the objectives the keeping of all children under 16 in school "in this time of surplus labor and increasing demands of industry for skill and judgment." It also would encourage undergraduates and members of 1931 high school and graduating classes to remain in school for like reasons.

A further recommendation is that adults and young people who have left school and who find themselves without employment should take advantage of this opportunity to resume their education or training. They may even succeed in preparing themselves for new vocations and so, having at least two strings to their bow, be the better fitted to meet emergencies. In many cases they may be enabled to do what they have wanted to do but have not had the courage to attempt with a certain wage in hand or in prospect.

Altogether it may be made a time of transition toward a higher level of American life. Other sacrifices must be made, but they should not interfere with the payment of our full debt to the children and youth. Education is the "debt eternal."

Croesus Credited With Invention of Coinage

Authorities on the subject tell us that it is to Lydia that we owe the invention of coinage. In all times and in all countries, the privilege of coinage has been allowed the sovereign. Croesus of Lydia was the first monarch to introduce a bimetallic system of coinage—gold and silver in the proportion of about three to four. This was some time between 560 and 546 B. C. Metal was chosen, doubtless, by reason of its durability and, in the case of gold and silver, by reason of their intrinsic value. Silver and brass were first used, particularly in Greece, from a lack of sufficient gold. Later, however, this deficiency was overcome. The less liable a metal is to change in value, the better it is suited for a standard. The Greeks first issued real coin some time during the Seventh century, B. C. By the Fourth century the entire civilized world used money.

Tree Rings

If nature has kept a calendar of the centuries in tree rings, few humans know how to read the story accurately. Instead of a narrow growth ring in a tree trunk indicating a dry summer, it may mean merely the aftermath of a cold winter or late spring frosts, which killed the buds and shortened the growing season.

HIGH SCHOOL FALL SPORTS' TEAMS DINED

Carol Abbott and Dexter Mobbs Awarded Cups

The annual fall sports' banquet for members of the Winchester High School football, field hockey and cross country teams was held last Saturday evening in the school gymnasium, supper being served under the direction of Miss E. Gladys Niven of the Household Arts department.

Samuel Graves of the high school faculty acted as toastmaster and those who responded were Principal Wade L. Grindle, Superintendent of Schools James J. Quinn, Coach Margareta M. Centervall of the field hockey team, Coach Ronald Lindemann and assistant coach Ralph Turner of the football team, Coach Alfred Muerling of cross country, President William Hickey of the school athletic association, Joseph Flaherty, captain of football; Barbara Shaw, captain of field hockey; and Francis Corby, captain of cross country.

The speaker of the evening was Rufus H. "Rufe" Bond, now coach of freshman sports at Harvard and former producer of championship teams at Winchester High. Bond's 1922 eleven went through its season undefeated, capturing the Mystic Valley title with but a single touchdown scored against it by a high school team. The former coach received a royal welcome Saturday evening and brought the message of overcoming obstacles in the development of athletic teams, not forgetting to reminisce a bit about the days when he was a struggling pedagogue on the local high school staff.

As is customary at these banquets Principal Grindle announced the winners of the Mansfield and Wheeler Sportsmanship Cups as Dexter W. Mobbs, game little varsity end; and Carolyn W. Abbott, varsity tennis and basketball player. Both have been closely identified with sports throughout their high school careers and have maintained their interest in athletics both on and off the playing field.

Manager "Doc" Murray announced the new football captain as "Hal" Knowlton, all Middlesex league halfback, while Manager "Charlie" Main named Albert Lynch, one of the 1931 dependables, as captain of cross country for next season. The field hockey leader will not be chosen until after the third game of next year's schedule.

Besides announcing the new team captains, Managers Murray and Main with Manager Ann Orpin of field hockey presented their team's gifts to the coaches, and the remainder of the evening was devoted to dancing to the strains of the school's new radio victrola.

CHRISTMAS FOR THE HORSES

Auxiliary Notes S. P. C. A.

The Massachusetts S. P. C. A. will observe its Christmas celebration for horses on Thursday, Dec. 24.

Gifts of apples, turnips and carrots are solicited that this event may be as successful as in former years.

The Winchester Auxiliary hopes to make this an outstanding feature in this, its first gift, and is thus appealing to all lovers of dumb animals throughout the town to make it possible. Through the courtesy of Mr. Daniel Kelley of Kelley & Hawes, all supplies left at his express office will be carried to Boston on Wednesday, Dec. 23.

Mr. Kelley states that the gifts must reach him on Monday or Tuesday, Dec. 21, 22 as the truck will leave Winchester early Wednesday morning for the Angell Memorial Hospital. A generous response is desired as the object lesson is too valuable to be missed.

LOCAL GIRLS TO APPEAR IN MALDEN REVUE

Miriam Shaw, Jean Moran, Eleanor Nason, Martha Swanson and Beatrice Page are appearing in special dance numbers of the En Ka Revue to be held Saturday evening, Dec. 12 at the Beebe Junior High School, Pleasant street, Malden. The revue, for the benefit of the unemployed is under the direction of Constance Berry Page and it is expected a large delegation from the Winchester Chapter of En Ka Sorority will attend.

WILLIAM FAVERSHAM AT SOMERVILLE THEATRE

Coming to the Somerville Theatre is William Faversham, one of the best known and finest actors on the American stage . . . Mr. Faversham will present for the first time to the theatregoers here, a delightful romantic comedy, "Her Friend the King." Mr. Faversham has long enjoyed a great reputation as an actor of great attainments. He will be remembered particularly for his fine work in "Diplomacy," when that famous play was presented at the Colonial Theatre in Boston to record breaking business. In this all star cast, Mr. Faversham's work stood out over all the rest as the elder Beauclere. In "Her Friend the King," he is supported by the able resident company of the Somerville Theatre. It gives Mr. Faversham a fine role, one of the best he has had as the king, a most modest, loveable gentleman with all the attributes of true greatness. Mr. Faversham opens on Monday, Dec. 7, when the house has been sold out to the Somerville Kiwanis Club.

Or the Nighthawk

Visiting the Buckeye state, a man from the Empire state drops a line to the Toledo Blade: "Every state in the Union," he reminds, "has a nickname and several have two or three; each (excepting the Keystone state) has adopted a flower. Now," he continues, "I see they're beginning to choose state birds. What bird would be your suggestion for New York?" "Well," gurgles the editor, "there's the swallow."

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The program for the regular meeting on Monday, Dec. 14, promises to be one of unusual interest. The subject for the afternoon is "Russia I Saw With My Own Eyes." The speaker, Marion Angeline Howlett, spent the summer in the East; was in China at the time of the flood, in Japan when the war broke out, traveled through Russia and is, therefore, in a position to give first hand information as regards conditions there. The musical program for the afternoon will be given by Helen Studvinska Sibley, violinist, accompanied by Mrs. Bidarohde.

The Literature Committee held a very interesting meeting in Fortnightly Hall on Dec. 7, under the direction of Mrs. Mary C. Kennedy. The book under discussion was Lafcadio Hearn's "Two Years in the French West Indies" and it was presented from three angles.

Mrs. Myrtle L. Hodge gave a paper, largely made up of well chosen quotations, which gave clear insight into Hearn's poetical appreciation of nature. As a seeker of Natural Beauty, his soul found satisfaction in the tropical island of Martinique and his charming descriptions of sky and sea, of sunset and dawn, of forest and fruit bring to the reader the enchantment and lure of the tropics.

Miss Sarah E. Pray showed Hearn as a "Student of Human Nature," who, in all his experiences in the West Indies, lost no opportunity of discovering in the mixture of races, the best in each individual. Perhaps no other writer has so charmingly portrayed the characteristics of these people; their simplicity, love of color, musical ability, sincere unselfishness and spirit of kindness and helpfulness toward each other.

The language of the Creoles is a mixture of French, Spanish and West African, and their native songs have a strange fascination and charm. A group of these songs, collected by Hearn during his stay in the French West Indies, was given with interpretive skill and sympathy by Mrs. Idabelle Winship, accompanied by Mrs. Grindle.

Mrs. Ida E. Macdonald read a paper on "Hearn, The Philosopher." We see in the sketches of two years a struggle going on between the desire to sink deeply in this lovely life of the senses and the knowledge that this lethargy was the death of the intellect. She quoted may rare passages which showed his spiritual reaction to every impression from without and the inner life of a rare and gifted writer of poetical prose.

At the next meeting on Jan. 4, the subject will be Hearn's "Oriental Stories and Sketches." Books for additional reading were suggested. These may be obtained by Fortnightly members from Mrs. Maude H. Bridge, librarian.

Mrs. Mary Ghirardini, chairman of the Music Committee, wishes to call attention to the change of time for Glee Club rehearsals. The Glee Club will meet every Thursday morning at 9:30 in Fortnightly Hall, instead of on Tuesday. Work on music for the annual concert is beginning and Mrs. Ghirardini urges the members of the Glee Club to co-operate with her in making this concert a success by faithful attendance at each rehearsal.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

A meeting of the Winchester Chapter, Infant Saviour Guild, was held Tuesday, Dec. 8, at Fortnightly Hall. Sewing was distributed and after a short business meeting tea was served by the following members: Mrs. James Maguire, Mrs. George Hall, Mrs. Edward McKenzie.

Old Farmer's Almanacs on sale at the Star Office.

MISS MORTON TO SING

Pearl Bates Morton, one of the outstanding soprano soloists of Boston will be among the artists appearing Friday, Dec. 11, at the Vendome in Boston at the musicale, given by the Ex-Regents' Club, under the direction of Miss Morton.

Others appearing on the program will be Mrs. M. H. Gulesian, well known Boston composer and pianist, who will accompany Miss Morton in a group of songs by Mrs. Gulesian, Grace DeCarlton, denseuse, accompanied by Wilfred Churchill and Gladys Crockford, one of the foremost harpists of Boston and member of the Haydn Harp Duo.

Pack well, wrap well, address plainly. Sender's name should be on upper left hand corner. The address on lower right hand. Postage on upper right hand corner. Following these simple rules will save time; and possibly much inconvenience. More than one billion parcels are transported yearly in the United States mail. More than 126,000,000 are insured. More than 46,000,000 are sent C.O.D.

Poison Ivy Misnamed

The poison ivy, like several other plants with similar names, is not an ivy, but is merely called by that name because of its resemblance to the real ivy. Poison ivy belongs to the same family and genus as the sumacs and is a totally different plant from the English ivy.

Wish Him Suckercess

Determined to see Texas Quinine and the sights of the city, or bust, an artless Arkadelphian asks the Arkansas Gazette if it will kindly indicate the appropriate garb for visitors touring New York city. "Sure!" obliges the editor. "A sight seersucker suit!"

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
LAND COURT
Petition to Foreclose Tax Lien
(Seal) No. 3238

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, and to Hattie A. Thompson, Trustee, Horace G. Allen, Trustee, Edwin A. Gooding, Trustee, of Boston, in the County of Suffolk and said Commonwealth; Ralph P. Sylvester, Ersilia Sylvester, of Winchester, in the County of Middlesex and said Commonwealth; Annie M. Whittier, residence unknown, or her heirs, devisees or legal representatives:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Grazia Garbino, of said Winchester, in the County of Middlesex, and said Commonwealth, to foreclose all rights of redemption from the tax lien proceedings described in said petition in and concerning a certain parcel of land situate in said Winchester, in the County of Middlesex, and in said Commonwealth, bounded and described in said petition as follows:

Easterly by lot No. 161-100 ft.
Southerly by Kirk Street 50 ft.
Westerly by lot No. 164-100 ft.
Northerly by lots No. 147-148-50 ft.

Being lots 162 and 163 on a plan by L. G. Hawkes dated Sept. 11, 1891 and duly recorded with Middlesex So. Dist. Deeds, Book of Plans 71, Plan 49. Total area 5000 sq. ft.

If you desire to make any objection or defense to said petition you or your attorney must file a written appearance and an answer, under oath, setting forth clearly and specifically your objections or defense to each part of said petition, in the office of the Recorder of said Court in Boston (at the Court House), on or before the twenty-first day of December next.

Unless your appearance is filed by or for you, your default will be recorded, the said petition will be taken as confessed and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

And in addition to the usual service of this notice as required by law, it is ordered that the foregoing citation be published forthwith once each week for three successive weeks in the Winchester Star a newspaper published in said Winchester.

Witness, CHARLES THORNTON DAVIS, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-third day of November in the year nineteen hundred and thirty-one.

Attest with seal of said Court.
CHARLES A. SOUTHWORTH,
Recorder

MORTGAGEE'S SALE

By virtue and in pursuance of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage given by Michael Ancillo to Louis Levin, dated May 21st., A. D. 1931, and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 5561, Page 191, of which mortgage the undersigned is the owner and holder, for breach of the condition in said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at public auction, on the premises hereinafter described, on Saturday, December 26, 1931, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage, and therein described substantially as follows:

"The land in Winchester, Massachusetts, at the corner of Westland Avenue and Arlington Street Extension, containing 6614 square feet, being shown and designated as lot one hundred and fifty-three on a plan entitled 'Part Three, Myopia Park, Winchester, Mass.,' dated March 31, 1927, drawn by Ernest W. Branch, Civil Engineer, which plan is recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Plan Book 392, Plan 19, to which plan reference is hereby made for a further and more particular description of the granted premises. Being the same premises conveyed to me by the Bonelli-Adams Investment Corporation by deed to be recorded herewith; and they are now conveyed subject to the restrictions contained in the title deeds, so far as the same are now in force and applicable; and subject also to the Zoning Law requirements of the Town of Winchester. This conveyance includes all stoves, ranges, furnaces, radiators, plumbing goods, gas and electric fixtures, shades, screens, pipes, boilers, tanks, screen doors, awnings, storm doors and storm windows which are now or may hereafter be on or wrought into or affixed to said premises; and the grantor convenants that nothing above named or referred to has been or shall be purchased upon a contract of conditional sale."

The premises will be sold subject to all unpaid taxes, outstanding tax titles, municipal liens and assessments, if any there are. Five hundred dollars in cash will be required to be paid by the purchaser at the time and place of sale; other terms announced at the sale.

Louis Levin, Owner and Holder of said Mortgage, 24 School St., Boston, Mass., Room 518. d4-3t

Are We Created Unequal?

"The biological discoveries of a half-century or more," Prof. Harrison R. Hunt told the Eugenics Research association, "have revealed that people, instead of being potentially equal at birth, vary enormously, and that such differences are often inherited; so one might say it is self-evident that men are created unequal."

Misquotations

There is a quotation about Bible quotations over which we nearly always go wrong. "Even the devil," we say, "can quote Scripture for his own purpose." Actually, the words are: "The devil can cite Scripture for his purpose." A superior person might refer to misquotation as "the last infirmity of noble minds"; in so doing he would make two mistakes, for it runs "That last infirmity of noble mind."—London Tit-Bits.

Men of Learning Admit Letting Minds Wander

The long line of absent-minded professors is headed historically by Archimedes. When he leaped from his bath and galloped through the streets of Syracuse waving a towel and shouting "Eureka!" the citizens were astonished. Doubtless they put him down as a bit balmy, but the world had just become aware of specific gravity.

Professors of our own day are no different, we learn from a report based on 200 questionnaires, presented before the American Chemical society convention at Indianapolis. The savants like to let their minds run along unhitched, they say, using their reflexes to carry on the dull little chores of life, such as shaving, dressing, crossing the street or driving a car. So the professor who drops his students' themes in the mail box and distributes his wife's letters to the class isn't mentally deficient—he is merely in the throes of divine afflatus. One contributor to the symposium testified that he was enabled to revolutionize pipe line coils by an inspiration that came upon him one Sunday in church, just as the pastor announced the text. Another confesses he is likely to take innumerable baths while wrestling with a knotty problem.

Rather than fighting absent-mindedness as an embarrassing trait, the professors admit that they cultivate it. The admission, however, in no way diminishes the mirth afforded by abstracted pedagogues to less erudite citizens who mobilize all their brain cells for every action and are never guilty of a faux pas or startled by an inspiration.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
MIDDLESEX, SS. PROBATE COURT

To all persons interested in the estate of Henry C. Ordway late of Winchester in said County, deceased.

WHEREAS, Old Colony Trust Company and Philip S. Ordway the trustees under the will of said deceased, have presented for allowance, the 1st 2nd, 3rd and 4th accounts of their trust under said will, for the benefit of Philip S. Ordway and others.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Cambridge, in said County, on the twenty-ninth day of December A. D. 1931 at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be allowed.

And said trustees are ordered to serve this citation by delivering a copy thereof to all persons interested in the estate fourteen days at least before said Court, or by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks, in The Winchester Star a newspaper published in Winchester the last publication to be one day at least before said Court, and by mailing, postpaid, a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, JOHN C. LEGGAT, Esquire, First Judge of said Court this third day of December in the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one.

SCENE FROM NATIVITY PLAY

To Be Presented at First Congregational Church Sunday Afternoon at 4:30

The Nativity play "Bethlehem" by Laurence Housman, will be presented in the auditorium of the First Congregational Church, Sunday afternoon at 4:30. This is the sixth year the church has presented this thrilling drama of the birth of Christ. The church each year has been crowded to the doors with eager parents and children to see the play.

This year the choir and members of the congregation are being coached by Miss Ruth D. Elder and Mr. J. Albert Wilson.

Promptly at 4:30, the choir will sing carols from the rear balcony of the church, as a prelude to the drama.

The public is invited. A silver offering will be taken at the door to defray the expenses of the play.

At the morning service, the senior and junior choirs, consisting of about 100 members, will sing Christmas carols. Dr. Chidley will preach a special Christmas sermon on, "The Greatest Blessing of Christmas." The beautiful decorations of the church, presented and arranged by Mr. John C. Haartz, are always an added feature of the Christmas services at the Congregational Church. Mr. Haartz is again presenting the decorations this year.

JUNIOR CHOIR WILL BROADCAST CHRISTMAS CAROLS

The Junior Choir of the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church will broadcast a program of Christmas Carols from Station WEEI next Thursday afternoon, Dec. 24 at 4:15. The choir contains some excellent voices which are being carefully trained in singing the best music. Under the leadership of Mrs. Mary Ranton Witham a repertoire has been prepared for use in the Sunday services and other occasions.

1. Old French Carols
   (a) Born Is He
   (b) Lullaby of the Christ Child
   (c) Bring a Torch, Jeanette, Isabella
2. Old English Carols
   (a) Good Christian Men, Rejoice
   (b) God Rest You Merry, Gentlemen
   (c) Good King Wenceslas
3. German Carols
   (a) Hush, My Dear Chorale ..... Bach
   (b) While By My Sheep ..... Jungst

MRS. LALIA J. HOLBROOK

Mrs. Lalia J. Holbrook, mother of Superintendent of Streets Parker Holbrook, died yesterday morning at her son's home on Hancock street, following an illness of several weeks. Twenty-four years of her 50 years in Massachusetts were spent in Winchester, and she was a member of the First Baptist Church of this town.

Besides her son, Parker, she leaves a son, Charles H. Holbrook of Winthrop, a brother, George Parker of Yarmouth, N. S., and seven grandchildren.

Rev. Benjamin P. Browne, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will conduct funeral services at the late residence, 6 Hancock street, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

NOTICE

Mrs. Harry S. Parsons, 73 Bacon street, tel. Win. 1710, will have wool to distribute to those wishing to knit for the unemployed.

FROM THE POSTMASTER

Mail your Christmas cards NOW! Tie your Winchester cards in a separate bundle. Wrap your packages carefully and tie securely. You may mark them "Do not open until Christmas" if they are to be delivered in the United States. Do not put any writing in your packages.

Letter postage to Canada and Canadian Provinces is three cents an ounce. Cards are two cents. Short payment means double the shortage due is collected from the addressee.

Letter postage to England and Ireland is five cents an ounce; cards are three cents each.

Please do not expect us to answer the telephone until after Christmas. In the first place we probably won't hear it ring, and we will all be so busy handling mail that it will be impossible to look up mail or give the time necessary to answer.

CHRISTMAS EVE SERVICE

On Thursday, Dec. 24, there will be a special Carol Service in the Unitarian Church, at 7:30 p. m. The chimes will be played for a half hour before this service, ringing out the familiar Christmas hymns. At the service the full choir, Mr. Moffatt conducting, will sing some of the carols that have come down the years. Mr. Reed will give a Christmas word, and the people will sing together some of the beloved Christmas hymns. Everybody is invited. The Christmas Service, Sunday morning, Dec. 20, will begin at 10:30, a quarter-hour earlier than usual, with carol singing by the choir.

EMBLEM CLUB NOTES

The club's anual Christmas Party will be held Wednesday evening, Dec. 23, at 8 o'clock in Lyceum Hall. Santa Claus has promised to attend and there will be motion pictures, so parents are urged to bring the kiddies that they too may enjoy he fun. There will be the regular exchange of gifts and refreshments will be served. President May Fitzgerald announced yesterday that members of Winchester Lodge of Elks have been invited, and it is expected that many will attend. All Emblem Club members are urged to be present.

COMMUNITY CAROLS

Come Neighbors All—Both Large and Small

At the community Christmas tree on the Common, on Christmas eve, at 7:15 P. M. all the citizens of Winchester are urged to join the singing of carols. The singing will be sponsored by the Fortnightly and led by a group of singers from the various churches and clubs, assisted by an instrumentalist. Bring with you, if possible, copies of the following carols:

OH COME ALL YE FAITHFUL
HOLY NIGHT
IT CAME UPON A MIDNIGHT CLEAR
OH LITTLE TOWN OF BETHLEHEM
THE FIRST NOEL
HARK THE HERALD ANGELS SING

MEETING OF FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE

The Winchester Circle of the Florence Crittenton League of Compassion held their second regular meeting of the season Thursday afternoon Dec. 17 at the residence of Mrs. Frederick N. Stephens, 31 Swan road with a large audience who heard two outstanding speakers and an exceptionally fine program of music.

Rev. Dwight Hadley of the Church of the Epiphany opened the meeting with a fitting prayer. The president, Mrs. Irene Clarke presided. She congratulated Mrs. Chase on the Circle's recent success at the bazaar. The Circle voted to spend the money necessary to buy the furniture for the new chancel in the Brighton home after listening to Mrs. Meyer's report on its description and cost.

Mrs. Everett O. Fisk, long identified with the work of the League told some of her personal contacts in this great field and made a special plea for the ladies to become interested in the preventative work.

Rev. David M. Beach of the Payson Park Congregational Church, also one of the League's directors gave a very brilliant and inspiring talk on the laws of service. He said there were four distinct laws; sympathy, as the mood of service, sanity as the methods of service, selfishness, as the motive of service and sacrifice as the measure of service.

During the afternoon the following musical program was beautifully given by Mrs. Florence Mansfield, soprano soloist, Mrs. Glennys Pollard Thompson, violinist and Mrs. Mary Ranton Witham, accompanist.

"Over the Mountain" ..... Quilter
"My Shadow" ..... Homer Samuels
Vocal Solos with Violin Obligato
"Le Cygne" ..... Saint Saens
"Sweet and Low" ..... Arranged by Parnly
"Bring a Torch! Jeanette, Isabella Old French Song

TO LIGHT COMMUNITY TREE

Chairman George T. Davidson of the Park Department announced last night that the Community Tree on the Common will be lighted during the Christmas Holidays as in past seasons. There was some talk of discontinuing this custom because of the prevailing hard times, but Chairman Davidson and his board wisely decided, after talking with representative citizens, that the small sum necessary to light the tree will be well spent. The STAR is heartily in favor of lighting the tree and believes that every one will be glad to learn that it is to brighten up the center this year as in past seasons.

RED CROSS CALLS FOR KNITTERS

The American Red Cross is asking for knitters to knit sweaters for men, women and children. Wool may be obtained at the home of Mrs. Bowen Tufts, 7 Stratford road and will be provided with needles and rules to any one who will help in this much needed work.

BUILDING DEPARTMENT

The Building Commissioner has issued permits for alterations and the erection of buildings on property owned by the following, for the week ending Thursday, Dec. 17:

Dorothy M. Childs—new dwelling and garage on lot at 29 Madison avenue, west.

Anna Heaton, Winchester—new private one car garage at 201 M. V. Parkway.

CHRISTMAS FOR THE CHILDREN

Last year the Civic Community Relief Committee did splendid service in making Christmas a joyful time for children who otherwise would have had no such happiness. This year the good work will be continued and anyone who is willing to help, may send contributions to Mrs. Harry Sanborn, treasurer or to the Board of Public Welfare, which is co-operating with this committee.

LILLA J. RYAN, Chairman
Board of Public Welfare

MUSIC GARDEN

The December meeting of the Music Garden was held at the home of Mrs. Whitfield Tuck, Monday evening, Dec. 14.

We were pleased to greet five new club members on this occasion. We feel that the organization will be greatly strengthened by this accession and believe that our new members themselves will profit thereby

In keeping with the spirit of the season the program committee devoted their efforts to oratorio selections for the evening's entertainment. Vocal and instrumental parts were well presented. The orchestra has benefited greatly by the addition of new pieces, and much is to be expected from the development of this department.

Next month attention will be given to the works of Mozart. We believe that this will be one of the season's most appealing meetings and look for a large attendance.

Last Monday's program follows:

Priest's March—from "Athatie". Mendelssohn
Orchestra
Soprano Solo—Hear Ye, Israel—"Elijah" Mendelssohn
Miss MacLellan
String Quartette—Hallelujah Chorus—"Messiah" ..... Handel

WYMAN SCHOOL MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

The Wyman School Mothers' Association met on Tuesday, Dec. 8 at the school and enjoyed a program prepared by the principal, Miss Spencer, and her teachers, in which children of the various grades took part. It was most interesting and instructive to the mothers.

At the end of this program, Mr. Harold Farnsworth of the school building committee showed the pictures and explained the plans of the new schools now under construction. A social hour with the teachers followed.

The next meeting of the Wyman Mothers' Association will be held on Wednesday, Jan. 15, at 2:15 p. m. and will take the form of a bridge party to be held in the assembly hall.

WINCHESTER JUNIORS TO PLAY WOBURN BUDDIES

The Winchester Juniors will play the strong Woburn Buddies of the Woburn Amateur Basketball League at the Woburn Y. M. C. A. next Wednesday night, Dec. 23 at 7:30 p. m.

The Winchester team is making quite a name for themselves and so far this season they have played four games and have managed to win all four. The team consists of "Bob" Walsh, "Bill" Giuliani, Gene Reddy, William Grady, Frank Gurney, "Joe" Murphy, George Rogers, James McGowan and "Sid" Horn, manager with Henry "Doc" Murray his assistant.

WINCHESTER CHAPTER OF THE AMERICAN RED CROSS

A meeting of the National committee on Volunteer Service was called by Miss Boardman in Washington last Thursday and Friday. Mrs. Bowen Tufts reported for the Winchester and Boston Metropolitan Chapters. The committee was beautifully entertained by Miss Boardman at luncheon at National Headquarters and again at her home in Dupont Circle at dinner. From there the committee was taken to the Diplomatic reception at the White House.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL

The faculty and student nurses of the Winchester Hospital were entertained last Thursday, Dec. 10 by Mrs. J. Edward Downes of the Training School committee of the hospital.

The program of the afternoon consisted of a delightful informal talk by Mrs. Everett O. Fisk of Brookline and a charming group of songs and piano selections by Miss Margaret May of Arlington, accompanied by Mrs. Edwin Benson of West Newton.

Mrs. Fisk is president of the Massachusetts Society for the University Education of Women and presented to the girls suggestions she had recently received from a group of business women with whom she dined. She had asked these women the ideals to demand of nurses and had received some very pertinent ideas to pass on. Mrs. Fisk has been for many years head of the Students' Union in Paris and gave the nurses descriptions of the work there, adding many enjoyable sidelights and observations from her vast experience with students.

The social hour that followed added to the pleasure of the afternoon. Christmas colors and decorations were used on the tea table and gave a festive air to the occasion. Mrs. Stillman P. Williams, Mrs. Harold S. Fuller, Mrs. Arthur W. Loftus and Miss Rose Downes assisted their hostess. The appreciation of the nurses of the afternoon's entertainment is still echoing at the hospital.

The ladies of the Home for Aged People in Winchester have been most helpful and made over 100 candy bags to be used on the hospital Christmas trees. The party and the tree for the nurses is to be Dec. 21 and for the workers and assistants on Dec. 22.

The nurses are very busy practicing their Christmas carols which will be sung at the holiday season and to the patients' Christmas Day. They are doing this in their Glee Club under the direction of Mr. M. R. Barclay of Milton.

WINCHESTER PLAYERS IN N. E. RATINGS

Tennis rankings recently made public by the New England Lawn Tennis Association list several of Winchester's young players among the best performers in the state.

In the junior girls' class, Mary Cutter is ranked number 2, with the redoubtable Hilda Boehm of Malden leading the way. Frances Poinier is ranked 9th in the first ten.

It is in the younger girls' class that Winchester makes its best showing with five of the first ten playing much of their tennis at Palmer street. Sylvia Hatch leads the local youngsters at number 3, with Mary Boyden 5th; and Katherine Parrot, 6th; Louisa Williams and Gertrude Backes are placed 9th and 10th.

On the boys' side, in the junior class, Richard Riley, ace of the high school championship team last season, is ranked 6th. In the younger boys' class Roswell Boutwell is placed sixth, and Norman Dalrymple, 8th. Thomas Jansen, a former Winchester boy, is ranked 4th with G. Holmes Perkins, in the men's doubles list.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Winchester District Committee Meets

The Winchester District Committee met at the Winchester Country Club last Friday to discuss Scouting conditions in the district. The records show that Scout membership in Winchester has made a gain of 21 per cent during the present year. Two new Troops are now being formed, and from every point of view progress is being made.

District Rally Jan. 11

The Winchester District rally will be held in the Winchester Town Hall at 8 p. m. on Monday, Jan. 11. The winning patrols in this district rally will compete later in the month for the Council championships.

Annual Council Meeting Jan. 18

Extensive plans are being made for the annual meeting of the Council to be held Monday, Jan. 18 in the Masonic banquet hall, Masonic building, Medford.

It is expected that over 100 men who are serving as volunteers in promoting Scouting in Burlington, Medford, Stoneham, Winchester and Woburn will attend this meeting.

The Council is particularly fortunate in having secured Ray O. Wyland, director of Education for the National Council, as speaker.

It is expected that a large delegation of Scout leaders from Winchester will attend the annual meeting. Last year the Winchester district had one of the largest delegations at the meeting and plans are being formulated to maintain this tradition.

MRS. MARGARET P. BARSTOW

Funeral services were held today for Mrs. Margaret P. Barstow, widow of Frederick S. Barstow, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Henry B. Sawyer, 34 Cabot street.

Mrs. Barstow was born Feb. 5, 1852 in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. She had lived in Winchester since 1911 until two years ago, when she moved to Arlington. She is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Sawyer, and by four grandchildren, Margaret B., Henry B. Jr., Madeline and Elizabeth Sawyer.

The services were private and were conducted by the Rev. Dwight W. Hadley, rector of the Church of the Epiphany. Burial was in Forestdale Cemetery in Malden, her former home.

Radio Recording

"Electrical transcription" is a radio program that is recorded, either on a disk or film, which is designed exclusively for broadcasting, and the disks are not sold for any other purpose. The records are made in studios and sent to the broadcasting stations. The word "electrical" does not mean much, because even regular phonograph records are made and transcribed by electricity.

FILE BILL TO IMPROVE MYSTIC

Senator Warren and Representative Bateman Ask for Dredging

Senator Charles A. Warren and Representative Thomas R. Bateman, representing this district in the Senate and House, have filed a bill for the improvement of Upper Mystic Lake. This will be a popular measure with their constituents, the upper lake having been gradually turned into a gigantic mudhole during the past few years.

The bill introduced is as follows:

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts
In the Year One Thousand Nine Hundred and Thirty-two

An Act authorizing the Metropolitan District Commission to improve upper Mystic Lake and the Aberjona River in the Town of Winchester.

Section 1. The Metropolitan District Commission is hereby authorized to improve upper Mystic Lake and the Aberjona River in the Town of Winchester between said lake and the Southern Division of the Boston & Maine Railroad by dredging or otherwise and may expend therefor such sum, not exceeding thirty thousand dollars, as may hereafter be appropriated to be assessed upon the Metropolitan Parks District.

Section 2. This Act shall take effect upon its passage.

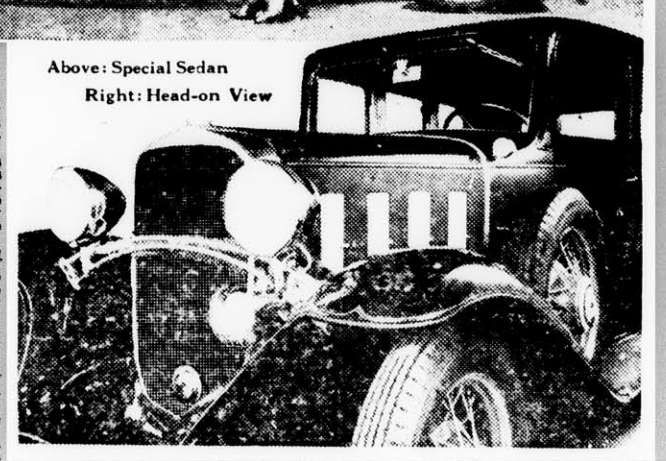
Right: Head-on View



Chevrolet's new car for 1932, embodying silent Syncro-Mesh transmission in combination with selective free wheeling as standard equipment at no extra cost, and practically every proven automotive advance of recent years, is now displayed at dealer showrooms throughout the country.

While remaining in the price class in which it won world leadership this year, the new 1932 models offer features heretofore considered exclusive to the high price field, as well as a new front end mounting never before shown on any car.

Called "The Great American Value for 1932," the line offers in support of this slogan a twenty per cent increase in power, faster acceleration, top speeds of 65 to 70 miles an hour, new Fisher bodies with a modern streamline styling, down-draft carburetion, counter-balanced crankshaft, finger-touch front seat adjustment and many other refinements over the 1931 models, which, from the standpoint of public acceptance, were the most successful in the history of the company.

In addition to interest centering on the cars themselves, the announcement at this time has national significance in that activity brought on by production of the new cars is expected, at conservative estimates, to add materially to the earnings of 200,000 people throughout the country just before the holiday season and before the severe winter season sets in.

The company's 21 domestic plants all are busy producing cars as fast as precision manufacturing limits will permit so that deliveries may be made with the least possible delay. More than 30,000 of the new cars already have been built for dealers' showroom displays, and more than that quantity are expected to roll off the assembly lines during the present month.

The new car is the first in the low-price field to offer the combination of silent Syncro-Mesh transmission with selective free wheeling as standard equipment at no extra cost. A control button on the instrument panel enables the driver to use the free wheeling device only when he desires, and he is thus able to utilize the full braking power of the engine when desired.

The front end offers a radically changed appearance, with a new type radiator, a radiator grille built integral on all models, a double tie-bar arching gracefully between the fenders, on which are mounted bullet-shaped headlamps and a trumpet-type horn just beneath the left headlamp. All models have adjustable hood ports chrome plated on all the sport and de luxe models, and all have cowl ventilators controlled from the driver's seat.

With the new streamlined bodies, the external sun visor has been eliminated and its purpose is now served by an internal visor adjustable to any position in front of the driver. The left front window also has an equalizer built in so that the driver may adjust the window with little effort. On the top rail of the instrument panel is a removable ash tray for the convenience of front seat passengers.

Robe rails, silk assist cords, window shades, arm rests and ash trays on both sides of the rear seat, dome light, foot rests, large door pockets and many other big car refinements are standard with various models in the new line.

AMERICAN RED CROSS NOTES

Report of Secretary of Winchester Chapter

The Secretary of the Winchester Chapter of the American Red Cross offers to the chairman, the executive board, and town members an annual report of activities during the past year.

During the year, the executive board of the Red Cross has held five meetings in addition to the annual meeting.

The Home Service work has been most efficiently carried on by Mr. William Hevey, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Otis Wilson, investigator. Numerous calls have been made and cases investigated. Financial aid, food, clothing and fuel have been given to more than 20 families. This department is intended to assist principally the disabled veterans, but this year we have given aid to the unemployed veterans to tide him over temporary difficulties. The chapter assisted the Winchester Community Relief Committee at Thanksgiving by furnishing seven baskets.

Mrs. Alfred Bond, chairman of production, has completed the yearly quota of clothing which is sent to Washington for distribution to various hospitals. Fifty Christmas bags, filled with suitable articles, were sent to the veterans, and in additions a quantity of wool was donated for the making of socks and similar equipment.

Publicity has been of real necessity due to the drought relief and to the Annual Roll Call. This department has been ably handled by Mrs. Thomas Dreier, and much space in the Star was generously contributed by Mr. T. Price Wilson.

The Drought Relief quota for Winchester was $2400, but due to the generous support of the townspeople the chapter was able to send $3700 as our contribution. The complete returns of Annual Roll Call are not yet available, and a report will appear later in the Star.

Life Saving and swimming instructions were given at Sandy Beach during July and August by Mr. Carnie. Mr. Carnie reported an average of 100 swimmers a day. Fourteen seniors and 17 juniors passed their life saving test.

The Junior Red Cross has 100 per cent enrollment in the schools. This department has been ably supervised by Miss Pratt, Miss Bronson, and Miss Davis. These leaders have been very helpful in assisting the members with their monthly meetings and projects.

The Junior Red Cross has had a year of admirable service. Scrap books, candy boxes, puzzles, place cards, etc. that have been sent to many hospitals have brought cheer to the convalscent children and veterans. Several hundred articles of clothing have been collected and given to the Welfare Committee of the town for distribution. Canned goods and preserves were solicited at Thanksgiving and given to the Community Relief Committee for the baskets.

The members have also contributed money to the Community Relief Work in Winchester, and to the Drought Relief Fund. Meetings have been held each month, officers elected, and appropriate plays and projects have been carried out by the members. During the month of May each school observed the 50th anniversary of Red Cross with an appropriate program. Mrs. Bowen Tufts, chairman, was guest speaker.

Fifty Christmas bags were made and filled by the Junior Red Cross girls, and were sent to the soldiers and sailors at the Army and Naval stations.

Too much credit cannot be given to the Junior Chapter by the townspeople and the parent organization. Their deeds of service and helpfulness are highly commendable, and by their assistance to others they have developed themselves.

Members of the Board of Directors and friends attended a luncheon at the Winchester Country Club in February. This luncheon was given in honor of Miss Mabel Boardman, National Secretary, who gave an inspiring and helpful talk on Red Cross organization.

Mrs. Bowen Tufts, as senior delegate, Miss Davis of the Wadleigh School and Miss Amy Lawson, as junior delegates, attended the National Convention at Washington. The chapter feels that the Junior Red Cross will benefit by Miss Lawson's experience at the convention. She brought home many interesting and inspiring ideas for next year's projects of service. Mrs. Bowen Tufts has also attended the Regional Conference held at Washington, Dec. 9 to 11 as New England delegate.

The chapter has furnished colorful hangings, pictures, flower holders and an electric clock for Ward 8-B at the Veterans' Hospital at Bedford.

It is indeed gratifying to report such satisfactory results this past year. Yet it must be remembered that without the admirable support of our townspeople, the directors could not have accomplished this credible work. The response to Roll Call and Drought Relief has been extremely gratifying, and the Winchester Chapter of the American Red Cross wishes to thank each and every one who has added his support to this worthy cause.

Respectfully submitted,
Mrs. Ruth E. Hilton

LIONS' CLUB NOTES

The usual good attendance at the Lions' dinner Monday was augmented by several members of the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce and also by a member of the Board of Selectmen.

The illustrated talk given by Mr. P. D. Bowler of the Bowler Corporation, gave a very interesting description of the method of driving wells and the "tamping" or "sanding" the walls, bailing out the wells during the drilling, etc.

TELEPHONE NUMBER 0029

Manager Fred T. Eubanks of Pratt's Drug Store at the corner of Washington and Swanton streets notified Patrolman Clarence Dunbury Wednesday night that an automobile had gone onto the sidewalk and passed in front of the block of stores within three feet of his door while headed north. He secured the number of the machine and the authorities learned that the machine was registered to James Lewis of 22 Glover street, Norfolk Downs. The Quincy police notified the local authorities that Lewis left that address three months ago and had left no address.

THE STAR is adding no apology to its Christmas wishes this year. We hope all our readers, advertisers and friends will enjoy the holidays, and know they will do everything possible to make Christmas a joyous occasion for those less fortunate than themselves. Our point of view will largely determine whether this Christmas will be a merry one, for few of us can carry out the programs which have added our merrymaking in previous years. Good fellowship, however, costs nothing and pays big dividends in happiness, while an optimistic outlook is one of the easiest ways possible to bring about contentment. Let us ignore the depression for a few short days! We can not forget it, but we can turn our back upon it temporarily. If we can't give presents, we can offer friendship, and sympathy to those in need of it. If we receive no gifts we can still enjoy the fellowship of our comrades and friends. The Star hopes that everyone will make this Christmas a merry one, if for no other reason than for the sake of the kiddies who know nothing of depressions, bank failures, moratoriums, stock crashes and taxes, but have an abiding faith in Santa Claus. Have a good time with them and for them, and may we suggest that the Fortnightly carol singing get-together around the community tree on the Common is a good place to begin.

ROTARY CLUB

Three members were absent from the regular meeting of Thursday, Dec. 17.

Nine days elapsed since our previous meeting, which was the joint assembly at Woburn last week Tuesday. It seems a long time to wait, but it adds to the pleasure of the gathering. Joint meetings are valuable in that they prevent the Clubs from falling into ruts and at the same time give splendid opportunities for making good friends. Naturally they cannot replace regular meetings, nor are they intended to do so. We have invariably enjoyed these inter-club assemblies and hope to enjoy many more. And we are always glad to return to the home board, with pleasant thoughts for our recent good hosts.

Our guest speaker on this occasion was Benjamin B. Osthues, President of the Rotary Club of Medford. "Ben's" subject was "Athletics" and he is exceptionally well qualified to discuss this matter, as he is one of the best known athletes in this section. His specialty is track athletics in which he has excelled for many years past, both as a competitor and as judge and referee. But "Ben's" interest extends to all departments of athletics and he is a mine of information on practically every variety of sport. He holds a championship of the quarter-mile track; he was one of the founders of the Amateur Athletic Union, and it is he who originally organized the modern relay race. And to add a touch of the picturesque to his accomplishments, it remains to be said that he was the first to appear in the colorful bathrobe at an athletic competition. It is small wonder that a man of "Ben's" experiences should have a highly entertaining message for us. It was our misfortune that "Ben's" time was so limited that he could tell but little of an eventful career in the field of sport.

Our next meeting falls on Dec. 24, the day before Christmas. It has been decided that there be no regular speaker at that time. Let no one be deluded, however, with the idea that we shall go without features appropriate to this, perhaps the dearest of our holiday seasons. The matter of providing these features was left to the Board of Directors. While at the moment of writing, the Board is not prepared to make a definite announcement, it is not premature to state that this celebration of the Yuletide season is calculated to bring a lasting thrill to the soul of every Rotarian who will be there to observe it. Whether one reacts to juvenile ecstasies, to mature sophistication or to the calm reflections of life's evening, we firmly believe that a thoroughly satisfying experience is in store for him on Thursday next, the 24th of December. We are thoroughly convinced that it will be again demonstrated that Rotary is very much worth while. Club members will be grievously disappointed if they allow any but urgent circumstances to interfere with their presence on the above date.

WINCHESTER GIRL SCOUTS

Saturday, Dec. 12, in Fortnightly Hall, Troop 5 presented a play entitled "Buried Treasure." It was written especially for the Scouts by Mrs. Lula Watkins. There was a dress rehearsal in the afternoon for the children, but the main performance was at 8:15 in the evening.

As the play unfolded, it was found that the Winslows had lost their money and would be forced to sell their ancestral home and many of their heirlooms. Before the old desk is sold, however, the girls, Jinks, Beth, Nancy and Doris, find in it a secret drawer which contains a message telling how to find a long-hidden treasure. How they find this, and how they saved the furniture and house, was cleverly portrayed in both comic and dramatic incident.

All the actresses were clever, but perhaps the most outstanding was Phillipa Kelley as "Lindy." Her actions kept the hall in constant merriment. Margaret Plumer, as the mother, had probably the next most difficult part, but her acting was very good. Nancy Jackson made her "Mrs. Benton" seem very natural and lifelike, and the four girls, "Jinks," "Beth," "Nancy," and "Doris," played by Gene MacDonald, Martha Hill, Gladys Moulton, and Janet Spencer, were real.

Music was furnished by a Scout orchestra: Mary Worthen, piano; Margaret Millican, violin; Gladys Moulton, trumpet; Dorothy Glidden, French horn. Before the evening performance, flowers were presented to Mrs. Watkins, the author of the play, and to Mrs. Clifton Hall, who was the manager of the production.

The committee in charge was headed by Mary Elizabeth Hall, general chairman. Nancy Hall was in charge of tickets, Dorothy Glidden of the bazaar, and Betty Blake of the candy. Mrs. Frank Kelley took care of the properties, most of which she loaned to the Scouts.

The financial success of the play was due largely to the spirit of cooperation shown by the girls.

On Saturday afternoon, Dec. 19, Troop 6 will hold a Christmas sale at the Arlington Gas Company store on Main street. A gift table will help you select your small remembrances. A food shop will take care of your Saturday sweets.

All troops are busy planning trees and gifts, and collecting clothing for those less fortunate than they. They expect to help make Christmas real in four families; at the hospital, and Home for Aged.

How many know Jan. 1, is Paul Revere's birthday? Why not spend it in the old fashioned way? "Calling on one's friends"?

STRAND ATTRACTIONS

A happy choice of deft comedy and sophistication, ably directed and acted make for an exceptionally entertaining film at the Strand Theatre, Malden, where RKO-Radio Pictures "Consolation Marriage" opens Saturday. Briefly the film tells the amusing story of two young persons, disappointed in love, who contracts a loveless marriage for the sole purpose of forgetting their romantic pasts. Irene Dunne who scored so heavily in "Cimarron" plays the role of a jilted girl. Her work is flawless. Pat O'Brien, as the young man, does an exceptional bit of work in a role that requires him to be cynical and flippant in his view of life.

John Halliday, Matt Moore and Myrna Loy head the list of popular supporting players. It is of interest to know that the story for his excellent comedy-drama was written by no other than the popular sports writer for the Boston Post, "Bill" Cunningham, whose daily columns are read with interest all over the country.

Mirthful mystery that is genuinely amusing and entertaining is offered in "A Dangerous Affair" the second feature on the Strand's program this coming week. It serves as a splendid vehicle for the return to the screen in co-starring roles of Jack Holt and Ralph Graves who have not appeared together since they made "Dirigible." The story concerns the attempt to wake up the sleepy Long Island town by perpetrating a little joke which turns into a spooky, quivery, shivery mystery picture.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Mr. and Mrs. George Sibley with Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Sibley of this town attended the Shriners' Ball Wednesday evening at the Boston Garden.

Miss Margaret Kee was pleasantly surprised Tuesday evening when she was tendered a birthday party at her home on Cottage avenue by a large group of friends from Winchester and Woburn. She was the recipient of many gifts, and after an evening of cards, refreshments were served by Miss Kee's cousin, Miss Ann Kee. A handsome birthday cake made a most attractive table center piece.

Patrolman James P. Donaghey of the Police Department is reported as quite ill at his home on Washington street. He is confined to his bed, and it is expected that it will be two weeks before he will be able to be up and about.

There was a large attendance last evening at the Ladies' night staged by the Unitarian Men's Club in Metcalf Hall. Dinner was served and an entertainment program enjoyed.

Chairman Maynard MacDonnell of the committee in charge of the annual football dancing party of the Winchester Town Team in Waterfield Hall this evening experts a large attendance. "Billy" Norton and his Golden Pheasant Orrhestra will furnish the music and refreshments will be served. Members of the football team will art as ushers.

CALUMET NOTES

Central is leading the Mystic Valley League standing at the end of the sixth week of competition with an average of .600. Calumet is away in the ruck with a percentage of .422.

Following is the standing:

| Club | Pts. Won | Pts. Lost | Aver. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Central | 45 | 30 | .600 |
| Middlesex | 44 | 31 | .587 |
| Towanda | 41 | 34 | .547 |
| Malden | 39 | 36 | .520 |
| Kernwood | 33 | 42 | .440 |
| Calumet | 28 | 52 | .422 |
| Medford | 30 | 45 | .400 |

Two Middlesex bowlers are leading the first and second divisions for high three string honors, Keating having 377 to head Section 1, and Goodwin leading Section 2 with 388.

McGrath of Calumet has the best high single string in Section 1 with 149. DeLong of Malden also has 149 to lead in Section 2.

Keating and Goodwin are leading their sections with individual averages of 114 and 113 respectively. McGrath has the best individual Calumet average of 107. Goldsmith has 105 and Priest 103. The Purringtons, "Newt" and Ralph, both have 102.

McCarthy and Metler of Calumet haven't struck their winning stride as yet in pool, but Hayden has an average of 500 in Cowboy Pool. Metler and "Bob" Reynolds are back in the ruck of the billiard averages but the Calumet card team of Engstrom, Barry, Smith and Kelley has piled up an impressive winning total and is in second place in the league standing, only 3 points behind the leading Middlesex Club.

The locals lost a chance to continue their winning streak this week when their match with Melrose Highlands was cancelled because of the withdrawal of the latter club from the league.

Last Saturday evening's billiard exhibition at the club between Willie Hoppe and Welker Cochran attracted a big crowd and provided a fine show. Hoppe, known years ago as the boy champion and for many years considered the world's premier cue wielder, was in fine form and ran out his 250 point match with Cochrane in three innings, making runs of 150, 47 and 53. Welker had no chance to get going and made runs of only 3 and 7. In three-cushion billiards, however, Cochran had the better of the play and he also gave a wonderful exhibition of trick shots of all sorts.

Calumeters, who made a red entry in their diaries after a run of 8 left the club with the impression that billiards is after all a very simple game, and anyone might easily feel that way after watching Hoppe and Cochran. Anything is easy for a master.

The Dinner Bridge, scheduled for this Friday evening, has been postponed until January, the date to be announced. Mrs. Kingman P. Cass is in charge of this party and promises every one who attends a good time.

We have the word of none other than "Ed" Merrill, maker of mayors and all around sportsman, that the New Year's Party which the club is to hold on New Year's Eve is to be positively the best ever. "Lu" Haffermahl's Orchestra has been signed up and plans have been made to welcome 1932 in a truly fitting manner. You who missed the Hallowe'en festivities should make a note on your cuff to be present New Year's Eve. Complete details should be available next week, but in the meantime just tell Fred Scholl you're coming.

KAFFIR KRAAL OR PHOENICIAN CITY?

Where did the Queen of Sheba acquire the 120 talents of gold she presented to Solomon?

Whence came the gold for King Solomon's drinking and eating vessels and that which embellished his throne of ivory?

From what place did Hiram, King of Tyre, receive the vast treasure of gold brought by water in his hundreds of galleys?

These mysteries of antiquity may be cleared up through the work of an English expedition recently appointed to examine the ruins of Zimbabwe in Masonaland, Southern Rhodesia, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

African Relics of Biblical Period

No connection between the ruins and Sheba's queen and Solomon and Hiram has been found. But the gold mines of Rhodesia were worked during an era corresponding to the reigns of those monarchs, and many relics found in the temples and other ruined buildings are distinctly Asiatic.

The ruins of Zimbabwe are the remains of an ancient city, which could have contained a huge population. They are located in the southeastern part of South Rhodesia, about 200 miles inland from the east African coast, and visitors go there from Victoria, the nearest town other than native villages. Victoria is on a railway line and Zimbabwe has an up-to-date hotel for tourists, situated in the midst of the ruins. Picturesque landscape features add to the attraction of Zimbabwe as a tourist resort. Much of the glamor surrounding the ruins has been dispelled by their neat appearance. Debris has been cleared away and immaculate sign boards point the way to the glories of the past by announcing "To Your Right" or, "Follow the Arrow."

Articles of Egyptian, Arabian and Persian origin have been found in the ruins. One relic is an Egyptian figure with a hieroglyphic inscription, partly defaced, but with the word "Osiris" still decipherable. Osiris was the Egyptian god of the dead. On the figure was the cartouche of Thothmes III, a king of Egypt who ruled about the year 1450 B. C. Five soapstone birds were found which archaeologists declare resemble images of birds sacred to Astaroth, a Phoenician deity. The instruments for making jewelry, domestic utensils and armaments are different from those used by the primitive African tribes before the advent of the English.

Zimbabwe Buildings Are Round

The buildings of Zimbabwe are round. Few right angles have been found, and no evidences are apparent that any of the buildings were roofed. Except in the construction of the floors and steps no mortar or cement was used.

The elliptical temple, with an interior circumference of 770 feet, is the largest and most intact of the buildings. The so-called Acropolis ruins are situated on Zimbabwe Hill and are mainly fortifications. The Eastern and Western Temple are situated on the summit of the Acropolis and it is in these two buildings that the most relics of Asiatic and Egyptian origin were found.

Zimbabwe is the largest of some hundreds of stone ruins scattered over Rhodesia so the uncovering of its history may supply the history of the entire country.

Some explorers believe the Zimbabwe ruins are not an ancient Asiatic center of industry but magnified kraals built by Bantu natives about 400 years ago. However, no explanation of the presence of the Phoenician and Egyptian relics has been made.

Zimbabwe was the mythical "dead city" of Sir Rider Haggard's "She." It also figures in his other novels, "Allan Quartermain," and, "King Solomon's Mines." The natives regard it with superstitious fear. These facts have helped make it a city of mystery and conjecture.

London's Pall Mall

The average American and Canadian tourist may have difficulty in recognizing Pall Mall, as the "Pell Mell," to which the London policeman directs him, when he asks for the famous street. It was named after the French game Paille-mail, which was first played here in the days of Charles I. On this street were the homes of Defoe of Robinson Crusoe fame, Swift of Gulliver's Travels, Sterne of the "Sentimental Journey," and Gibbon, the historian.

Nature's Lesson

Dost thou not see the little plants, the little birds, the ants, the spider, the bees working together, to put in order their several parts of the universe? And art thou unwilling to do the work of a human being?—Marcus Aurelius.

REPLY TO CARPENTERS

To the Editor of the Star:

Last week your paper contained a communication from the local Carpenters' Union to the effect that out of town carpenters were being employed in too great a proportion on the school construction. On inquiry we find that they referred to the Main street building.

The Committee from the start of the work has endeavored to see to it that Winchester workmen received every preferment, while recognizing that the key men on each part of the work must be from the organization of the contractor. The requirement that Winchester citizens should be given preferment was incorporated in both contracts. We felt that at least 50 per cent and in some cases 75 per cent of the men on each part of the work should be Winchester citizens, provided there were that many applying for work, and that was the situation until recently when the number of carpenters was substantially increased for a short period and the ratio of Winchester men temporarily dropped to about 30 per cent. We were not aware of this, and it was directly contrary to the agreement we had with the contractor. We have sharply called him to account.

From now on, except when the different concrete floors are poured, there will not be any great amount of carpenter work, but there will be a large amount of brick work. We are only aware of two brick layers, who are Winchester citizens. If there are others, they should make themselves known to both contractors. This applies also to hod carriers.

A certificate of Winchester citizenship must be obtained from the Town Clerk. It must also be certified to by Mr. Harris Richardson, who, in addition to his many other civic duties, at the start of the work consented to aid us in establishing a system whereby each contractor could be sure that applicants for work were indeed Winchester citizens.

In addition to endeavoring to provide work for our own citizens, the Committee has given a great deal of attention to the placing of orders for building materials by the contractors with firms here or in Boston with whom Winchester citizens are connected. A large part of the building material for both buildings is being furnished by our own citizens.

We would be glad at any time to confer with groups or individuals on any phase of our work. We had not previously heard from the Carpenters that there was any dissatisfaction on their part until we read their communication.

Frank W. Howard, Secretary of School Building Committe of 1931

Among those awarded numerals for freshman football at Brown this week was Francis Felt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan B. Felt of Oxford street.

WEAK GEOGRAPHY MAY TURN CHRISTMAS CARDS INTO EASTER GREETINGS

The Christmas greeting card for a friends in Europe may cross the Atlantic three times and arrive about Easter Week if it is not addressed properly.

That is why the Postoffice Department asks postmasters to display lists of changes in European place names.

A letter addressed to Russia, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society, may make a longer journey than the sender expects.

"Russia" Sensitive About Name

The name may be right, the street address may be perfectly correct, but when that letter reaches the border it may be turned back because it is addressed to "Russia." When this happens the letter retraces its journey through Poland and Germany to Hamburg, and is placed on board a steamer for the United States.

If the sender's name and address are on the envelope, or in the letter, the New York dead letter office will return it. If the dead letter office opens the envelope and finds no more identification than, "much love and many kisses, Mary," it is resealed, "Russia," i the address crossed out, and the official title, "U. S. S. R." substituted. Then the letter starts another Atlantic voyage.

The U. S. S. R. (or U. R. S. S.), the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, is very particular about its name and has long threatened to turn back mail addressed to its imperial predecessor, Russia. Turkey is equally punctilious about spelling. Since the Turkish Government expects its people to learn a whole new alphabet, it seems to consider that the least aliens can do is to learn to spell rightly the names of the Turkish cities.

Now It Is "Istanbul"

A letter addressed to Constantinople may suffer the same fate that threatens a letter addressed to Russia. Istanbul is the proper name and Turkey now insists that the whole world use it.

The new countries and governments of Europe arose from the wave of nationalism that followed the World War. One method of expressing nationalism was the revival of native names, or, in the case of U. S. S. R., the suppression of names with Tsarist connotations.

One and all, they have asked the world to follow their new labels. Therefore, a person addressing a communication to Russia, Finland, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia, Rumania, Albania, Turkey or Ireland would do well to check the current town and country designations.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
MIDDLESEX, SS. PROBATE COURT

To all persons interested in the estate of Mary H. Miller late of Winchester in said County of Middlesex, deceased.

WHEREAS, William E. Ramsdell executor of the will of said Mary H. Miller has presented to said Court, his petition representing that there is a demand against the estate represented by him as such executor described as follows: A claim by May H. Dunn for services rendered to the deceased and money expended in the amount of Five Thousand Nine Hundred Eighty-Nine Dollars and a claim by her against said estate under a written assignment from one Mattie R. Parker for services and other expenses amounting to Six Hundred Ninety-Seven Dollars and Fifty Cents as more fully set forth in said petition; and a still further claim of said May M. Dunn in tort for an alleged conversion of jewelry, and praying for authority to adjust said claim by payment to said May M. Dunn of not more than Two Thousand Seven Hundred Fifty Dollars in cash.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, on the twenty-third day of December A. D. 1931, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once in the Winchester Star a newspaper published in Winchester the last publication to be three days at least, before said Court.

Witness, JOHN C. LEGGAT, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this sixteenth day of December in the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one.

Conveyors Carry Ford Car Parts

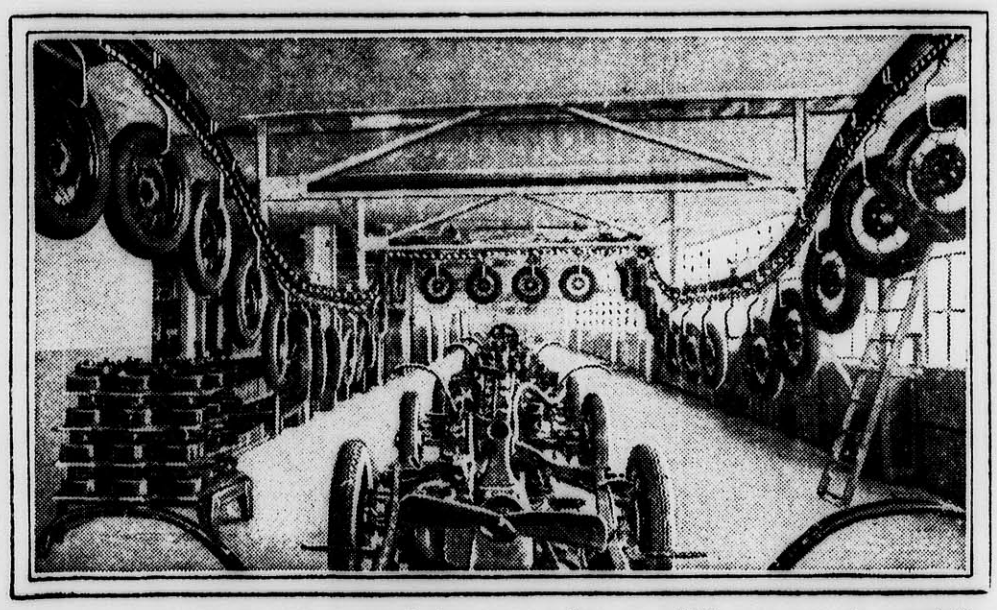
Trains unload in the plant

Bodies starting through the shop.



Conveyors carry wheels with mounted tires over a line on which cars pass to completion.

The highly important part played by conveyor systems in all Ford Motor Company manufacturing and assembly plants is graphically shown in the above three pictures taken in the recently opened Edgewater, N. J., plant. One of the pictures shows how parts may be unloaded from freight cars within the plant only a few feet from the various assembly lines. Another picture shows automobile bodies starting their trip on a conveyor while the third view is of the conveyor system used to bring wheels to the chasses which are also moving on a conveyor. As indicated in the picture, a constant flow of wheels on which the tires have already been mounted moves around and over the chassis assembly line.. As a chassis enters the section, workers, in groups of four, each take a wheel from the hooks and fasten it to the chassis.

Old World Recipes

By Helen Schauffler
Domestic Science Expert

Helen Schauffler

AN increasing number of American cooks are beginning to learn that the use of the simple, but nourishing dishes of the country folk of the Near East will add greatly to the variety of their menus. Lamb, for instance, may not seem to the American to offer many opportunities for the preparation of dishes that will be distinctly different, but lamb has been one of the favorite foods of the Near Easterner for centuries, and the number of distinctive lamb dishes which the women of the country have evolved is almost infinite.

Spiced Lamb—(Turkish)—

|---|---|
| 1½ lbs. ground short shoulder of lamb | ⅛ tsp. allspice |
| ⅛ tsp. cinnamon | 2 tsp. sugar |
| Dash of pepper | pinch of thyme |
| 1 tsp. salt | 2 leeks finely chopped |
| ⅛ tsp. cloves | ½ cup tomato juice |
| | 1 egg |

Mix ground lamb thoroughly with seasoning and leeks. Add tomato juice and egg to bind it. Saute in olive oil until crisp on both sides. Pour over this two cups of thin lamb broth made from the shoulder bones, and simmer for half an hour, covered. Just before serving thicken gravy slightly with two teaspoons of flour made into a smooth paste. Add a drop or two of lemon juice. Serve with rice or cracked wheat.

Patijan Shish Kebab—(Skewered Lamb Baked With Eggplant)—Armenian)—Cut a medium sized eggplant into egg-sized chunks. Do not peel the eggplant. Soak in one quart of salted water for twenty minutes. Cut lean meat from neck or shoulder of lamb into small chunks. Dredge with flour, pepper well, and saute in two tablespoons of olive oil with a slice of onion. Salt and remove lamb, and run on small butcher's skewers two chunks of lamb, then a chunk of eggplant. Brush lamb and eggplant with a thin sugar syrup. Place skewers in a shallow baking dish. Lay over it two leeks cut in thin, lengthwise slices. Pour over a little tomato juice and one cup of water or lamb stock. Add two teaspoons of olive oil. Bake, covered, very slowly for at least one hour, removing cover for last twenty minutes.

Dolma — (Stuffed Vegetables) — (Armenian)—Scoop out two thick slices of squash, two halves of a thick cucumber, and two large onions, tomatoes or green peppers, the greater variety, the more tempting the dish. To one cup of raw rice add one cup of ground shoulder of lamb, one-fourth cup of diced onion, one teaspoon salt, two teaspoons sugar, one bay leaf, one-fourth teaspoon allspice and four cloves. Moisten with two tablespoons of olive oil and enough water or lamb stock to make meat and rice stick together. Pack this in vegetable shells, not too closely to allow for swelling of rice. Place in glass baking dish. Add one cup of stock, cover closely and bake slowly for one hour, or until rice is cooked.

LE HAVRE HONORS LATE AMERICAN AMBASSADOR

Havre, France, has honored the late Myron T. Herrick, Ambassador to France from the United States by changing the name of one of its streets. The former Rue Saint Quentin, which runs from the Boulevard Francois I to the Public Gardens in the center of the city, will in the future be known as Rue Myron T. Herrick.

Havre, or to give it its proper name, Le Havre, has been sighted by many thousands of Americans, yet is known to few, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The port is one of the most important doorways to France for trans-Atlantic travelers, being the destination of some of the largest and fastest ocean liners. But always when a great passenger ship has nosed into its berth in one of Havre's basins, a boat-train is standing near the wharf, steam up. Most of the passengers climb aboard and are whisked away to Paris, 142 miles distant, with only fleeting glimpses of Havre.

Second French Port

As a matter of fact, there is little in Havre that would interest the average traveler. Yet it is of great interest to the economist, to the student of commerce, and to thousands of French and American business men and factory owners. For Havre is second only to Marseille as an entrepot for the commerce of the Seven Seas, and is of particular importance to many American shippers because of its proximity to Paris.

The town has had several names. First it was a tiny fishing village whose name has been lost. In 1516 Francois I of France ordered his engineers to create a port at the site of the village, and it was named Francoisville. During the fishing village days a chapel had been built to Notre Dame de Grace. As the years passed the new harbor came to be known as Le Havre de Grace (The Harbor of Grace) because of the chapel. For a long time now it has been known simply at Le Havre. But its old name has been perpetuated by being given to a little town at the mouth of the Susquehanna River, in Maryland.

Havre lies on he estuary of the Seine practically at the point of the peninsula which marks the meeting of the river and the sea. The port consists largely of enclosed basins, for there is a considerable rise and fall of the tide. The basins have been carved from the low land on the north shore of the estuary. There are now 14, some of them quite large. Hundreds of millions of francs have been spent in the creation of the port since Francois ordered it built, and the development still continues. When the work planned has been completed, Havre will be, in dock and quay space and in the excellence of its other harbor facilities, among the world's greatest ports.

City Bustles with Business

"The Harbor" is an appropriate name for the city at the mouth of the Seine, for interest is centered in its shipping, and most of the 165,000 inhabitants depend directly or indirectly on the harbor for a livelihood. The city itself is modern, progressive and bustling with business; but away from the wharves it is little different in these respects from scores of other thriving cities. The Rue de Paris, which leads from the quays of the outer harbor to the Public Gardens, is the busiest street. It crosses the large Place Gambetta which is rimmed with cafes. Near the port the city is on low land, but northward it rises to a plateau on which are the residences of the wealthy citizens of Havre.

Westward two and a half miles are high chalk cliffs on which is situated Ste. Adresse, with its bathing beach below. When the Belgian Government found it necessary to leave Belgium during the World War, offices were set up at Ste. Adresse which thus became the alien capital of Belgium. The Belgian Parliament met and transacted the business of its kingdom in the Hotel des Regates of this little cliff-top resort.

THE HADRAMAUT: LAND OF MIDDLE CLASS ARABS

Secreting a few coffee berries in his turban before paying a call is a delicate little attention on the part of a guest in the Hadramaut, a country in southern Arabia, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The polite guest in the Hadramaut always carries his own coffee berries with him because it is too much to expect a host to supply coffee as well as conversation, the bulletin continues.

Some Borders Hazy

Everyone familiar with the map of Arabia knows that the Hadramaut's southern border lies on the Gulf of Aden and the Arabian Sea but nobody knows just where its northern, eastern and western borders are. True the great Arabian desert lies to the north but the exact line where the Hadramaut leaves off and the desert proper begins has never been defined. Likewise, Oman lies on the east but no customs officer could ever tell when a traveler had one foot in Oman and the other in Hadramaut. No proper boundary line divides the Hadramaut from Aden and the upper Aulaqui territory on the west but this fact does not disturb the Hadhrami. It is only hard on mapmakers.

Geologically and socially speaking, the Hadramaut is a land of contrasts. For 10 miles in from the coast lies a strip of bleak, sandy plain. Following this comes a strip of high, arid plateau. North of the plateau lies a zone of high mountains and deep wadies or rivers, which make it an agricultural paradise. Farther north lies the great desert. Even the Bedouins of the Hadramaut contrast with the Bedouins of the rest of Arabia. They live in mud huts or caves and are but mediocre horsemen.

Have Primitive Shower Baths

In contrast with other Arabians, the Hadhrami are "skyscraper builders." In the towns, their houses average four and even five stories in height. The upper stories are painted gleaming white and against the intense blue of the Arabian sky form a striking but rather hard-on-the-eyes picture. Also in contrast with some other parts of Arabia, the houses are clean and well ventilated. The windows are not glazed but shuttered and on cold days little braziers of wood give the only artificial warmth. Picturesque features of the houses are the huge entrance doors, decorated with painted arabesques and iron nails and heavy knockers of polished brass. Taking a bath in such houses is apt to be an impromptu affair although a bathroom may be found on each floor. The would-be bather must stand in the corner of a room where there are drains to carry off the waste water, and douse himself from a vessel suspended above him.

The Koran allows the taking of four wives but the Hadhrami is usually satisfied with one. When a husband divorces his wife he risks his reputation unless the divorce takes place for a very good cause. Women in the Hadramaut veil their faces but they are comparatively free. There are no harems. The wife not only shares one quarter of the house with her husband but she reserves another quarter solely for the entertainment of her women friends!

Cooking and housework are usually done by the wife or her daughters as only the extremely rich have slaves. Dinner guests in the Hadramaut sit on the floor around a large mat or flat table, whereon is spread the dinner. A flickering light is provided by hanging lamps of petroleum or sesame oil. A modern dietitian would delight in the menu: Salads, green vegetables, roast sheep or chicken, eggs, dried dates and bread of maize or wheat flour. The health of the average Hadhrami depends not alone on his menu, for he abstains from opium, pork and alcohol.

View of 60,000 Miles Square

From the summit of Pikes Peak one has a view of 60,000 square miles of scenery. Because of its isolated position at the extremity of a grand spur of the Rockies, it guards both mountains and plains. With a telescope, Denver, eighty miles away, may be seen.

Looking Forward

One negro sold another negro a mule. The next day it was returned with the remark that it walked backward instead of forward. "Oh, dat's all right," said the negro who sold the mule. "Dat critter don't give a ding whar he's going, he des wants to see whar's he's been."—Florida Times-Union.

Famous Tower

Eiffel tower is a notable structure in Paris. It was built by Eiffel for the exposition of 1889. The designer, Gustave Eiffel, constructed it of iron lattice work, with three elevators giving access to the summit. It is 1,000 feet high. Eiffel tower has been used as a meteorological observation station and also for aerodynamic research. Since the World war it has also supported a wireless station.

Wash Hands to Get Gold

All workers in the factories where gold pen points are made have their overalls washed on the premises, says Tit-Bits, the wash water being put in tanks to let the precious dust settle and be saved. The water in which the workers wash their hands is treated in a similar manner. At the end of the day the girls on the slitting and polishing machines have to comb and brush their hair for minute fragments of the metals.

Animals Well Treated

In Sofia, Bulgaria, animals of burden are protected by laws which are impartially enforced. Only loads of certain size are permitted on wagons and the wagons must be greased regularly so they pull easily. Every animal pulling a burden must be properly shod and drivers are cautioned to feed them well, keep them treated properly when they are ill. Fowls cannot be carried with heads down, as this is cruel.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

Where Italy Led

Italy is frequently given as the cradle of the art of dining as well as the art of cookery. Thomas Coryate writing his "Crudities" in the time of James I was among the first to mention forks in England, although they had been used there in the Middle ages as an article of luxury for eating fruits and preserves. He says that his friends mocked him and called him "furcifer" because he used "those Italian neatnesses called forks."

AMENDMENT TO ZONING BY-LAW

TOWN OF WINCHESTER, MASS.

—a—

VOTED, That the Town's Zoning By-Law be and is hereby amended by altering the zoning map therein referred to so that the land at the Southwesterly corner of Harvard Street and Washington Street indicated and defined on said map as a business district, shall hereafter be a general residence district.

—b—

VOTED, That the Town's Zoning By-Law be and is hereby amended by altering the zoning map therein referred to so that the land bounded Northerly by Irving Street, Easterly by Washington Street, Southerly by Harvard Street and Westerly by the Semi Residence District, indicated and defined on said map as a business district shall hereafter be a general residence district.

—c—

VOTED, That the Town's Zoning By-Law be and is hereby amended by altering the zoning map therein referred to so that the land at the Northwesterly corner of Irving Street and Washington Street indicated and defined on said map as a business district shall hereafter be a general residence district.

—d—

VOTED, That the Town's Zoning By-Law be and is hereby amended by altering the zoning map therein referred to so that the land on the Southwesterly corner of Forest Street and Washington Street indicated and defined on said map as a business district shall hereafter be a general residence district.

—e—

VOTED, That the Town's Zoning By-Law be and is hereby amended by altering the zoning map therein referred to so that the land at the Northwesterly corner of Forest Street and Washington Street indicated and defined on said map as a business district shall hereafter be a general residence district.

—f—

VOTED, That the Town's Zoning By-Law be and is hereby amended by altering the zoning map therein referred to so that all that strip of land on the Easterly side of Washington Street between a point at or near the bridge over the Aberjona River and the Woburn line indicated and defined on said map as a business district shall hereafter be a general residence district.

—g—

VOTED, That the Town's Zoning By-Law be and is hereby amended by altering the zoning map therein referred to so that the land bounded Easterly by Washington Street, Southerly by the Aberjona River, Easterly by a line parallel with and distant 150 feet Westerly from the Westerly exterior line of said Washington Street and Northerly by the Woburn line indicated and defined on said map as included in an industrial district, a single residence district and in part as a business district, shall hereafter be a general residence district.

I hereby certify that the foregoing is a true copy of an amendment to the Zoning By-Law, adopted by the Town of Winchester, Mass. at the Special Representative Town Meeting of October 22, 1931, and approved by the Attorney General of Massachusetts on December 8, 1931.

SOME FAVORITE BOOKS

To the Editor of the Star:

Winchester has waited patiently for its new library and how beautiful it is! Everyone responsible for its administration and handsome building is to be heartily congratulated. We, the readers, are going to enjoy more space to browse around and greet our old and new friends on the shelves.

At the dedication exercises, I was particularly gratified to hear some of the speakers stress the value of the old books which are so often neglected in favor of the new. Who has not read those stupendous masterpieces, "Les Miserables" and "Toilers of the Sea" and Pierre Loti's "Iceland Fisherman" and "Moby Dick" and that absorbing story, "Jane Eyre" and Hawthorne's elusive, impalpable style? All these are worth while books as well as the present day authors like Galsworthy, Bojer, Villa Cather and that fine piece of work, "Growth of the Soil" by Knut Hamsum. A college professor thinks Dostoyevsky's "Brothers Karamazov" is one of the finest novels ever written, but I have yet to read it.

Is it not more amusing to quietly chuckle over George Eliot's "Middlemarch" or Dickens and Thackeray than to read the so-called witty author straining for effect? That prince of humorists, Mark Twain, is such good company to make "laughter holding both his sides." Washington Irving's "Knickerbocker's history of New York" is a jolly book and the comedies of Goldsmith and Sheridan are a delight.

Shakespeare the incomparable! what a wealth of treasure is there! I am wondering whether Professor Rogers in a spirit of mischief advised dropping Shakespeare from the schoolspeare from the schools in hopes of starting something for "Julius Caesar" would appeal to any young student with the slightest spark of dramatic sense and more mature readers will continue to see and read his heavier dramas while there are lovers of English literature.

I think two of the most exquisite poems ever written by an American poet are, "Marshes of Glynn" and "Sunrise," by Sidney Lanier and Stephen Phillips, "Paola and Francesca" is as exquisite as Edwin Robinson's "Tristram."

Emerson's essays can be reread with profit and Carlyle's "Sartor Resartus" made a deep impression on me and his essays on Burns and Dante in his "Hero and Hero Worship" are wonderful. I confess his French Revolution gave me such lurid nightmare that I had to take it in homeopathic doses.

These are merely a few of the books I have loved and the discussion of reading is such a fascinating topic that I hope someone else will follow me in expressing his preferences.

Hear what Thoreau says: "Most men have learned to read to serve a paltry convenience, as they have learned to cipher in order to keep accounts and not be cheated in trade; but of reading as a noble, intellectual exercise, they know little or nothing; yet this only is reading, in a high sense, not that which lulls us as a luxury and suffers the nobler faculties to sleep the while, but what we have to stand on tiptoe to read and devote our most alert and wakeful hours to. I think that having learned our letters, we should read the best that is in literature, and not be forever repeating our a b abs, and words of one syllable in the fourth or fifth classes, sitting on the lowest and foremost form all our lives.

"It is time that we had uncommon schools, that we did not leave off our education when we begin to be men and women."

Nelly Cumming

Under the Stone

"Passing through a village in western India," writes a lady missionary, "followed by a friendly crowd, we stopped at a small wayside altar, the god being represented by four flat stones decorated with red paint. We said, 'There is no god here. These are only stones.' 'Oh,' said a man, 'the god is underneath.' We promptly lifted one of the stones to discover beneath it three large, hibernating frogs, whereupon a great laugh went up from the crowd, in which we all joined."

GRACE AND CHARM

By Frances Mandel

HAIRDRESSING

Everybody adores a beautiful head dress if it is becoming to the wearer. Whatever the vogue in coiffures, there are always many obstacles to overcome in dressing the hair.

First of all, you must take into consideration the shape of your face, otherwise you may throw your whole make-up off balance. We all know women who have never changed their style of head-dress,—many still continue to part their hair in the very same place,— others use puffs over the ears, pugs and various other habits of long, long ago, all of which does not do the scalp any good.

Follow the trend of the style (they change very often) and you can be sure to find one of the many that will be well suited for your particular type. If you have a prominent nose, do not comb your hair tight and flat, back from the face. Have a nice fluffywave. If your neck is short, dress your hair high in the style of a French curl or narrow wave. Always follow the contours of your face just the same as if you were applying rouge and make-up.

Frances Mandel will answer questions on Grace and Charm if you will enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope to Frances Mandel, 1030 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF NOTES

More Clothing Is Needed

Eleven hundred and thirty-five units of clothing have been issued up to this date. A unit is a suit, pair of shoes or stockings, a full undergarment whether of one or two pieces to complete the suit, an overcoat, hat, pair of gloves, a blanket. Additional clothing for babies and young children is needed. Overshoes and rubbers are in great demand. Sweaters also.

The clothing section accommodations of the old public library are a great advantage in the convenient handling of clothing. The old book racks furnish space for shoes and clothes. Park Commissioner Davidson has supplied a number of pipe clothing racks, so that coats and suits can be well arranged, their sizes ascertained, and their fitting more comfortably and efficiently accomplished.

Seventy-eight men are at work this morning. Probably nearly all of these would have been without work except for the generosity of our citizens in providing necessary funds to put them to useful work.

We are approaching the $40,000 mark in our pledges. We shall apparently need all and perhaps more than the $48,000 which is our objective. We must go over the top for that sum if we are to execute the program. We could easily use much more, but the greatest care is being exercised to make each dollar accomplish the greatest amount of service.

The citizens of Winchester have banded themselves together in the movement to protect unemployed citizens against the distresses which in most cases follow long-continued unemployment.

It is felt by many of the committee and the canvassers that subscribers will desire notification of remittance dates or subscriptions. December payments are coming in rapidly, presumably all subscribers will desire to clear up the first payment prior to Jan. 1. The second payment, in accordance with the subscription form, is payable on Jan. 7.

Occasionally a subscriber desires to anticipate the six payments, sending the total sum at once. There is no objection to so doing.

Payments should be made by check to the order of the Winchester Unemployment Relief Committee, or payment may be made in cash directly to the Winchester National Bank, at which point Mr. Crawford, treasurer, has his headquarters.

Very great gratitude is expressed by the committee to all subscribers who have so generously participated in this movement to aid those who are in very real need through extraordinary dislocation of industry, world-wide in character, and affecting every community in the country.

MISS AVERY'S EIGHTH LECTURE

In her lecture of Dec. 9 Miss Avery described two subjects, Congress and Germany.

The Republican Party has always carried more national elections but the Democrats have carried more state elections. Both parties contribute something and it is much better to have two parties with their different points of view.

The two most conspicuous men in Washington today are Borah and Garner. Borah, represents early Americanism. He represents an agricultural country and he has the rural and not the industrial point of view. He is our best known public man abroad. Above all he is bound to save us from the entanglements of Europe.

Garner, speaker of the House comes in with a Democratic House and with the economic problem the vital question of today, the tariff, taxes and internal revenue are all the source of government revenue that we have and to increase taxes or to borrow money is the only way we can increase this revenue.

Taking up Germany's problems, Miss Avery said that her great trouble is that she has borrowed too much. There are three angles from which to discuss Germany, of war past and future, of reparations and of what is happening to her people. We have loaned her the most and so we are most vitally concerned in her future. She has borrowed so much that she cannot meet her reparations payments, hence the Hoover moratorium which extends from last July to next July.

The Germans are remarkable at muncipal gorvernment but no good at national government.

The Hitler group are opposed to all reparations payments but another group thinks that Germany should pay for the damages done to France. The Germans resent above all the idea of paying reparations because they were solely responsible for the war.

On Jan. 13, the lecture will be on "Spain."

Traveling Cinemas

Traveling moving picture shows are the latest cinematic development in Soviet Russia. At present there are more than 1,200 such units traveling from one village to another. The popularity of the exhibitions may be judged by their rapid growth in number during the past two years. At the end of 1925 there were less than 400 traveling movies. This figure rose in 1926 to 900, and for the present year it is planned to produce 2,000 projectors.—Washington Star.

MINORCA: SPAIN'S MOST ENGLISH ISLAND POSSESSION

Minorca, off the coast of which the steamship Malakof was wrecked is is the most English of Spanish possessions, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

It is the easternmost and second largest of the Balearic Islands, which dot the Mediterranean off Barcelona, Spain. No one visiting Majorca or Iviza, sister islands, would doubt their Spanish ownership once he mingles with the inhabitants or studies the architecture of their buildings.

Farragut's Ancestral Home

But Minorca, although ruled by the Spanish king and but 27 miles east of Majorca, differs from its neighbor islands. Except in a few spots, its people and its buildings would fit an English village outside of London. Owing to early British occupation, Miss Minorca stays at home, while her Spanish sisters work side by side in the fields with their husbands; and instead of the soft oxhide Spanish sandal the Minorca maid wears shoes. And proudly she tells how Lord Nelson, during the war with France, came to Mahon, Minorca's capital, seized and lived in a mansion house overlooking Mahon's fine harbor.

In the protected inlets around the island are small fishing villages, whitened by frequent coats of whitewash. Back of these villages, the natives raise sufficient wheat for home consumption; wine, olive oil, potatoes, hemp and flax are produced in moderate quantities; melons, pomegranates, figs and almonds are abundant; some cattle, sheep and goats are reared; and were it not for the scarcity of fuel, the lead, copper and iron deposits could be profitably worked. Near Mercadal, there are fine marble, limestone and slate quarries. Incidentally Mercadal is the ancestral home of Admiral Farragut.

Mahon Looks Spanish But Isn't

In the 18th century the British built a road from Ciudadela on the northwest coast to Mahon on the southeast coast. Travelers enjoy beautiful panoramas where some energetic Minorcan has taken pride in his estate, but unkempt spots are numerous. Stone monuments, caves, and historic relics have been discovered, but one has to penetrate deep into the fields and byways to find them. Ancient, windowless stone structures are found in the interior. Pottery and other antiquities are frequently unearthed by the natives. Scientists could, perhaps, trace their origin to prehistoric times or to the time when the Phoenicians, Greeks, Romans or Arabs occupied the island. Many of the stone monuments are falling to pieces and some of the pottery and historic implements now adorn stone walls where they were carelessly thrown by their finders.

Minorca could be expanded four times its natural size and then not match the area of Rhode Island. Its population could be housed in a small American city. More than half of the Minorcans live in Mahon, the capital the most English spot on the island. From the steamship, the city has a Spanish aspect, with church belfries dominating the panorama. But in the streets, which rise terrace after terrace up the cliff side, English influence prevails. There is little Spanish color except green doors. Shining brass fixtures, square-paned windows with white frames, and unshuttered windows during the day time are decidedly un-Spanish.

Ciudadela Shows Traces of Spanish Customs

At the other end of the British-made road, Ciudadela, while not as Spanish as Palma, Majorca, is not as English as Mahon. Like Mahon, it occupies the side of a cliff overlooking a fine harbor. Many of its buildings are whitewashed and even the nearby rocks are frequently given white coats along with the houses, but here and there a daub of color—pink, blue, green or yellow—and an occasional iron grill balcony lend a Spanish touch. The easy going life of the Latin prevails in Ciudadela more than in Mahon. One of the most exciting events at Ciudadela is the arrival of boats from the other Balearic Islands or from Barcelona.

Minorca's authentic history begins with the arrival of Mago, brother of Hannibal, in 210 B. C. He founded Mahon. The island was the cause of frequent conflicts between European sovereigns and the scene of private raids for centuries. Under British rule, Minorca prospered from the early part of the 18th century until the Seven Years' War. The ownership of the little island also was involved in the American Revolution when the French and Spanish captured it while England was busy overseas. Sixteen years later, at the beginning of the long struggle with Napoleon, the British again captured Minorca and it remained British until 1802 when, under the Peace of Amiens, it passed to Spain. The British occupied Minorca for 71 years and left an imprint upon the land and its people that is noticeable to travelers.

Roman Carnival Changed

In a general way it can be said that carnival is held just before the beginning of Lent, but it exists no more in its ancient form. In Rome it is now almost wholly limited to masked balls in the theaters and its manifestations in the streets are sparse and very attenuated. On the Riviera, however, there are floats, mainly with flowers, while this aspect of carnival, once so important, has altogether disappeared in Rome.

Benjamin Thompson's Romance

Benjamin Thompson, a poor New England boy, became, in England, a cavalry colonel, undersecretary of state and Sir Benjamin Thompson; in Bavaria, he became Count Rumfort of the Holy Roman empire, minister of war, chief of police and elector; in France, the husband of a famous woman; and died, in Paris, alone and friendless, though he had been honored by the great Napoleon himself in that very city.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Southern Democrats Claim 30 or 49 Chairmanships in the 72nd Congress

In many ways, the chairman of the standing committees are of more importance than the speaker or the floor leader, for much of the real business of the Congress is done in committees. The leadership of committees always belongs to the party in control and it has been the custom to elect the chairmen according to seniority of service. If this custom is followed in the present Congress, 30 of the 49 committees will be headed by Southern Democrats. Texas will get five or six of these places. This is due to the practice of the South of sending the same man to represent a district year after year.

Prohibition Legislation Not Endangered by Change

Prohibition has never been a partisan question. At all times in the Congress the numbers of friends of prohibition in both parties has been about equal, and from the standpoint of consideration of bills dealing with prohibition we feel that we have nothing to fear from the organization of the House by the Democrats. Southern Democrats are predominantly dry and these are the men who will hold the principal places on committees to which the prohibition bills will be referred.

TO AUTOGRAPH BOOKS AT MARY SPAULDING SHOP

Announcement is made that on Saturday afternoon from 3 to 4:30 Louise Douglas (Mrs. Ira Rich) Kent, author of "Douglas of Porcupine" will be at the Mary Spaulding Bookshop to meet visitors and to autograph copies of this popular book purchased during that time. The management of the shop expects from time to time to have authors of popular works visit the establishment to meet its patrons and autograph copies of their books.

After Dec. 21, Mrs. Hill will conduct her Order Cooking business from 14 Norwood street. Telephone unchanged, Win. 0011.

FURTHER REDUCTION IN WEST INDIES CRUISES

It has recently been announced that some of the Cruise Companies have reduced their rates as much as 33 1/3, per cent, sailing on giant ocean liners for a 10 to 20 day cruise, visiting practically all of the tropical resorts, such as Bermuda, Porto Rico, Venezuela, Panama Canal, Jamaica, Havana, Nassau and Miami.

Some of the accommodations are almost unbelievable; rates as low as $7 per day and up, including meals and stateroom berth; in many cases, cheaper than staying at home. For rest and recreation and the good of your health, there is nothing like a steamer trip.

The Colpitts Tourist Company make a specialty of cruise travel, having all information, rates and sailings of the various cruises at their office 262 Washington street, Boston.

REMEMBERED BY OLD WINCHESTER FRIENDS

Camp Tenderfoot,
Land O' Lakes, Wis.
Dec. 14, 1931

To the Editor of the Star:

In your issue of "The Winchester Star" an error was made in the address of the writer under the obituary of Miss Georgiana Holton, see third paragraph which should read, "Besides the brother with whom she made her home, Miss Holton is survived by a sister, Mrs. Amanda Lundberg of Boulder Junction, Wisconsin." This should read "Mrs. Amanda Lundberg of Land o' Lakes, Wis."

As I still have many friends and acquaintances in Winchester I would much appreciate this correction, more particularly as trains no longer run to Boulder Junction, Wis. where for a few winters we did have our mail addressed.

Thanking you for this courtesy, I remain,

Very truly,
Amanda Holton Lundberg

P.S.—Neglected to state in issue of Friday, Nov. 27.

Score—G. E. Juniors 4, Winchester Pals 1. Goals—Hogan, Teag, Habreck, Zalinsky, J. Kelly. Referee—Johnson.

CHRISTMAS FOR THE HORSES

Auxiliary Notes of S. P. C. A.

Dec. 11, 1931

My dear Miss Rice:

Only because you have helped make our Horses' Christmas possible in the past do I venture, in these difficult financial times, to speak of it again.

Thursday, Dec. 24, two large trucks each decorated with an attractive Christmas tree, and loaded with oats, carrots and apples, and drawn by six of the finest horses in Boston, will leave the Angell Memorial Animal Hospital of our Society and visit the centres in the city where the largest number of horses can be reached. Teamsters will also find at the trucks, coffee, sandwiches and doughnuts. Later the trucks will leave at stables where the supply is most needed whatever remains undisturbed.

It is the spirit of kindness and good will, even toward all animal life, that the world so needs today, to which this service will witness.

However small your gift it will be gratefully acknowledged.

I am, with every good wish for your own Christmas,

Faithfully yours,
Francis H. Rowley,
President

The trucks will leave the hospital between 8 and 9 in the morning, going down through the heart of the city. One will be stationed at Haymarket Square, where passers-by will be apt to see the sight at its best.

Gifts of vegetables from the boys and girls of our town, as well as adults, will be greatly appreciated. Please leave supplies at Mr. Kelley's express office, Monday or Tuesday, Dec. 21, 22.

Mrs. R. S. Taylor,
President Winchester Auxiliary

PIANO RECITAL

Piano pupils of Miss Lillian Ames gave their first winter recital last Saturday at the home of Mrs. Kingman P. Cass on Yale street. Commencing at 3:30, a varied program of solos and duets was rendered by the following children:

| | |
|---|---|
| Helen Swanson | Dorothy Bruno |
| Harold Salzman | Richard Sexton |
| Barbara Callahan | Betsey Higgins |
| Elizabeth Mitchell | Katharine Wyman |
| Ross Whynot | Nancy Wolf |
| Johan Waite | Martha Blaisdell |
| Donald Cass | Martha Swanson |
| Arthur Johnson | |

Refreshments were served after the recital and a social hour enjoyed by the participants.

Workmen at the Horn Pond Brook development began on Tuesday to lay the foundation for a cement foot bridge across the brook at the foot of Middlesex street. This improvement will be much appreciated by the people of that district as it will afford a splendid short cut to Main street.

The Fire Department was called to assist the Arlington Department shortly after 8 o'clock last Friday evening for a fire in the house on the Niles Estate on Mystic street. Engine 3 responded, but after a wet trip to Arlington was not needed, and returned to quarters without unlimbering.

Do You Know

How far a dollar will carry you—by telephone—in a 3-minute conversation when you call by number? The answer is 174 miles. Fifty cents goes 64 miles; a quarter goes 25 miles.

In the evening, between 7 and 8.30, the same dollar goes 246 miles; after 8.30, at night rates, it goes 410 miles. A 3-minute conversation will average about 500 words, and the nice thing is that it's personal, and you get an immediate answer.

WATER CONSERVATION

Science has proven in the medical world that we cannot live more than five minutes without air to breathe, and not more than five days without water or its equivalent, but the human body has been known to exist five weeks without food. Therefore water is of the secondary importance in our lives.

More water we need in our reservoirs as time goes on, and it's up to us to obtain it through the means of conservation. The deciduous trees transpire much more water than do the conifers. Men of science have stated as follows: Mr. Martin C. Davey, the great tree surgeon has stated that a well developed hardwood tree will transpire (which is the act of breathing through the leaves of all vegetation) as much as 500 barrels of water from April 1 to Sept. 1 which is the growing season. What a waste of water. Again Miss Julia N. Rogers, a noted surgeon of nature who has written several books relating to her study of nature, states that a fair sized tree will consume 28,000 gallons of water during the growing season which equals 186 gallons per day and that hardwood trees have a canopy cover of from 150,000 to 250,000 leaves per tree through which the water evaporates. Dr. Frank Thorne, a noted student of nature in Washington, D. C., states that in his opinion hardwood trees of all sizes will require one barrel of water per day during the growing season. Mr. F. W. Rane, at one time Chief of the Massachusetts State Department of Forestry, states that 56 gallons of water is required to develop one pound of the leaves which fall from the hardwood trees in the fall of the year, whereas only five gallons of water is required to grow one pound of the foliage of the evergreen trees that drops in the fall of the year. This evidence proves that the evergreen trees are much more economical in water requirements than are the hardwood trees. Dr. Hale, of the New York City Water Supply System, states that in his opinion the evergreen trees take no more water from the ground than a crop of grass requires on the same sized lot of land.

The hardwood trees are detrimental to a water shed in several other ways. The dead foliage is wafted hither and thither by the winds. The slash undergrowth is in abundance under the hardwood trees and consumes much water. The frost in the ground prevents the water from seeping into the ground and it runs "ad-libitum" into the reservoirs. During the winter and spring of 1928 and 1929, 200,000,000 gallons of water ran to waste, by actual measurement, at both overflows at the north and south dams.

The evergreen trees are far more economical in their covering of the ground with their dead foliage, thereby preventing all undergrowth. No frost ever enters the ground where there is only one inch in depth of the needles, or humas, and all moisture is absorbed into the ground.

The snow and ice under the evergreens is not melted as quickly as under the hardwood trees. The small pines cannot grow and develop under the hardwood trees because they absorb the nutrition and moisture and starve the small pine trees. There is much evidence of this nature. The sunlight is necessary in their development.

There is not less than 300 cords of the hardwood trees that can be turned into money at the rate of $8 per cord for the wood on the lot. This would furnish labor for several men, after Jan. 1, 1932. The Water and Sewer Board have the legal right to use as much money during January and February 1932 as was used in any two months of 1931.

There is one customer who, if the town will cut the wood, will take 100 cords at the rate of $8 per cord on the lot. If our town will cut all of the hardwood trees on our water shed, please remember that our whole property is located within the confines of the Middlesex Fells Reservation of 3200 acres, which is covered almost wholly by the most beautiful hardwood trees of all kinds and there is 27 miles of horse-used trails in the reservation.

If our town would remove all the hardwood trees on our water shed and let the evergreen trees grow, what a beautiful sight it would be; an oasis of the best water surrounded by the evergreen trees and the whole of this surrounded by the beautiful hardwood forest of the Fells Reservation. This combination with the great beauties of nature in the ledge formation would prove to be the most attractive spot in the State of Massachusetts.

Charles E. Kendall,
Water Commissioner

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

A spare tire, rim and cover were stolen from the automobile of Miss Jessie A. Gustin of Cambridge street while the machine was parked on Park street last Saturday evening.

Miss Marjorie McBride of this town played the principal part in the presentation of Sir James M. Barrie's ever-popular "Alice-Sit-By-The-Fire" given by the Dramatic Club of Boston University's College of Music on Wednesday evening in the college auditorium.

The name of Geoffrey C. Neiley of Yale street was omitted from the list of skips elected last week to lead the Country Club curling teams this season. At a meeting of the skips, held last week Thursday evening at the home of Mr. E. B. Badger on Wedgemere avenue, important plans for the coming season were discussed.

SEVERAL WEEK-END MOTOR ACCIDENTS

Six persons were injured in the worst of several motor accidents which occurred in Winchester over the past week-end.

Police Headquarters was notified of the accident in question at 2:47 Sunday morning, Sergts. Thomas F. Cassidy and Edward W. O'Connell being dispatched to the scene of the crash at Cambridge and Pond streets with Patrolmen Archie T. O'Connell, Daniel P. Kelley and James E. Farrell.

Upon arrival they found that a Hupmobile sedan, driven by Joseph Lentine of 36 School street, Jamaica Plain, while going north on Cambridge street, was in collision at Pond street with a Buick coupe, driven by William H. Neal of 18 King street, Watertown, who was headed south. The police were told that Neal was making a wide turn and was on the left side of the road as he approached Lentine, the latter pulling his car to the left in an effort to avoid a collision. As he did so the Buick swung to its right and the cars came together.

Both machines were wrecked and their occupants shaken up and injured. Mrs. Robert Phillips of Billerica and Miss Lillian Simpson of 60 Eustis street, Revere, who were riding with Lentine, were taken with the latter and Harry Maksoodian of 21 Fairfield street, Watertown, a passenger in Neal's car, to the Choate Hospital in Woburn by Roy Thorpe of 102 Columbia street, Cambridge, and Vincent Capodanno of 113 Josephine avenue, Somerville. The injured motorists were treated by Dr. Thomas Caulfield of Woburn who found that Miss Simpson had sustained a fractured jaw and multiple cuts about the body. Mrs. Phillips, cuts about the head and possible fracture of leg; Lentine, minor cuts about the legs and face; and Maksoodian, abrasions to knee and face.

Meanwhile Dennis Sweeney of 283 Hancock street, Dorchester, had taken Mrs. Winnifred Neal, riding with Neal in the Buick, to the Winchester Hospital, accompanied by Patrolman O'Connell. Doctors Rogers M. Burgoyne and Richard W. Sheehy were summoned and treated the injured woman for cuts on the forehead and neck and a double fracture of the right leg. Sergeants Cassidy and O'Connell placed Neal under arrest on charges of drunkenness and driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. He was found to have sustained a bad cut on the right knee and also was taken to the hospital where Doctors Sheehy and Burgoyne were obliged to take several stitches to close the wound. The physicians advised the police that it would be about ten days before Neal would be able to appear in court in answer to the charges preferred against him.

Last Friday evening shortly after 6 o'clock a Chrysler sedan, driven by Harry Ross of the Hotel Cadillac, Manchester, N. H., while headed east on Mt. Vernon street, was in collision with a Gardner roadster, driven by J. Henry Morrow of 27 Marston street, Medford, going south on Washington street. Both machines were damaged but no one was injured.

Frank R. MacMackin of 9 Carrisbrooke street, Andover, reported to the police Saturday morning at 10 o'clock that as he was crossing Washington street east from Cross street to enter Kenwin road his Willys Knight collided with a bicycle ridden north on Washington street by Morley Robinson of 37 Brookside road. The bicycle was broken and Robinson, who was injured, was taken home by MacMackin.

Sunday evening at 8:45 a Chrysler sedan, driven by Anthony Leonardis of 30 Dexter avenue, Woburn, was badly damaged, in a three cornered collision at Main street and the Parkway with a Packard sedan, driven by Miss Katherine M. Bairstow of 244 Washington street and a Willys Knight coupe, driven by Manuel George of 11 Exeter street, Arlington. The Chrysler, which had to be towed to a Woburn garage, was headed south on Main street, Miss Bairstow was driving east and George west, on the Parkway. Neither the Packard nor the Willys Knight was damaged.

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN

Dolores Costello in "Expensive Women," and "Are These Our Children," will make up the double feature bill that opens a run of seven days at the Mystic Theatre in Malden starting Saturday. "Expensive Women" is Dolores Costello's first picture since the birth of her child and advance reports indicate that motherhood has made this star even more beautiful. "Expensive Women" is an adaption of the novel "Passionate Sonata," and the cast includes Warren Williams, Anthony Bushell, H. B. Warner and Polly Walters. "Expensive Women" relates the story of a married woman who falls in love with a famous composer. It is smart and permits Miss Costello to wear a number of startling gowns.

"Are These Our Children" is the first film to speculate dramatically on the liberalized views and actions of modern day children. Robbed of maudlin sentiment, starkly realistic, the film sweeps on with a vital story of high school boys and girls who share their first tastes of life, and who whirl giddily through nature experiences all oblivious of the consequences. The cast is composed of youngsters under 20 and includes Eric Linden, Rochelle Hudson, Arlene Judge, Ben Alexander and Mary Kornman. Parents with children of high school age will be surprised to discover the mental attitude of boys and girls just starting out in life as reflected by "Are These Our Children."

Charles Farrell in "Heartbreak," and "East of Borneo" with Charles Bickford and Rose Hobart as the stars is the program that ends its run at the Mystic on Friday. "Heartbreak" is the best screen vehicle Charles Farrell has had in a long time and has been receiving enthusiastic praise from all who have seen it. "East of Borneo" is a picture actually photographed on the Malay Peninsula with Miss Hobart and Charles Bickford attempting to escape the wrath of a rajah. "East of Borneo" is an unusual picture and one of the most thrilling the screen has known.

GRANADA THEATRE, MALDEN

"Girls About Town" with Kay Francis and Joel McCrea as the stars, and George O'Brien in a talking version of Zane Grey's story "Riders of the Purple Sage" will be the double bill that opens a run of seven days at the big Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday. "Girls About Town" is a sparkling and piquant story of gay-go-getting in the big city, with McCrea cast as a member of a wealthy mid-west firm who joins his president, Eugene Pallette, in a business trip to New York. There they meet Kay Francis and Lilyan Tashman, super gold-diggers who, under the crafty guidance of their own boss, Allan Dinehart, get busy on the two visitors, attempting to charm them out of their money by the more subtle and familiar methods of auto-suggestion and other blythe feminine tricks. Miss Francis loses the zest for a business-like pursuit of her craft when she falls head over heels in love with the handsome Joel McCrae. The denouncement is a happy one, nicely spiced in spots with drama, and generously flavored throughout with comedy. "Riders of the Purple Sage" is not merely another Western, it is Zane Grey's greatest romance and with George O'Brien, Marguerite Churchill, Noah Beery and Stanley Fields as the principals becomes a picture that will please the most discriminating film fan. It has thrills, romance and a cast that make their parts ring true.

Seth Parker, famed radio favorite, and his Jonesport neighbors in their first screen venture "Way Back Home" conclude their run at the Granada on Friday. "Way Back Home" presents Seth Parker in the role he has made famous over the air to such an extent that he stands as the biggest favorite on the N. B. C. net-work. "Way Back Home" is not a musical play but old-fashioned melodrama in which Mr. Parker is assisted by Frank Albertson, Dorothy Peterson, Betty Davis and Frankie Darro. "Mother's Millions" with James Hall and May Robson as the stars, is the second feature on the current bill.

HONEST SINNERS AT THE SOMERVILLE THEATRE

"Honest Sinners," on view at the Somerville Theatre for the week of Dec. 21, delves deeply into the hearts of men and women. The play is a rural comedy drama, not one of the old fashioned kind, but a record of a community that is up and coming all the time. There are the Rev. Richard Dean, earnest and sincere and manly; Mary Fletcher a lovely girl whom Gladys Griswold will have no difficulty in palying; Wally Abbott, full of pep, his mind as alert as his clothes are snappy; Abe Stubbs, a familiar character in town and city, a man of all work; Tessie Maitland says what she thinks, means what she says and says what she means. There are many interesting characters other than these to round out the complete cast. The old favorites will be with us again, as well as Ramon Greenleaf, the new leading man, who made a fine impression in "Diplomacy." Above all, "Honest Sinners" is for the young as well as old, one that the parents can send their children safely to see.

Mr. Faversham had another fine reception for his second week when with the support of the Somerville Players, he appeard in "Diplomacy." The famous play was a revelation in play writing to those who had never seen it, and many who recalled the performance at the Colonial Theatre when Mr. Faversham was the bright particular star of an all star cast, were there again to welcome him. For the week of Dec. 28, Fritzi Scheff will be seen in her great success, Mlle. Modiste.

"PLATINUM BLONDE" COMING TO THE UNIVERSITY THEATRE

Hailed as a high society satire of hearts in bondage and love in the blonde age, "Platinum Blonde," is the attraction starting Sunday for four days at the University Theatre, with Loretta Young, Robert Williams, Jean Harlow, Walter Catlett, Donaly Dillaway, Louise Closser Hale, Edmund Breese and other splendid artists. The story relates, in humorous vein, how a nervy young reporter, despite the value he places upon his independence woes daringly, loves madly and marries foolishly a society beauty who locks him up in her gilded cage—and tries to make a gentleman of him. And it also tells of how he broke out of his cage and woke up to the feminine graces of the girl who had always loved him but whom he had only considered a pal. It is a picture not to be missed by anyone seeking an hour or more's company with some charming people who have gotten themselves into a deliciously amusing situation.

"The Bargain," the companion feature, is an adaptation of the Harvard prize play, "You and I," by Philip Barry, which won such acclaim on Broadway. It is a heart-warming domestic drama, the sort that might happen in any of ten million homes. The cast includes Lewis Stone, Doris Kenyon, John Darrow, Evelyn Knapp, Charles Butterworth and Una Merkel.

Heralded as one of the outstanding talking pictures of the year, "The Sin of Madelon Claudet," the filmization of the Edward Knoblock stage success, "The Lullaby," will open Thursday. The central role of Madelon, the French girl who is deserted by her lover and subsequently becomes the victim of a series of amazing circumstances, is played by Helen Hayes, the New York stage star, who makes her first screen appearance in this production, the role gives Miss Hayes every opportunity for a display of her remarkable talents as an actress, for she is seen first as an attractive young girl, and then, as the progress of the story continues over a period of years, appears as an old, disillusioned and haggard woman.

Packed with action, with sparkling dialogue, and with a love theme which will make you laugh and cry, "The Tip Off" "Eddie" Quillan's and Robert Armstrong's latest starring picture, comes as the companion feature.

State Was Originally East and West Jersey

"The Jerseys" frequently occurs in American historical writing as the familiar name of New Jersey. Everybody, for instance, has read of Washington's historic retreat through the Jerseys. This arose from the fact that what now comprises the state of New Jersey was at one time divided into two provinces known as East Jersey and West Jersey. This territory was originally part of New Netherland or New York and along with that province was granted by Charles II to his brother, James, duke of York. In the same year, 1665, the duke of York granted the tract between the Hudson and Delaware rivers to Lord John Berkeley and Sir George Carteret. It was called New Jersey in honor of Carteret who had been governor of the isle of Jersey. At first the territory was governed as one province, but when it was later partitioned the portion originally granted to Berkeley was called West Jersey and that to Carteret East Jersey. In 1682 the province of East Jersey was sold at public auction to William Penn and 11 associates for £3,400. Penn had already obtained an interest in West Jersey. In 1702 the proprietors, who reserved the rights to the soil, transferred all right of jurisdiction to the crown, and the two provinces were united under a government similar to that of the other royal provinces. Although at the time of the Revolution East Jersey and West Jersey had composed a single colony for nearly three quarters of a century, many people were still in the habit of speaking of them as "the Jerseys."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Vast Water Resources in Black Hills Region

One of the most productive water-bearing formations of the northern interior of the United States is what is known as the Dakota standstone, which crops out about the flanks of the Black hills in southwestern South Dakota. The formation extends eastward and northeastward to the borders of Iowa and Minnesota.

As the sandstone slopes away from the Black hills, the water percolates northeastward and eastward through the porous rock and underneath a dense covering of thick clay shale.

Beneath the James river valley it is under considerable pressure, and where the surface altitude is not too great, strong artesian flows have been obtained. In fact, the artesian wells are among the greatest natural resources of that area.

However, so many wells have been driven, the supply shows signs of having been taxed about to the limit, and the force of many of the wells has fallen considerably below the original pressure.

His Way

"Don't you sometimes get lost in the woods when you go out possum hunting and get separated from your brothers?" asked a motorist in the Rumpus Ridge region.

"Nope!" replied young Banty, son of Gap Johnson. "When I don't know whur I'm at and there hain't nobody around to ask I just pick out the way I know leads toward home and turn right around and go the other way; that always fotches me home by the shortest trail."—Kansas City Star.

"What People Will Say"

What people will say—in these words lies the tyranny of the world, the whole destruction of our natural disposition, the oblique vision of our minds. These four words bear sway everywhere.—Berthold Auerbach (German Novelist) in "On the Heights."

Nature Information

Gorgeous orchids that do not take root in the ground but fasten themselves on other plants or trees and derive all their nourishment from the air thrive in the moisture and intense heat of tropical jungles. Mosses and lichens are almost the only species of air plants that are to be found in temperate zones.

Lake's Depth Varies

The depth of Lake Titicaca, the largest lake in South America, in some places reaches 700 feet, but large portions of it are shallow, and the shores, especially in the south, are lined with marshy tracts covered with reeds. The lake receives a number of streams from the surrounding mountains and discharges through the Desaguadero into Lake Aullagas, whose waters finally evaporate in the great salt marshes in the southern part of the closed basin.

Man's Food Consumption

A healthy man, with a normal appetite, who reaches seventy has eaten 700 times his own weight, according to the calculation of experts of the faculty of Paris. They have figured that in his span of seventy years the average man of 140 pounds would have eaten 13 tons of bread, 15 tons of vegetables, 7 tons of meat or 13 whole cows; 7 tons of fruit, 1,600 pounds of candy and sugar, drunk 15,000 quarts of milk and 20,000 quarts of beer, in Europe, or water, in America.

HOSPITAL BENEFITS BY WILL OF FORMER WINCHESTER MAN

The will of Charles H. Tyler, deceased Dec. 4, in Beverly, lists a bequest of $1,000,000 to the Boston City Hospital, Karl Singer of Boston being named executor of the estate of the former Winchester man, and also beneficiary to the extent of $500,000, free of all taxes.

Mr. Tyler, who made his home for many years in Winchester at the corner of Main and Herrick streets stipulated that $500,000 of the million dollar bequest to the hospital be used for a surgical research laboratory and equipment, and that the laboratory be named for Dr. George G. Sears of Boston, a retired heart specialist and trustee of the institution. Dr. Sears was Mr. Tyler's physician during his illness, and often spoke of the need for addition room and equipment at the city hospital, especially in the research field.

After the erection of the laboratory and the installation of equipment, the remaining $500,000 is to be placed in trust, the income to be used for salaries, either in full or suplementary.

In addition to personal bequests, The Boston Museum of Fine Arts is bequeathed as much of the deceased's property as desired. Mr. Tyler owned a collection of early furniture, silverware and art, said to be the equal of, or superior to that of Eugene Bowles which was willed to the Metropolitan Museum in New York, forming the nucleus of the American Wing of that institution. The Boston Museum is also named residuary legatee of Mr. Tyler's estate, no estimate of which is contained in the will.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Loyalty to the club, and keen interest in the unusual program brought a large attendance to the regular meeting in the Town Hall, Dec. 14.

The president, Mrs. Idabelle Winship, presided and after the secretary's report and detailed announcements of the meeting for Children's Day and Guest Night, she called upon Mrs. Nita Smith, one of the delegates, to tell of a meeting and luncheon at Hotel Kenmore. This was in behalf of the Continental Bridge League and it is hoped there may be a group of interested members from the Fortnightly desirous of joining the League. Further particulars may be obtained from Mrs. Smith or from Mrs. Winship. Mrs. Gladys R. Wilson made an urgent appeal for more volunteers to assist in distributing clothing to needy families. This work is under the Emergency Relief Committee with Mrs. Dwinell in charge.

At the close of the business meeting the president very graciously extended her Christmas greetings and good wishes to every member, and brought the true spirit of the season by singing "Oh Little Town of Bethlehem."

The program for the afternoon was fittingly introduced with Russian music rendered by Mrs. Helena Studvinska Sibley, violinist, and Mrs. Vida Rohde, cellist, in gay holiday costumes of the happy Russian peasants of former days.

The first group of peasant dances, by the classical composer, Wieneawski, for the violin with piano accompaniment was typically Russian, and they were played with unusual spirit and appreciation.

The second group for the 'cello, by Cui, and Messina included The Volga Boatman's Song which delighted the audience.

Miss Marion Angeline Howlett, who has recently returned from her second trip around the world was lecturer for the afternoon and brought vivid flashes of her experiences in Russia. The pictures were very real, and mostly very sad from the individual's point of view.

Throughout her long journey from one city to another the story was the same—a crushing of ideals, and Soviet Government propaganda spread by the radio, by posters, by the movies, and even through the opera and art museums. She showed how the urge for learning and culture, which is good, is over-balanced by the fact that all education is one-sided. The older generation have no power to combat the anti-religious teachings, and churches are everywhere destroyed or changed into schools.

In place of the ancient icons each home contains a picture of Lenin which is reverenced to the point of worship. At the close of the meeting Miss Howlett invited questions and discussion, which proved to be stimulating, and many members availed themselves of the opportunity to meet the speaker personally.

CHILD STRUCK ON WAY HOME FROM SCHOOL

Little Lois Thompson, 6 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Thompson of 15 Garfield street, while on her way home from the George Washington School Monday afternoon, was struck by a Buick sedan, driven by Irene M. Godbold of 84 Irving street, Arlington. The accident occurred on Highland avenue not far from the school which the little girl was late in leaving.

She was taken to her home and treated by Dr. Richard W. Sheehy for a slight scalp wound and a bruise on her right elbow. Miss Godbold reported the accident to the police.

LOMBARD—CURTIS

The marriage of Miss Cornelia McLanahan Curtis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Kingsbury Curtis of 1040 Fifth avenue, New York City, to Lawrence M. Lombard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel H. Lombard of 92 Church street, took place last Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Pelham Curtis, as matron of honor. Two cousins, Mrs. Ellery Husted and Mrs. Lawrence Noble, were bridesmaids with Miss Sarah Barney Bartlett, Miss Martha Humphrey, Miss Margaret Brett and Miss Jocelyn Pierson, all of New York.

Mr. Lombard had for his best man Robert Finley of New York and the corps of ushers comprised Dr. Wyman Richardson, Henry M. Bliss, Donald Hood, Fred Lund, Jr., all of Boston; Alexander Bright and John M. Martin of Cambridge, Jose Harris of Brookline, and Henry Laughlin of Concord. Charles Ames, Pelham Curtis, Richard Neiley (formerly of Winchester), Ellis Stebbins, all of New York; Franklin Parker of Greenwich, Conn., and Robert Groves of Cleveland.

After a wedding journey Mr. Lombard and his bride are to make their home in Boston where the bridegroom is associated with the law firm of Burnham, Bingham, Guild and Murphy. He was graduated from Harvard in the class of 1917 and from the Harvard Law School in 1921. The bride is a member of the New York Junior League.

EARLE K. WOODMAN

After a long illness, lightened by cheering letters from business associates and friends in all parts of the country, Earle K. Woodman, national advertising manager of the Boston Post, died Sunday afternoon, Dec. 13, at his home on Lakeview road. He was 38 years old the Saturday preceding his death.

Mr. Woodman was the son of Alfred J. and Ellen (Dearborn) Woodman, and was born in Conway, N. H. As a boy he moved with his parents to Somerville where he prepared, in the grammar and high schools, for Harvard, from which college he was graduated with the class of 1916.

Following his graduation he became associated with the Boston Post and for the past 12 years had served the paper as national advertising manager. His work necessitated much traveling and he was widely known, not only in Boston but in the other large cities of the country.

Mr. Woodman came to Winchester from Somerville nine years ago. He was a member of the Advertising Club, the Harvard Club, the Winchester Country Club, the Cambridge Masonic Lodge, Cambridge Lodge of Elks and of the KEX Club of Harvard.

In July, 1930, he married Miss Helen Frances Ford of Woburn, who survives him with his parents, all of Winchester.

Funeral services were held at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the late residence, conducted by Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the Unitarian Church. Interment was in Greenwood Cemetery in Biddeford, Me.

Watermelon's Travels

The watermelon is a native of Africa. It was early taken to India, as seems indicated by its having a Sanskrit name. It reached China about the Tenth century A. D. It has no name in the ancient Greek and Latin languages and was probably not known to these people much before the Christian era.

CYPRUS, ONCE PROUD "EMPORIUM OF THE EAST"

The movement to bring about a union between the Mediterranean Island of Cyprus and Greece, long smouldering, has flared up again. Since 1918, when England took complete possession from Turkey, and offered it to Greece in payment for aid in the campaign against Turkey during the World War, the island's ultimate destiny has been uncertain. Greece did not accept the offer, but the many Greek residents of Cyprus have kept the issue alive.

About as Large as Porto Rico

Cyprus, which is about the size of our Porto Rico, is a land of Greek people, Turkish customs, and British overlordship, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. In shape a rounded ox-hide, sprawling in the curve of sea where Syria and Turkey meet, it is exceeded in area in the Mediterranean only by the islands of Sicily and Sardinia.

Few places on earth are more richly endowed with romance and tradition than Cyprus, although today it is one of the least sophisticated and least visited of Mediterranean lands. Here was said to be the true home of the Goddess Aphrodite, the goddess of love and beauty, the Venus, of the ancient Greeks. Richard Coeur de Lion wrested Cyprus from a ruler who had won it by forging letters in his monarch's name, after that ruler, Isaac Commenus, had refused to let the Crusader's shipwrecked and seasick lady-love land there the first time she asked.

Here, too, stand the bold ruins of the citadel of Famagusta, popularly known as Othello's Tower—but not until after the British occupation of Cyprus associated with Shakespeare's tragedy. Now even the natives of Cyprus proudly point it out as the spot where the dark-skinned Moor, inflamed by Iago, smothered his Desdemona.

Beans John the Baptist Ate

Four-fifths of the present-day population of Cyprus are Greek Christians, and nearly all the remainder are Turkish Mohammedans. The people farm in a primitive fashion, and until recently the famed Cyprian wine had its flavor affected unpleasantly by the use of tarred skins as carriers. Among Cyprian farm products are grains, cheese, oranges, ripe olives, and carobs, the locust beans which John the Baptist is supposed to have eaten while in the wilderness.

Until 50 years ago, Cyprus had been wholly under Turkish control for two centuries. Although under British administration since 1878, and a British crown colony since the outbreak of the World War, Turkish influences linger. The governmental subdivisions of the island are the old Turkish ones; the laws are those of the Turkish code, with some changes; and Turkish weights and measures are still used.

Cyprus grain is bought and sold by kiles instead of bushels; olives and raisins and butter are measured by okes instead of pounds, and if you buy the beautiful handmade lace that Cyprian women make, you buy it by the pic, not by the yard.

Once a Land of Trees

Cyprus is an excellent example lesson for the forester who preaches the importance of conserving trees. In ancient times the island was noted for its fine forests. Today the central plain of Cyprus and many of the mountain slopes are treeless save for scattered orchards. The streams are torrents, entirely dry for a large part of the year, while the washing of the soil has created marshes in some sections.

Under British control plantations of trees are being extended and protected from the depredations of goats. Other constructive contributions by the British are the beginnings of a sorely needed system of good roads, irrigation works, and improved educational facilities.

Cyprus and copper are synonymous. In ancient times the island was famous as the best-known source of the red metal that made the Bronze Age possible. But whether the island was named for copper, or copper for the island, remains one of the mysteries of history. What is left of Cyprus' copper ores is not rich, but an American company works the mines and removes considerable quantities of the mineral. This, and a British company mining asbestos; the umber (a paint pigment) diggings; a silk reeling plant; and several cigarette factories constitute the island's industrial plants. The only railway is narrow-gauge, about 75 miles long, extending across the island from east to west.

The men have a distinctive costume—a straw hat with a mushroom brim, a plain shirt sometimes with a jacket, voluminous Turkish trousers whose seats are tacked into their belts for cross-country walking, and heavy leather boots with their tops turned down and tied above the calf. The Moslems wear a 'kerchief with lace flower fringes about their red tarboushes, and pink and orange shirts, blue trousers and purple stockings.

Monarch Before His Birth

Sapor, king of Persia, probably holds the record for the earliest age at which a king has been crowned. He was crowned about two months before he was born. His father, the reigning king, died at that time, and an uncle, finding the throne vacant, organized a usurpation. The queen, anxious for the succession of her son, proclaimed a coronation ceremony and had her unborn child crowned in her own person. Such was the veneration of the people for the dynasty that the ceremony was effective in forestalling the uncle's usurpation. The child proved to be a boy and ruled as King Sapor.

Composition of Flour

The chemical composition of flour is: Starch, 65 to 70 per cent; proteins, 9 to 14 per cent; cellulose and fat, 1 per cent; sugars, 2½ per cent; mineral matter (ash), ½ per cent; water, 13 to 15 per cent.

STEEL CELLS AT NORFOLK

To the Editor of the Post:

Sir—In your morning edition of Dec. 5, I read that Francis X. Murphy, a former guard at Norfolk, told:

"Of discovering a letter written, he said, by Lewis H. Parkhurst of Winchester, a wealthy man interested in the betterment of prison conditions in the State. Murphy said he came across the letter on the floor of Superintendent Howard B. Gill's office. He said it advised Gill to stop making the prison look like a college and put up a cell block."

I presume Mr. Murphy refers to me, although that is not exactly my name. However, if Mr. Murphy is in the habit of causing to be published the personal correspondence of his superior officer, the least he could do would be to quote an entire communication rather than a part of it.

I find on referring to my files that I wrote Mr. Gill on Feb. 26, 1931, as follows:

"As I have said before, I do not like this 'club house' talk, and if anyone should go down to Norfolk now, visiting the building which is completed—and which is of course a fine building—the impression created would be that the whole prison was to be like this particular building, whereas we know that this is the highest grade building. I should say that the most important thing now was to start the other type of building—the jail or whatever you may call it."

This suggestion of mine seems to be entirely in accord with Mr. Gill's plan, for within 60 days there will be completed at Norfolk a building, the rooms of which are made entirely of steel plates rivited together the same as a boiler or any other steel work is constructed. The bars across the windows cannot be cut with a hacksaw, nor broken by a stroke of the sledge-hammer. It is probably true that no more securely constructed building for the holding of desperate men has even been built in this country.

The men in the top story of the building will take their exercises on the roof in a heavy wire cage and will never mingle with other prisoners or come down on to the ground. They will have plenty of light and air both on the roof and in their rooms.

This, is of course, the most expensive type of building that will be constructed at Norfolk. The buildings for the different type of men need not be as expensive. The first building completed last year is for the very highest grade inmate. This new building about to be completed is at the other end of the line, and between these two buildings will be buildings of different degrees of security for the various types of men as they may be segregated after being admitted and examined.

PRESIDENT OF BRADFORD ADDRESSES WELLESLEY CLUB OF WINCHESTER

Dr. Katharine M. Denworth, president of Bradford Junior College, was the guest of the Wellesley College Club of Winchester at a meeting held in the home of Mrs. Joseph W. Worthen of 29 Wedgemere avenue, Friday.

Dr. Denworth spoke informally on "Some Aspects of the Junior College Movement in New England." Mrs. Edward R. Grosvenor is president of the Wellesley Club of Winchester.

After rehearsal last Friday evening the Chancel Choir of the First Congregational Church with their choirmaster, J. Albert Wilson, held a most enjoyable get-together in the parish house of the church. Delicious refreshments were served under the direction of Miss Bertha Kelley and Miss Margaret Randall, all sorts of old fashioned games being played until a late hour.

Malicious mischief on the part of boys gave the police a job last Saturday afternoon. Shortly after 4 o'clock a group of West Side boys smeared a Yale street house with mud, and after being rounded up by Motorcycle Officer Murray had the pleasure of washing off the dirt. Just before 6, Headquarters was notified that some windows had been broken in a house on Myrtle terrace and that the dwelling had been considerably marked up. Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy investigated and rounded up three 12-year old boys of the neighborhood who admitted their responsibility and agreed to make restitution.

NEW ENGLAND POWER ASSOCIATION DESERVES CONTINUED SUPPORT

By Bernard J. Hughes, Financial Editor

(Reprint from Financial Page, Boston Sunday Post, Nov. 22, 1931)

Realizing the inroads which were being made into New England's natural resources by outside interests, and with the object of keeping control of such resources within our borders, a group of New England men in January, 1926, formed the New England Power Association, a Massachusetts voluntary association, which is a holding and financial vehicle for public utility properties located in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island and Connecticut, comprising the New England System. These properties represent the largest power system in New England, and one of the largest in the United States.

The aims and objects of New England Power Association can probably best be described in the words of its president, Frank D. Comerford, who, in a public statement recently said: "The New England Power Association and its subsidiaries constitute a public service enterprise in which individuals, institutions, insurance companies and savings banks—more than 40,000 in all—are participants through the ownership of $350,000,000 in securities. The Association is supported by New England investors. It is managed by New England men. It furnishes employment to more than 10,000 New Egland men and women. It pays $5,500,000 annually in taxes. Through the wide distribution of electricity and gas, it is bringing comforts to hundreds of thousands of New England homes. Through constant development of natural resources, it will continue to serve New England industry."

The New England Power Association on Nov. 1, 1931, owned or controlled six wholesale and 31 retail companies engaged in the distribution of electricity and gas; and in addition operated the 39 companies of the Massachusetts Utilities Associates, in which the Association owns a substantial interest. These companies, constituting the New England Power System, on Nov. 1, 1931, were serving 580,000 electric and 197,000 gas customers in 217 cities and towns, with an aggregate population of 2,300,000. The System sells power, in large blocks under long-term contracts, to important industrial concerns in such centres of activity as Providence, Worcester, Fall River, Lowell, Lawrence, and other important centres. The System has a contract with the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston for the sale of 150,000,000 kilowatt hours of primary electricity a year until 1948. At generating plants with an aggregate capacity of 1,012,500 horsepower, the [illegible] companies now in the Association [illegible] produced nearly 2,000,000,000 kilowatt hours. The field is such a large one that sites have been acquired [illegible] advantageous points for further development of water power and steam facilities. The Association has always enjoyed the good will of the communities which it serves, and has had no conflict with public service commissions.

Since the formation of Massachusetts Power and Light Associates, a subsidiary, which owns the North Boston Lighting Properties, the System has become one of the largest retail distributors of gas in New England. During 1930 the companies now owned by the Association sold 3,417,596,000 cubic feet of gas. The Massachusetts Utilities Associates companies sold 1,749,046,900 cubic feet. Transportation is another Association activity. Its subsidiaries supply the trolley, bus and cab needs of a large part of Rhode Island.

Power is generated in 30 hydro-electric and nine steam plants advantageously located to permit effective and economical transmission throughout the territory served, and through interconnection with large hydro-electric and steam generating plants of other companies in southern New England and New York State, the New England Power System is able to purchase large amounts of primary and surplus power which these palnts have available.

Consolidated net earnings of companies comprising the New England Power Association, for the 12 months ended Dec. 31, 1930, after deductions for operating expenses, maintenance, etc., amounted to $19,633,766. After allowing for annual interest charges on subsidiaries' bonds and preferred stocks, and interest on debentures and notes, there was a balance for depreciation, dividends, etc., of $11,788,000. Interest and dividends of the Association were covered more than two and one-half times. Earnings this year, despite depressed conditions, have been held up in excellent fashion; in fact earnings for the month of October last were more than 25 per cent ahead of those of the same month of last year. Water conditions have been exceptionally good. With the return of more normal conditions in New England, especially in the textile and other large manufacturing centres, earnings should show a substantial increase. That improvement has already taken place is evidenced by the fact that production records of the Association indicate that business is better in its territory than in other parts of the country. The October production of kilowatt hours was substantially ahead of October of last year. For the first 18 days of November, the Association turned out 98,000,000 kilowatt hours, as compared with 81,000,000 kilowatt hours for the same 18 days a year ago. The System is in excellent physical condition to take advantage of any further quickening in the industrial pace.

Although New England investors have already poured millions into the development of this mammoth enterprise, the field is a large one, and many millions more can and will be used for the development of our bounteous natural resources. New England Power Association, therefore, under the able and aggressive leadership of President Frank D. Comerford, and his representative board of directors and staff, including men intimately associated with important electrical, industrial and financial enterprises, deserves the continued support of all New Englanders.

The bonds of the Association appear to be reasonably priced and entitled to investment consideration. The cumulative preferred stock, at its present price of about 64, paying $6 per annum in dividends, and yielding over 9 per cent, looks attractive as a speculative investment, and the common stock has interesting long-pull speculative possibilities.

Miss Mabel Tompkins, daughter of George S. Tompkins, 10 Glengarry, president of the Freshman Class at Wheaton College, has been elected business manager of the new freshman magazine to appear for the first time in January for the benefit of the student Alumnae building fund. Miss Tompkins has just been awarded her insignia for playing on the Wheaton varsity hockey team. The team was victorious throughout the season. She is also a member of the fistball team an innovation at Wheaton.

MRS. ANNIE M. PATTEE

Mrs. Annie M. Pattee, widow of Fred Lewis Pattee, died Friday afternoon, Dec. 11, at her home, 86 Bacon street, following a long illness. Her death occurred only four months after that of her husband who passed away at his summer home in Ashland, N. H., July 8.

Mrs. Pattee was a native of Concord, N. H., the daughter of John Y. and Maria (Eaton) Mugridge. She was educated in private schools in Concord and married 40 years ago in that city.

She came to Winchester in 1900 and had since made her home here, holding membership in the First Congregational Church. Her only survivor is a brother, John M. Mugridge of San Diego, Cal.

Funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon at the late residence with Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church, officiating. Interment was in Mt. Auburn.

PALOS: WHENCE COLUMBUS SAILED

Nearly four and a half centuries ago three small caravels, commanded by Christopher Columbus, spread their sails and glided slowly down the Rio Tinto, off Palos, Spain, to the broad bosom of the unknown Atlantic. Seven months later two of the caravels returned to Palos with news of a great discovery that eventually carried the name of this tiny fishing port in southwestern Spain to every part of the civilized world.

Next February a duplicate of the "Santa Maria," the flagship of Columbus which did not return, will sail for America from Palos under the command of a crew of adventurous Spanish youths, who plan to bring their fragile 220-ton ship across the Atlantic and then through the Great Lakes to Chicago for the 1933 exposition.

Roadstead Silted Up

Palos, the point of embarkation of Columbus and those who follow in his foosteps, is an insignificant little village today, with hardly anything to remind it of its illustrious past, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

If the modern "Santa Maria" wishes literally to re-enact the famous sailing of Aug. 3, 1492, it will have to wait until the tide is at its height, because the old roadstead has long since silted up, and shipping which once plied between Palos and other ports of Europe now anchors off Huelva, on the near-by Odiel River.

When the wealth of the New World was realized, Seville was given the monopoly of trade with America, and then San Lucar, its nearest port to the sea, came into its own. Columbus put off from San Lucar on his third voyage, and Magellan's globe-girdling ships sailed from the same port. Palos, meanwhile, was neglected.

Palos de Moguer, or Palos de la Frontera, to call it by its two imposing Spanish names, had another big moment when Cortes chose it as a landing place in 1528 after his conquest of Mexico. Wagons loaded with loot of the empire of the Aztecs rumbled through its narrow streets, and dashing caballeros on beplumed horses awed the loiterers of the waterfronts. But again other Spanish ports superceded it, and Palos continued a hum-drum role as a fishing village.

Statue of Columbus

In 1929 Palos came momentarily into the day's news when a colossal stone statue of Columbus, designed by an American, was dedicated on the exact spot where Columbus is said to have set sail for America. A detachment of American sailors took part in the exercises and the rumble of drums awoke the echoes of the sleepy little fishing village which for 400 years had known few visitors.

Another reminder of Columbus in this region is the La Rabida Monastery, opposite the junction point of the old Odiel and Tinto rivers, about a mile and a quarter from Palos. La Rabida, now partly in ruins, played an important role in the discovery of America, for it was her that the adventurer Columbus found a sympathetic listener in Fray Juan Perez de Marchena, the prior of the monastery and once confessor of Queen Isabella. The prior induced the Queen to finance the voyage.

A stone from La Rabida Monastery will be carried in the hold of the new "Santa Maria" for the lighthouse memorial being erected to Columbus in Santo Domingo. It was off the coast of the Island of Santo Domingo, or Haiti, that the original "Santa Maria" was wrecked.

Modern Huelva, just around the corner from Palos, is a thriving city of 30,000 inhabitants with an active trade in copper and sulphur ores, and in tunny and sardine fishing. At flood-tide the biggest ocean vessels may ascend the Odiel River to its wharves.

MADRAS: INDIA'S THIRD CITY

From Madras, India, where winds have so often wreaked havoc, comes word of the floods brought on by the monsoon rains in southern India.

Madras with its highest point but 22 feet above the sea, is one of the world's flattest cities, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. It lies on the Bay of Bengal on the southeast coast of India. The site of the city and the surrounding countryside are so flat that ships entering the harbor cannot see farther than the first row of the city's buildings.

The harbor of Madras is too shallow for seagoing vessels to get near shore. Passengers and cargo are transported ashore in masula boats, made of long planks bound together by coconut fiber, or on catamaran rafts. The rise and fall of the tide off this part of the coast is only between three and four feet daily.

Gardens, Compounds and Parks Beautify City

The city lies sprawled out along the coast, being spaced at intervals by estuaries and two sluggish rivers, the Coum and the Adyar. Its wide avenues are shaded by tall palms and banyan trees, some of which are so large they arch across the streets. It is these trees which make the Marina, Madras' famous sea front promenade, agreeable for walking on the hottest days.

The houses of the more prosperous citizens are set in compounds which look like parks. Sometimes rice fields divide these compounds and give the landscape the aspect of a country village spread out over a large area. Cannas and other flowers bloom riotously in the gardens, making vivid spots of color against the tropical greenness. Many of the principal shops are fronted with gardens. Everything in Madras is on a wide scale. Even in the native quarters of Triplicane and George Town, the houses are not built so closely as in other Indian cities.

Numerous parks intensify the impression of space in the city. In the 116 acres which form the Peoples Park are 11 artificial lakes, an athletic ground, a large zoo, numerous excellent tennis courts and a bandstand. Rare trees, shrubs and plants beautify the 22 acres of the Horticultural Gardens.

A City of Colleges

A visitor to Madras gets the impression that the Madrasi, both native and Anglos-Indian, are ardent exponents of higher education. There is a State University, many professional and art colleges; and the Madras Christian College with its numerous buildings is one of the largest colleges in India. Pacheappa College was founded about 100 years ago when higher education was unknown in Madras. Its founder was a far-seeing and benevolent Hindu. Madras has a Y. M. C. A. housed in a large red sandstone building, presented to the city by a famous American philanthropist.

About a tenth of Madras' half million population is Christian. Hindus form the largest part with Mohammedans second, but the Christian aggregation is almost as large as the Mohammedan. The Roman Catholic Cathedral of St. Thome was founded by the Portuguese in 1504. The earthly remains of St. Thomas are supposed to lie beneath its floors.

Madras is an old city in Anglo-Indian history. It was the first large settlement made by the old East India Company, which was given a charter by Queen Elizabeth. The cloth which the merchants of the company obtained from the natives was called madras. They also traded for percalla, which we know as percale. Elihu Yale of Boston, for whom Yale University in the United States was named, was one of the early governors. Madras city is capital of the Madras Presidency and contains the governmental buildings. Many of these are of rare beauty but they are spread out over the community in such a way that their effectiveness is lost.

Find in Desert Causes Stir Among Scientists

In a sand-filled depression near the ancient Pyramid of Degrees, seventeen miles north of Cairo, Egypt, a wonderful discovery has been made by the Egyptian department of antiquities.

Several stone statuettes were found in a heap at the top of a large sand-filled depression, some distance from any building. Their attributes, costumes and attitudes indicate that they are Syrian deities. On the other hand, their workmanship seems to show the hand of an Egyptian sculptor of the Persian or Ptolemaic period. The largest statuette represents a fat, seated woman, wearing a high tiara. Others represent a man in Chaldean costume, and a woman, both standing in rigid attitudes, with their hands extended forward, while a man's head with a large beard seems to come from a winged bull.

The rarity of figures of western Asiatic gods gives considerable importance to these figures. They further possess historical significance, as they were probably made for one of the foreign colonies which were so numerous at Memphis in the later pre-Christian period, and of which hitherto so little has been known.

Birthplace of Telephone

Among the many things for which Boston is famous is that it was the birthplace of the telephone. It was on the afternoon of June 2, 1875, that Prof. Alexander Graham Bell and his associate, Thomas A. Watson, were working in two garret rooms over the electrical shop of Charles Williams at 109 Court street, Boston, and there discovered the principle of the telephone. More than nine months later Professor Bell received from the United States on March 7, 1876, a patent No. 174465, and thus established the existence of the Bell telephone. This has often been called the most valuable patent to mankind ever issued.

Canadian Timber

It is estimated by the Dominion forest service that the only economic use for three-eighths of the land area of Canada lies in the growing of trees. This vast area of territory, while incapable of successful agricultural production, is, if permanently dedicated, protected and managed, suited to the production of a timber crop which would guarantee for all time the supply of raw material for Canada's wood-using industries.—Natural Resources Bulletin.

When the "Akron" nosed out of its mammoth hangar on its test flight, VEEDOL was lubricating its motors. Its builders took no chances.

When Hillig and Hoiriis made their dramatic dash across the Atlantic to Copenhagen, VEEDOL was in the crankcase. They had no intentions of swimming back.

When Herndon and Pangborn set out around the world, VEEDOL was the oil they chose. They wanted no failure due to poor lubrication.

And when the Graf Zeppelin swung away from Friederichschafen with its nose toward the cold North, its Commander knew from experience that VEEDOL would lubricate perfectly in the low temperatures the Graf would encounter.

GRACE DE CARLTON

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

On Monday afternoon, Dec. 28, at the Town Hall, the Fortnightly is giving a children's party. Each member may bring two children but no child will be admitted unless accompanied by an adult. The young guests will be entertained by Bessie Mae Kelley, cortoonist, and by the pupils of Grace De Carlton in a demonstration of rhythmic dancing.

Miss Kelley has the unique distinction of being the only woman in the world who draws animated cartoons for the motion pictures. She explains the process in detail and illustrates it by rapid sketches. Her entertainment is unusual and clever; one which will delight children.

Grace De Carlton, guest artist, received her training under such eminent teachers as Bonfanti, Albertini, Ito, and Duncan. She toured the United States with Gavriloy and Pavlowa concert companies and has been the featured dancer in many Broadway productions.

Miss De Carlton is one of the leading instructors in Boston of rhythmic dancing and is now director of the Dance Department of the National Associated Studios of Music, which has a branch studio in Winchester under the direction of Pearl Bates Morton.

DISTINGUISHED MUSICIAN GUEST IN WINCHESTER

Mrs. Alexander Samoiloff, known in the theatre as Carlene Bowles Murphy, welcomed Dr. Serge Koussevitsky, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, to her studio home, Carrig-Rohane, in Winchester, last week Tuesday, at which time Mr. Boris Nagasheff and Mr. Mireslav Paneko demonstrated their concert equipment which receives music much as it is received by a radio, except that it is able to amplify and record.

It was impossible to receive at the Samoiloff studio, but Messrs. Magasheff and Paneko set up their machine and played records of music from Morocco which they had tuned in and recorded at their Boston studio.

The concert equipment operates on a short wave length and resembles a radio. It proved of much interest to the group at the Samoiloff studio, among whom was Mrs. Samoiloff's father, Mr. Herman Dudley Murphy, the distinguished painter, for whom the studio was built. Others were two associates of Mr. Nagasheff and Mr. Paneko; Mr. Nicholas Lochno and Mr. Robert Phillips, Mrs. Koussevitsky and her niece, Miss Olga Naoumoff. After the music, coffee was served from a Russian Samovar.

MISS BARRETT ENGAGED

Mrs. Charles E. Barrett of Bacon street has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Rebecca Barrett, to Charles E. Barnard, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Barnard of Elkins, West Virginia.

Miss Barrett's father, the late Charles E. Barrett, was the founder, and for many years previous to his death in March served as treasurer and director of the Winchester Trust Company. Miss Barrett, a graduate of Wellesley College, is teaching in Philadelphia and makes her home at the College Club. She is to spend the Christmas holidays in Winchester with her mother.

Mr. Barnard was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania where he is a member of the Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity. He is secretary and assistant treasurer of the Dill and Collins paper company of Philadelphia.

MASONS HOLD OPEN HOUSE

Announcement made this week continues the annual "open house" of the Winchester Masonic Lodges. As customary, Winchester will observe the New Year by a gathering of members, both local and visiting, Jan. 1, from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m.

An interesting entertainment is being provided with music and light refreshments.

All Masons of Winchester, whether members of any Masonic body in Winchester or not, are cordially invited to attend.

MARRIAGE INTENTIONS

Marriage intentions have been filed with the Town Clerk as follows:

Burgess Parker Reed of 3 Sheffield west and Priscilla Katherine Dresser of 88 Bradlee avenue, Swampscott.

John Joseph Dillon of 64 Vine street and Laura Marie O'Neil also of 64 Vine street.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL NURSES' CHRISTMAS PARTY

On Monday evening, Dec. 21, the faculty and student nurses of the hospital welcomed Santa Claus at their Christmas party at the Nurses' Home.

The living room of the home was the scene of these festivities and those assembled felt the heartfelt welcome in the greetings extended on every hand. The brightly lighted Christmas tree, laden with mysterious packages in gay wrappings and bags of pop-corn for the guests filled one corner of the room.

Before Santa Claus arrived, the story of Christmas in other lands was told to a wondering child by her parents beside the glowing Christmas tree. As each country was mentioned a visitor in the costume of that country arrived to stand beside the Christmas tree and sang in some instances, as well, in the mother tongue of that country. The entire group sang "Adeste Fideles" and marched away singing "Joy to the World," the singing gradually fading in the distance.

Santa arrived to the jingle of sleigh bells.

"The stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth,
And the smoke, it encircled his head like a wreath."

He presented a most gorgeous appearance and his long flowing beard and snowy locks were wonderful to behold. Dr. Martin D. Sheehan of Stoneham seemed to be missing from the audience when Santa Claus arrived.

His duties were arduous for there were many gifts and an appropriate verse to be read with nearly every one. Santa was kept busy reading these verses to the delight of the audience before he handed the gift over to the waiting recipient.

Members of the hospital board were remembered by the students and the student body by several friends. A telegram was received during the party from the five student nurses affiliating at the Bellevue Hospital in New York City.

The nurses who represented parts in the Christmas story were as follows: Father, Sarah Norton; Mother, Mae DeWaele; Child, Clara Weafer; Ireland, Margaret Mathews; Scotland, Alice Barr; Sweden, Pauline Erickson; Japan, Jennie Benedetto; Germany, Arlene Coflan; Spain, Marjorie Greer; France, Adelaide True; Italy, Concetta Costa; Holland, Helen Madden; Priscilla, Margaret Webber; and John Alden, Ruth Craig.

TAKEN INTO CUSTODY AFTER CRASH

Belmont Men Were Driving Stolen Car

Police Headquarters was notified last Sunday night at 11:37 of a bad accident at the junction of Washington street and Mystic Valley Parkway.

Sergt. Edward W. O'Connell responded with Patrolmen Joseph J. Derro and Charles J. Harrold. Upon arrival they found that a Cadillac sedan, driven by Miles MacMillan of Wilson street, North Wilmington, while going north on Washington street, was in collision with a Graham-Paige sedan, registered to Henry H. Meyer of 31 Hillburn road, Belmont, the latter machine headed west on the Parkway.

The force of the impact had tipped the Graham-Paige over on its side and damaged it badly. The Cadillac was slightly damaged, but none of the occupants of either car claimed injuries.

With the Graham-Paige the police found two young men who said they were Arthur Peterson of 18 Ridge street, Cambridge and Herbert Sullivan of 37 Ridge street, Cambridge. They were accompanied by the Misses Mary, Winifred and Catherine Daley of 6 Westley avenue, Cambridge. All maintained that another young man had been driving the car and had left the scene following the accident.

Sergeant O'Connell escorted the quintette to Headquarters where it was learned that the sedan had been stolen from its owner's garage in Belmont. The young men finally gave their names as John T. Kerrigan of 118 Gilbert road, Belmont, and John T. McQuaid of 4 Thomas street, Belmont. Kerrigan told Sergeant O'Connell that he stole the Graham-Paige and was driving it at the time of the accident. He had no driver's license.

Both young men were locked up by the local authorities, charged with the larceny of the automobile and were later turned over to the Belmont Police. They were arraigned in court yesterday morning.

MISS MATHEWS ENGAGED TO MR. SANDBERG

Announcement was made last Thursday of the engagement of Miss Lois K. Mathews, daughter of Principal John O. Mathews of the Arlington Junior High School Center and Mrs. Mathews, to Edward Sandberg of Winchester.

Miss Mathews is a graduate of Arlington High School, 1929, and Mt. Ida School, 1931. Mr. Sandberg, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Josef Sandberg of Walcott road is a graduate of M. I. T. 1925, and is with the Old Colony Trust Company. No date has been set for the wedding.

Two Christmas parties were held at the William G. Noonan School on Wednesday, that in the forenoon being for the children of kindergarten age with the afternoon party being for the children in the grades. Superintendent of Schools James J. Quinn was guest of honor.

PAUL C. WILDE

Paul C. Wilde for 35 years associated with the Middlesex Dye, Bleach & Print Works in Somerville, died Sunday morning, Dec. 19 at his home 39 Wildwood street. He had been ill for only 11 days, but had been in failing health for several years.

Mr. Wilde was the son of Samuel Godfrey and Isabel Marie Wilde, and was born 63 years ago in Somerville. At an early age he entered the employ of the Middlesex Dye, Bleach & Print Works as office assistant, working his way up to the position of plant superintendent.

His constant exposure to the powerful chemicals used in bleaching and dyeing, undermined his health and forced him to resign from active business seven years ago. Despite his failing strength, his indomitable will and courage kept him busy in several capacities and a few weeks before his death he started a germicide and disinfectant business which gave promise of developing rapidly.

Before coming to Winchester 15 years ago, Mr. Wilde made his home in Waltham where he was active in the work of the Unitarian Church, serving the Society for seven years as treasurer. He was a member of William Parkman Lodge of Masons and a former member of the Lexington Minutemen.

Mr. Wilde was the last of his family and is survived by only his wife, who was A. Maude Smith.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at the late residence with Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the Unitarian Church and Rev. Benjamin Patterson Browne, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiating. Interment was in Mt. Feake Cemetery, Waltham.

WINCHESTER SUBSCRIBERS PROMINENT

Winchester played a prominent part in the opening of the fourth season of the Boston Morning Musicales which are being given again this year in the ballroom of the Hotel Statler under the auspices of the Boston School of Occupational Therapy. Mid-morning coffee is served in the foyer preceding each concert as in past seasons. The following are some of the Winchester subscribers to the series, who were present at the Claudia Nunzio Concert, (Prima Donna soprano of the Chicago Opera Company) on Wednesday, Dec. 16:

Mrs. John Abbott
Mrs. Arthur Black
Mrs. Geo. G. Brayley
Miss Elizabeth Downes
Mrs. Cutler Downer
Miss Blanche Eaton
Mrs. Merton E. Grush
Mrs. Edmund Haynes
Mrs. Mabel A. Horne
Mrs. Arthur Irving
Mrs. John H. Joy
Mrs. Clarence Ordway
Mrs. Harry S. Parsons
Mrs. Alfred D. Radley
Mrs. Frank L. Ripley
Mrs. Sidney G. Rollins
Mrs. C. F. A. Siedhof

Other artists in this season's series are Elizabeth Rethberg, Jan. 6; Ignace Paderewski, Jan. 20; John Charles Thomas, Feb. 10; Jacques Thibaud, Feb. 24; and Tito Shipa, March 9.

Owing to the large number of subscriptions received for this year's concerts, there will be no single tickets available for any of the remaining concerts.

ENGAGEMENT OF INTEREST HERE

There is Winchester interest in the engagement of Miss Constance Creighton to Arthur Whitfield Huguley, Mr. Huguley being a former Winchester boy.

The announcement was made at a dinner given Friday night by Miss Creighton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Morton Creighton, at their home on Beacon street, Boston. Miss Creighton was graduated from Westover School in 1928 and the same year made her debut. She is a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club. Mr. Huguley is the son of Mrs. May Wilder Huguley of Swampscott. He was graduated from Milton Academy and from Harvard with the class of 1931. He is a member of the Hasty Pudding, A. D., and Varsity Clubs and was an outstanding player in the Harvard-Yale football game at New Haven in 1930.

NATIONAL BANK STAFF ENJOYED CHRISTMAS PARTY

The staff of the Winchester National Bank enjoyed a Christmas party last Friday evening at the home of Cashier and Mrs. Clarence G. McDavitt on Westland avenue. Dinner was served at 7 o'clock and was followed by the distribution of gifts from a gaily bedecked Christmas tree. Games in which all participated afforded much amusement and were climaxed by a treasure hunt in which the honors were captured by "Katie" O'Brien and "Jim" Scott, though it is whispered that they "knew it before hand."

Among those present were President William A. Kneeland, Mr. Frank E. Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. McDavitt, Miss Mary Crosby and Messrs. Adolf Forsberg, L. J. Scott and William Sullivan.

A Ford sedan, owned and driven by Patsy Benenati of 45 Highland street, Woburn, while coming out of Pond street onto Cambridge street at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening, was in collision with a Buick sedan, owned and driven by Harry A. Porter of 313 Nesmith street, Lowell, the latter driving on Cambridge street north. The Ford was badly damaged and had to be towed away, the Buick being slightly damaged. Benenati was shaken up and bruised but did not receive medical treatment.

IS POPULAR WITH TENANTS

George H. Woods, Superintendent of Stetson Hall Liked by All

It is so unusual to hear apartment house dwellers commend their janitor that the unstinted praise of Superintendent George H. Woods from residents of Stetson Hall aroused our curiosity and prompted a visit to Mr. Woods last Friday afternoon.

We arrived shortly after the lights were lighted and were impressed with the artistic effect which Mr. Woods had achieved in decorating the hall for Christmas.

The conventional wreath with red ribbon hung upon the massive front door, and looking through the doorway and iron grill of the vestibule, we saw an attractive little pottery lamp in a warm tint of buff, with parchment shade, burning upon an end table in front of the elevator well.

The chandelier in the vestibule was lighted in a pleasing amber, and the modernistic sconce lights of the hall glowed in soft shades of green, amber, blue, red and white against the attractive stucco of the walls and pillars. Evergreen drops with large silk ribbon bows suggested the Yuletide, but the whole scheme left the impression of not being over done.

Mr. Woods received us cordially and we soon saw the reason for his popularity. A lady had forgotten her hat: another had neglected to provide for the receipt of packages from Boston. In one instance the missing hat was handed to "friend husband" and in the second, the packages were carefully delivered.

Though somewhat reticent when speaking about himself, some pictures gave him away, and Mr. Woods finally admitted that he formerly for many years traveled upon Keith's Circuit with the nationally famous musical organization, "The Meistersingers," singing with the original group who included such favorites as Jewell Boyd, Harold Tripp, Doctor Clark and Cameron Steele. For nine years Mr. Woods was baritone soloist at Dr. Edward Everett Hale's Church in Boston, singing at the funeral of the beloved clergyman. It is also of Winchester interest that he filled a similar position at St. Paul's Cathedral when J. Albert Wilson, now organist and choirmaster at the First Congregational Church, was boy soprano there.

Mr. Woods' musical ability has been inherited by his children, one son, Harry, being widely known in New York as a pianist and the composer of such song hits as "The Red, Red Robin" "When the Moon Comes Over the Mountains" and "River Keep Away From My Door." Another son is kept busy filling engagements as a concert 'cellist and Mr. Woods' daughter, Miss Dorothy Woods, has recently opened a beauty shop n Winchester.

GEORGE HENRY SANDS

George Henry Sands of 8 Park avenue, a resident of Winchester for many years, died Sunday morning, Dec. 20, at the Dearborn Hospital in Medford, after a long illness. He was 81 years old.

Mr. Sands was a native of St. John's, N. B. Coming to Winchester from that city 40 years ago he had since made his home here and had a wide circle of friends among older residents of the town. He had been for some years retired from active business.

Mr. Sands was a widower, and is survived by three daughters, the Misses Margaret J. and Cassie E. Sands, both of Winchester, Mrs. George L. Wooster of Beverly and by four grandchildren, Margaret A., Ruth E., Dorothy J., and Priscilla G. Wooster. There are also three brothers, William, and James Y. Sands, both of Winchester, Isaiah K. Sands of Woburn, and a sister, Miss S. Jennie Sands of Winchester.

Funeral services were held at the late residence Tuesday afternoon with Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church officiating. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

BUILDING DEPARTMENT

The Building Commissioner has issued permits for alterations and the erection of buildings on property owned by the following for the week ending Wednesday, Dec. 23:

Abbie T. Sweetser, Winchester—new dwelling and garage at 6 Lincolnshire way.

JUST A QUESTION!

To the Editor of the Star:

Will the School Pauls tells us why children living at 339 Cambridge street have to leg it more than a mile to Church street and then are carried by bus to Winchester Center at taxpayers' expense, then walk to poor old Lincoln's School for an education? I understand kids living near the Lincoln School are allowed to go to my pet school on the hill. George and I were in the same class but he was worse than I. Will those responsible tell the taxpayers why?

J. A. Laraway

Postmaster George Lochman stated to the Star yesterday that apparently there had been little falling off in Chrsitmas mail this year. From last Saturday night through the week the local office has been crowded, at times there being three lines extending from the doors to the windows. As a general thing the crowd was very good natured and took their waiting as a matter of course.

CALUMET

CALUMET NOTES

Club activities are pretty much at a standstill during the Christmas holidays, but it is by no means too soon to announce the big Maine Guide night which the entertainment committee is arranging for Saturday evening, Jan 9. Just a casual glance at the details is enough to convince any one that the party will rank with the best the club has staged and a closer investigation only serves to whet the enthusiasm.

First of all, four guides from the Moosehead Lake region of Maine, Fred Burns, "Charlie" Nelson, "Allie" Ayers and Henry Johnson are to be Calumet's guests, and the yarns they will spin covering the whole gamut of hunting, fishing, canoeing, trapping and camping are sure to be entertaining and interesting, as well as amusing. It will be no hearsay with these veterans of the great open spaces and no lover of the out-doors will want to miss their message.

With an eye to the inner man the capable entertainment commttee has arranged to have a real venison dinner served at 6 o'clock and to make things doubly interesting the guides have agreed to cook and serve it themselves. All that will be lacking to make one believe himself in the woods are the pines and chipmunks. It is of special interest that the venison for the feast was provided by the Calumet's mighty nimrods, "Ed" Merrill, "Bob" Reynolds, Forrest Pitman and Harris Richardson, who returned not so long ago from a successful Maine hunting trip, stopping off in Newburyport for a snappy chat with the vitriolic "Bossy" Gillis, bad-boy Mayor of that once staid city.

To make the evening complete there will be movies, entitled "Sloshing Down the St. John's River," a title which should be self explanatory to frequenters of the New Brunswick wilderness, and as an added attraction a good Calumeter, W. J. L. Roop has kindly consented to exhibit his extensive collection of guns in the card room. This collection of weapons positively has to be seen to be believed. It takes in everything from ancient matchlocks to modern rifles, including poison dart guns, cane guns, pistols and cane swords. Better get your reservations for Maine guide night in early. The number that can be accommodated is limited.

It's just a week to the New Year's party and all reservations must be made with Steward Fred School on or before Dec. 30. We've said so much about this event that we can't add anything except the advice, "Don't miss it."

Calumet's next date in the Mystic Valley League is Jan. 4, when the locals visit Somerville to take on the Central Club. One thing more, don't forget the dinner bridge on Jan. 15 with Mrs. Kingman Cass in charge. This is a postponed date, but will be well worth the waiting for.

SHE WOULDN'T BE SKUNKED

Quite a little excitement was caused in a well known neighborhood yesterday by the obvious presence of a skunk. It was finally localized in a shallow space under a veranda. In fact it could be plainly seen lying close to the lattice work. First aid was asked of the Board of Health. While sympathetic, they didn't think it a matter for them to meddle in. Next the Chief of Police was consulted, who thought the safest ending would be accomplished by trapping. The Fire Department chief was next appealed to for quick action by means of a hose stream. This idea proved unfeasible. Previous experience had proved such treatment often prompted the animal to show resentment by the only means in his power.

The lady of the house while not daunted was getting rather desperate when the key idea came to her. Had not the Tree Department gone after treed cats? To be sure, this was a "grounded" cat, but what matter? The chief of the tree department was home with a cold, but forgot his ills for a time long enough to bring action against the cat. Within half an hour said skunk had been dispatched by means of a shot, so effective there is no further tale of the skunk.

STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

Edward J. Taylor of 9 Alben street reported to the police Tuesday evening that while he was driving his automobile on Mt. Vernon street through the intersection of Washington street the machine struck and knocked down Isabel J. MacDonald of 13 Kendall street.

Miss MacDonald was picked up by Taylor and John Butler of 32 Forest street and taken to the Winchester Hospital where she was treated by Dr. Milton J. Quinn for contusions and abrassions to her head, shoulders, arms and legs.

Winchester friends of "Johnnie" Murphy, former three letter sport star at the local high school, will be glad to learn that at the complimentary dinner tendered the Exeter Academy football team just before the Christmas holidays, he was presented with a silver cup for the best end play during the past season. President Louis Perry of the Academy presented the cup to Murphy who has played varsity right end for the past two seasons. He is also captain of the nine, playing at first base.

COMING EVENTS

Jan. 1, New Year's Day. Open House by Masonic bodies of Winchester at Masonic Apartments from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. All Masons, whether affiliated with local lodges or not, cordially invited.

NOTICE

Next Friday being New Year's Day, the Star will be issued on Thursday. Advertisers and correspondents are urged to leave all copy at this office as early in the week as possible.

WINCHESTER WON FROM WOBURN

It was back in the days of 1910 that "Bob" Hamilton was tossing them in for Winchester High, and last night his son, "Shellie" busted into the Winchester-Woburn basketball picture to cage a last-minute foul shot to win a closely contested game for the locals by the hair-line score of 23—22. The game was played at Winchester and was packed with thrills.

It was literally the last minute of play and only a half a minute of that was remaining when Hamilton sank the leather. He had replaced Dolan at right forward and picked up two baskets and his all important foul shot while in the game.

Coolen of the visitors was high scorer with seven baskets for a total of 14, but aside from him the Tanners were well covered. Hal Knowlton was Wincehster's leading point gatherer with three goals and a foul shot for seven points. Winchester led at half time, 10—6.

Between the halves of the first team game the Woburn seconds won from the Winchester seconds, 22—17.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Members of the Board of Selectmen with Police Chief William H. Rogers visited the Police Department at Arlington Tuesday evening to inspect the broadcasting station and the radio patrol system in use there.

Fire Chief David H. DeCourcy and Samuel Symmes have been named by the Board to serve the town as forest warden and moth superintendent respectively for the coming year.

A license to sell lunches in the factories and elsewhere about town was denied James Olempere of Woburn by the Board of Selectmen at their meeting Monday evening.

The Board of Selectmen has voted to recommend to the town the proposed alteration of the existing street layout at Vine and Church streets, rounding away the present sharp corner to permit greater ease of exit and entrance.

Many in Winchester have spoken about the beauty of the Christmas decorations at the "Henderson place" on Ridge street. Two trees are illuminated with the old windmill, the whole in a setting of rare natural beauty making a picture well worth a trip to see.

Most of Winchester's churches had especially prepared Christmas services last Sunday, and in the afternoon pageants were staged at several. All pastors reported large attendances despite the weather. Services will be held on Christmas Day at St. Mary's Church and at the Church of the Epiphany.

The public schools closed Wednesday for the Christmas recess and will open Jan. 4.

Winchester's community Christmas tree was lighted Wednesday afternoon and adds a festive note to the town's business center.

Mrs. Jessie Ripley of Wedge Pond road, while going through the Common Monday, tripped over a wire and fell, injuring her knee. She was treated at the office of Dr. R. L. Emery and then taken to her home.

Raymond Bartlett of this town New Hampton School, 1928, is a member of the committee in charge of the Alumni reunion and dance, to be held Monday evening at the University Club in Boston. "Jim" Haley and "Buz" McNeill are Winchester boys who graduated from New Hampton last year.

Mr. Arnold C. Walker returned to Winchester last Saturday to spend the holidays with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Avard L. Walker of Rangeley ridge. He has been studying at the Kirksville College of Osteopathy and Surgery in Kirksville, Mo. and made the trip by automobile, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Warran P. Adams, 3rd of Lincoln. The trip of 1500 miles was made in about 40 hours.

Mrs. Henry C. Ordway of Myrtle street left last week-end to spend the winter at Claremont, Calif

PARENT-TEACHERS VOICE POLICY ON DANCING AND LEISURE

(From the December "Dancing Master")

The Parent-Teachers' Association of America has high standards. Their resolutions and attitudes are most commendable, and their recommendations on the uses of leisure time will particularly interest dancing teachers.

"We favor a positive program of education in the wise use of leisure.

"We urge a return to the home as a center of recreational life and call upon parents to set aside hours for leisure to be shared together by parents and children in the doing of those things which enrich the mind, strengthen the body, develop the soul, and add joy and beauty to home life."

Could anything call more loudly for increased use of the beautiful art of dancing? The development of such a form of expression, so highly individualized, and yielding such great returns in health and happiness, is assuredly an ideal occupation for leisure. It does just the things that all wise teachers, and parents, too, wish to see done to the characters of pupils and children,—"enrich the mind, strengthen the body, develop the soul."

"We urge that spiritual training and character education be fostered widely and generously. We especially commend those moves to give character education its rightful place in the school curriculum.

"We urge the inclusion in school and home programs of those activities which will foster in the child qualities that are fine and strong; that teach the love and power of beauty in human life, by cultivating in him an appreciation of the beautiful in nature, art, literature, music, drama and religion in all human relationships."

Here again, is a recommendation that calls for dancing. If schools and homes universally emphasized dancing as a form of play, recreation and exercise, made it as natural as walking or talking, there would be more beauty in human life, more happiness.

Anyone who has seen Mary Wigman dance or watched the only Povlowa create beauty by simply moving across the stage understands what the spitual significance of the dance can be.

But then, after friends of the P. T. A. have made us feel that they really understand what we are trying to do that fits into their idealistic program, we read this,

"We urge vigorous action against the use of children in entertainment and on the stage for the purpose of exhibition; and we further urge that every possible means be employed to discourage the offering by the exhibitors of prizes, free tickets, lotteries or gifts, as inducements to increase the attendance of children at motion picture and other theaters. We ask local associations to conform to these standards in their own organizations."

To a certain extent we agree. It is unkind both to audience and child to insist on a pupil attempting to go through a dance on the stage if the pupil has not the talent to do it well, and if he suffers so much from the stage fright that he cannot get any pleasure out of the performance. We agree that it is most undesirable to put small children, any size children for that matter, on the stage in sophisticated, grown-up numbers inappropriate to a child's personality and innocence. It is undesirable to put children on the stage if the surroundings will be detrimental to their character.

But there are too many benefits to be derived from stage performance to make it wise or necessary to make sweeping condemnations of it. In the first place, it is most unfair to keep a talented child from using his own talents. If his ability is more than average and he likes stage work—why keep him from it? He can give pleasure to others by his artistic work, and he can develop his own ability and personality.

Even the average child can learn much from the recital and stage show. He gains poise and self-confidence. He gets over the paralyzing stage fright that can be such a hinderance in adult life. He learns that only sincerity and hard work can succeed in the world back of the footlights,—and that lesson carries over.

The only drawback to children's appearing on the stage wherever they are qualified to do so, is in the case where theater conditions are undesirable. And then it is not the children's dancing that is to be condemned, but the adults' carelessness and laxness of standards.

"We ask the state branches to work for higher standards of commercialized amusements. We urge especially the control of questionable night clubs, dance halls, and road houses."

In this resolution all good citizens can stand together. The loveliest of arts demands the cleanest of settings. Teachers, parents and dancing masters unite in demanding the highest standards for our places of amusement.

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN

"Homicide Squad," with Mary Brian, Leo Carillo and Noah Beery as the stars will head the double bill that opens a seven day engagement at the Mystic Theatre in Malden on Saturday. "Homicide Squad" deals with the conflict between police and gangsters in a great city and gives a remarkably interesting exposition of the methods of the modern police force. Leo Carrillo gives an unusually fine characterization of an Italian-born gangster. "Homicide Squad" is perhaps the best of the gangster films and does not try to glorify these underworld terrorists.

"Cavalier of the West" with Harry Carey as the star, is the second feature on the Mystic program for Saturday. "Cavalier of the West" is a different type of action picture. As an Army captain, Harry Carey attempts to prove that his younger brother is unjustly accused of murder.

"Are These Our Children" the first picture to speculate dramatically on the conditions confronting boys and girls of high school age, is the main feature on the bill that ends its run on Friday. Played by a group of youngsters whose average age is 18, "Are These Our Children" tells an amazing story. Dolores Costello in "Expensive Women" is the second attraction on the bill now playing at the Mystic.

The morality play "Everyman" was the feature of an assembly program held last Wednesday, Dec. 16, 11:15 o'clock at Boston University College of Practical Arts and Letters. A cast of 15 took part in the play including Marjorie Hildreth of this town.

GRACE AND CHARM

By Frances Mandel

THE BREATH

What is more offensive than bad breath? Halitosis is the medical term for this obnoxious condition. How often we meet certain people whose breath is so repulsive that we shun them with horror. So many men and women wonder why it is that people refuse to associate with them. So many times the reason is—bad breath. We often see a beautiful woman, well dressed, and we are immediately attracted to her, but the moment we are near her, we lose every interest for her,—why?—bad breath.

Indigestion is in the main responsible for bad breath. Also your teeth if decayed or diseased will give forth a bad odor. If your system is in poor condition, nothing can take care of it but the treatment of a doctor. If it is your teeth, then your dentist can eliminate the trouble. You can however, do yourself much good by using antiseptic mouth washes and gargles,—also the use of breath tablets will help. Keep your breath clean and sweet always for the benefit of your own good health first of all, and you'll never have people evade you.

Frances Mandel will answer questions on Grace and Charm if you will enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope to Frances Mandel, 1030 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The December meeting held at the home of Mrs. Frank Rowe was well attended and very interesting. Members and friends brought generous contributions, and three boxes of good things were later packed by Mrs. Rowe our local director of Flower Missions and relief work. These boxes were sent to headquarters in Boston where a committee will distribute them to needy people before Christmas. Mrs. Anna Grosvenor gave such a graphic and realistic account of the recent state convention that each person present resolved to be present at the next state annual meeting. During the 15 minute period of current events, Mrs. Hamilton read a challenge to the Wets which has recently been received from the National W. C. T. U. headquarters. "We challenge the Wets to solve the liquor problem with anything better than total abstinence; we challenge the wets to produce a better educational program than the facts concerning alcohol as divulged by science; we challenge the wets to substitute something better than law observance. We challenge them to produce a program of liquor regulations which liquor men will obey and which can be guaranteed as a remedy for drunkenness, vice, lawlessness, corruption and waste. For 12 years the wets have sneered at prohibiton. What have they to offer?

THE BOYS' CLUB

To the Editor of the Star:

I am writing to you in behalf of the Boys' Club of Boston. The association with clubhouses in Charlestown and Roxbury provides recreational and educational centers for the youth of Boston.

The club needs books and magazines, as all the boys read and are always looking for more reading material. We should greatly appreciate it if the readers of this column would wrap up books and magazines and address them either to the Boys' Club in Charlestown or the Boys' Club in Roxbury. They would be benefitting two persons: themselves by disposing of the books, and the Boy's Club by giving the boys a chance to read something new.

Among the prominent people interested in the Boys' Club of Boston are George Bramwell Baker, Harris G. LeRoy, Howard Coonley, T. Jefferson Coolidge, Frank Stillman Mason, Rudolph Weld and many of Boston and vicinity.

Hoarded Paper Money

A United States treasury official estimates that the hoarding of paper money in this country amounts to about 50 cents per capita. That means $61,000,000 is tucked away in outlandish places.

Health in China

Water, sewerage and food offer the key to the health puzzle in China, declares Charlotte F. Kett, a Hygeia Magazine author. Chinese families are as a rule too poor to buy any food except that which is sold on the street. The water supply in Chinese cities is deplorably inadequate and the rivers serve as sewers, spreading infection among the vast hordes of people.

Warning to Gullible

The National Better Business bureau has issued a warning to prevent Americans from being victimized through the hope of sharing in some vast unclaimed estate said to be in chancery or held by the Bank of England awaiting disposition. The court of chancery has no such estates under its control and the Bank of England has no such funds.

HIGH SCHOOL DROPS OPENING BASKETBALL GAME TO ALUMNI FIVE

Winchester High School opened its basketball campaign last Friday evening in the local gymnasium, dropping the first game of its 1931-32 schedule to a strong alumni combination, 45—37.

Considering the fact that the high school had only one letter man in the lineup its showing against the graduates was nothing to cry about. The alumni lineup bristled with class, and the old timers started away as if to bury the high school boys.

Covering forwards like "Skin" Kendrick, "Willie" McNeil, "Stutz" DiMinico and "Frannie" Dolan is no mean job, and the inexperienced slhoolboy guards found the going rather rough in the first half which ended with the score 35—21 in the graduates' favor.

As the third quarter ended the margin between the two clubs was very slight and mid-way through the final period the graduates had a single basket edge with the score 39—37.

The alumni had two full teams available and at this point put in a fresh combination which proved too much for the tired schoolboys. With "Stutz" DiMinico doing some slick sharpshooting from the corners the graduates forged ahead to win by four baskets.

Hal Knowlton was the game's high scorer, sinking five baskets for 10 points. "Bonesy" Murphy, ex-Grinnell player, had 9 points to lead the graduates.

Between the halves of the first team game the alumni seconds won from the high school seconds, 16-6

Notes

For an opening game the basketball was not too bad at all. Most of the Alumni have been playing the game either in school and college or locally so they were by no means rusty. There were enough graduates on hand for two full teams, enabling the Alumni to throw fresh players against the high school when the latter threatened. This advantage just about meant the game.

Coach Lindemann's fight talk between the halves must have been a masterpiece, to judge by the improvement shown by the high school after intermission.

"Kingfish" Smith's leg which was badly infected during the football season didn't seem to bother him much, and "Olio" Lee didn't favor his gridiron knee appreciably during the battle.

"Dick" Murphy, with all his altitude, proved a hard man for the stubby high school boys to cover. At that he only lead Philbrick one point in scoring but was in the game only half as long.

Hal Knowlton and "Shellie" Hamilton were dropping them in after intermission and had a lot to do with the high school's scoring spurt.

It looked funny to see "Robbie" Robinson playing with a second team, but with Kendrick, McNeil, DiMinico and Dolan scoring 32 points among them, his sharp-shooting wasn't needed.

What Do You Give?

A New York vocational guidance expert advises people who are not happy in their jobs to save their money until they can make a change. She might say, too, that if people are not taking happiness out of their jobs they would do well to see that they are putting into those jobs everything they have to give. What you get out of your job in the way of contentment depends upon what you are willing to put into it in a day to day effort.—Grove Patterson, in the Mobile Register.

FAMILY WEEK AT THE UNIVERSITY THEATRE

A program for the entire family has been booked at the University Theatre for the week of Dec. 27. Every feature on the program, together with the short subjects, has been selected with the idea of presenting a program during the holiday season that will appeal to everyone, father, mother and the kiddies.

To enjoy a football game as no stadium-sitter, even the most football wise stadium-sitter, could enjoy it is the privilege offered to audiences in the presentation of "Touchdown" which starts Sunday for four days. For this picture, devised and played by the most impressive assemblage of gridiron and film authorities ever to be called into a "huddle" on a pigskin screen production, takes the beholder right into the hearts of those excited heroes and near-heroes who prepare and serve up the greatest American Saturday-afternoon thrilldish. Richard Arlen, Regis Toomey, Jack Oakie and J. Farrell MacDonald are featured members of the cast.

"Fanny Foley Herself," the companion feature, is said to be a "new" picture in every sense of the word. It is a refreshing story presenting a novel plot of motherlove, comedy, sacrifice and romance. It presents filmdom's newest star, Edna May Oliver. It is the first picture to be shown here made with the new Technicolor process and is filled with magnificent settings in their natural color.

"Mickey's Orphan" a Mickey Mouse Christmas reel, completes the program for the first half of the week.

Thrilling action, colorful spectacle, a strong story and sterling performances by an unusually capable cast combine to make "Suicide Fleet" truly the Navy's Big Parade. This sensational picture which comes Thursday for three days, has been produced on a big scale with quality keeping pace with production values. A story of the Navy, it uses not one warship but a fleet. In the sea battles actual ships are sunk by real shells in scenes as spectacular as any ever brought to the screen. Bill Boyd, Robert Armstrong and James Gleason head the cast

"Way Back Home," the companion feature, is the first starring film vehicle for Seth Parker of radio broadcast fame. It is a rustic comedy, with a real plot and all the atmosphere and humanness of Seth's broadcasts. Radio and movie players support Seth in the film.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

Two great pictures open their run at the big Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday when "Suicide Fleet," starring Bill Boyd and Robert Armstrong, divides the headline honors with George Bancroft's new hit "Rich Man's Folly." Thrilling action, colorful spectacle and sterling performances by an unusually capable cast combine to make "Suicide Fleet" an out-standing screen attraction. A story of the Navy, it uses not one battleship but a whole fleet. In the sea battles actual ships are sunk by real shells in scenes as spectacular as any ever brought to the screen. Splendid work is done by Bill Boyd, Robert Armstrong, James Gleason and Ginger Rogers.

"Rich Man's Folly" is hailed as the best George Bancroft picture n a long time. Bancroft is cast as a big ship-builder, a man of affairs in the business world and a dominant personality. Frances Dee, Robert Ames and Juliette Compton head Mr. Bancroft's supporting company.

"Girls About Town," with Kay Francis and Joel McCrea and "Riders of the Purple Sage" starring George O'Brien is the double bill that ends its run at the Granada on Friday.

Greek Discus Thrower Originated Quoit Game

The modern game of quoits is a descendant of the ancient Greek discus throwing, with two differences: the quoit is ring-shaped, flat on one side and rounded on the other, and the throwing test is one of accuracy rather than distance. There are few traces of it in Europe. It apparently originated in the border country of England and Scotland. It was one of the games prohibited in the reigns of Edward III and Richard II, in favor of archery. It is played with two pins 18 yards apart driven into the ground with one inch exposed, situated in the center of a circle of stiff clay three feet in diameter. Quoits are of any weight but usually of nine pounds. They must not exceed 8½ inches in diameter or be less than 3½ inches in bore, nor more than 2½ inches in web. Players must stand within 4½ feet of the center of the end and at one side. Each player has two quoits. In championship matches, quoits more than 18 inches from the pin are called foul and removed. Measurements are made from the middle of the pin to the edge of the quoit. Those on top are measured first. Quoits landing with the flat side up are fouls.

Why He Was in Bad

"A man never knows when he's burned his potatoes," observed Cash Miller, cigar store philosopher. "A poor fish in here recently says he's got trouble at home and don't know why. He always done right, he says, and even when he went to Niagara falls he was thoughtful enough to send his wife's mother a souvenir postal card of the whirlpool rapids, saying affectionately, 'I wish you were here.'"—Thrift Magazine.

Pellagra

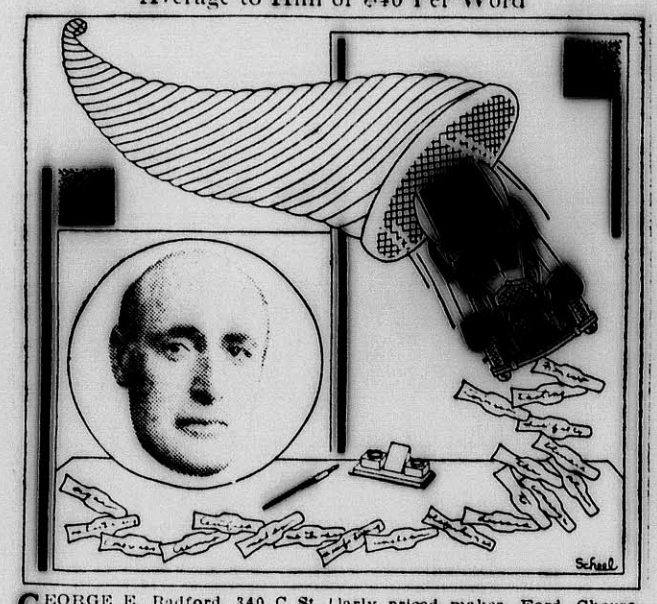
Dried yeast is as satisfactory in the treatment of pellagra as fresh yeast, says Hygeia Magazine. Other foods that are recommended for pellagra sufferers in regions where fresh food is unobtainable include liver extract, canned salmon and canned lean meat, all of which contain the antipellagra vitamin after they have been cooked for several hours.

So. Boston Man Gets Higher Price Per Word For Writing Than George Bernard Shaw

Wins New Automobile for Twenty Word Slogan at Average to Him of $40 Per Word



GEORGE E. Radford, 340 C St., So. Boston, Mass., has topped George Bernard Shaw and other literary lights in the price he receives per word for his writing, it was announced today. He has won a new car for a twenty word slogan submitted in the national Cremo Twenty Word Cigar Band Statement Contest. The price paid to him per word is around $40.

"An auto a day helps drive depression away" is the slogan which the American Cigar Company seems to be following in its contest for a 20 word statement descriptive of the merits of the Certified Cremo Cigar. Every day, Sunday excepted, until further notice, it is awarding a closed car, allowing a choice of the three leading popularly priced makes, Ford, Chevrolet, or Chrysler's Plymouth. Mr. Radford is the 104th to win an automobile in this contest.

In addition to stimulating the automobile business, the contest's popularity is creating a trail of jobs in its wake. The many thousands of letters which arrive at the company's offices every day are doing their bit toward giving the paper industry a boost. Dozens of extra employees are kept busy all day sorting the contest entries as they come in.

With responses pouring in from all parts of the country, it is pointed out that it is a real distinction to make up a statement that will stand out as a winner in the contest.

Favorite Recipes of a Famous Chef

As Told to Anne Baker
By FREDERIC FRANCOIS GUILLOT
Chef, Hotel Astor, New York City

Two old favorites prepared in Mr. Guillot's special way are offered here for the consideration of the American housewife.

Chef Guillot

Virginia Beef Tongue—Scrub the tongue. Place in saucepan, cover with water, and cook slowly until tender. Meanwhile prepare one cup stewed currants. Add currants to one cup of the water in which tongue was cooked. Add one cup sugar, one-fourth cup butter, one tablespoon cloves, and one-half lemon, sliced. Simmer tongue in this sauce for fifteen minutes. Place on serving dish with the sauce. Garnish with slices of lemon, and serve.

Scalloped Onions—To one quart strained, cooked tomatoes add two tablespoons flour, one tablespoon sugar, salt and pepper to taste. Simmer for fifteen minutes. Add two tablespoons butter. Halve eight medium-size onions and place in baking dish. Pour tomato sauce over onions, and bake for one hour in moderate oven.

Hints For Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

CANDIES make a delicious garnish for many simple desserts, and save the time necessary for preparing more elaborate ones. Try crumbling up chocolate fudge over junket or vanilla ice cream. Garnish cherry gelatine with quartered marshmallows and chopped candied cherries.

To make an old dust mop practically as good as new, put a large tablespoon of concentrated lye in a pail half full of boiling water and let the mop boil in it. Rinse thoroughly several times and put in the sun to dry. One or two tablespoons of kerosene added to the suds when boiling white clothes will make the clothes much whiter.

Where Mosquitos Breed

Mosquito larvae are hatched in water where they start life as swimmers. When they cast their final skins these split and float so the young mosquitos can rest on them until their own wings are dry enough for flight.

Easy Way of Inducing Bees to Change Abode

Bees often take up their abode where they are not wanted, as in a cavity in a wall. A good way to get them out is to put a bee "escape" over the entrance to the cavity, so the bees can get out but not in. A cone of wire cloth about 8 inches high with a hole at the apex just large enough for one bee to pass through will serve as an escape. A regular hive should be placed beside the entrance for the return of the escaped bees. The queen remains in the old cavity and goes on laying eggs, but as the colony is quickly reduced in size the quantity of the brood decreases. The younger bees leave the cavity and join the bees in the hive. A new queen should be given to the bees in the hive as soon as possible.

After about four weeks, remove the bee escape and make as large a hole as possible at the entrance of the cavity. The bees will go in for the honey and carry it to the hive. For this method to work successfully it is necessary that the bees have only one exit from the cavity.—United States Department of Agriculture.

Shakespeare's Zest in Life Shown in Writings

Shakespeare's enormous zest in life makes his earlier comedies a paradise of delight, writes Prof. Walter Raleigh, in My Magazine.

The love of pleasure, if it be generous and sensitive and quick to catch reflections, is hardly distinguishable from wisdom and tact. It has no respect for the self-torturing activities and energies of a vengeful and brooding mind, or for those bitter thoughts that spend themselves in a vain agony upon the immutable past.

Shakespeare's villains and evil characters are all self-absorbed and miserable and retrospective. Jealousy born of deprivation is a passion as common as mud. Deprivation sweetly taken, with no thought of doubling the pain by invoking a wicked justice, love that does not alter when it finds alteration but strengthens itself to make amends for the defects of others—these are the materials of the pinnacle whereof he raises his highest examples of human goodness. His own nature sought happiness as a plant turns to light and air; he pays his tribute of admiration to all who achieve happiness by ways however strange.

Boiling Water

Water boils at 212 degrees F. At 115 degrees a person finds water almost too hot to hold his hand in it. Fabrics that will not be injured by water can be freed of living clothes moth eggs and larvae by being dipped for 10 seconds in water heated to 140 degrees F. Care, however, must be exercised to have and keep the water at this or a greater temperature. Larvae and eggs in flannel dipped for 10 seconds in water heated only to 122 degrees F remain unaffected.

Birth Records in Canada

The clergy of the Catholic church in French Canada have been keeping careful registers of baptisms, marriages and burials since colonization began three centuries ago. No other country in the world can offer such a continuous series of birth records, says a report of the study of Canada's vital statistics.

TELEPHONE NUMBER 0029

With the desire to spread a little Christmas cheer, and learning that Winchester housed some thirty-five children, State wards and others, to whom Christmas was more or less a by-word, local Rotarians planned a turkey dinner for Thursday with these children as guests. Although the turkeys were bought, through the resourcefulness of Fred Scholl, the menu was hastily changed to lobster salad when it was found that meat could not be eaten on that day. The names of the State children were then refused by the bureau in charge at the State House, but this too, proved no obstacle, for they were obtained through other channels. But when State authorities forbid the attendance of these children the energy of "Nate" Nichols came into play and he started to climb up the ladder to the Governor's office. He got as far as the Chief Executive's secretary before the opposition capitulated and this phase was smoothed out. Whether the children took the presents provided for them is uncertain at this period, but Winchester Rotarians are usually successful in their undertakings and the STAR is inclined to the opinion that the party was a success.

The Boston Herald in a Wednesday morning editorial takes issue with the newspapers that "have recently published many protests against glaring headlights which blind the motorists approaching in the opposite direction," and feels that "the occasional 'blinding' headlight is a nuisance, but doesn't fluster the experienced motorist who has his car well under control." The Star holds no medal for experience, and in stopping the car possibly may come in the "fluster" class, but from observation it has felt for a long time that the headlight situation has gotten so far out of control that no attempt whatever is being made to enforce existing rules and regulations. The Star's estimate of glaring headlights is one car in five; the "one-eyed Mikes," one in every mile. So far as no tail light and no lights at all are concerned, they are so numerous that hardly a police officer bothers to notice them. Claiming title as an "experienced" motorist, we are more than willing to stop and let the "glarers" go by—as many other drivers do, but the big danger threatens the somberly dressed pedestrian who cannot be seen for a considerable distance during the "glarer's" approach and passing. The driver who strikes such a pedestrian is promptly condemned for reckless driving, although he may only have his car moving fast enough to avoid shifting gears, and with the abundance of blinding headlights now on the roads it is no wonder that some drivers "take a chance."

While it looked for a time as though even the Christmas decorations on our Common would be abandoned this year, the Star is glad to note that careful consideration of the feature resulted in their retention. In fact the Star is so pleased that it, too, has braved the point of becoming eccentric among Winchester firms, and has hung out its customary decorations along with the Savings Bank and the Laundry.

Women as Head Gardeners

More women in England are entering the ranks of gardeners than in any previous year. Those who have had special training are holding responsible and remunerative positions as head gardeners at schools and public institutions. Others are on private estates.

ARUBA ISLAND: WHERE FRESH WATER IS A LUXURY

Aruba islanders are alarmed because too many of its people are emigrating to other climes owing to the local business depression.

Less than ten years ago Aruba, which is almost mile for mile the size of the District of Columbia, was a quiet, arid spot in the Caribbean with about 2000 negro inhabitants who spent their time furnishing a large part of the world with a coarse variety of straw hats, aloes, which is found on drug store shelves and divi divi, which is an important accessory in tanning factories, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Oil Boomed Island

While aloes and divi divi continue to top the small quantity of exportable agricultural products, the traveler in Aruba, is, perhaps, more impressed by the newly constructed oil tanks that have sprung up like mushrooms near its coast.

When oil gushed from wells in the regions about Lake Maracaibo, Venezuela, oil men sought sites for refineries. Aruba, with plenty of labor, and only a score of miles from the Venezuelan coast, was one of the chosen spots, and acres of tanks soon formed a part of the island's panorama. Small tankers, loaded with crude oil began to form a continuous parade to and from the Venezuelan fields; and large ocean-going vessels with refined oil products cleared for distant ports of the world at frequent intervals.

Last year more than two and one-half million barrels of gasoline, more than 22,000,000 barrels of fuel oil, and nearly 1,000,000 barrels of gas oil, kerosene and Deisel oil were exported from Aruba refineries.

Lacks Water

Aruba's chief difficulty in commercial development has been its lack of water. Before the coming of the oil refineries, there was hardly enough water to quench the thirst of the population. Two years ago, Baltimore was visited by a tanker which tapped the city water mains for 25,000 barrels of water for Arubans and the island's new industry. Today water is eight cents a bucket in Aruba towns.

With the wet forests of Venezuela only slightly more than 20 miles away the average layman might ask why Aruba is so dry. There are no springs on the island. The inhabitants formerly depended upon their cisterns into which the water from light rainfalls was collected, but this source was hardly sufficient.

One authority says that mountains are necessary to take water out of the trade winds and Aruba's highest "mountain" happens to top the Washington Monument by only 20 feet. Another observer suggests that the warmth of Aruba's soil heats the air above the island, thus cutting down rainfall. Many storms sweep the sea near the Dutch West Indies but just when the natives' appetites for a good, long-sought downpour have been whetted, a storm usually peters out.

Use for Rice Grass

A rice grass that appeared in Essex, England, about 60 years ago, is being used to reclaim land from the sea and also to guard sea walls. It is a rush-like growth that has the peculiar property of collecting mud, thus raising the shore level inch by inch and adding shore land that can be used for pasture or tillage. The grass is being exported to other countries where it will be employed for the same purposes.

Gayly Colored Moth

The tapestry moth is not so common in the United States as the case-making or the webbing clothes moth, and is larger than either of them, having a wing expanse of about three-fourths of an inch. It is more strikingly colored. The head and basal third of its forewings are black, while the outer two-thirds of the wings are creamy white, though more or less obscured on the middle with gray. The legs are uniformly pale gray.

ININI MAY SOON BE FAMILIAR NAME ON SOUTH AMERICAN MAPS

France has announced plans for the development of French Guiana, midget of the three European Guianas, on the north coast of South America.

Preceding this development a coastal belt retains the name of Guiana, while the interior is being organized as a colony—a colony which has been designated Inini.

Most of the 24,000 square miles of inland French Guiana, now called Inini, is unknown to the white man, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society. Protected by French soldiers, imported laborers from Annam will penetrate the tropical forests, now the bailiwick of Indians and Bushmen.

Sir Walter Raleigh Sought Its Riches

The French have governed this colony since early in the 17th century. First French arrivals encountered Indians. Later they met hostile Bush Negroes, descendants of Africans brought to the colony in slave-trading times, who had escaped to the bush.

French Guiana is about as large as South Carolina. The French utilize only a narrow strip along the coast where about one-half of the colony's 50,000 inhabitants live. Stories of riches brought many European treasure seekers to the South American colony during the early French occupation. Sir Walter Raleigh joined one of the expeditions.

Gigantic National Penitentiary

Frequent attempts of the French to colonize Guiana failed. In 1763 a French colonizing company sent some 12,000 eager emigrants to the Guiana shores. The party included jewelers, dancing masters, dressmakers, and a few experienced farmers. Most of them perished from tropical diseases and hard work.

Later the French Government made the colony and its off-shore islands a gigantic national penitentiary. Today nearly every town along the coast is dominated by the somber walls of a prison. Outside the walls pass men who have served parts of their sentences but have been liberated for the remainder of their terms to earn a living in the colony.

Many of the 15,000 inhabitants of Cayenne, the capital and largest town, are prisoners who are serving the latter portion of their sentences. Among them are lawyers, doctors, artists, engineers and skilled artisans. Few leave the coast to help open the interior.

Disease and Labor Present Problems

While disease has been a drawback to the progress of French Guiana, labor has presented the major problem. Convict labor has been tried without great success. Bush Negroes refuse to work, emigrants become traders in the towns, and the Indians who have been driven far back into the forests are not available. As a result there is neither a railroad nor a good road into the interior. The only commercial highways are the rivers and none of them can be navigated by steam much farther inland than 50 miles.

Foreigners imported to penetrate the wilderness have failed to remain beyond the borders of civilization. A glance at a coastal town reveals such emigrants mingling daily with French Government employees. There are Chinese, settlers from Martinique, natives from Indo-China, Arabs from northern Africa, and negroes from Senegal.

If all the inhabitants were evenly distributed over the country there would not be two inhabitants for each square mile. The warehouses of Cayenne, the only port of consequence, give an inkling of the vast resources of the colony—timber, cacao, balata, and other products of the forest.

Gold has long been one of French Guiana's leading exports. Known deposits of silver, copper, iron, lead, mercury and phosphate also await development while the rosewood industry is in its infancy.

PALMERSTON ISLANDS: A FAMILY AFFAIR

The crew of the freighter which was blown off its course between the United States and Australia, onto Palmerston Islands, had a different reception from that accorded Cook who discovered the islands in 1774, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

The recent visitors found the Palmerstons inhabited by more than 80 people—almost white. But Cook found only shrubs and coconut palms. He recorded, "There were no traces of inhabitants having been here; if we excepted a small piece of canoe that was found on the beach; which probably may have drifted from some other land."

Rats Were Only Foreign Inhabitants

But what is pretty extraordinary, he continues, we saw several brown rats on this spot; a circumstance, perhaps, difficult to account for unless we allow that they were imported in the canoe of which we saw the remains.

The Palmerstons lies about 2100 miles from Auckland, New Zealand, on a straight line between that city and Los Angeles, Calif. There are eight unimportant islets in the group. The freighter which recently surprised the inhabitants was the first to touch the islands in five years.

If all the islets were drawn together they would hardly cover an area more than one mile square. The northern islands are low and sandy and without vegetation. The southerly islands, however, are covered with luxuriant growth, including many coconut palms.

Islands Saved Cook's Cattle

Cook filled his larder with Palmerston coconuts, feasted upon the large variety of fish and birds and fed his cattle on young coconut trees and palm cabbage. Cook wrote, "We were under absolute necessity of procuring from this island some food for the cattle, otherwise we must have lost them."

Palmerston is clearly a family affair—the family of a white man who was sent there with a group of Tahiti laborers about the time the Civil War was getting under way in the United States. When the lessee of the island died, the lease passed to the white "boss." Every inhabitant of Palmerston and many natives who have gone to other Pacific Islands, are descendants of the white man. His descendants number more than 200. English is spoken by the islanders but lack of frequent contact with other English-speaking peoples has given rise to some strange twists of the language.

First American Flag

A standard with 13 alternate blue and silver stripes, carried by the Philadelphia Troop of Light Horse in 1775, is the first known attempt to provide a national flag. At Cambridge, Mass., on January 2, 1776, General Washington, acting on his own initiative, raised a flag consisting of 13 alternate white and red stripes with the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew in a blue field in the upper left-hand corner. Under various designations, this was employed until displaced by the Stars and Stripes, adopted by the Continental congress, June 14, 1777.

Brains and Brawn

Contrary to the popular notion that brains and brawn do not mix, that the weakling is one cut out for intellectual endeavors, it would seem that the opposite is true, Calvin T. Ryan points out in Hygeia Magazine. Health goes hand in hand with intellectual prowess, and physical fitness is necessary for leadership.

Testing Metal

Deep Sea

Right up to the middle of the last century scientists spoke of the deep sea as being devoid of life.

Ocean Depths

The average depth of all the oceans and seas is supposed to be from two to two and one-half miles. Soundings in the Pacific average about 12,960 feet; in the Atlantic, 12,200 feet; in the Indian ocean, 11,136 feet, and in the Antarctic 10,800. The Japanese sea averages about 7,320 feet, the Gulf of Mexico 4,632 feet, the Mediterranean a little less, and the Baltic only about 122 feet.

A successful method of keeping the house plant fresh during a week's absence is to soak a large sponge well with water and place it on the dirt in the pot. The plant will absorb enough water to keep it in good condition during your stay.

Immense Brass Brain Figures Out the Tides

In a room of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey building at Washington is a great machine which answers to the name "Great Brass Brain." Its function is to predict tides with the utmost exactness at any place in the world, or to tell the state of the tides at any moment in the past.

This robot is a marvel of wheels and pulleys. Tides rise and fall with mathematical exactness, but there are a large number of forces acting upon them, such as the moon, the motion of the earth, and many other things. The machine takes into account 37 of these factors in its mechanical calculations.

Its chief purpose is to help in setting time schedules for ship movements, but it is also useful to the historian.

For instance, the delay of the British expedition which landed at Charlestown in 1775, which gave Paul Revere the chance to save the countryside, has been ascribed to their waiting for low tide. Brass Brain, however, showed that the tide was low when the British landed, so that they must have been waiting for something else, probably provisions.

The Squirrel

A teacher of the fifth grade had read a description of a squirrel, preparing the children to write about the squirrel in their own words. After some explanation of the words she had used, the teacher urged the pupils to describe his motions and actions. She received the following result from a future author:

"The squirrel shows that he is cunning by undulating his graceful tail as he eats nuts."

Ice Age Homes Reproduced

SNOW, MASTER CRAFTSMAN OF THE WINTER LANDSCAPE

A "White Christmas," traditional holiday of song and story, would not be possible without that master craftsman, snow.

While it is customary to associate snow only with winter, snow formations occur within almost all turbulent storm clouds, during every season and in all climates, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Infinite Variety of Form

In the Torrid Zone, and in summer in the Temperate Zones, its formation is, of course, confined to the frigid upper part of the storm-clouds. It melts and is converted into rain when it falls below a certain altitude, except upon high mountains. This fact accounts for snow the year round on the peaks of the "Mountains of the Moon," in Africa, and of the Andes, in Ecuador, both of which cross the Equator.

Not all the beauty of snowflakes, however, is en masse, as a mantle for fields, roads, trees and houses. Under a microscope snowflakes reveal a bewildering variety of forms—solid and branching crystals of rare loveliness. Although snow crystals, both of the same and of different storms, strangely resemble one another and possess features in common, new patterns are continually being wrought in Nature's cloudland laboratory.

Those who have taken up the study of snow crystals report that no two snowflakes are exactly alike. Nearly all, however, are hexagonal, or six-pointed. The natural form of ice (water) crystal is the triangle, but such forms in snow are of rare occurrence, appearing only during very cold temperatures. Jewelers, art craftsmen, art teachers, metal workers, wallpaper designers, and silk manufacturers frequently find inspiration for art designs in the varied and symmetrical forms of snowflake gems.

How Snow Is Photographed

The wondrous beauty of the tiny individual crystals of snow attracted attention in very early times. References to them are found in many ancient writings. In the Book of Job is the inquiry, "Hast thou entered into the treasurers of the snow?" But it is only in comparatively recent times, since the advent of dryplate photomicrography, that their beauty has been fully realized and portrayed.

Snow crystals must be photographed practically out of doors in a low temperature. One method is to catch the snowflake on a piece of soft black velvet. The camera is then placed over it, and the dark, contrasting background shows up the crystal in all its beauty. Details of the outline are made clearer by cutting away the image from the photographic film.

THE AMAZING CAREER OF THE COFFEE BEAN

Coffee, not coal, may soon haul passengers and freight on Brazilian trains. After dumping tons of coffee into the ocean and burning other tons to avert a crash in the coffee market, Brazilian government officials announce that coffee will be pressed into bricks and tried out as fuel in locomotives.

Coffee is a prolific stepchild of Brazil, for the original home of the coffee plant is Ethiopia, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Goat Started the Coffee Ball Rolling

But coffee has by no means been given the proverbial treatment of a stepchild, continues the bulletin. Its beans have been fondled to build up enormous fortunes, cities, towns and railroads. The coffee bean started its world-wide rambling from the Ethiopian hills centuries ago. Tradition has it that its stimulating effect was discovered by a priest when he investigated the plants consumed by his herd of goats because the animals refused to take their proper rest. His tests led to the cultivation of the coffee plant.

Shortly after its discovery, coffee "jumped" the Red Sea and began sprouting along the southern coast of Arabia, home of the famous Mocha coffee. In the 15th century, the aroma of coffee rose from European coffee pots and when colonization got under way in the West Indies and South America, coffee beans were among some of the early cargoes from Europe.

There are about 80 species of coffee but only a few are cultivated for commerce. The cinchona tree, from the bark of which quinine is produced, is one of coffee's botanic relatives. So is gambier, which furnishes tanning material and dyes that bear the same name.

Moslems Banned Use of Coffee

In its meteoric rise coffee has had its up and downs. Its first use was in the form of a paste which was eaten. Moslems, prohibited from drinking wine, took to coffee. Moslem leaders, upon learning coffee's stimulating effect, called a meeting at Mecca and banned its use in 1511. Fanatics burned the coffee warehouses, raided the coffee houses and beat the shop proprietors with their brewing utensils.

The ban lasted only 13 years in Egypt where Sultan Selim denounced it, and further impressed his feeling upon his subjects by executing two Persian doctors who warned against coffee drinking. Egypt now is among the world's leading coffee consumers. Some Egyptian peoples even use the beverage in connection with religious rites.

Plantations Mark Every Continent

A "coffee map" would show that nearly all coffee is grown between the Tropics of Cancer and Capricorn. All Central America, and a wide coastal rim around the northwest shoulder of South America, including Ecuador, Bolivia and Peru on the Pacific, and Colombia, the Guianas on the Atlantic and southern Mexico are large producing areas. Plantations also dot Jamaica, Haiti, Porto Rico and Santo Domingo.

Liberia, Sierra Leone, portions of southern Nigeria and the coastal zones of the Belgian Congo, Angola, Mozambique, Kenya, Ethiopia and Madagascar are the African coffee regions, while the Arabian Peninsula, the southern tip of India and Ceylon are the coffee regions of Asia. Queensland, Australia's "sugar bowl" state, is also its "coffee can," while coffee berries brought from Liberia have made Java a synonym for good coffee. Java's neighboring islands also are developing the coffee industry.

The world's leading coffee-producing region is a pear-shaped district on the Atlantic coast of Brazil in the "backyard" of Rio de Janeiro. The prosperity of Sao Paulo state rises and falls with the rise and fall of the coffee industry. Coffee built its fine modern capital which bears the name of the state, its excellent railroad system and its good roads. The railroad leading from Sao Paulo, the so-called coffee capital of the world, to Santos, the world's greatest coffee port, is one of the richest steel highways in the world because it is literally a coffee funnel with the small end of the funnel set in ships' holds at Santos.

Alva Declared Creator of United Netherlands

William the Silent is closely connected with the three hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Dutch nation, writes P. C. Gordon Walker in the London Daily Telegraph, though in reality he did all he could to frustrate the emergence of a separate Dutch nation, his ideal being a United Netherlands, including the modern Belgium. It is Alva, the Spanish general, whose name should be in Dutch mouths as the chief creator of Holland, instead of being reviled as the cruelest persecutor in history. For he found the Netherlands a single, undivided district, with Calvinism and Catholicism evenly spread over the country, and with greater linguistic difference between the Walloons, the Flemish and the Dutch than there was between Dutch and Germans.

Alva it was who forced this district into nationalism by driving Calvinism and trade into the North. When he retired in 1573 Holland had become a separate nation. William the Silent had resisted this, and three years later he made a determined effort to reunite the whole Netherlands. He failed, and one of the causes of his failure was this Union of Utrecht which Holland celebrates but which was made behind William's back and to his displeasure.

Thus twice William fought against the isolation of Holland, but from the Union of Utrecht to his murder five years later he recognized the new facts and fought for Holland as a country against Spain.

Historic English Mill Yields to Father Time

The relentless hand of time, aided and abetted by the heavy gunfire of modern war, and strengthened by a little final push from the wind, has brought destruction upon one more landmark connected with the early history of the United States.

The old mill at Billericay in Essex, England, from near which the Pilgrims set sail for the new land, has collapsed. Its huge beams of solid oak, which stood the strain and stresses of time and work from the days of Pilgrims down to the outbreak of the World war, have at last found their burden too heavy, and, as the foundations weakened, gave way during a storm.

The old mill was closed during the war, as the location was considered too dangerous for the grinding of the grain of the nearby countryside. Later it fell under suspicion as a rendezvous of German spies and was boarded up. Heavy gunfire was frequent in this section, and the vibrations gradually weakened the old structure.

At a house, close by the mill, was the scene of the meeting of the Pilgrim band just before it set sail for America. Close by, also, another pilgrim, but one bent upon destruction, came to the end of its journey, for one of the large German Zeppelins fell in a field adjacent to the mill.

The construction of the mill was almost entirely of oak, and the huge shaft for the wheel was a tremendous oak trunk. No nails or spikes of any kind were used in the construction.

IN the preparation of meats the housewives of the various countries of Europe have developed innumerable ways of varying the flavor of the same inexpensive cut. Beef has been, and is, a piece de resistance in almost every country in the world, and it is surprising to note how often a bay leaf, a judicious use of sugar, or some other seasoning will lend variety and accent to the richness of its flavor.

Beef Piquante—(French)—Dredge two pounds of bottom round steak with flour and pepper. Saute in four tablespoons of beef or bacon fat, with a small slice of onion, until well browned on both sides. Add three cups of water or meat stock, one slice of lemon, one slice of orange, one tablespoon of sugar, one teaspoon of salt and one-half cup dried apricots. Bring to the boiling point and cook slowly for one hour. Thicken a little, add more salt if necessary, and serve.

Deviled Beef—(English) — Cut two pounds of top or bottom round of beef into convenient sizes for serving. Dredge with flour and pepper. Saute quickly on both sides. Add one-half cup of diced onions and the following mixture:

|---|---|
| 1 tsp. mustard | 2 cups stock |
| 1 tbsp. sugar | 1 bay leaf |
| ½ cup vinegar | Salt to taste |

Simmer slowly until tender and serve with boiled carrots which have been fried in butter.

Pickled Beef—(German)—Soak a six pound piece of top sirloin of beef in the following mixture for one week. Turn the meat once a day, adding vinegar enough to keep it covered.

| | |
|---|---|
| 4 cups vinegar | ½ tsp. peppercorns |
| 1 large onion cut up | 4 tbsp. sugar |
| 1 tsp. powdered clove or 4 whole cloves | 1 large bay leaf |
| | 1 stalk celery |
| ½ tsp. allspice | Pinch of thyme |

Allow from two and one-half hours to three hours for roasting. Dot or lard generously with salt pork or beef fat. Place in a roasting pan. Pour over one cup of the liquor in which the beef has been soaking. Bake in a hot oven, uncovered, for fifteen minutes. Baste, cover, and roast in medium heat from two to three hours. Baste frequently, adding salt and more liquor if necessary. Thicken the browned liquor for gravy. This is as appetizing cold as it is hot.

UNITED STATES AS WORLD PRESCRIPTION COUNTER

Uncle Sam on board ship in a gallon hat, stars and stripes suit, carrying a little black satchel in one hand and grasping a hypodermic needle in the other.

That is the picture that American medicinal export figures paint. Particularly is it the picture drawn by the biologicals, that is, the antitoxins, the serums and the vaccines, which have become the largest single item in the extensive ranks of the medicinals.

New High Export Level

American exports of biologicals are expected to top $2,000,000 in value for the first time in 1929, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society on the United States' role in fighting disease all around the world.

Approximately one-tenth of the serums, antitoxins and vaccines for humans and animals produced in the United States now go to the near and far ends of the earth. Figures collected by the Department of Commerce will show during 1929 for the first time what proportion of the biologicals are for animals and what proportion for humans. Estimates for the first eight months indicate that four-fifths of the supplies go abroad to protect humans against typhoid fever, diphtheria, tetanus (lock jaw), rabies, pneumonia, smallpox and the like. The remainder guard animals from the ravages of hog cholera, anthrax, black leg, foot and mouth diseases and similar plagues.

When Uncle Sam Plays Nurse

The intensive research work of the medical profession in the United States, the high standards of sanitation and precaution set by the Hygienic Laboratory of the U. S. Public Health Service and followed by the giant drug manufacturing companies, combine to make the United States a chief consultant when nations take sick with an epidemic disease.

Ground mummy dust from Egypt was a favorite drug of Europe until the 18th century and the absurdity of this remedy makes moderns smile. No more strange, but more seriously true, is the fact that the pulverized frozen spinal cords of rabbits, killed by virus in Cleveland or Indianapolis, will save the life of a Chinese bitten by a mad dog in Shanghai.

Vaccine, serum and antitoxin production and distribution has sprung up in 25 years. Every agent of this medicinal group has been standardized since Pasteur's famous discovery of the vaccine to thwart rabies in 1894. Jenner, 100 years earlier, had proved that a mild case of cowpox would make a person immune from smallpox, but his application of the vaccination principle continued by rule of thumb until Pasteur made his experiments.

While our forefathers were fighting the Revolutionary War 600,000 Europeans were dying annually of smallpox. Probably more American Indians died from that plague than from bullets. Everybody took it. Survivors, white or red, carried pox marks to their graves.

Horses Supply Diphtheria Antitoxin

A few hundred head of calves now annually save half a million Americans from death by smallpox. A few horses, standing patient in their super-sanitary stalls, contribute the serum that gives hope of blotting out the peril of dephtheria. The chances of recovery of a child or an adult taken sick with diphtheria 25 years ago were only 2 to 1; now, by virtue of the few horses a diphtheria patient's chances are 10 to 1. Medical authorities believe that proper co-operation by parents and doctors can reduce the diphtheria death rate to nil.

Cattle, horses, snakes, rabbits and guinea pigs are the living machines of the United States biologicals industry. They manufacture precious products worth $20,000,000 annually.

Guinea pigs deserve to be included in the list although they are rarely, if ever, producing units of the biologicals business. Guinea pigs are to biologicals what scales and chemical analyses are to other industries. New lots of serum and vaccine must be tested for quantity and quality on guinea pigs before they are released for use in human beings.

One buys a pound of salt, a ten per cent solution of iodine and chemically certified milk, but one buys, it may be said, a guinea pig's worth of antitoxin. The antitoxin unit is defined as "that amount of antitoxin which just suffices to protect a guinea pig of 250 grams weight against 100 times the minimal lethal dose of diphtheria toxin."

Vaccine, Serum and Antitoxin

Vaccine, serum, and antitoxin are three confusing words. Vaccines contain limited numbers of disease-causing bacteria which are introduced into the body in such numbers that the body builds up a resistance against them and also against chance infection by similar disease bacteria. Antitoxins are antibodies contained in serum, which is lymph separated from red corpuscles of blood—usually blood from horses.

Certain bacteria give off toxins which poison the body, as in diphtheria cases. Diphtheria, induced by man in horses, results in the creation within the horse's blood stream of antitoxins which offset the poisoning effect of the toxins. These antitoxins drawn from a horse in serum and introduced into humans, help the human body resist the toxins originating in bacteria the body may harbor.

The list of human ills now believed susceptible to the effects of vaccines and antitoxins lengthens yearly. It includes the familiar names already mentioned and scarlet fever, streptococcic infections, influenza, whooping cough, and others.

At present New World countries buy most of the biologicals going into the foreign trade. The principal purchasers are Argentina, Cuba, Mexico, Spain, Canada and the United Kingdom. Other countries that look to the United States to help cure the ills of their people and their animals are Portugal, British India, Colombia, Australia, China, Peru, Chile, Venezuela, the Philippine Islands and the Union of South Africa.

BETHLEHEM, THE HOME OF CHRISTMAS

Again Christmas recalls the Palestine settlement of Bethlehem, birthplace of Jesus, and the most famous small town in the world. Motor cars now vie with the camel, the ox and the ass in its narrow streets, and an occasional airplane drones overhead, but in many respects Bethlehem has remained unchanged since the days of Abraham and the first Christmas.

We all know of Bethlehem as a small town in Judea and sing about it in our carols, writes John D. Whiting in a communication to the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society, but probably few realize how much it still contains that helps us to visualize the first Christmas.

A Town on a Hilltop

To those who know it well—its narrow, winding streets and lanes, cobblestone paved; its age-old homes, with walls of rough-cut stones grown mellow with years of sunshine; its vineyards, olive yards, and terraced gardens; and, most of all, its people and their Biblical customs—it still speaks vividly of the Nativity story, Mr. Whiting continues.

The town, crowning a hill and dominating open valleys to the east and south, lies just far enough away from the busy road that links Jerusalem and Hebron to be undisturbed by congested traffic. With the exception of a handful of Moslem neighbors, its 6000 hospitable inhabitants are all Christians and live together in amity.

Craftsmen in Pearl and Silver

As we pass through the confined thoroughfares, now under a vaulted archway, now up by a steep flight of street steps, we may hear the hum and screech of tools carving pearl shell into ornaments or cutting thick sections of the same material into beads. The result may be a brooch, pendant, or necklet to bring joy to a lady upon the return of the pilgrim purchaser to some distant land. It may be an intricately carved ant inlaid crucific to hang, perhaps, on the wall of some small, lonely chapel; or it may be a snow white rosary mounted with pure silver, destined to find its way into a convent.

These handicrafts, which, according to local standards, have brought at least a decent living, sometimes have been the avenues to modest wealth. Best of all, the industries have cultivated a sense of independence and self-respect in the natives.

The places of work are by no means sweatshops, although hours of labor are long and hard; nor do they savor of the factory. The shop consists of a room in the home or adjoining it. Sometimes only the members of a family work together; at other times a few outsiders are employed.

A Church of Three Sects

The Church of the Nativity, in the eastern part of town, is one of the oldest existing churches in Christendom, if not the oldest, one of the few used in common by the three sects of Christianity.

Built A. D. 330 by the Emperor Constantine and added to by Justinian, it became in the fifth century the home of St. Jerome, who here translated the Old Testament from the Hebrew. Since that time it has gone through many vicissitudes and restorations.

To know Christmas in Bethlehem, one should pass it not in the old churches, historically interesting though they be, but under the star-studded dome of the great out-of-doors, with the shepherds watching over the flocks in the field by night.

When the village pastures have been expended, the shepherds withdraw into the wilderness. With no caves or cotes for nightly protection, they club together and from eve until morning keep vigilant watch. I have spent many nights with these simple people, out in the open desert.

Christmas With the Shepherds

After the evening meal, the chief sets the watches, for it is already dark in this land of short twilights. Taking for a guide a bright star, he measures with outstretched arm its course through the sky. Each span is to be one watch, in which two will keep guard together.

Now the first guards, with rod and staff, move about the outside edge of the flock. From time to time the yelp of a wild jackal or the laugh of a striped hyena causes the sheep to stir as if to stampede; but reassuring calls from the watchers quickly restore quiet.

The shepherds not on guard lie down to rest, spacing their places of repose in a rough circle around the fold.

The first three or four watches bring the midnight to deepen the star-studded indigo. Silhouetted against the sky is the faint rim of the mountains that shut out the world and more than 1900 years of time. It is as if the world were transplanted into the past. St. Luke's account of the First Christmas repeats itself: "And there were in the same country shepherds, abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flocks by night."

When the pink of dawn heralds the birth of a new day, the shepherds are astir, talking one to the other. As they start up the inclines, it seems almost that they are saying, "Let us now go even unto Bethlehem and see this thing which has come to pass."

CHINCHOWFU, TEMPORARY CHINESE "CAPITAL" OF MANCHURIA

Chinchowfu, chief city of the "panhandle" region of southwestern Manchuria, 146 miles southwest of Mukden, has been made temporary "capital" of the territory and a concentrating point of Chinese troops under Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang.

Situated on the narrow strip of coast line and on the only railroad which links China and Manchuria, Chinchowfu is one of the most strategically located cities in the Far East, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. For the Chinese it is the only open "front door" to Manchuria.

Mountains, Deserts and the Great Wall

If the Chinese choose to check any further advances of Japanese forces in southern Manchuria at Chinchowfu they will be standing almost literally with "their backs to the wall. "Chinchowfu is the first important Manchurian city beyond Shanhaikwan, where the Great Wall of China comes down to the sea—or, to be more exact, to the Gulf of Chihli. North and west of Chinchowfu rise the mountains and desert plateaus of Inner Mongolia. South of the city stretch the tidal flats of a branch of the Gulf of Chihli, the Gulf of Liaotung. Anyone passing along the narrow coastal plain, therefore, would have to deal with walled Chinchowfu, astride the middle of it.

Chinchowfu itself is a metropolis of about 80,000 population. Much of its newer part spreads beyond the ancient walled city, especially northward in the vicinity of the railroad terminal. As Chinchowfu is also a junction point for a branch line into Inner Mongolia its extensive railroad yards include locomotive sheds, railway division headquarters, a hospital and storage warehouses. Between the station and the walled city are big military barracks. The provincial government office is temporarily located in the University of Communications, north of the tracks.

In addition to its importance as a railway and military center Chinchowfu also is a shipping point for the greatest fruit and cotton raising region of Manchuria—the near-by Liao River Valley. Shallow draft boats may ascend a tidal river to its wharves to receive fruit brought by train and carts, but most of its waterborne commerce is carried on through the new harbor at Hulutao, with which Chinchowfu is connected by a spur railway line. Chinese authorities in Manchuria hope to make this port a rival of Dairen, in the Japanese concession of Kwantung.

Same Latitude as New York City

The growing of cotton centers mainly in Liaoyang, but the district extends westward to Chinchowfu, and most of the Chinese development of cotton raising is near the latter city. American upland cotton has been grown successfully, and, although the region is no rival of the Nile or Dixie, it produces enough of the fiber to meet local demands. Chinchowfu itself is in about the same latitude as New York City, and, while its winters are colder than New York, the thermometer leaps to the other extreme in summer.

South Manchurian fruits, however, eclipse all other products of the district. This part of Manchuria is a great fruit belt of the Far East—extending from Chinchowfu on the west to Liaoyang on the east, and up the Liao River Valley beyond Mukden. Fruit from southern Manchuria has both a fine aroma and flavor, because of favorable atmospheric conditions during the growing and ripening seasons. Manchurian pears and grapes are especially prized in Chinese markets.

The district along the coast south of Chinchowfu is the best grape-growing section. Products of this region have an advantage in export trade because they have thick skins and remain fresh longer. Several varieties of Manchurian grapes have strange but euphonious names—such as Dragon Eyes, Pink Chicken Hearts, etc. In addition to grapes and pears the district is also famous for apples and peaches, most of which are exported to Japan.

Chinchowfu is often spelled merely "Chinchow," and thus is confused with the Chinchow in the Japanese concession of Kwantung. The latter, known to the Chinese as Chinchowting, was the scene of several of the hardest fought battles of the Russo-Japanese War and is also a place of strategic importance. Several other cities in the interior of China are called Chinchow.

Chinchowfu is not exactly a new name to American newspaper readers and students of world affairs. In 1909 it was mentioned in connection with Secretary Knox's "neutralization plan of Manchurian railways." American and British bankers then had a concession for building a railway from Chinchowfu north to Aigun, on the Amur River, but nothing came of the concession when the "neutralization plan" fell through.

AMENDMENT TO ZONING BY-LAW

TOWN OF WINCHESTER, MASS.

—a—

VOTED, That the Town's Zoning By-Law be and is hereby amended by altering the zoning map therein referred to so that the land at the Southwesterly corner of Harvard Street and Washington Street indicated and defined on said map as a business district, shall hereafter be a general residence district.

—b—

VOTED, That the Town's Zoning By-Law be and is hereby amended by altering the zoning map therein referred to so that the land bounded Northerly by Irving Street, Easterly by Washington Street, Southerly by Harvard Street and Westerly by the Semi Residence District, indicated and defined on said map as a business district shall hereafter be a general residence district.

—c—

VOTED, That the Town's Zoning By-Law be and is hereby amended by altering the zoning map therein referred to so that the land at the Northwesterly corner of Irving Street and Washington Street indicated and defined on said map as a business district shall hereafter be a general residence district.

—d—

VOTED, That the Town's Zoning By-Law be and is hereby amended by altering the zoning map therein referred to so that the land on the Southwesterly corner of Forest Street and Washington Street indicated and defined on said map as a business district shall hereafter be a general residence district.

Bloom of Rice Plant Varies in Localities

Temperature plays an important part in the flowering of the rice plant. Rice flowers are relatively inconspicuous, but an official of the United States Department of Agriculture, who works on the improvement of the rice crop, has studied the blooming habits of the plant in connection with the cross-breeding of varieties.

The rice plant blooms suddenly and for only a short time. One observer noted a complete opening of the flower in thirty seconds. The blooming continued for only about two hours. Rice flowers are rarely open before the sun has warmed the earth and air, and they close before the sun is far down. In the United States and in Japan the rice blooms later than in warmer areas, such as Java, India and the Philippine Islands. In India, observers say, rice will not bloom until the temperature has reached 77 degrees Fahrenheit. But there the temperature runs high as a rule and rice blooms most freely in the early morning hours soon after the dew evaporates, and the flowers close before the heat of noon. In California the maximum period of bloom is the two hours after noon.

Rice has a complete flower, and usually fertilizes itself. It "breeds true," and there is little cross-fertilization. The pollen from the stamens fertilizes the stigma in the same plant, usually before or at the time the flower opens.

Ambidexterity

Tests by a university professor in Philadelphia demonstrated that about 20 per cent of all persons are ambidextrous, 65 per cent right-handed and 15 per cent left-handed.

De Luxe Tours TO CALIFORNIA

Small private car parties to California leave during Jan., Feb. and March, arranged to travel by daytime, seeing all places of greatest interest, most comprehensive sightseeing, including all expenses and the best of everything at a moderate cost. The Class of 1929 of the New England Deaconess Hospital, of which Miss Mable Schroder of 43 Church street is a member, held a dance at Kopper Kettle Tea Room last Friday night. Mrs. Anna Schroder, the proprietor, had the rooms beautifully and artistically decorated with Christmas trimmings which made a very pretty setting for the throng of merry dancers. The Colonial Singing Orchestra of Newton furnished rhythmic music. In the course of the evening a delicious buffet supper was served.

SHANHAIKWAN, WHERE CHINA'S GREAT WALL MEETS THE SEA

Shanhaikwan, at the extreme eastern end of the Great Wall of China, has been mentioned frequently in dispatches from the Far East because it stands at the formal boundary line between China proper and Manchuria, almost exactly halfway between Peiping and Mukden. With Chinchowfu, farther east, it shares the heavy railroad and road traffic which passes along the narrow coastal plain between the mountains and deserts of Inner Mongolia and the sea. This bottleneck plain is the only land link between China and Manchuria.

Although Shanhaikwan in recent years has not been considered a very large nor important city it was once the key to all northern China, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Here is the best preserved section of the Great Wall of China, and its celebrated eastern gate called "Under Heaven Number One Gate," or "The First Gate of the World."

Held for 30 Years

Strangely, fortified Shanhaikwan and its part of the Great Wall was once the first line of Chinese defense against the natives of Manchuria, the Manchus. Here for 30 years the dread enemies of China were kept at bay, but here, in the battle of May 26, 1644, the Manchu leader Wu San Kuei, managed to overcome Li Tzucheng's vastly superior Chinese forces after hours of bitter fighting in a furious sandstorm.

Today Shanhaikwan is one of the outposts of Chinese troops moving into Manchuria. The spot that once resounded to the blare of war trumpets now hears only the whistle of a train following the railway line piercing the Great Wall. Popular sentiment a third of a century ago, when the line was built, would have forbidden the breaking of the Wall for such a purpose had not an opening been conveniently at hand. Legend says this gap was made at the command of a Chinese princess, who sought the body of her husband. The husband had been killed in the defense of the Wall and buried in it.

The city of Shanhaikwan itself is roughly divided into three parts—the ancient walled city proper, surrounded by three miles of fortifications 40 feet high; a walled quarter east of the city proper and outside the Great Wall; and a third section outside the west gate of the city proper. Between 80,000 and 90,000 people live in these districts, and in the small new section around the railroad station. The Peiping-Mukden main line goes through the Great Wall but not the walled city.

Fighting and Pageantry

The chief fortification at Shanhaikwan, known as Shanhaikwan Castle, was constructed in 1639, under the Ming Dynasty. It has seen some fighting, but it has also had a taste of Oriental pageantry as a stopping place for Manchu rulers, en route from Peiping to ancestral shrines in Mukden, or to hunting preserves along the Sungari River.

Shanhaikwan has a number of hotels and Chinese inns, and a small foreign colony. During the Boxer Rebellion it was occupied by European troops.

The city's name means "Mountain-Sea Barrier," or "Between Mountain and Sea" and it is well named. It lies about three miles from the foot of the dry mountain plateau leading to Inner Mongolia and an equal distance from the Gulf of Chihli.

The Sea Has Taken Toll

The sea end of the Great Wall, which winds across this distance and up the face of the mountains, is immensely impressive. Blocks of granite, beaten and lashed by the waves, and their ally, the wind, have broken loose and extend awry into the water, toys for the rising tide.

Following the curve of the Wall one come suddenly upon the great winking eye of a modern white lighthouse on the old Pavilion of Literature. Practically all the Wall between Shanhaikwan and the summit of Koku Shan, nearly 2000 feet above the city and five miles north of it, is still standing. Almost the entire upper part of this section rises in a series of stone steps, with watchtowers at frequent intervals.

Death Adder Fourth in List of Deadly Snakes

The Australian death adder is said to have long borne an undeservedly bad name. People said the death adder was the most virulently poisonous of Australian snakes. Now Mr. le Souef, director of the Sydney zoo, states that it is not nearly so fearsome as has been imagined. The average farmer will say emphatically that the death adder is one of the most dangerous reptiles in the bush. At the week-end a man was bitten by one. The fact that the bite had little ill-effect on him prompted inquirers to seek Mr. le Souef's opinion. Mr. le Souef declared that he would have been surprised if the man had died, as he would rank the death adder as only fourth among Australia's poisonous snakes. The most deadly is the tiger snake, capable of killing a healthy man in 70 minutes. Next comes the brown snake, a potential killer in two hours. Then, says Mr. le Souef, the black snake, which can make man desperately sick for 12 to 24 hours, but gives him a chance of life. Then the death adder and other varieties.

"Divine Right"

King James I, who followed Queen Elizabeth, once cried out angrily: "It is just as much hatred and unbelief in God to question what the king does as to question what God created."

Ambition's Result

Ambition often puts men upon doing the meanest offices; so climbing is performed in the same posture with creeping.—Swift.

Sports Improve Posture

While corrective exercises are important for improving poor posture, sports have been found even more helpful. In the case of students at Harvard, it was found that of the freshmen who were obliged to take corrective exercises for poor posture those who took part in organized athletic sports during the subsequent three years showed much greater improvement in posture than those who did not go in for sports, the latter showing little if any improvement, according to the Boston Herald.

It's GOOD SENSE to take out AUTO INSURANCE from US

Ask one of our many satisfied customers—they'll be glad to vouch for us. We've been writing all kinds of insurance for many years. You can pay for the insurance you take out in small monthly payments.

Wise motorists are taking advantage of our auto insurance policies RIGHT NOW. A down payment of $3.00 and balance in small monthly payments is all that is necessary to take out auto insurance from us. How about it? Right or wrong you need protection while driving on the crowded streets. Investigate today. Phone, write, or call personally.

IT DOESN'T PAY TO BE TOO PRACTICAL ABOUT YOUR WIFE'S GIFT!!

Of course, it's fine to give her a pair of blankets, or a living-room table, or even an appendix operation,—and she'll be darned grateful,—but add to it some dainty, frivolous thing,—the sort of thing she doesn't buy for herself, and always wants. Let us show you!

Esther's

The depression 's tuff, an' all that!
The banks are busting, an' all that!
We're all steamed up about the Russians,
But here it is, without much gushins,
I'm wishing you all Christmas Joy,
An' that 's that!!

We do'nt know what the future 's bringing
'T won't be all joy, nor yet all singing,
But we can take it,
An' maybe make it:—
Good, for all that!!

AN OMISSION

To the Editor of the Star:

In my letter of thanks in last week's Star we neglected to mention the Big Sister Committee of the Emblem Club, Mrs. Emily Schoil, Chairman, who so kindly contributed the sum of $15. We regret the omission very much, especially as the Emblem Club is always ready to help the Elks in all charitable activities.

G. H. Lochman,
Chairman, Welfare Committee of the Winchester Lodge of Elks.
